SPECIAL PROVISIONS FOR FEDERAL FUNDS

Section 1201. General Fund repository for Federal funds.—All moneys received from the Federal Government as contributions or supplements to the departments or agencies of the Commonwealth or the programs herein provided shall be paid into the General Fund.

Section 1202. Limitation on encumbering or spending Federal funds.—Federal funds shall be encumbered or spent only to the extent that such funds are estimated as being available during the fiscal year of the Commonwealth.

Section 1203. Appropriation of prior unspent Federal funds.—Any Federal money which has been previously appropriated by the General Assembly and authorized or allocated by the Federal Government but remains unspent from prior fiscal years, and will not be renewed for fiscal year 1991-1992, is hereby appropriated.

Section 1204. Subgrants between Federal fund appropriations.—With the exception of Federal money received under JTPA and SSBG, subgrants may be made between appropriations without further approval of the General Assembly. The Secretary of the Budget shall submit a list of subgrants to the Chairmen of the House and Senate Appropriations Committees quarterly. No subgrant to a State agency, however, may be made from a restricted receipt account without a specific appropriation by the General Assembly.

Section 1205. Utilization of emergency Federal funds.—(a) Federal funds available for costs and damages resulting from natural disasters or civil disobedience may be added to an appropriation contained in this act or to funds appropriated or may be used for the purposes prescribed by the Federal Government.

(b) In addition to the moneys appropriated by this act, all moneys received from the Federal Government for the purpose of disaster assistance or relief shall be paid into the General Fund and are hereby appropriated out of the General Fund to the departments, boards, commissions or agencies designated by the Governor.

(c) In the event of any emergency situation in which the General Assembly cannot act in sufficient time, the Governor is authorized through executive authorization to provide up to $5,000,000 in Federal funds to alleviate the emergency situation. For the purposes of this section, "emergency" is defined as any situation in which there is a chance of, or which may result in, substantial human suffering.

PART XIII

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

Section 1301. Prior laws unaffected.—This act is not intended to be inconsistent with or to repeal any provision of any act enacted at this or any prior session of the General Assembly regulating the purchase of supplies, the ordering of printing and binding, the purchase, maintenance and use of automobiles, the method of making payments from the State Treasury for any purpose or the functioning of any administrative department, board or commission.

Section 1302. Compliance with other law before funds available.—No appropriation made by this act to any department, board, commission or agency of the Executive Department shall be available unless and until the department, board, commission or agency has complied with sections 615 and 616 of the act of April 9, 1929 (P.L.177, No.175), known as The Administrative Code of 1929.

Section 1303. Contracts prerequisite to encumbering or committing funds.—Funds for the purchase of supplies, materials and equipment shall not be deemed to be committed or encumbered until contracts covering the purchase have been entered into with the vendors.

Section 1304. Minority business set-asides.—(a) Each department or other instrumentality of the Commonwealth listed in Subpart A of Part II, authorized to contract for buildings, highways, commodities, equipment, supplies or services, shall report to the General Assembly all information pertinent to anticipated procurement needs at the beginning of each fiscal year and each fiscal quarter thereafter.

(b) As used in this section, the term "minority business" means a minority business enterprise as defined in the act of July 22, 1974 (P.L.598, No.206), known as the Pennsylvania Minority Business Development Authority Act.

Section 1305. Appropriation of funds from miscellaneous sources.—(a) In addition to the amounts appropriated by this act, moneys received in payment for food and household supplies furnished to employees and other persons, except inmates, by an institution, and moneys received from the proceeds from the sale of any products of the soil, meats, livestock, timber or other materials sold by the department shall be paid into the General Fund and are hereby appropriated out of the General Fund to the several respective institutions for the operation and maintenance of the institutions.

(b) In addition to the amounts appropriated by this act, all moneys received from any other source, except the Federal Government, as contributions for the programs provided herein or as payment for services or materials furnished by one institution to another, except those collections designated as revenues, shall be paid into the General Fund and are hereby appropriated out of the General Fund for the purposes of the respective appropriations.

(c) In addition to any funds specifically appropriated by this act, all moneys received by a department or agency of the Commonwealth from any other sources, except the Federal Government, as contributions or supplements to the department or agency for a program or administration of an act included in this act shall be paid into the General Fund and credited to the appropriation for that program or administration of the act.

Section 1306. Legislative Department contingencies.—The amounts appropriated in Subpart B of Part II to the Senate and the House of Representatives and to the various agencies, boards, bureaus, commissions, committees and other entities thereunder shall be subject to the contingency that lapses of no less than $20,000,000 from prior year appropriations shall be made from the various Legislative Department accounts.

Section 1307. Lapsing of unused funds.—(a) Except as otherwise provided by law or in subsections (b), (c), (d), (e), (f), (g), (h), (i), (j), (k), (l), (m) and (n), that part of all appropriations in Parts II, III, IV, V, VI, VII, VIII, IX and X unexpended, uncommitted or unencumbered as of June 30, 1992, shall automatically lapse as of that date.

(b) The appropriations in Part II to the Department of Community Affairs for housing and redevelopment assistance and low-interest local government loans shall be two-year continuing appropriations.

(c) The appropriations in Part II to the Department of Environmental Resources for the Chesapeake Bay Pollution Abatement Program, and the black fly control program shall be continuing appropriations.

(d) The appropriation in Part II to the Department of Military Affairs for the Veterans Memorial Commission shall be a two-year continuing appropriation.

(e) The appropriation in Part II to the Pennsylvania Emergency Management Agency for the State Fire Academy shall be a two-year continuing appropriation.

(f) The appropriation in Part II to the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency for loan forgiveness shall be a two-year continuing appropriation.

(g) The appropriations in Part II to the Legislative Department shall be continuing appropriations.

(h) The appropriation in Part IV to the Department of Community Affairs for the Recreation Improvement and Rehabilitation Act shall be a three-year continuing appropriation.

(i) The appropriations in Part IV to the Department of Community Affairs for housing and redevelopment economic set-aside and enterprise development shall be two-year continuing appropriations.

(j) The appropriation in Part IV to the Department of Labor and Industry for the Pennsylvania Conservation Corps shall be a two-year continuing appropriation.

(k) The appropriations in Part IV to the Department of Commerce for business infrastructure development and industrial resource centers shall be two-year continuing appropriations.

(l) The appropriation in Part V to the Pennsylvania Energy Office shall be a two-year continuing appropriation.

(m) The appropriations in section 921 of Part IX for airport development, runway rehabilitation, business airport grants and real estate tax rebate payments shall be two-year continuing appropriations.

(n) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (f) of section 606 of the act of July 1, 1981 (P.L.628, No.5A), known as the General Appropriation Act of 1981, the appropriation in Part IV of that act to the Legislative Reapportionment Commission shall be a continuing appropriation.

PART XIV

EFFECTIVE DATE

Section 1401. Effective date.—This act shall take effect July 1, 1991, or immediately, whichever is later.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, House Bill No. 1591 was a product of the Majority's productivity, I guess, in the last 24 hours. It is basically a stopgap piece of legislation that funds state government for a month and funds the Motor License Fund for the entire year. My amendment does what we should be doing in this Chamber and that is, rather than trying to play around with stopgaps, our amendment is, in fact, a full year's budget. Mr. President, we are not completely happy with the amendment, but we took the House version of the budget that they passed to us and made some changes. Some of the changes we made. Otherwise it is the House budget that is already languishing somewhere in the Republican Committee on Appropriations in the bowels of that committee. What we have done is take away the provisions that provided that state employees will be required to take a five day leave without pay. We added money for the DOWP program in Philadelphia, which is a pilot program that takes people who are convicted of non-violent crimes, and rather than have us pay $25,000 a year to put them in prison we pay $2,500 a year and they clean up under I-95 for PennDOT and that has been working very well. We also added money for the domestic violence program in the Municipal Court of Philadelphia at $70,000 which was funded last year and we continued that. We also added, Mr. President, at the request of many business and labor leaders, money for the Health Care Cost Containment Council, at the Governor's recommended level of $1,744,000. In addition we added an additional $30 million over the House for children and youth programs, so that we can help our counties with this ever increasing problem. Mr. President, we are quite serious about this. We would hope the Senate Majority would give us the necessary votes to pass this budget so the people in Pennsylvania will feel that we are doing something up here other than that which we have been doing for the last three days that I have characterized in the media but I will not characterize on this floor, but you know what I am talking about. Mr. President, the time has come for the Majority to start leading. It is their responsibility to do that. If they will not exercise their responsibility, we will do it for them. If they want to stifle this budget, that too is within their power, but then they must answer to the people of Pennsylvania, not only to the employees of this state but to all the people of Pennsylvania, and they have to give us a reason why they want to violate their constitutional oath. Mr. President, we are sick and tired and I think the public is sick and tired of the lamebrain excuse that we are waiting for the House to send us a tax bill. We went through that at great length yesterday. We talked about such things as deception, misleading people and I think we have covered that quite well. Mr. President, there is currently a bill, House Bill No. 185, again languishing in the bowels of the Committee on Appropriations, that they could easily bring out and then we could amend it and put in a tax program that would match the funding of this bill. As I said before, we are not happy about this amendment but we will fund it. We will put up our 12 votes. We will do our share for what has to be done here today. We will look to that side of the aisle for their 14 votes. We would not expect them to put up a full 26 votes for a budget they have not negotiated, but we are willing to do our fair share. We just implore them to honor the oath of office that they took in here that day when their families were present, when this Chamber was decorated with flowers and there was this great feeling of happiness. They stood and they swore before God that they would honor their oath of office. We are asking them to remember what they said that day in more than just a photograph. We are asking them to remember what they said that day in action. To do any less is a violation of that oath of office and the integrity they talk about that they have. Mr. President, we challenge them to join with us and be responsible.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, as far as the amendment is concerned, all, basically, I heard was what we have before us is a proposal that was passed on a partisan line vote in the House of Representatives without any discussion or debate.

However, this amendment has some modifications to that. The gentleman talked about fair share. However, all I heard about the modifications were programs for the City of Philadelphia, increases for those programs for the City of Philadelphia. I heard about children and youth programs, something we are all concerned about, but yet, as the Governor stated publicly in his press conference last Friday, he rejected any change in the Children and Youth Program as presently proposed by the gentleman from Philadelphia. Therefore, and it seems to me most importantly, what we are lacking is the absence of any revenue package from the House. It is a position we have articulated on this floor before. It is very clear constitutionally that any revenue raising measure must begin in the House of Representatives. That budget from the House came over to the Senate some $2.6 billion out of whack. I am not certain what the number is on this budget, but I am sure with additions of increased spending for the City of Philadelphia, plus other alternatives or alterations to programs to increase the numbers of spending, we are still far short of a balanced budget to be presented before this Senate. Therefore, Mr. President, I would oppose the amendment. However, I would ask the Members of the Senate to seriously consider the content of the bill that is before us without the amendment because that is a measure that addresses the immediate issue. It addresses the issue as far as three important gaps that we currently face in this Commonwealth. I think it is important we look at the amendment that is before us that does not address many of those important issues. I think what we are trying to do with the bill that is before us today is not to provide a temporary step in the Motor License Fund but yet a full year budget for them.

Secondly, it seems to me, Mr. President, a permanent piece of the budget done now is much better to put into place than have it saved for later. I think if they look carefully at the bill that is before them, the Members would see that this is the Governor's transportation proposal and it is adjusted only to reflect the revenue measures not yet approved by the General Assembly. I believe for a number of reasons, as I have already stated, that it is just not timely in fashion to present that amendment and the House budget, once again, before this Body without a revenue package from the House in order to fund it, and I would ask for a negative vote on the amendment.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, to clarify some of the things the Majority Leader has said, the money that goes for the DOWP program goes to the Pennsylvania Board of Probation. It does not go to the City of Philadelphia. The money for the abuse program goes to the Philadelphia Municipal Court, not the City of Philadelphia, but, rather, the state court in Philadelphia called the Municipal Court of Philadelphia. Mr. President, as far as the children and youth issue, all we did was add $30 million so we could help our counties. We did not resolve the issue of state takeover, nor do we attempt to do it in this budget. I also recall the Governor saying recently that area was an area still open for negotiation, but if the Governor does not like it, I am willing to have him blue line it. No problem. We are not here beating him up. Mr. President, again I remind the gentleman of the word so dutifully brought out by the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Fisher, "distortion." Again I refer the gentleman to the same constitutional provision he talks about, Article III of the Constitution, Section 10, but I read the whole sentence. Obviously Republicans either did not learn how to read in school or they are distorting the facts or something of that nature. But the rest of that sentence that Senator Fisher failed to read is, "...the Senate may propose amendments as in other bills." There is in this Chamber—again I repeat, and I will say it forever—House Bill No. 185 which is, in fact, a revenue bill which, in fact, we can amend to put the taxes in that are necessary to fund any budget we want and send back to the House. We are like little kids, na na na na na, pish, pish, shame on you. That stops today, gentlemen. That stops today. You can keep doing it, but we are going to be here to do some work. Mr. President, the other side of the aisle clearly, clearly does not want to exercise its responsibility. I listened to the Majority Leader talk about a scaled-back full year appropriation for the Motor License Fund. We are getting closer. Productivity is increasing. That is what I told them to do the other day. Why do you not give us a full year budget, scale it back to the revenue projections, and we will be out of here—a no-tax budget. Could it be that Republicans in Pennsylvania are in tune with the Governor and Republicans in Pennsylvania want to raise taxes? My God, is that not amazing. You want to raise taxes. Well, okay, we will help you. We have 12 votes here ready to help you. Let us get moving. Or if you really believe that nonsense you put out in press releases, that you do not want to tax the public, give us a no-tax budget. You see, you learned how to do it when you did the Motor License Fund. You gave us a no new tax Motor License Fund budget for a year. Now it is a very simple process. You just get an adding machine and you sit down with the printout and you deduct out money until you get to the point where the budget is balanced. If you do not know how to do that, I have members of my staff who will gladly volunteer their time to assist you, but I do think your staff is competent enough to do that. What I think is you have not figured the plan out yet, and that is because you do not know how to lead. That is because you are not up to the responsibility of being in the Majority. You do not know from day to day what you want to do. You started this on Sunday with a three-line supplemental. Yesterday you wanted to do senior citizens. Today you are back with a full supplemental, but you have a full Motor License Fund budget. At some point in time I really wish their leadership on that side of the aisle would get together and come up with a plan, even if it is to lead us down the toilet, but at least lead us. Do something. Earn your keep. Earn your pay. Earn your cars. Earn your perks. Do something. Lead.

