GUEST OF SENATOR MICHAEL J. STACK PRESENTED TO THE SENATE

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Stack.

Senator STACK. Mr. President, I just want to make sure I give a special introduction. This is one of my interns. We are very fortunate here in Harrisburg, we have a lot of young people who want to be involved in public service, they want to see how this great institution functions, and they want to make a difference in the lives of Pennsylvanians. I want to talk about my intern, Eric Pettis, who is actually not from my particular area, although he has family members in my constituency. Eric is a senior at Millersville University, majoring in government and political economics. He is actually Senator Smucker's constituent. Senator Smucker is a good friend of mine and has great people from his area.

I met Eric through serving in the military. One of the other officers with whom I serve told me he had a young man who was interested in interning and I said, have him come to my office and we will see if we can put him to work. I came in basically that next day and he was already on staff as an intern doing research. He has done a great job and he is here on the floor. Eric previously served as an intern at the Department of State's Bureau of Professional and Occupational Affairs. I say to my colleagues, do not try to steal Eric, he is my intern. He has done a great job. Mr. President, I ask the Senate to offer our customary warm welcome to Eric Pettis.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

The PRESIDENT. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Stack.

Senator STACK. Mr. President, I know that we are in the middle of yet another budget stalemate. I am sure we will get the people's work done by our constitutional deadline of June 30, but in the meantime, we are still working on a number of projects here and I think it is very important not to take our eye off the ball of one of the most important policy issues that we will face, which the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has been facing for at least a decade, and that is our huge infrastructure crisis. We still have huge problems here in Pennsylvania with the potential for dangerous bridge collapses and fatalities. We also have a huge problem economically with the fact that our roads are in disrepair. Commuters spend countless hours wasting fuel, wasting time, wasting energy, and at the end of the day, wasting economic resources and power. And that is one of the reasons why Pennsylvania is near the bottom nationally in job creation and economic development. It is why it is so important, Mr. President, that this Commonwealth moves forward on dramatic infrastructure development and reform.

I was pleased last week to be among the great majority of folks here, Democrat and Republican, to support my friend and colleague, Senator Rafferty's infrastructure legislative piece, along with my colleague, the Democratic chair of the Committee on Transportation, Senator Wozniak. We passed a bill that is going to provide about $2.5 billion in infrastructure spending. It includes spending that should have been done for many years but has not. Governor Corbett's own Commission on Transportation and Infrastructure has pointed out that we have a multiple-billion-dollar spending deficit on infrastructure in the State. Once again, from one end of the State to the other, we have a problem with dilapidated roads, unstable and unsafe bridges, and just a general inefficiency in the way our transportation and infrastructure system works in the State.

So I am happy that we moved forward with passing that legislation, but we are a long way away from being done. I am hearing disheartening things about what is going on, along with our brothers and sisters in the other Chamber, the House of Representatives. I am hearing that there have been attempts to really scale down what we have done here in this Chamber, but we need an infrastructure package that is going to work, that is going to move Pennsylvania forward, that is going to get us on the road to economic recovery and to job creation. All the hard work that is going into that is being undone. Perhaps the House product will not get us to where we need to go. If we are going to reform, we need to do it all the way. We cannot have infrastructure-lite. Without full infrastructure spending and investment, we will not have an infrastructure package that is responsible and serves the people of Pennsylvania, and we should not pass it. If we have to be here all summer long or longer to pass a bill that responds to the issues that we face in Pennsylvania, we should do it.

So, I intend to continue to work with my colleagues on both sides of the aisle. We have had a very good collaborative working relationship, and I think everybody recognizes this is an area where we need to do more, we need to have dramatic change, and we cannot have a scaled-down infrastructure package.

I know people in public service are afraid of the issue of taxes. I have read a little bit about our Founding Fathers, and I studied the way that they solved policy issues over the years. The Founding Fathers never said, no taxes. They said, no taxation without representation. There are fees and taxes in this infrastructure reform package, and I think many of them are very responsible pieces of revenue enhancement. I wish--and I look forward to working on this--I wish we could be more innovative, more creative in raising revenue, and I look forward to finding ways to do that. In the meantime, we can only draw the revenue from where it is available. When government has to spend money to do things that serve the people, the taxpayers, it has to do so fearlessly. It cannot pause to worry what will people think. That is part of leadership. So, I understand that is a big issue in the House, that folks are concerned, and they have a right to be concerned, but they cannot let their concern freeze them into inaction. People in this State understand that nobody gets elected 100 percent. But people understand that leaders are sent to Harrisburg to do what leaders do, and that is to sometimes make decisions that are not popular with everybody. We have an infrastructure package that raises fees, raises taxes--I can say the word "taxes,"--but I think it is responsible, I think it needs to be done, and if we are going to do infrastructure reform, we need to do it all the way.

The last issue for today, Mr. President, that I would like to address is the issue that many of our public school districts are facing throughout Pennsylvania, a fiscal and funding crisis. If we fail the kids of Pennsylvania in an opportunity to get the best possible education that we can give them, we are not really serving the people of Pennsylvania. If we are going to be a leader or even get to the middle of the pack, we are going to have to turn out young people who are going to be able to do well in the world and fend for themselves. I think we all recognize that a great public education system, or even a good and passable public education system, is the way to do that. So we have an issue with a funding crisis throughout Pennsylvania. We have to resolve these issues. We cannot come back year after year after year, we cannot pass on property tax increases across Pennsylvania. We have to find a way to reform education in such a way that we consistently deal, we consistently provide a good public education product to our young people, and that we support our teachers who are doing a tough job in Philadelphia. I think many of the teachers there, and you know I hear different things out there, but for the most part every public schoolteacher works in a very challenging environment. There are not a lot of perks to teaching in the public education system in Philadelphia other than the perk of knowing that you can mold a young person's mind and help that person to be somebody and to contribute and make the State a better place to live. That may not be a financial perk, but I think that is a much more valuable perk, and I think we should support the people who are choosing that vocation and who are teaching in our public education system. We need to support our teachers. So, I intend to continue to do that. I hope we can continue to do that in this State. I think the answer is support teachers, help kids learn, figure out responsible fiscal initiatives, and make sure that these problems are solved once and for all and Pennsylvania becomes the leader it should be.

Thank you, Mr. President.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Cambria, Senator Wozniak.

Senator WOZNIAK. Mr. President, earlier, Senator Stack from Philadelphia noted the importance of the investment of infrastructure. It is not just for rural Pennsylvania, it is not just for urban Pennsylvania, but it is a synergistic relationship. I think that we talked about that when we passed that bill out of this Senate. We are hoping that the House can be enlightened to realize the truth that this is something that needs to be done for the greater good of the four corners. The only point I want to make, because sometimes saying less is more, I was reading "USA Today," an article that I think was pretty accurate, and it had States stepping up to the plate, listing the top 10 States in the Union that have deficient bridges. I will leave you with this: Pennsylvania has not just the most number of deficient bridges in the United States, and one of the reasons is because we are a relatively large State, but we also have the largest percentage of deficient bridges. And I think that is the telltale story we have to express. We have to keep our motorists safe, we have to invest in infrastructure, and if it is not the politicians you wish to listen to, it is the statistics that are out there. We are number one in deficient bridges by all indicators in the nation. That is a sad sign for a State that proudly calls itself the Keystone State. We need to invest in our future, we need to invest in our infrastructure, and I certainly hope that we can do this in a bipartisan, bicameral way because the Governor has already agreed to accept a bill on his desk. Let us put people to work and let us keep our roads safe.

Thank you, Mr. President.