Mr. President, this is ridiculous. The gentleman does not like the budget, give me another one. Do not give me the nonsense that you do not like ours. We will give you the opportunity to amend. You can say the House passed it along partisan lines, but guess what they did over there, Mr. President? They put up a constitutional majority for a budget along partisan lines. I challenge you to do the same. Put up 26 votes for a budget, partisan or otherwise. They did what they are supposed to do. Their leaders, although they are new, learned how to lead very quickly. They took 105 of those cowboys and Indians, as they like to call them, put them in a corral and stampeded them right into the gate and they passed a budget. You cannot do it here with only 26. We do not care if you do it along partisan lines. Give us a budget that does not give us anything, but give us a budget and pass it along party lines. Cut off debate, but do something. Wake up over there. Where are all those guys? All those seats are empty. Tell them to come on back from Avalon and Margate and wherever the heck else they are going. We are going to be here for a while. Do we not want to come up and talk about the budget? Can we not call the Members back from the office? Do the Republicans not even want to sit on the floor? Do they have any debate? Can they not take the heat? A good Democratic President once said, "If you can't take the heat, get out of the kitchen." Ronald Reagan used to love that quote. He could not come up with any original ones that were not written by some Hollywood scriptwriter, so he often referred to Democrats. If you can't take the heat, get out of the kitchen. Oh, now we are going to have a point of order.

POINT OF ORDER

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Delaware, Senator Loeper, will state it.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, the point is germaneness, that is the amendment that is before us. If the gentleman would like to take his remarks of yesterday and those of the day before and just enter them into the record again, that would be acceptable to us but I would ask that he remain and keep his remarks to the amendment that is before us.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair thanks the gentleman for his point and the Chair must agree. He finds it difficult to understand how Ronald Reagan's scriptwriter is relevant to the discussion of the budget.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, if I may, we are in this problem nationally because of Ronald Reagan's stripped down economics.

The PRESIDENT. Now it is clear.

Senator FUMO. He is more relevant to this debate than the Republican Majority in the Senate.

The PRESIDENT. Well, the Chair is certainly glad he asked. There are, however, other speakers who wish to be heard, and the Chair would appreciate it if the gentleman would conclude.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I think Harry Truman is relevant to this argument too because he had guts and courage. I do not see any of that coming from the other side of the aisle. Let us vote for this amendment and get something done.

POINT OF INFORMATION

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I rise to a point of information.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, will state it.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I do not care if you answer this or the Majority Leader, either one of you. What day are we in? I missed the first part of Session, and I cannot understand why we have been going on recess until the next day and then adjourning yesterday today, and by Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday I am getting a little confused. What day are we in?

The PRESIDENT. The Chair is pleased to inform the gentleman this is, in fact, Wednesday, July 3rd.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, Did we conclude Tuesday's Session prior to beginning?

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman is correct.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I think from Sunday until today we have progressed in one area and that is it is now extremely clear as to the difference in the Democrat caucus' approach to what we are dealing with and the Republican approach. Beginning on Sunday, the Republicans have tried to deflect the responsibility of passing the budget on time by doing a meaningless stopgap on Sunday, six hours prior to the conclusion of the fiscal year, which that evening I questioned why we were doing that. If there was not a plan in place prior to move this state toward chaos by not passing a budget, I could not understand why they would do something in a stopgap manner that early. When I saw how silly and how very meaningless that stopgap was, then I understood Sunday's actions. Then, Monday, we did not do anything Monday. We did not deal with anything then. Tuesday we did a resolution that said to the Governor, like those ones we passed saying to Congress, do this or do that, that has no meaning or has no effect. That is what we did yesterday. We talked about that for about two or three hours about the Governor ought to prioritize his spending so that it took the same dollar that we spent on Sunday and do it a little differently on Tuesday. Whenever we offered an amendment that would say a true priority of those limited dollars, that amendment was voted down by partisan vote, which meant we voted for it, they voted against it. Now we are on Wednesday, and the reason I wanted to make sure we were clear is because I did not want to neglect a very important task being done on Wednesday, when it was still Tuesday's Session and so I can just keep everything in order. Now we are in Wednesday, the third day into the fiscal year, and we come up with House Bill No. 1591 which has been amended by the Republican Majority in this Senate in a meeting of the Committee on Appropriations that supposedly funds at one month for the next fiscal year. I think the clarity is now there as to who they care about and who they do not. We find in House Bill No. 1591, as amended, a full year budget for the Motor License Fund, but we see nothing that helps solve the serious problems the 501 school districts in Pennsylvania are facing in that they had to have a budget by June 30th. Most of them depend on our state appropriations in the General Fund bill for those budgets, and here we are, July 3rd, talking about passing a one-month spending plan, stopgap, whatever you want to call it, that addresses the Motor License Fund but does absolutely nothing for the 501 school districts.

Now I get to the point of my support for the amendment. In the amendment offered by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, there is $240 million additional ESBE funding. On top of last year's ESBE funding, this would increase the amount of money we were going to distribute to these 501 school districts in Pennsylvania; last year's number plus $240 million, which is the most money we have ever appropriated in one year in an increase, in my 19 years in the General Assembly anyway, for ESBE increases. It is not only the increased spending and increased funding where we very badly need it, because I have heard the complaints of the Majority about all the school districts raising their taxes over the past couple of years in debate here and more particularly earlier this year about all the school districts that are in very bad shape and they need money and we are not letting them have it and we are keeping them from keeping their taxes down. Well, here is a chance to do that. Not only are you going to do one thing by helping control local property tax increases, you are more seriously and more immediately allowing those 501 school districts to complete their obligation of passing a budget so they can, in September, start school and have their kids get a good education and have the teachers working. They can make final determinations on layoffs if they are going to continue those, as I know throughout most of Pennsylvania teachers have been notified some time ago because there is usually a contract or a legal reason for notifying so many days in advance before there is a layoff that takes place. We are seeing today the opportunity to say to those 501 school districts, here is what you are going to get. Now you can go Monday of next week or Thursday of this week, or whenever, and you can finalize your spending plan for the next fiscal year. If precedent is anything to go by from Sunday until now, there will not be a Republican vote for Senator Fumo's amendment and then there will be some more debate and we will see a Republican Majority, 26 votes, pass House Bill No. 1591 and send it to the House and then go home and say they have done their job and do whatever they want to do. If you have noticed, my remarks in debate since Sunday have been extremely limited in saying where and whatever somebody is doing because that is none of my business. What any Member of this Senate does when they leave here today is their own business, but I do object to what position is being put forth here today so that when we do leave here, those of us who vote against leaving, which we are going to do, and those of you who vote to leave, the ones who vote to leave are not going to get away with leaving here saying, I am going away for the weekend, I am going to my home for the weekend, I am going to go to college for the weekend, I am going to spend time with a nun, a priest, a preacher, whatever you want to do. You are not going to say it with a clear conscience and you are not going to say that without some objections from me personally that you have done your job, because this is far, far from being a completion of the responsibilities of all of us. I will echo Senator Fumo's remarks in that you do have a majority and you do have a responsibility. Believe me, if we had time we could probably debate a considerable larger amount of what you are attempting to do here. I think the most obvious example of how the interest of the Republican Party in the Senate lies and how they do not is that they are willing to pass a Motor License Fund budget but they are not interested in helping the 501 school districts. I think that is abominable. I think it is irresponsible and I think if you are serious, tell us you want to start talking right now or you are going to do something in the Committee on Appropriations that will legitimately put together a budget, one that we can really look forward to having the next year's budget be, and I would be willing to say I think Senator Fumo would withdraw this amendment if you are willing to do that and we would work together, the way we should, to solve this very serious problem we are in. If not, then I think it is very clear that there is no intention on the part of the Majority Party in this Senate to do anything about solving the problem. I do not know when they are going to move into that frame of mind, but I would hope the sequence of events we have seen since Sunday are not indicative of moving away from solving the problem, as it seems to be, but there would be some serious thought given to spending whatever time it takes. If it is Monday of next week and you want to have a budget ready for us to deal with, I have no problem with that. If it is tomorrow, if it is Friday, if it is Saturday or if it is Sunday, I have no problem with that, and I do not think anybody over on this side of the aisle does have a problem with that. But I think this amendment is not what I want to see the budget be, but it is a heck of a lot better than what I see coming out of the Republican Majority in House Bill No. 1591. I would ask for you to support the amendment, and upon my prediction of a 24-26 defeat of this amendment, then I would ask you to think a little bit and use a little thought before you jam House Bill No. 1591 through here and then see if you can leave and sneak out of town saying you have done your job. I think that is really the height of irresponsibility.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I guess I was delaying putting my switch on to see if the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Loeper, wanted the opportunity to rebut anything that was said by the gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, or the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, and it is quite obvious that the things they have said, apparently even to his thinking, are totally accurate or he would have hit the switch and he would have tried to rebut. Perhaps when I finish with my comments, the gentleman or some other surrogate on his side of the aisle may choose to do so.

Mr. President, if there is a willingness on the part of the Republican Party in the Senate of Pennsylvania to go ahead and to discuss a budget, then we now have presented them with that particular type of document, something they have not allowed us to do under their leadership. If there is a problem with this bill in some form or if there is a problem with the amendment in some form, if it does not meet their needs, then, obviously, we could go into recess for a period of time so the Republican Members of the Senate could go ahead and could provide amendments to go ahead and to meet any of the concerns in the issues they may have with the presentation of the amendment. Mr. President, if there is a problem with the fact that five months ago, on February 6th, Governor Casey sent to the General Assembly, and indeed to this Senate, his budget, and the Majority Party in the Senate has refused to discuss on the floor of this Senate his budget or any other budget, if that need be the case, Mr. President, then I think we could recess the Senate for a short period of time to give the Majority Party the opportunity to go ahead and to present that budget. On the other hand, if accepting this particular amendment as a budget would have the Republican Party in the Senate being perceived as if they were doing their job as they were elected to do in holding the trust for the people they represent, then it is obvious they do not want to do that. We tried for weeks to negotiate in good faith, and it was obvious there was no good faith coming from the Republican Members of the Senate, at least those who were negotiating on their behalf. Mr. President, we have tried for the last three days to talk on the floor of this Senate. We are now in the third day beyond the time when we were supposed to have a budget passed. If there was ever any willingness on the part of the Majority Members of the Senate, then when we discussed a stopgap on Monday, a resolution on Tuesday and another feeble attempt at a stopgap today, the Majority Party, in fact, would be going ahead and they would be trying to do their job they were elected to do, but once again there is no willingness on their part to do that.

What is a bit concerning, Mr. President, is the fact that during most of the debate the vast majority of the Republican Members of the Senate have not even seen fit to appear on the floor of the Senate. Now we have to ask ourselves a question. Is it too painful for them to listen to the truth, or perhaps is it the fact that the leader of their flock, the good shepherd who was elected by the 26 Members of his Republican caucus who, in fact, I do not think has been doing his job to present a bill to the floor, is it possible that some other Member over there might feel that now it is time to go ahead and to start doing the job that the Republican leadership, in fact, is not doing? It is very, very hard to stand on this side of the aisle. It is very hard to hear the discussion that comes from the other side. It is very difficult to see Members of the Republican Party standing next to one another trying to talk as if they are not interested in what is taking place here on the floor of the Senate when the things that are happening, Mr. President, affect all the people of Pennsylvania, those people who have elected us to serve right here in the Senate as their State Senators to do the job we have been elected to do.

If there is any meaningful effort whatsoever on the part of the Majority, here is your opportunity to lead. You have been elected to do that. All 26 Members of the Senate who were elected by the Republican Party have been given that opportunity today to lead, not necessarily just the individual Member who has been elected as your leader. Any one of you over there can go ahead and any one of you can start to show some very strong political independence and come up with some kind of a budget to do what is right for the people who you represent, because you represent Democrats and you represent Republicans and you represent school districts that need school subsidies and you represent people who are suffering from mental health and mental retardation and child welfare programs. Each and every one of us represents those kinds of people. This is not a Democrat versus Republican issue. This is a people issue, and we are not doing our job under the direction of the Republican leadership right here in this Senate. Right now we have the opportunity in an amendment that was offered by Senator Fumo to try to correct that. Three days into a fiscal year and you have yet to put on the floor of this Senate a budget that we can talk about. The only thing we have seen is a feeble approach through a stopgap. I know what is going to happen. When this amendment is defeated by party votes of 26-24, in view of the fact that you will vote an individual who has been sick and has not been on this Senate floor for the past two months because of illness, but you will exercise his legislative leave and pass this bill with his 26th vote, and we will allow you to do that because it is our hope that the news media will eventually start to pick that up about how you are putting your 26 votes together. Furthermore, what is going to happen is once this amendment is defeated and you go ahead and you pass your stopgap, you then will think you have done your job and you will be able to vote against the adjournment resolution we will offer that will convene the Senate tomorrow so we will be here once again to do the job that you, unfortunately, have not been able to do.

Mr. President, I ask for an affirmative vote on the amendment.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, before I address the remarks related to the bill, I would like to correct one total misimpression the Minority Leader left with many of the Members, and that is relative to the legislative leave of the Senator from Delaware, Senator Bell. I think it is very unfortunate that the Minority Leader would use this occasion to cast aspersions on the integrity of a Member of this Senate, one who is the dean of this Senate, one who has been in this Senate for many years and one who is recovering from a serious illness, however, who has been in his district office on a regular basis meeting with constituents and doing work. I spoke with Senator Bell as recently as 11:00 o'clock this morning, and I would suggest to the gentleman from Lackawanna, if he should have any question as to Senator Bell's capability or interest in following these issues while he is working in his district office, Senator Bell is available to talk to him if he wishes to call him on the phone to verify that.

Secondly, Mr. President, I am pleased to see that I have moved from the role of a lamebrain on Sunday to at least the good shepherd today. But I think when we want to get serious about budget negotiations and budget proposals that are before us, once again we do not see any type of revenue proposal to fund this budget.

Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator FUMO. I will, Mr. President.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I was wondering if the gentleman would indicate to the Members of the Senate how much, over and above existing revenues, the budget amendment he has introduced today would cost?

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I am advised it is about $2.7 billion, give or take $50 million or $100 million, you know. I would be more precise if we could sit down and negotiate something.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, can he tell us the bottom line on this amendment, that is how much he has proposed to increase taxes to every taxpayer in Pennsylvania? Is it precisely $2.7 billion?

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, if this amendment passes, if the Majority decides to see the light that is coming through the windows and it goes on to the House, I am sure they will pass it on to the Governor and we will have to see if he blue-ines it, but assuming that he does not, as I said before and I say again, we are fully prepared to join with the Majority and put up our 12 votes for $2.7 billion in taxes.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, could the gentleman precisely tell me what is the total cost of this amendment?

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, if the gentleman wants to go at ease, we could do that, but at this point in time I cannot give him an exact number. If he wants to go at ease and give us about five or ten minutes, we can give him an exact number. It is his choice.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, now I would think if we had offered an amendment to deal with the entire General Fund budget of this Commonwealth, we certainly should know how much the bottom line of this amendment would be.

I have no further questions, Mr. President, but I would like to speak to the amendment.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, if I may, for the gentleman's information, I have a number. It is $13,800,000,000 which is the total cost of the amendment.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, we talked here on the floor today about this amendment. I alluded to it a little earlier in some of my remarks, but I find it very difficult to hear from the other side of the aisle continuously about a negotiated budget. You know, Mr. President, it was this side of the aisle that continuously tried to negotiate, continuously tried to meet and was met with delays and deferrals, and finally it was the other side of the aisle that broke off the negotiations and stampeded out of the rooms of the four caucuses. I think, Mr. President, when we take a look now at what is before us, we see something that is absolutely no different than what we saw come over from the House of Representatives. We see before us a spending plan that has no revenue plan to match it, and it certainly seems to me when we talk about Governor Casey's budget that was presented to us five months ago, let us take a look at the history for a minute.

Let us look at last November when we had a balanced state budget, according to the Budget Office and the Governor, and then let us talk about February, when all of a sudden we saw that we had a deficit starting to accrue in the Commonwealth. At that time we saw a $1.7 billion need for new revenues as recommended by the Governor. However, it was not until May 30th of this year that we saw another plan, a revised plan come forth from the Governor's Office, that one calling for about $2.6 billion or $2.7 billion of new taxes for all Pennsylvanians. Then, once again, even into the month of June when we were starting budget negotiations, we saw a third revision on a school subsidy proposal. We saw an additional revision on a special education proposal, and it has been extremely difficult to try and keep up with the various alternatives and proposals that we have been receiving from the Governor's Office. I think when we talk about the budget before us, once again we want to know what are the taxes that are going to fund this budget. I think when we take a look at the proposal that we see before us, it is even more bloated than the Governor's proposal and it is even more bloated than the House Democrats' spending bill that they sent over here some few weeks ago. I think the bottom line, Mr. President, as the leaders of the other side of the aisle have indicated, is they have their Members prepared to vote for this budget, this amendment. That indicates to me that there are 24 Members of that side of the aisle also prepared to vote for the $2.7 billion of new taxes that are needed to fund this proposal, and I would call on them to remember that an affirmative vote on this amendment is a commitment to vote for $2.7 billion in new taxes.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, if the gentleman wants to adopt this amendment and if he wants to take out House Bill No. 185, we will be ready to talk about $2.7 billion in taxes. Let us see if he has the guts to meet that challenge. Also, Mr. President, when we talk about negotiations, one of the things I pride myself for in Harrisburg is the ability to keep my word and the ability to keep confidences. But if the gentleman wants to talk about negotiations, then I no longer feel duty bound to keep things secret. We were in the Governor's Office today at about 12:10 p.m. and the schedule was that we were to meet in that office at 12:00 o'clock p.m. with the Governor, along with House Democrats, and we were to have a private meeting at 1:00 o'clock p.m., myself, the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Loeper, along with House of Representatives Minority Leader Ryan and Bill DeWeese. When we sat in there we informed Representative DeWeese that despite the offer of the other side of the aisle to sit down and talk about negotiations, they had just passed a stopgap bill out of the Committee on Appropriations. Representative DeWeese then called the Majority Leader, Senator Loeper, and was confounded by that because he had met with Senator Loeper yesterday for over an hour. He met with Representative Ryan last night for a long period of time, and it appeared as if we were going to negotiate again, and he asked him why, in fact, if we were going to do that, was he playing around shooting bullets with stopgaps? Senator Loeper informed him that they might, in fact, hold the bill today. So we went about the rest of our meeting. I looked at my watch and saw it was about 11:45 a.m. and the gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, was supposed to come back and watch the desk, and I asked staff to call and see if we were at the desk. They called and to our surprise, not only were we back in Session, but Senator Loeper was prepared to move the stopgap. It was at that point in time that I said we are not going to meet at 1:00 o'clock. We are not going to meet until you are ready to get serious. Do not tell me about negotiating in good faith. I know how to do it. You do not.

Now one thing, Mr. President, we keep talking about revisions. Well the revisions are necessary and were necessary because revenue estimates slipped further than they were before. Mr. President, he opened the door and I am going in.

POINT OF ORDER

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Delaware, Senator Loeper, will state it.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I would note that the speaker has continuously this week cast false aspersions upon various Members of this Senate without any basis of fact. I raised the issue yesterday, and I would raise it once again today, Mr. President.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair would just take this opportunity to note that we did have a rather wide-ranging discussion of current and ancient history yesterday on the floor of the Senate, much of which was important and much of which was irrelevant. The Chair would simply urge all Members to confine remarks to the issue at hand, which is the normal procedure for debate on the Senate floor in the first place. With that, the Chair would recognize Senator Fumo.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I resent the gentleman's point of order. If I said something false or cast false aspersions on somebody in my last remarks, let him tell me where they were. If my recollections of the facts are different—maybe Representative DeWeese had a different conversation with him—I will stand corrected. Perhaps he could tell us the sequence of events he knows about. I merely am saying what I know about and who told me. Nothing in that is false, to my knowledge. If the gentleman wants to clear up facts, clear them up on the record, but I resent even the implication that I would stand here and speak falsehoods about something like that because I take that seriously. Mr. President, we talk about revisions. It was necessary that there were revisions because of the revenue estimates that were off. Yes, there were revisions, but now those revenue estimates are history. We had, in fact, a budget deficit last year of $467 million. We know what that number is. What is causing the problem? You mean now we do not have a budget before us from the Majority because there were changes made in April and May? How long must we wait until the situation stabilizes for the Majority to make up its mind to lead and give us a budget? I do not have any problem with revisions. If the gentleman wants to offer amendments to my amendment, offer them. Let us have a meaningful budget discussion right now. I repeat again, if you want to take out your tax bill, take it out and put it on the floor. Pass this amendment and we will be there to pass taxes. You do not have the guts to do that either. The only thing you people can do in here is sit around and talk rhetoric and make distortions, and I make that charge clearly. You can distort facts forever, but the record speaks for itself and the numbers add up.

Mr. President, do not talk to me about negotiations. The Majority has blown up this train on negotiations, and when they are ready to put it back together we will be ready, but we are not going through any more charades.

Senator ANDREZESKI. Mr. President, on the amendment, I find it simply a matter of interpretation to sit in our seat here and have the Majority Leader say a vote for this amendment is a vote for taxes, because as I look at the amendment I do not see anything that is raising corporate income tax and I do not see anything raising personal income tax or any variety of other taxes that have been proposed. What I do see is a spending plan, and what we are voting for is a spending plan on this amendment. As I know and, hopefully, other Members of this Body know, if our spending plan does not meet our revenue intake, then we are going to have to reduce that or let the Governor blue line the budget to meet our revenues. The fact remains, we have a spending plan, and the fact remains if we want to spend that amount of money we are going to have to come back here and vote it on a tax plan. But I would encourage the Members here to stand and say, well, let us get off the dime on this and let us start doing something on this. If we could get the ball moving, we have a plan we could send.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Erie, Senator Andrezeski.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Erie, Senator Andrezeski, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator ANDREZESKI. I will, Mr. President.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I am sorry, I did not quite understand the gentleman's remarks. Did I understand correctly that he is prepared to vote for a budget that is going to increase spending by $2.7 billion, but yet he is not prepared to vote for any taxes to fund it? Is that correct?

Senator ANDREZESKI. Mr. President, I am prepared to stand here today and do the job that people elected me to do, and that is to come up with a negotiated budget package. I am prepared to stand here today and vote on a spending plan for the year for Pennsylvania that will allow us to come up with a plan to fund that. Mr. President, I know and the Majority Leader knows that the process involves spending and the process involves taxation. We have to start somewhere and this is the starting point. In the past I voted against taxation on budgets. I would not be afraid to vote against taxes on this budget, but I am willing to say, let us get the cards on the table and see what we can afford in the future.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I am sorry, I did not understand exactly what the gentleman was saying, and that is he believes he can vote in the affirmative for over $2.7 billion of new spending but he has to review his decision on whether he can support the taxes to fund that level of spending, is that correct?

Senator ANDREZESKI. Mr. President, first of all, the Majority Leader knows that has been done by many individuals in this Chamber in the past. Secondly, I would be willing to look at a tax plan to see if it met the needs of the people who have to pay taxes in Pennsylvania and how much of a bite it takes out of them.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I have no further questions. I do not mean to put the gentleman on the spot. However, I think it is crystal clear that anybody who votes for this amendment of $2.7 billion of new spending has an obligation to also vote for the taxes to fund it.

POINT OF ORDER

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, will state it.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I have learned the last couple of days that there are a lot of things you can raise points of order about, and I believe the Majority has done it to me a couple of times. I wish the gentleman would confine his questions to the amendment. If he has a tax bill he is ready to put out on the floor, we could talk about that too. When it comes, we will talk about it, but he is very far afield now off of the amendment.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair appreciates the gentleman's point of order and would point out to both gentlemen that both have spoken three times on this amendment, which exceeds the normal allotment, and both are doing so with the unanimous consent of the Senate. It is also the intention of the Chair to restrain all speakers and to confine them to the issue at hand, which is the amendment, which the Chair is going to do much more methodically from this point forward.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I guess I am going to violate that order then right at the start, because I must answer the statements that have been put on the record by the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Loeper.

First of all, Senator Loeper said I was casting aspersions against the integrity of the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Bell. I have never cast an aspersion against the integrity of anyone on the floor of this Senate and certainly not against Senator Bell. The man has not been well for the last several months and we all wish him our best on this side of the aisle. I hoped his friendly face would be here in this Senate with us.

Secondly, Mr. President, I think it is important to note that we also had one of our own Members, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Lynch, who is approaching being a 20-year veteran as a Member of the Senate, who himself is not well. We did not go ahead at all and vote Senator Lynch on legislative leave until first Senator Lynch had the opportunity of being present on the floor of the Senate, which he was one day last week and then went back into his district to deal with legislative commitments, and he was here on the floor of the Senate two particular days this week and then has gone back and has given us a letter even as to what constituents Senator Lynch has been meeting with.

Finally, Mr. President, we did have the opportunity on Sunday, and we have not objected to legislative leave requests for Senator Bell because only Senator Bell and Senator Loeper or the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Fisher, who have made the requests know full well if it is a legitimate request. But I have to wonder if on Sunday, June 30th of this past week, if Senator Bell, who was placed on legislative leave, was meeting in his office with constituents.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair must interrupt the gentleman and ask him, does the gentleman wish to object to the legislative leave request for Senator Bell?

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, if I had wished to request to object to legislative leave, I would have done that when you asked that question under leaves of absence.

The PRESIDENT. Then the Chair would remind the gentleman that the point he is making is not germane to the consideration of the amendment we have in front of us.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I respectfully disagree with you. I think it is totally germane since I was accused on the floor of the Senate by the Republican Leader of casting aspersions against Senator Bell's integrity, and I think there has to be a point of clarification and I respectfully disagree with the Chair. This is a very important issue. It is a very emotional issue, and there is no way, Mr. President, we are going to allow remarks like that to be placed on this floor. Furthermore, we are here prepared to do our job we were elected to do and that is to pass a budget on time. It is obvious the Republicans in this great Body do not want to live up to the constitutional mandate and an oath of office they took on January 1st.

Mr. President, I ask once again for an affirmative vote.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

(During the calling of the roll, the following occurred:)

Senator BELAN. Mr. President, I would like to change my vote from "no" to "aye."

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman will be so recorded.

The yeas and nays were required by Senator FUMO and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—24

Afflerbach	Fattah	Lynch	Scanlon
Andrezeski	Fumo	Mellow	Schwartz
Belan	Jones	Musto	Stapleton
Bodack	LaValle	O'Pake	Stewart
Bortner	Lewis	Porterfield	Stout
Dawida	Lincoln	Reibman	Williams

NAYS—26

Armstrong	Greenwood	Loeper	Robbins
Baker	Hart	Madigan	Salvatore
Bell	Helfrick	Pecora	Shaffer
Brightbill	Holl	Peterson	Shumaker
Corman	Hopper	Punt	Tilghman
Fisher	Jubelirer	Rhoades	Wenger
Greenleaf	Lemmond

Less than a majority of the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the negative.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVE

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, Senator Shumaker has been called from the floor to his office, and I would request a temporary Capitol leave on his behalf.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Loeper requests temporary Capitol leave for Senator Shumaker. The Chair hears no objection. The leave will be granted.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, as I am sure the other side has noticed, I have been rather quiet for the last several days and I am sure that has met with their appreciation. In part that has been the case because my mother told me many years ago never to say something about someone or some organization unless you can say something nice about them. I finally can do that. I think it is time to actually commend the Majority in this Chamber, and I do commend them because for the first time this year they have finally brought forth onto the floor of this Senate a piece of legislation that allowed the more responsible Members of this Senate to actually put forth an amendment to discuss an entire budget for the Commonwealth. They finally took that action on the Majority side to provide that opportunity only three days after we have missed the deadline of June 30th for a new budget. As the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, said earlier, we are making progress. Despite the fact that they now have told us what they do not want to see in a full one year budget, perhaps one day they may even tell us what they do want to see and put forth their own proposal for a twelve month budget, but not for at least 30 days because that is really what the Majority is telling us with this stopgap measure they now have put before us, a stopgap measure which they will use the power politics ploy they have used the last three or four days to push through. They are telling us they do not believe we are going to have a full budget within 30 days, and they indeed are the ones who can control that, just as they have controlled the process up to this time. We came here Sunday. That was a do-nothing day. We came back on Monday and we passed, by their votes alone, a limited stopgap. Then they came back in on Tuesday and that was resolution day—power politics—and, oh yes, Tuesday was also judgment day when once again the Majority lined up 26 strong to deny over 1.5 million people in the City of Philadelphia access to justice by refusing to confirm three justices whom the public had already voted into office as candidates on both tickets. One more power politics ploy of the public be damned. But today I commend them because today they finally had the courage to put forth on this Senate floor a bill that allowed us to at least begin a serious budget discussion. One of these days, maybe when they decide they also have a responsibility to replenish the cookies in the cookie jar from which they have taken since 1985 as part of the negotiating teams on these budgets, maybe at that time we will finally get a full budget for the 1991-92 fiscal year. The Majority Leader has said that a lot of these delays have occurred because it has been exceedingly difficult to keep up with the various proposals of the Governor and the various proposals that are coming out of the House and how changes have been made, and so forth. Mr. President, I submit to you that rhetoric is the rhetoric of what should be a Minority and not a Majority Party. That is reactionary rhetoric, not proactive rhetoric. Majority leadership requires proactive not reactive postures, and that, I submit to you, has been the problem in this entire process. We again see before us a stopgap measure geared to 30 days. I, for one, am not willing to continue to sit by quietly while the Majority tells us that they are not ready to negotiate. They are not ready to consider funding their fair share of the cookies they want to take from that jar, but instead they are going to continue to piecemeal this process, not in a matter of two weeks, but now in a matter of 30 days, and then how long after that? Another 30 days, and another 30 days?

Mr. President, it is time the Majority realized that, as has been said in the past, the responsibility of the Majority is also the responsibility to act and, hopefully, we will remain in Session and not just turn our faces and run away for the next four days so we can put on the floor of this Senate additional proposals until they are finally willing to say what they would like to vote for rather than what they do not like to vote for. I urge defeat of this stopgap amendment which is nothing more than a continuation of the sham that began here on Sunday night and, obviously, is intended to continue for at least another 30 days.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, on the bill which is basically the amendment that was introduced by the gentleman from Montgomery, Senator Tilghman, in the Committee on Appropriations today, I want to let the Chamber know that at that meeting I asked Senator Tilghman if he would allow himself to be interrogated. He said no. I asked all the Republicans in that room if they would allow themselves to be interrogated, and they were all there, I think, just about, and they all said no, so I will not ask anybody to be interrogated. But I will take on my function and my job, I guess it becomes now, of the daily arithmetic lesson. Mr. President, in this piece of legislation the Majority proposes to spend $939,826,000. Yesterday they passed an amendment that if we take everything to its fullest and give them the benefit of every doubt—they said to pay the $113 million due to the senior citizens and we will give them credit for the full $60 million in the Lottery Fund balance, even though we all know that is too much because they do have to give out prizes on occasion, but that adds a $76 million price tag to that—the total spending in the last two days after they adopt this stopgap is $1,015,826,000. That is what they want to spend today. Mr. President, they cannot even give us a no-tax stopgap. Yesterday in their resolution they put forth the number that there was $230 million in the Commonwealth's accounts. Well, we looked into that, Mr. President, and there was a lot less than $230 million. When you deduct out federal funds and restricted receipts you take out at least $200 million, and maybe even more but I will give them the benefit of the doubt and say it was only $200 million. That means that yesterday's balance—or whenever they quoted it. I believe it was on June 30th—was $30 million. Senator Loeper then told us they had collected $38 million in the last two days, and we will give them full credit for all of it, although we know now that in that money again is restricted receipts and federal funds, but we will say it is all there, and then we will calculate to the end of the month because that is what this is for, 30 days, and we will give them another benefit of the doubt and say that those two days were off days. Rather than collecting an average of $19 million a day, again some of which is federal and restricted money, but we are even going to ignore that, we will say we collect $25 million a day. You multiply the 19 remaining collection days and you get $475 million. When you add that all up, Mr. President, the $30 million balance, and we know it is less, the $38 million that they collected, and we know that is less, and the projected $475 million, and we know that is less, you get to a cash balance at the end of the month of $543 million. That means the minute they vote for this, and we will not vote for this, we are not that fiscally irresponsible, they are authorizing spending that will produce a deficit at the end of the month of $472,826,000. Mr. President, that is not a balanced budget, and you cannot float a tax anticipatory note, as I told the gentleman from Venango, Senator Peterson, yesterday because you do not have a budget. So where then will the Commonwealth get this money, even assuming that the House was crazy enough to go on with it? Mr. President, I bring out these numbers to clearly show what a charade all of this is. If they do not have the money for an adding machine, I will buy them one personally, not even with state funds, provided they promise to use it. This is all nonsense. It is jibberish. It is a charade. It is a sham. But usually when you do those, you get a little bit of class when you get up to the plate and try that trick. At least your numbers are supposed to add up. You are admitting to stupidity as well as irresponsibility. I cannot believe that. I sincerely wish the other side of the aisle would stop embarrassing itself with this nonsense. Give us a budget. Give us a tax bill or resign the Majority and let us run the Calendar and we will do it for you. Do something, please. Stop trying to fool the public. Stop trying to fool the press. Just because we are here today—and I will have to say it now—participating basically in mental masturbation does not mean anybody believes we are getting anywhere. Let us have a real budget or let us at least have a stopgap that adds up. Mr. President, I urge a negative vote on this, at least so all of us will not look as stupid as the people who proposed it.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, without going into a lot of flowery rhetoric, I would like to just point out for purposes of the record exactly where the revenues would come from in order to fund House Bill No. 1591. I think it is important to note that in signing House Bill No. 1591 the Governor would be certifying revenues for the entire 1991-92 fiscal year. Even at current tax rates, Mr. President, the revenue estimate is greater than the amount of the General Fund appropriations that are included before us today in House Bill No. 1591. There is $939.8 million plus the Governor's carryover deficit of $467 million, and that is according to the Governor's figures, and that, basically, is the constitutional test on which the bill can be signed. On a cash basis, let us just reflect for a moment that in July of 1990 we collected $763.7 million in General Fund revenue. In addition, we collected $219.7 million in federal funds and other augmentations. In July of 1991 we can anticipate an equivalent amount of revenues and augmentations at least $100 million higher than that of last year. I think if we were to look, as I said earlier in the week, we had a General Fund cash balance carried over into July of 1991 of some $230 million. Therefore, the total anticipated resources through July 30th should be at least $1.3 billion. In House Bill No. 1591 we appropriate $1.188 billion in General Fund and federal appropriations. This would leave, Mr. President, at least $112 million or more if the Governor chooses to transfer funds to the Lottery Fund to pay personal property tax and rent rebate programs. Mr. President, that is our adding machine on this side and the way that the numbers add up for us.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, obviously the gentleman is not paying attention. First of all, we will deal with his first argument. He talks about the revenue estimate for next year and he wants that to be a gross number and divided through by 12 and get a number for spending for July. Mr. President, as we said yesterday again, you can only do that if you have a budget for the entire year so you can float tax anticipatory notes to take care of the money you do not have in the beginning of the year that you get at the end of the year. If the gentleman does not understand that, I will take him to the Revenue Department and we will sit there for a couple of hours and get an in-depth lecture on cash flow. But let us look at the cash side. I am not impressed with last year's numbers because the gentleman clearly said what was collected already this year. We are going by the actual numbers taken in the gate, and it does not look like $763.7 million is coming in. Plus, Mr. President, even when the gentleman pumps those numbers up, then he wants to say that is what we will collect. I think part of the problem over there, and now it is starting to come out, is that Mr. Bittenbender forgets he is no longer the Budget Secretary. You lost that election four years ago, so he cannot certify those revenues.

POINT OF ORDER

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Delaware, Senator Loeper, will state it.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, it is the same point I have raised earlier.

The PRESIDENT. I think the gentleman from Philadelphia understands how completely irrelevant the last comment was to the discussion, and he is going to refrain from making any further comments along those lines.

Senator FUMO. I disagree that it is completely irrelevant, but at the risk of embarrassing you again like we did on Ronald Reagan, I will not.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair thanks the gentleman. I will take it however I can. The gentleman may proceed within the bounds of propriety.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, the gentleman said we would have $1.3 billion. He adds into that federal monies that are for specific federal programs that cannot be used for these state programs. Does he now put forth the concept that we add larceny to stupidity and irresponsibility, that we steal the federal money to pay for his folly of a stopgap? Mr. President, the numbers do not add up. Unless he is prepared to go see his friend the Attorney General and get a promise that he will not prosecute anybody who wants to do that. He could probably do that. If he was Melvin Laird, he could. This is nonsense. These numbers do not add up, and the irony of all of this is we can be here for hours discussing what numbers are going to come in and not come in. Why can we not expend the same energy on a real budget for the entire year? What reason does the gentleman give for not letting us adopt a budget for the full year? What reason does the gentleman give for not allowing House Bill No. 185 to come out so we could adopt a tax program? Why must we spend hours and hours and hours worrying about the money that is going to come in to July and worrying about estimates and monies out? Why can we not just sit down and do a budget? Why must we go through all these mental gymnastics? What ego are you satisfying by this? What price must the people of Pennsylvania pay to satisfy your ego? We do not care who authors a budget. Run one. It does not have to be negotiated. Run a budget. Bring something out that is real. We will amend it. We will be responsible, and we will send it to the House. Let us do what we have been elected to do. Remember your oath before God. Why not just bring a budget bill out, and if we do not want taxes we will put it down. If we do want taxes, we will put it up. I will be the first one that says that anybody who offers an amendment has to pay for it. I do not have a problem with that. I am ready to vote for taxes. I have been saying that around here forever. But, no, the Majority does not have the guts or the ability to lead or govern. It is just woefully lacking in anything today, and it is a sad state for the Republican Party and it is a sad day for the Senate.

Mr. President, let us vote this down and get on with the adjournment motion.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?
It was agreed to.

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,
Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—26

Armstrong	Greenwood	Loeper	Robbins
Baker	Hart	Madigan	Salvatore
Bell	Helfrick	Pecora	Shaffer
Brightbill	Holl	Peterson	Shumaker
Corman	Hopper	Punt	Tilghman

RECESS

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, at this time I would like to ask for a recess of the Senate for the purpose of a Republican caucus to begin immediately in the first floor caucus room.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Loeper.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Loeper, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator LOEPER. I will, Mr. President.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, could Senator Loeper indicate to us if there is a willingness on his part to reconvene the Senate either later on today or sometime tomorrow?

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, we have not determined what our schedule is going to be at this time. In fact, that is the purpose of our caucus. Like Senator Mellow when I interrogated him as to how much time it was going to take, he indicated he was not sure and I am not sure, Mr. President, but we intend to go down and have a Republican caucus at this point.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I am not surprised about the answer because it is obvious the gentleman probably would want to leave here and go somewhere for the 4th of July and, therefore, will not give us an answer. Based on that, Mr. President, I would move that the Senate would adjourn until 10:00 a.m., Thursday, July 4, 1991.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Mellow moves that the Senate do now adjourn until Thursday, July 4, 1991 at 10:00 a.m.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, Mr. President—

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I request a roll call.

The PRESIDENT. On the motion to adjourn, which is a nondebatable motion—

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, may we be at ease for a moment.

The PRESIDENT. The Senate will be at ease.

(The Senate was at ease.)

The PRESIDENT. The Chair would recognize the gentleman from Delaware with the reminder that the motion is amendable as to time, if that is his intention. The gentleman is recognized for that purpose.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I wish to amend the motion to 7:00 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Loeper offers an amendment to the adjournment motion. Senator Loeper offers an amendment that would have the Senate reconvene at 7:00 a.m., Thursday, July 4, 1991.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Senator LOEPER and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—50

Afflerbach	Fumo	Loeper	Robbins
Andrezeski	Greenleaf	Lynch	Salvatore
Armstrong	Greenwood	Madigan	Scanlon
Baker	Hart	Mellow	Schwartz
Belan	Helfrick	Musto	Shaffer

Dawida	Lemmond	Reibman	Wenger
Fattah	Lewis	Rhoades	Williams
Fisher	Lincoln

NAYS—0

A majority of the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the affirmative.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate do now adjourn—

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, may we be at ease for a moment.

The PRESIDENT. The Senate will be at ease.

(The Senate was at ease.)

Senator LOEPER. Just for the information of the Republican Members of the Senate, we still intend to go down to our caucus room once this adjournment motion is completed.

The PRESIDENT. The motion before the Senate is a motion to adjourn until 7:00 a.m., Thursday, July 4, 1991.

On the motion,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, may we be at ease for a moment.

The PRESIDENT. The Senate will be at ease.

(The Senate was at ease.)

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, would it be in order to amend the amendment to the motion?

The PRESIDENT. The motion is before the Body and in that posture it is amendable as to time only.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I would like to add to the amendment that we reconvene at 7:00 a.m. tomorrow morning unless sooner recalled by the President pro tempore.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, Mr. President—

The PRESIDENT. Would the gentlemen please approach the rostrum.

The PRESIDENT. The Senate will be at ease.

(The Senate was at ease.)

The PRESIDENT. For the information of the Members, before the Body at the moment, Senator Loeper has proposed an amendment that would require that "unless sooner recalled by the President pro tempore." It is the Chair's understanding that there is a revision to that motion to be made by Senator Mellow.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I would like to offer an amendment to Senator Loeper's amendment that the Senate could reconvene at the call of the President pro tempore, to give us a six hour call by the President pro tempore or 7:00 a.m. tomorrow morning. There must be six hours. We could not, Mr. President, in all good faith ask Members to sleep in their offices all night in case the President pro tempore, through some feeling, might want to wake up at 3:00 o'clock in the morning and call the Senate into Session. That is possible on the part of the President pro tempore if he would choose to do that.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Mellow offers an amendment to the amendment that simply requests a six hour call.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment to the motion?

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I simply oppose the amendment.

Senator SCANLON. Mr. President, I do not understand where we are. All I want to know is what happens to me if I do not show up, at what time?

The PRESIDENT. The Chair has to answer honestly and tell you I am not sure. At the moment there is an attempt to add language in the adjournment motion that says that there will be a six hour call for adequate notification of the Members.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I heard the Majority Leader say that he opposed an amendment. Is he saying that he opposes the six hour inclusion in the amendment that has been amended to amend because we have not voted on anything yet?

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman is correct. The Majority Leader has indicated that he is asking for a negative vote.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, on one part of this whole mess?

The PRESIDENT. That is correct.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, and that would be Senator Mellow's six hour call?

The PRESIDENT. Senator Mellow's six hour call. The gentleman is correct.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Blair, Senator Jubelirer.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, that is not debatable.

The PRESIDENT. The motion is generally not debatable. The Chair will allow an interrogation if the parties consent to such a colloquy.

Senator Jubelirer, the question is, do you wish to be interrogated?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Mr. President, I think the matter is clear and I do not think there is anything I could answer, so the response to the question is in the negative.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, Mr. President—

The PRESIDENT. The Chair reminds all participants that this is really a nondebatable situation. We are offering an amendment to an amendment to the adjournment motion.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, this is not a debate, this is information for Members of the Senate so we would have some idea what time we could expect the President pro tempore to call us back into Session. I believe that all 50 Members of this Body have a right to know so they would not have to stay here all through the night in fear of the fact that the President pro tempore may want to wake up at 3:00 o'clock a.m. to call us in. Furthermore, Mr. President, we have talked about the integrity of the institution and this is really to protect the integrity of the institution as set forth by the President pro tempore. Once again I would ask if he would permit himself to be interrogated?

The PRESIDENT. The question has been asked and answered. The gentleman does not wish to be interrogated at this moment and there is no way to force him under the Rules of the Senate.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, well, I guess that only goes to show what has taken place in this Body.

The PRESIDENT. The Senate will come back to order. The Members of the Senate please be seated, as decorum drips through our fingers like wet sand. If the Members would remain seated for just a moment more. Would the Members please come to order. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Washington, Senator Stout.

POINT OF INFORMATION

Senator STOUT. Mr. President, I rise to a point of information.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Washington, Senator Stout, will state it.

Senator STOUT. Mr. President, the point of information, on the amendment that we are asked to vote on at this time, if the maker of the amendment will not stand for interrogation and I am sure the Minority Leader is not able to do that, I am a little concerned here. I want to know at what time I have to be here tomorrow, because back in the 46th Senatorial District I have made a rather serious commitment to be a judge at the annual East Finley Township Chicken Flying Contest. You know I think that is something important. I am sure the gentleman from Lancaster, Senator Wenger, and the gentleman from Indiana, Senator Stapleton, who are standing chairs for the Committee on Agriculture and Rural Affairs, will appreciate that. I think we need to lighten up a little bit here. What seems to be happening here in the last several days is that sometimes we get caught up in our own rhetoric here. I think what really has happened, too many people were vaccinated with a Victrola needle. Let us get on with it.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair thanks the gentleman.

The Senate will be at ease.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senators please come to order and take their seats. Having completed the business of the day we are on the order of business of adjournment. Pending before the Senate at this moment is an amendment to an amendment to the adjournment motion. The amendment that we are dealing with is one made by the gentleman from Lackawanna, Senator Mellow, that would require the President pro tempore to offer six hours notice before reconvening the Senate, should it be before 7:00 a.m. tomorrow morning. I am sure that is clear to all of the Members.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, it is my understanding from the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Loeper, that the Senate will reconvene this evening at 10:00 o'clock p.m. If that need be the case, then my amendment to his amendment of a six hour notification would not be relevant. Therefore, I would withdraw the motion provided that the understanding of 10:00 o'clock this evening of reconvening is the actual time of the reconvening of the Session. If I must do that in the form of an interrogation, I will do that in the form of an interrogation.

The PRESIDENT. Perhaps the Chair can simplify matters simply by putting it to the Majority Leader. Is it the Majority's intention to reconvene at 10:00 o'clock this evening?

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, yes. In fact, if it would be suitable to the gentleman, I would suggest that if he would simply withdraw the motion to adjourn, the Senate would now recess until 10:00 p.m. this evening.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I do not think I would want to do that. Our motion was to reconvene the Session of the Senate at 10:00 o'clock tomorrow morning, which I think is a much more appropriate time. I do not believe anything short of punitive action could take place at 10:00 o'clock tonight since there is no Calendar. There are no real bills in position on that Calendar that we can work on unless there would be a Supplemental Calendar. It is my fear that the legislative action at 10:00 o'clock tonight will not be in the best interest of the Commonwealth. Therefore, Mr. President, I would like the motion that I had made earlier, that we would adjourn the Session until 10:00 o'clock tomorrow morning. I will not withdraw that motion.

The PRESIDENT. For the purpose of clarification for the benefit of all the Members, the gentleman from Lackawanna has withdrawn his amendment requiring six hour notification based on commentary you just heard. There is still before us an amendment to the adjournment motion that allows the Senate President pro tempore to call the Senate in sooner than 7:00 a.m. tomorrow morning.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, just for the information of the Members and for the information of the gentleman from Lackawanna, Senator Mellow, there is a bill that is in position that I intend to consider amendments on at 10:00 o'clock this evening, which is Senate Bill No. 727 and the bill from the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, and we would intend to deal with the amendments to that bill this evening at 10:00 o'clock. That is the bill under consideration on today's Calendar that we went over temporarily.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I thank the gentleman for that information, knowing full well that is an intra-party fight, and we would certainly like to participate in the discussion based on the three amendments being offered by the gentleman's caucus, Members of his caucus who have a difference of opinion. We think that would be a very enlightening discussion.

The PRESIDENT. The question before the Senate is on the amendment which would alter the adjournment motion to allow the President pro tempore to call the Senate back to order previous to 7:00 a.m. tomorrow.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the amendment to the motion?

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, only for the purpose of clarification. I regret that I was not paying as complete attention as I should have. Just what are we voting on? What has been withdrawn? Are we still on six hour call, 7:00 a.m., 10:00 o'clock tonight?

The PRESIDENT. If the gentleman would yield, the Chair will attempt to explain it again. The gentleman from Lackawanna has withdrawn his amendment which would have required a six hour notification from the President pro tempore. Therefore, the matter that is pending before the Senate is the amendment offered by the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Loeper, that would allow the President pro tempore to call the Senate back into Session prior to the 7:00 a.m. time for adjournment.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, is that with the agreement that was said it will be 10:00 o'clock tonight?

The PRESIDENT. That is correct.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, is there a reason why we just do not do a time certain at 10:00 p.m. tonight?

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, that is the point I made.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, okay, all right, I understand. I will stick to the budget, Mr. President.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the amendment to the motion?

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I am sorry. Just a point in clarification if we are going to have to vote the amendment and the maker of the original motion to adjourn would not withdraw it, is that not the motion that the Senate would reconvene at 7:00 a.m. tomorrow morning unless sooner recalled by the President pro tempore, and if that motion stands, an "aye" vote would be to support that motion, a "nay" vote would be to oppose that motion?

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman is absolutely correct. Just so that everybody does understand, there will be two votes on this matter. The first is the issue that Senator Loeper brings forth, and that is whether to allow the Senate President pro tempore to call this Body back into Session earlier than 7:00 a.m. and then following that will be the main motion, finally, which will be 7:00 a.m.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I would just like to request a "no" vote on that amendment.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I would request an affirmative vote.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the amendment to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Senator LOEPER and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—26

Armstrong	Greenwood	Loeper	Robbins
Baker	Hart	Madigan	Salvatore
Bell	Helfrick	Pecora	Shaffer
Brightbill	Holl	Peterson	Shumaker
Corman	Hopper	Punt	Tilghman
Fisher	Jubelirer	Rhoades	Wenger

Greenleaf Lemmond

NAYS—24

Afflerbach	Fattah	Lynch	Scanlon
Andrezeski	Fumo	Mellow	Schwartz
Belan	Jones	Musto	Stapleton
Bodack	LaValle	O'Pake	Stewart
Bortner	Lewis	Porterfield	Stout
Dawida	Lincoln	Reibman	Williams

A majority of the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the affirmative.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, on the motion to adjourn, I would ask my Members to vote in the negative to adjourn because it is our intention to recess and come back at 10:00 o'clock this evening.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I would ask for an affirmative vote on the motion to adjourn. There is some concern in our caucus that we may not be called back at 10:00 o'clock, and we want to make certain we are here to do the job we were elected to do and I would ask for an affirmative vote on the motion to adjourn.

Senator PECORA. Mr. President, I have a question. Did we not pass a motion to come in at 7:00 a.m. tomorrow morning?

The PRESIDENT. The Chair would advise the gentleman that we adopted an amendment to the original motion. It is now necessary to vote the ultimate question which is the motion itself.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVE

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I would request a temporary Capitol leave for Senator Corman.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Fisher requests temporary Capitol leave for Senator Corman. The Chair hears no objection. That leave will be granted.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVE CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT. The Chair also recognizes the presence on the floor of Senator Shumaker. His temporary Capitol leave will be cancelled.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, will state it.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, if the stated position of the Majority Leader to vote against this prevails, then we will have before us a motion that passed that would have said that we will recess today until the call of the President pro tempore, is that correct?

The PRESIDENT. No, the gentleman is incorrect. If the motion fails, the entire package fails. That is, we will be at the business of finishing the unfinished business of the day's Calendar.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, and it would still necessitate some motion for us to leave here either until 10:00 o'clock tomorrow morning, until Monday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock? A "no" vote and the defeat of this motion by the gentleman from Lackawanna, Senator Mellow, to come here tomorrow at 7:00 o'clock would put us right back at square one where we were at two and a half hours ago.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman is correct.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Senator MELLOW and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—24

Afflerbach	Fattah	Lynch	Scanlon
Andrezeski	Fumo	Mellow	Schwartz
Belan	Jones	Musto	Stapleton
Bodack	LaValle	O'Pake	Stewart

Greenleaf	Lemmond

Less than a majority of the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the negative.

RECESS

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I now move that the Senate do recess until 10:00 p.m. this evening.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Loeper moves that the Senate do now recess until 10:00 p.m., July 3rd. The Senate will stand in recess until 10:00 o'clock this evening.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed, the Senate will be in order.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVE CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT. The Chair recognizes the presence on the floor of Senator Corman. His temporary Capitol leave is cancelled.

SPECIAL ORDER OF BUSINESS SUPPLEMENTAL CALENDAR NO. 2

THIRD CONSIDERATION CALENDAR

BILL OVER IN ORDER

SB 727 (Pr. No. 770) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending the act of March 10, 1949 (P. L. 30, No. 14), entitled "Public School Code of 1949," providing for collective bargaining.

Considered the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

Senator GREENWOOD. Mr. President, I want to begin by commending the Members of the Senate. There are those who say that this Senate might shirk from the opportunity to take on the controversial issue of teachers strikes. For us to decide to come in here for this special session, 10:00 o'clock in the evening, prior to the 4th of July, because we are so willing to tackle this issue, is commendable. The fact that we are here, quite frankly, and we all know this, is because we face a $3 billion budget deficit, and there is a certain amount of reluctance to put up tax votes, I think, because we may have to raise the personal income tax of Pennsylvanians by a third of a percent, or something like that. To do that might cost the average taxpayer in Pennsylvania $100 or so a year, or something like that, and the reluctance and the fear to do that to our constituents has paralyzed this Legislature. The concern that we might cost our taxpayers an extra $100 or $200 a year has paralyzed this Legislature. Yet, probably in all of your districts in the last week or two school tax bills have come out, and those school tax bills are liable to raise the taxes for each and every household in this Commonwealth by considerably more than that amount. So we have an opportunity here tonight to do far more for the taxpayers of Pennsylvania in terms of tax relief than anything else we could do.

I would like to begin by describing the problem. The problem is that Pennsylvania has become the school strike capital of the nation. In the last 20 years we have had 800 strikes in our schools. We have had 25 percent of all of the school strikes in the nation occur in Pennsylvania. Sixty-eight percent of the schools in this state have been subject to school strikes. Nothing more undermines the public's confidence in and its willingness to pay for public education than the bitter teachers strikes that so frequently disrupt Pennsylvania's schools. School strikes damage the welfare of communities, pitting educators against school directors, parents and even students. Taxpayers are enraged by teachers strikes and they react with deepening resolve to resist increased local taxes. Our public school districts are virtual monopolies. Parents have no choices when their schools are closed, and in two-wage earner families, work schedules are disrupted, and for high school seniors, they face the threat of postponing college admission. Clearly, we need a more effective and an orderly way to resolve legitimate contract disputes, one that does not sacrifice our children's fundamental right to an uninterrupted, quality education, one that does not victimize the taxpayer nor deprive our valued educators of the means to bargain for fair and reasonable wages.

The bill before us will provide such an alternative. The bill, very briefly, would require that in a school year where the contract is due to expire, by February 1st of that year, if the school board and the union have not come to an agreement on a contract, then they must submit to mediation. If that mediation does not produce an agreement, they must by February 20th begin the process of fact-finding. If the fact-finding fails to produce an agreement, then by May 1st the union and the school board must each submit to the president judge of the Court of Common Pleas in which the school district is located its final best offer. That judge would then hold a hearing. Each side would be invited to present evidence to support its proposal. The public would be given a 14-day opportunity to submit written comment to the judge, and then the judge would make a decision. That decision would be binding on the teachers union and the school board, and strikes would be prohibited and education would proceed on schedule in September. I believe, Mr. President, that of all of the proposals that have been presented before this Legislature in the last 20 years, this is the proposal that is politically doable in this Chamber and the other, that is fair to the taxpayers, that is fair to the teachers and that is fair to the parents and students who must use those schools.

Mr. President, I had prepared amendments to offer but I am going to decline to do that at this moment and would like to yield to the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades, for the offering of an amendment.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

RHOADES AMENDMENT

Senator RHOADES, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. 1734:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1101-A), page 3, by inserting between lines 4 and 5: "State panel" shall mean the State Panel of Arbitration for Education.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1122-A), page 4, line 30, by striking out "forty (40)" and inserting: thirty (30)

Amend Sec. 1, page 5, by inserting between lines 21 and 22:

Section 1123-A. State Panel of Arbitration for Education.—
(a) There is hereby established a State panel within the Department of Education.

(b) The Secretary of Education shall appoint members to the State panel. The number of members is at his discretion.

(c) Members shall be knowledgeable in the following school related fields:

- (1) budget;
- (2) finance;
- (3) educational programs; and
- (4) taxation.

Section 1124-A. Arbitrators.—The representative of the employer and employee shall select three arbitrators as follows:

(1) One arbitrator to be selected by the representative of the employees.

(2) One arbitrator to be selected by representative of the employer.

(3) One arbitrator to be selected by both parties from a list of five candidates compiled by the State panel. Each party shall strike a candidate until one is left. A coin toss shall determine who gets the first strike.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1123-A), page 5, line 22, by striking out "Section 1123-A. Judicial Determination" and inserting: Section 1125-A. Determination by Arbitrators

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1123-A), page 5, lines 28 through 30, by striking out "May 1," in line 28, all of lines 29 and 30 and inserting: April 15, submit to the arbitrators their

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1123-A), page 6, line 21, by striking out "president judge" and inserting: arbitrators

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1123-A), page 6, line 23, by striking out thirty-five (35)" and inserting: sixty (60)

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1123-A), page 6, line 25, by striking out "he" and inserting: they

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1123-A), page 7, lines 6 through 14, by striking out all of said lines and inserting:

(c) Not later than forty (40) days prior to the budget submission date, the arbitrators shall:

(1) examine each item of dispute;

(2) determine in writing which party's last best contract offer shall be adopted as to that item; and

(3) forward a copy of this written determination to both parties involved in the dispute and to the board.

(d) Upon determination of the arbitrators, the representatives of the employers and employees shall have ten (10) days in which to renegotiate each item of dispute. All agreed to items during this period must be in writing. Items not agreed to will remain as ruled upon by the arbitrators.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1123-A), page 7, lines 19 through 21, by striking out "president" in line 19, all of lines 20 and 21 and inserting: arbitrators.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1124-A), page 7, line 28, by striking out "1124-A" and inserting: 1126-A

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1124-A), page 8, line 1, by striking out "1123-A, the president judge" and inserting: 1125-A, the arbitrators

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1124-A), page 8, line 5, by striking out "1123-A, the president judge" and inserting: 1125-A, the arbitrators

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1125-A), page 8, lines 7 through 10, by striking out all of said lines and inserting:

Section 1127-A. Time Frame.—The time periods set forth in this article are mandatory, and shall not be construed to be directory.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, basically what my amendment will do is establish a state panel of arbitration for education versus the judge or judicial selection. They will so be chosen that the panel would be one selected by the representative of the employees, one selected by the employer and one arbitrator to be selected by both parties from a list with five candidates compiled by the state panel. Each party shall strike a candidate until one is left. Therefore, we would have three.

Following the same format that is in Senate Bill No. 727, except that in the selection, after the process which is mandatory, that is another thing that is in this amendment, that the whole process is mandatory. It is not a "may." It would require that the panel would examine each item of dispute and then determine in writing which party's last best contract offer shall be adopted as to that item and then forward a copy of the written determination to both. I would also add that after the determination has been made by the arbitrators, there will be an additional ten days in which both parties can agree to change the arbitrator's ruling so that all the arbitration panel will do is it will establish it, but there will still be an attempt or an opportunity for ten days of additional negotiation. That plus the fact that it is mandatory are the only changes they will be making to the bill.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator RHOADES. I will, Mr. President.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, some of the features of the amendment that the gentleman described I am not sure we had a full opportunity to discuss in our caucus. I am wondering if the gentleman would consider withdrawing the amendment at this time to give us an opportunity to more fully consider it?

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, may we be at ease for a moment.

The PRESIDENT. The Senate will be at ease.

(The Senate was at ease.)

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

BAKER AMENDMENT

Senator BAKER, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. 1979 to the Rhoades amendment:

Amend Amendments, page 1, line 13, by striking out "The number of members is at his discretion." and inserting: There shall be three members of the State panel who shall be subject to confirmation by a majority of the members elected to the Senate.

Amend Amendments, page 1, lines 20 through 29, by striking out all of said lines

Amend Amendments, page 1, line 32, by striking out all of said line and inserting: Section 1124-A. Determination by State Panel

Amend Amendments, page 2, line 3, by striking out "arbitrators" and inserting: State panel

Amend Amendments, page 2, line 6, by striking out all of said line and inserting: State panel

Amend Amendments, page 2, line 12, by striking out all of said line and inserting: State panel

Amend Amendments, page 2, line 15, by striking out all of said line and inserting: it

Amend Amendments, page 2, line 33, by striking out all of said line and inserting: State panel.

Amend Amendments, page 3, line 1, by striking out all of said line and inserting: 1125-A

Amend Amendments, page 3, line 4, by striking out all of said line and inserting: 1124-A, the State panel

Amend Amendments, page 3, line 7, by striking out all of said line and inserting: 1124-A, the State panel

Amend Amendments, page 3, line 10, by striking out "1127-A" and inserting: 1126-A

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment to the amendment?

AMENDMENT WITHDRAWN

Senator BAKER. Mr. President, I think because of the complexity of the issue and the agreement I have to discuss the intent and language of my amendment to the amendment, both with the moving amender and also the sponsor of the bill, I withdraw my amendment to the amendment at this time.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

AMENDMENT WITHDRAWN

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, I will withdraw my amendment.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, apparently there is a discrepancy in the amendments and because of that, to try to work out some difficulties with them, I would now move that the bill go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Without objection, Senate Bill No. 727 will go over in its order.

GUEST OF SENATOR F. JOSEPH LOEPER PRESENTED TO SENATE

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I would like to just take this opportunity this evening to introduce to the Members of the Senate a lady who is going to be a senior at Penn State University and who is an intern in our office this summer, Miss Kelly Glazier. She has been monitoring our processes for the last several weeks and is a political science major who is in the gallery with us tonight. I was wondering if the Senate would extend to her its usual warm welcome.

The PRESIDENT. Would Kelly please rise so we could welcome you.

(Applause.)

The PRESIDENT. Another budding political career dashed upon the rocks.

RECESS

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, at this time I would now move that the Senate recess to the call of the President pro tempore subject to a six hour recall.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Loeper requests that the Senate stand in recess to the call of the President pro tempore subject to a six hour recall.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, we have been able to reach an agreement where we will reconvene our budget committees sometime over the weekend for the purpose of trying to continue to iron out a budget so we can do next week what we should have done this week, and keeping those thoughts in mind of the willingness on the part of all participants to reconvene the budget meetings so we can come up, hopefully, with a meaningful budget, I would concur upon the motion of the Majority Leader to recess the Senate subject to a six hour call by the President pro tempore.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Loeper suggests that the Senate now recess to the call of the President pro tempore subject to a six hour notification. Without objection, the Senate will stand in recess.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed, the Senate will be in order.

ADJOURNMENT

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I move the Senate do now adjourn until Monday, July 8, 1991, at 2:25 p.m., Eastern Daylight Saving Time.

The motion was agreed to.

The Senate adjourned at 11:59 p.m., Eastern Daylight Saving Time.

SENATE

MONDAY, July 8, 1991.

The Senate met at 2:25 p.m., Eastern Daylight Saving Time.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore (Robert C. Jubelirer) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The following prayer was offered by the Secretary of the Senate, Hon. MARK R. CORRIGAN:

God, our Father, we thank You for this new day and this beginning of what appears to be a very challenging week legislatively. Bless us with Your wisdom and strength, that we may properly address the important fiscal responsibilities entrusted to our care. To Your greater glory and that of Your people. Amen.

SPECIAL ORDER OF BUSINESS

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I would ask for a legislative leave for today's Session on behalf of Senator Bell and a temporary Capitol leave on behalf of Senator Baker.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Loeper requests a legislative leave for today's Session for Senator Bell and a temporary Capitol leave for Senator Baker. The Chair hears no objection. Those leaves will be granted.

Senator STAPLETON. Mr. President, I request a legislative leave for Senator Williams.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Stapleton requests a legislative leave for Senator Williams. The Chair hears no objection. The leave will be granted.

LEAVES OF ABSENCE

Senator STAPLETON asked and obtained leaves of absence for Senator DAWIDA and Senator LEWIS, for today's Session, for personal reasons.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. A quorum of the Senate being present, the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding Session of July 3, 1991.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding Session.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I move that further reading of the Journal be dispensed with, and that the Journal be approved.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Senator LOEPER and were as follows, viz:

SPECIAL ORDER OF BUSINESS

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SECRETARY

The SECRETARY. Consent has been given for the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations to meet during today's Session to consider certain nominations.

HOUSE MESSAGES

HOUSE CONCURS IN SENATE AMENDMENTS BY AMENDING SAID AMENDMENTS TO HOUSE BILL

The Clerk of the House of Representatives informed the Senate that the House has concurred in amendments made by the Senate by amending said amendments to HB 89 in which the concurrence of the Senate is requested.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Pursuant to Senate Rule XV, Section 5, this bill will be referred to the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations.

HOUSE BILLS FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the House of Representatives presented to the Senate the following bills for concurrence, which were referred to the committees indicated:

July 3, 1991

HB 794 — Committee on Community and Economic Development.

HB 872 — Committee on Agriculture and Rural Affairs.

HB 1242 — Committee on Local Government.

HB 1549 — Committee on Transportation.

BILL INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

The PRESIDENT pro tempore laid before the Senate the following Senate Bill numbered, entitled and referred as follows, which was read by the Clerk:

July 3, 1991

Senators BRIGHTBILL, GREENWOOD, JUBELIRER, SALVATORE, HOPPER, HART, PORTERFIELD, HELFRICK and ANDREZESKI presented to the Chair SB 1241, entitled:

An Act amending the act of March 4, 1971 (P. L. 6, No. 2), entitled "Tax Reform Code of 1971," providing tax credits for certain corporations.

Which was committed to the Committee on FINANCE, July 3, 1991.

RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

The PRESIDENT pro tempore laid before the Senate the following Senate Resolutions numbered, entitled and referred as follows, which were read by the Clerk:

July 3, 1991

PROVIDING FOR THE APPOINTMENT OF
A TASK FORCE TO INVESTIGATE THE WIDESPREAD NONCOMPLIANCE WITH THE LAW RELATING TO WOLF HYBRIDS AND TO DEVELOP MEASURES TO STRENGTHEN REGULATION OF WOLF HYBRIDS

Senator HOLL offered the following resolution (Senate Resolution No. 87), which was read and referred to the Committee on Game and Fisheries:

In the Senate, July 3, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Providing for the appointment of a task force to investigate the widespread noncompliance with the law relating to wolf hybrids and to develop measures to strengthen regulation of wolf hybrids.

WHEREAS, The wolf hybrid, part dog and part wolf, has become increasingly popular in recent years; and

WHEREAS, It is estimated that there are 300,000 wolf hybrids in the United States and between 4,500 and 8,000 in this Commonwealth; and

WHEREAS, These animals, many of which are kept as pets, are extremely unpredictable and potentially dangerous; and

WHEREAS, These animals pose a significant risk to young children who appear as prey to the wolf hybrids; and

WHEREAS, According to the Humane Society of the United States, wolf hybrids since 1988 have killed an average of two children per year; and

WHEREAS, Under 34 Pa.C.S. (relating to game) a person who desires to purchase, receive or possess a wolf hybrid, is required to first obtain an exotic wildlife possession permit from the Pennsylvania Game Commission; and

WHEREAS, The Pennsylvania Game Commission has issued only 49 exotic wildlife possession permits for wolf hybrids; and

WHEREAS, It is patent that an overwhelming majority of wolf hybrid owners are failing to comply with existing law; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the President pro tempore of the Senate appoint a task force consisting of five members, three from the majority party and two from the minority party, to investigate the widespread noncompliance with existing law relating to wolf hybrids and to study and suggest measures that should be undertaken to strengthen regulation of wolf hybrids in this Commonwealth; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the task force make a report of its findings and recommendations to the full Senate as soon as is feasible.

CONGRATULATING BIETIGHEIM, GERMANY,
ON THE 1000th ANNIVERSARY OF ITS CREATION

Senators SALVATORE, FUMO, BELAN, SHUMAKER, WENGER and HELFRICK offered the following resolution (Senate Resolution No. 88), which was read and referred to the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations:

In the Senate, July 3, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Congratulating Bietigheim, Germany, on the 1000th Anniversary of its creation.

WHEREAS, The town of Bietigheim, Germany, is celebrating its 1000 years of existence; and

WHEREAS, Such events are to be commended in the history of mankind for the significance they impart to the simple determination of people to build a solid and meaningful existence; and

WHEREAS, So much of the culture and heritage that is woven into the fabric that is America was brought to this country by people like those who founded and built communities such as Bietigheim; and

WHEREAS, The German people, despite intervals of turmoil and strife, have been linked strongly to the people of America through so many common bonds; and

WHEREAS, Through these 1000 years the German people have contributed so much to the world in the fields of arts, medicine, religion and science; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Senate of Pennsylvania extend its heartfelt congratulations to the people of Bietigheim and to its Burgermeister Rudiger Schafer on the occasion of this 1000th Anniversary.

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEE

Senator PETERSON, from the Committee on Public Health and Welfare, reported the following bills:

SB 1230 (Pr. No. 1448) (Amended)

An Act amending the act of June 13, 1967 (P. L. 31, No. 21), entitled "Public Welfare Code," providing for the regulation of family day-care centers; conferring powers and duties upon the Department of Public Welfare; making an appropriation; and making repeals.

SB 1233 (Pr. No. 1417)

An Act amending the act of June 13, 1967 (P. L. 31, No. 21), entitled "Public Welfare Code," further providing for public assistance administration, for public assistance community work, for public assistance eligibility and for public assistance identification and residence.

SPECIAL ORDER OF BUSINESS*GUESTS OF SENATOR GIBSON E.*ARMSTRONG PRESENTED TO SENATE

Senator ARMSTRONG. Mr. President, today we have joining us as pages two young men who are identical twins. We have Andrew and Stephen Witmer who are my guest pages here today, and they are sitting up front. They kind of look like bookends. I would like the Senate to give them a warm welcome.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Will those guests of Senator Armstrong please rise so the Senate can give you a warm welcome.

(Applause.)

RECESS

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, at this point I would ask for a recess of the Senate for the purpose of a Republican caucus that would begin immediately in the first floor caucus room, with an expectation of returning to the floor at approximately 3:30 p.m.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I would make the same request and ask that the Democratic Members of the Senate report immediately to the caucus room at the rear of the Chamber.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. For purposes of Republican and Democratic caucuses to begin immediately in their respective caucus rooms, the Senate will stand in recess.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant Governor Mark S. Singel) in the Chair.

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed, the Senate will be in order.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I would request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Jubelirer, Senator Loeper and Senator Tilghman.

Senator STAPLETON. Mr. President, I ask for temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Fumo, Senator Jones, Senator Mellow and Senator Scanlon.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Fisher requests temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Jubelirer, Senator Loeper and Senator Tilghman. Senator Stapleton asks temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Fumo, Senator Jones, Senator Scanlon and Senator Mellow. The Chair hears no objection. Those leaves will be granted.

CALENDAR*THIRD CONSIDERATION CALENDAR*BILL ON THIRD CONSIDERATION AND FINAL PASSAGE

SB 465 (Pr. No. 1402) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending Title 42 (Judiciary and Judicial Procedure) of the Pennsylvania Consolidated Statutes, further providing for jurisdiction and venue of juvenile matters, for informal hearings and for disposition of dependent children.

Considered the third time and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—48

Afflerbach	Fumo	Loeper	Robbins
Andrezski	Greenleaf	Lynch	Salvatore
Armstrong	Greenwood	Madigan	Scanlon
Baker	Hart	Mellow	Schwartz
Belan	Helfrick	Musto	Shaffer

Bodack	Hopper	Pecora	Stapleton
Bortner	Jones	Peterson	Stewart
Brightbill	Jubelirer	Porterfield	Stout
Corman	LaValle	Punt	Tilghman
Fattah	Lemmond	Reibman	Wenger
Fisher	Lincoln	Rhoades	Williams

NAYS—0

A constitutional majority of all the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Secretary of the Senate present said bill to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

HB 521 — Without objection, the bill was passed over in its order at the request of Senator FISHER.

BILL ON THIRD CONSIDERATION, AMENDED AND LAID ON THE TABLE

SB 727 (Pr. No. 770) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending the act of March 10, 1949 (P. L. 30, No. 14), entitled "Public School Code of 1949," providing for collective bargaining.

Considered the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

MOTION TO REREFER

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, I would like to move that Senate Bill No. 727 be referred to the Committee on Education.

The PRESIDENT. If the lady would yield for just a second to permit the Chair to put the question before the Body. Senator Reibman moves that Senate Bill No. 727 be rereferred to the Committee on Education.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, this bill was never reviewed by the Members of the Committee on Education. This is a very important piece of legislation. The whole subject of Act 195 has been subject to scrutiny practically every three to five years since its enactment in 1968. The reason we have Act 195 on the books is because Pennsylvania, like many other states, had laws which forbid public employees to strike. Governor Shaffer in 1968 established what he called the Hickman Commission. Mr. Hickman was a retired Executive Vice President of the Aluminum Company of America. Other citizen members were the former Deputy Superintendent of Public Instruction, Professor Emeritus of Political Science—

POINT OF ORDER

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Fisher, will state it.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, is a motion to rerefer debatable?

The PRESIDENT. The motion to rerefer is debatable but to a limited degree.

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, I am trying to establish the reason for the importance—

The PRESIDENT. If the lady would yield for just a second further so the gentleman can continue his point.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I would question whether or not the limited degree to which the motion is debatable is covered by the debate of the lady from Northampton.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair must agree that the gentleman's point is well taken. The debate is limited to what is called the proprietary of the reference, which simply means that the debate must be limited to the reason for referring to the Committee on Education, and the lady may proceed under those circumstances.

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, I do not intend to debate the merits of the bill. All I am saying is I want to establish the history that gave rise to Act 195 which I believe is important for the Committee on Education because it now consists of new Members, and we ought to have the benefit of some of the history of previous studies of the bill itself. I think that logically it belongs in the Committee on Education to review the background, to review the number of strikes that are settled and the number of contracts that are settled without strikes, which is almost 90 percent of this last year, and I think it is also important for the Committee on Education to study what is happening in other states that do not permit strikes and the number of strikes that occur there. I think we ought to also consider some of the bills which the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Fisher, introduced in 1985 and which I introduced at the same time which called for last best offer, but it seems to me that those bills need to be studied in conjunction with a final vote on Senate Bill No. 727. I think it is premature to vote on this bill at this time on third consideration without giving due study to all of the factors surrounding this very important subject matter, and it should therefore logically be rereferred to the Committee on Education because there are educational issues involved in this, not just labor issues. For that reason I move to rerefer the bill to the Senate Committee on Education for some real in-depth study.

Senator GREENWOOD. Mr. President, I think the people of Pennsylvania understand the code word "study" by now. I think they understand that when this legislature does not want to bring itself to meet the responsibility of confronting an issue head-on, the simplest thing to do is to take some procedural action, like rerefer to another committee for study or table, or some other way to avoid that responsibility to confront what is a major issue to the people of this Commonwealth. As I said last week, Pennsylvania is the strike capital of the country. Twenty-five percent of the strikes—

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, will state it.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I vaguely remember your admonishment at the request of the Majority Whip that the debate was limited. I believe, if you are going to open this debate up in the manner in which the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, is starting, I would think you are going to have a very difficult time stopping other people who have a difference of opinion on this particular issue. I think the proper time for debating that would be after the motion has either passed or failed and it is either gone and we do it in the Committee on Education or we do it here.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair appreciates and agrees with the gentleman's point of inquiry and would also agree with his perception that this debate could get very much far afield. The Chair would take the liberty of thanking the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, for confining her remarks after our brief point of order to the issue of referral. She maintained that posture and the Chair would appreciate it if the gentleman from Bucks did the same.

POINT OF ORDER

Senator GREENWOOD. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, will state it.

Senator GREENWOOD. Mr. President, if I could have some clarification on that, I would ask if it is in order for me to very briefly comment upon the fact that rereferral to another committee at this point in the legislative year where we are, hopefully, about to recess for the summer, knowing full well that the school year begins in September, that it is not relevant to the issue of rereferral, that the consequence of a rereferral is to delay consideration of this issue into the next school year? I think, therefore, it is appropriate for me to briefly comment upon the impacts of that delay.

The PRESIDENT. Senator, if that is a question, the Chair would point out that the gentleman has already made his point and he appreciates that and would suggest that we get to the issue at hand, which is a vote on the matter of rereferral.

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, I think I established the reason and the purpose for rereferring it to the Committee on Education. Now the Chairman of the Committee on Education is controlled by the party of the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood. It is up to the Chairman and the Majority Members of that committee not to table the bill, not to study it ad infinitum but at least to look at this bill from the point of view of education for our children, as well as for the taxpayers. They will have every right to report this bill out as speedily as possible. While it is true we are almost at the end of a Session, we hope, there is no guarantee on that. We do not know whether this bill would finally be enacted by the time the school year starts in September. We do not know. In addition, the effective date of the bill is 60 days after it has passed both Chambers which very well may take us beyond the school year opening. It is quite conceivable to me that the Members of the Committee on Education are very serious about a very important issue and would like to give this a real study. I think that some of the remarks that were made on the floor by the sponsor of the bill last week and starting now really has very little basis in fact, and this is something the Committee on Education needs to look at. I have all kinds of studies and statistics that would negate what was said on the floor last week by the sponsor of this bill. I have studied this bill for a long time, I mean the whole issue of Act 195. I was here in 1970 when it was passed in the Shaffer administration.

The PRESIDENT. With all due respect to the lady from Northampton, it really is incumbent upon the Chair to move the debate forward in the direction of the rereferral. The lady has made her point.

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, that is why it should be rereferred.

Senator GREENWOOD. Mr. President, I will try to stay on point. The lady makes the argument that this issue has, in fact, been studied to death, and it is my view that the people of Pennsylvania are willing to accept differences of opinion on this issue. They are willing to accept that some people can support this bill and some others cannot. The lady who has, by her own statements, studied this issue a lot has the opportunity to offer amendments to this bill to make this bill reflect the conclusions of those studies, but I do not believe the people of Pennsylvania will tolerate any more delay for the purpose of delay.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I would rise to support the motion to rerefer. It really amazes me that the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, would specifically talk about the beginning of a new school year and that was the need for having this bill dealt with right now. It is July 8th and we have not seen out of the Majority caucus which he belongs to a bill that would fund education. We are eight days past the date for having a budget passed for 501 school districts and we are worried about supposed strikes that may never come about and we do not have funding.

POINT OF ORDER

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Fisher, will state it.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I believe the debate of the gentleman from Fayette is beyond the scope of permissible debate on a motion to rerefer.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair would admit it is a bit of a stretch. However, there is some merit in the argument that the legislation, perhaps, could use referral while we await a funding mechanism. It is a bit of a stretch, but the Chair is not prepared to rule that his remarks are out of order at this point. The Chair, however, would appreciate bringing the debate on this limited area to a conclusion so they can vote on it.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I think a good example of how people can listen and not hear is what Senator Greenwood heard the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, say that I did not hear her say. I heard Senator Reibman say that, one, she had been introducing similar legislation to this for a number of Sessions, and that the reason this bill should be rereferred to the appropriate committee, where it should have gone when it was introduced, was because there is a considerable difference in this bill and how it goes about bringing the same result that Senator Reibman's legislation had proposed to do. There is a sincere and questionable constitutionality question surrounding the bill in front of us. I think there ought to be adequate study done by a very bipartisan Committee on Education. I am not sure all the committees in this Body have ever operated in the same manner. My experience with the Committee on Education in both the House and the Senate has been that, generally speaking, they go about deciding an issue in the best interests of the children who are going to be educated. I believe that is what this bill should have, a very bipartisan, experienced, very in-depth examination because if Senator Greenwood believes this bill is going to be ready for the September 1st beginning of most schools in Pennsylvania, then I would believe he is going to have to be very disappointed. He may have this issue around to build up his congressional campaign between now and next September.

POINT OF ORDER

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. If the gentleman would yield, the Chair will suggest that your point is unnecessary. I agree with you that the Senator from Fayette was successful in slipping in a minor irrelevancy toward the end of his comments. Nonetheless, we are about the business of hearing from the other speakers on this issue, and let us hope we can confine our remarks to the motion to rerefer.

POINT OF ORDER

Senator GREENWOOD. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, will state it.

Senator GREENWOOD. Mr. President, in the Chair's recent comment, may I infer from that that the gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, may not refer to my political motives and that should mean I should not refer to his PSEA contributions?

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman's comments are out of order and neither germane nor appreciated, I am sure.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I wonder how the gentleman knows what my PSEA contributions are unless he has scrutinized my reports of my campaign committee, and I would suspect if he would look he would probably find a hell of a lot more than me who have PSEA contributions, and he may have one or two somewhere hidden in that background that probably will be part of Pete Kostmayer's campaign when he runs against him.

The PRESIDENT. If all of the Members of the Senate would yield, the Chair would point out that we are in for a very tumultuous few days as we begin to consider the budget and other very important items. It would be very helpful if all of the Members of the Senate would respect each other's prerogatives and would at least attempt to abide by the Rules, thereby allowing the Chair to exercise his ability to be a truly nice guy. If not, the Chair is going to be much more aggressive about gaveling down speakers who are out of order.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman.

The PRESIDENT. Will the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, permit herself to be interrogated?

Senator REIBMAN. I will, Mr. President.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, the Senator indicated that she has introduced legislation in the past dealing with Act 195. Is that correct?

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, yes. I have on several occasions introduced several pieces of legislation dealing with last best offer. The gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Fisher, also introduced similar legislation back in 1984 when we had some study done on it, and we had similar ideas in the legislation. None of these bills ever came out of the Republican controlled committee. I am saying now that you control the committee this time. I think we have a chairman who is interested in trying to resolve a very thorny problem and if this were recommitted to the Committee on Education where it should have been referred in the beginning, I believe we can come up with something that I think most people would be able to support.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, would the lady indicate to what committee her bills were referred?

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, it was the Committee on Education at that time.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, how many years ago was that?

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, I guess it was about four or five years ago.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, my experience has been that Act 195 bills have all gone to the Committee on Labor and Industry, at least in the last six or seven years.

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, I do not think so.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, would the lady indicate whether or not she would support last best offer?

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, I am a sponsor of last best offer, under certain conditions. I do not agree with some of the conditions that are in this bill.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, would the lady indicate, if this bill went over, whether she would make herself in position to offer her last best offer amendments to this bill?

The PRESIDENT. The Chair would anticipate a point of order and remind the gentleman that even in colloquy on the floor it is important to adhere to dealing with the subject at hand. It is not appropriate for the gentleman to extract commitments from another Member of the Senate during an interrogation.

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, I would like to correct my statement and agree with Senator Brightbill that these bills were referred to the Committee on Labor and Industry but they never came out of the committee and actually they should have gone to the Committee on Education, but I had no control over to where those previous bills in 1985 were referred.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, I would apologize to the Chair and the lady from Northampton. I am not attempting to extract a promise. The Chair made a ruling without asking for the point of view of this Senator. My point of view is that this is a motion to commit to the Committee on Education. The appropriate committee in the past has been the Committee on Labor and Industry. Frankly, a motion to commit has the effect of taking this bill off the agenda of this Senate, and what I am attempting to do is to not take this bill off the agenda and, therefore, it is impossible to present any debate which does not remove this from the agenda without having some kind of discourse with the lady from Northampton about how we could approach this problem and deal with a problem she apparently admits exists, which is that our students are held hostage because of school strikes.

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, in the first place, Senate Bill No. 727 amends the School Code, and that is where the Committee on Education has jurisdiction, over School Code legislation. It is not only just a matter of labor relations. It is also a matter of education issues, and I think that is why it should be rereferred, not committed, rereferred to the Committee on Education so they can take a look at all of the issues surrounding this very important piece of legislation. I cannot make any commitment just as—well, I guess I am not going to refer to the judicial candidates.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Reibman has made a motion to rerefer Senate Bill No. 727 to the Committee on Education. It seems to the Chair that is a fairly straightforward motion.

POINT OF ORDER

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Lebanon, Senator Brightbill, will state it.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, I believe the lady's motion was made during interrogation by me and that I had the floor. I would ask whether that motion at that point was in order when she was merely standing for interrogation?

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman is incorrect. Evidently the gentleman was not on the floor when the lady made her motion in the first instance.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, no, the motion was initially just made by her.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman is incorrect. The lady made her motion some 27 minutes ago when we first began the discussion on Senate Bill No. 727, and the gentleman from Lebanon is welcome to make whatever point of order he wants to make at this point.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, she just made some kind of a motion, or is she repeating her motion?

The PRESIDENT. The gentle lady was repeating her motion.

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, I was correcting what the gentleman from Lebanon, Senator Brightbill, said. He said that I said that I made a motion to recommit the bill. I made a motion to rerefer the bill. I was correcting Senator Brightbill.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair appreciates that, but the Chair would appreciate it if we could get to the issue at hand.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, as far as the Chair's wishing we could get to the issue at hand, I would take exception. I have spent many, many hours sitting in this Chamber with issues that I perhaps deemed to be of lesser importance than this particular issue.

POINT OF ORDER

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, will state it.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I do not think it is important how long the gentleman spent in here. We are talking about an issue that has debate guidelines, and I really am starting to object very seriously to going outside those guidelines. I think we have to get firm or we are going to be here all night arguing over something we are not ever going to vote on.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair thanks the gentleman for his point of order and agrees completely with it. The issue is a sizable one, but we are not dealing with the issues contained in Senate Bill No. 727. We are dealing with whether to rerefer it to the Committee on Education. It is a simple motion.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, on the motion to rerefer—

POINT OF ORDER

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Lebanon, Senator Brightbill, will state it.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, I had not yielded. I had the floor and the Chair recognized another gentleman before I had completed my debate.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair appreciates it and stands corrected.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman.

The PRESIDENT. Will the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, permit herself to be interrogated?

Senator REIBMAN. I will, Mr. President.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, would the lady from Northampton consider withdrawing her motion and making that a motion to go over the bill so we can study these issues and bring the bill back later on during the next ten legislative days?

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, I do not accept that as reasonable, really. I believe this is an issue that ought to be looked at very closely by the Members of the Committee on Education. I do not believe the individual Members on the floor. While we are all very serious, we are all caught up in the budget negotiations and that is more on our minds now, and individually that is the issue most of us are dealing with. I think this is an issue that rightfully belongs in the Committee on Education and that is where it ought to be looked at. I trust the Committee on Education to look at this. I have more faith in the committee than many of you do, perhaps, on the floor. I would like to see it rereferred to the Committee on Education so it can be looked at the way it ought to be looked at.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, I would ask for a "no" vote on the rereferral because the issue is here before us. I have been here for eight years. We have not had this issue on the floor before and I would ask for a negative vote.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, on the motion to rerefer, I likewise would ask for a negative vote. The past history and tradition of this Chamber has been that bills dealing with Act 195 have been referred to the Committee on Labor and Industry, just as Senate Bill No. 727 was referred to that committee. Senate Bill No. 727 deals with collective bargaining. It deals with new language which, in effect, would amend the current provisions of Act 195. I think we have heard other reasons that have already been given, but I would request a negative vote on the motion to rerefer so we could get on with voting the amendment and the bill.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, I find myself a bit confused by the position that the Majority is taking in not being willing to rerefer the bill at this time. Perhaps they could help me to understand that if certain Members would stand for a brief interrogation.

Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator GREENWOOD. I will, Mr. President.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, the marked Calendar that I have for the day indicates if this bill is not rereferred to the Committee on Education, several Senators intend to offer amendments, among them the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood. Is that correct?

Senator GREENWOOD. Mr. President, the gentleman does not need me to tell him what the Calendar says, but the Calendar does say there are four amendments to be offered. I can maybe assist the gentleman by indicating that as of our caucus this afternoon, I and the gentleman from Lebanon, Senator Brightbill, and I believe the gentleman from Chester, Senator Baker, have all decided not to offer our amendments. So the only amendment to be offered, should this motion fail, would be the amendment offered by the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, in effect then, the marked Calendar is incorrect in that three of the four Senators listed for amendment will not be offering their amendments. Do I understand the gentleman correctly that the only amendment to be offered would be that of Senator Rhoades?

Senator GREENWOOD. Mr. President, that is my understanding.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, I have completed the interrogation. However, I do remain still a bit confused. It seems to me that if I recall correctly, this past Wednesday evening when we brought this bill before the Body at approximately 10:00 p.m. or 10:30 in the evening, at that time several gentlemen intended to offer amendments. After some discussion and the withdrawal of those amendments, the Majority Leader stated that the amendments were withdrawn and the bill would go over in order and, in fact, he requested that because the amendments were somewhat conflicting and, in fact, the Majority wished to have time to sort out those amendments.

Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator RHOADES. I will, Mr. President.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, Senator Greenwood has just indicated that the only amendment to be offered—

POINT OF ORDER

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Fisher, will state it.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, is this line of interrogation in order, once again on the motion to rerefer? The gentleman from Lehigh, Senator Afflerbach, is questioning the motives of the various Members as to what they may or may not offer if this bill stays on the Calendar.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair would rule that it is in order because the decision as to whether or not to vote to refer or not may very well hinge on what types of amendments are in store. It seems to make sense to me.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, the Chair's perspicacity once again wins the day. In fact, it does hinge on whether or not amendments are to be offered.

As I was beginning to indicate, Senator Greenwood has just indicated that the only amendment to be offered, should this bill not be rereferred to the Committee on Education, would be an amendment by Senator Rhoades. Is that the gentleman's understanding? Does the gentleman intend to offer an amendment to the bill if it is not rereferred to the Committee on Education?

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, I certainly do.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, I have before me amendments that have been circulated by the various gentlemen. The amendment which is under the sponsorship of Senator Rhoades is amendment A1734. Is that the amendment the gentleman would intend to offer if the bill comes before us for consideration?

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, that is correct.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, I thank the gentleman.

I remain somewhat confused by the Majority's action because this is the identical amendment which Senator Rhoades had, in fact, offered on Wednesday evening past and then withdrew on the basis that it was conflicting with the other amendments. Apparently the other gentlemen have decided to withdraw their amendments, as Senator Greenwood has indicated to us, and, therefore, one would have to assume they have somehow resolved the conflict without changing the language of the amendment. That in itself is sufficient reason for me to support the motion of the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, that this bill be rereferred to the Committee on Education. I certainly was not privy to any of the discussions which have somehow resulted in this agreement among the four gentlemen wishing to offer amendments. I would like to hear the arguments on the basis upon which they came to the conclusion that the amendments are no longer conflicting and how they came to the conclusion that one and only one amendment should be offered before this Body upon which to decide so sensitive an issue. Since they apparently are unwilling to do that on the floor of the Senate, I would again support Senator Reibman's motion that the bill be rereferred to the Committee on Education where that dialogue can take place in public and open forum.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, I listened to the debate of the gentleman from Lehigh, and it reminded me of my class in logic that I had when I was a sophomore in college. My teacher was a gentleman named Colonel Cootee, and he taught me logical fallacies. One of the logical fallacies he taught me was post hoc ergo propter hoc, which is Latin for, after that therefore because of that. He said as a teacher that is a logical fallacy. In other words, if something occurs and then something else occurs, you cannot assume that one followed because of the other. Since we are teaching sophomoric logic here, I think those logical principles should be carried home by the gentleman from Lehigh County today—post hoc ergo propter hoc.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, I thank the gentleman from Lebanon for his sophomoric response.

Senator BAKER. Mr. President, I did not intend to speak at this point and as the Senator from Lehigh County has referred to, I see that I am on the marked Calendar as having an amendment. This stems from an amendment to an amendment which I did offer and withdrew the other night because of the amendment which was anticipated to be made at that time by the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades, and it is up to Senator Rhoades whether he chooses to go forward with that, and I take it from his comments that he does. But since the question was raised, the reason I withdrew the motion the other night and do not intend to offer the amendment to the amendment at this time is because the mover of the bill decided to withdraw his amendments. My amendment to the amendment was designed in response to the amendments which the sponsor of the bill was going to offer himself. Since he has made the decision not to offer either of the amendments he was prepared to offer, that was the basis for my decision, if that is of interest to the gentleman from Lehigh, Senator Afflerbach.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, I rise to speak on behalf of the motion of the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, because I think it is important that we look at this not only as a bill to regulate labor conflicts, but as something that the sponsor of the bill himself has suggested, that the central question here is one of education and whether or not it is in the interest of school children to have Act 195 continue as it is or whether it should be modified in what it affects in the 501 school districts in the state. This bill, as it is set forth at this point, will have a dramatic effect on 501 school districts all over the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. It seems to me that the Committee on Education would be an appropriate place for us to discuss the impact of this legislation and to look at other amendments that may be necessary. However, in addition to that, let me also add that it would seem to me that the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades, who is going to offer an amendment to this bill, is obviously interested in the bill moving forward, and as the chair of that committee and in his leadership fashion is quite capable of making sure this bill comes back before the Senate for action. I think that would address the concern of the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, that the bill would be buried in some respect.

I think we should be careful relative to the precedent set here, that we are going to deal with Public School Code matters through other committees of the General Assembly. If that be the case, I think we need to be aware that may follow in other lines also and we should, I think, at least allow the Committee on Education of the Senate to look at this matter and to see whether it can be refined so we can have a situation where we improve upon our past practices and really look to enhance Act 195 so it can act in an appropriate way in terms of guiding labor issues in our school districts.

Senator BAKER. Mr. President, in response to the comments that were just made, I think it is ironic that the justification for sending this to the Committee on Education would be a negotiating contract and labor provision of last best offer. If there is something that makes this piece of legislation stand out and makes it, in fact, appealing, it is the last best offer aspect of it. As the last speaker has just said, that is a labor matter, that is not an education matter.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I do not believe I could have thanked anyone more than I would thank the gentleman from Chester, Senator Baker, for setting this up for my remarks. The debate is centered around whether this bill should have been referred to the Committee on Labor and Industry or to the Committee on Education, and there have been several references made to past legislation that was referred to the Committee on Labor and Industry. The lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, the maker of the motion, was chastised somewhat earlier for this particular part of her argument. I would go back to the Session of 1985, the bills in question in the interrogation between the gentleman from Lebanon, Senator Brightbill, and Senator Reibman. The reason the bills were appropriately referred to the Committee on Labor and Industry in the 1985 Session is Senate Bill No. 390 of the Session of 1985 deals with an act of July 23rd known as the Public Employees Relations Act as amended by, and so forth and so on; a bill also in that package of bills that Senator Reibman introduced, Senate Bill No. 393 of the same Session of 1985, reads, "Amend,...known as the Public Employees Relations Act is amended by adding a section to read...." That, my friends, is the reason it went to the Committee on Labor and Industry. Senate Bill No. 727 went to the Committee on Labor and Industry but should have gone to the Committee on Education because it reads, "Section 1. The act of March 10, 1949 (P.L.30, No.14), known as the Public School Code of 1949, is amended...." and the reason why this bill was sent to the Committee on Labor and Industry and the reason why it has been reported out is because it is not an Act 195 bill. Eleven years the Majority of this Senate has been controlled by the Republican Party. Eleven years I have heard them whine about Act 195, and they have never had the courage to report an Act 195 bill out of committee. In fact, that Act is some 20 years old and neither party in either House has ever put a bill on the Calendar dealing with Act 195. Now if you want to deal with Act 195, put out a bill that I can offer amendments to Act 195 to improve it. It is a good law and I want to make it a little bit better. I do not want to destroy it, and you cannot do that in the roundabout manner in which you are trying to do by dealing with amendments to the School Code and make them effective as if they were amendments to Act 195. Have the courage to put Act 195 out. These bills, Senate Bill No. 390 and Senate Bill No. 393, were never reported out because they did deal with Act 195. This is an education issue. It is the School Code. It belongs in the Committee on Education and let them have it to deal with it, and I guarantee you they will do an excellent job of putting this bill into the kind of condition that it would be good for education and not bad.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT. The Chair recognizes the presence on the floor of Senator Baker and Senator Tilghman. Their temporary Capitol leaves will be cancelled.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Senator REIBMAN and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—22

Afflerbach	Fumo	Musto	Schwartz
Andrezski	Jones	O'Pake	Stapleton
Belan	LaValle	Porterfield	Stewart
Bodack	Lincoln	Reibman	Stout
Bortner	Lynch	Scanlon	Williams

Bell	Helfrick	Pecora	Shaffer
Brightbill	Holl	Peterson	Shumaker
Corman	Hopper	Punt	Tilghman
Fisher	Jubelirer	Rhoades	Wenger
Greenleaf	Lemmond

Less than a majority of the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the negative.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

Senator RHOADES, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A1734:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1101-A), page 3, by inserting between lines 4 and 5:

"State panel" shall mean the State Panel of Arbitration for Education.

Amend Sec. 1, page 5, by inserting between lines 21 and 22:

Section 1123-A. State Panel of Arbitration for Education.—(a) There is hereby established a State panel within the Department of Education.

(b) The Secretary of Education shall appoint members to the State panel. The number of members is at his discretion.

(c) Members shall be knowledgeable in the following school related fields:

- (1) budget;
- (2) finance;
- (3) educational programs; and
- (4) taxation.

Section 1124-A. Arbitrators.—The representative of the employer and employe shall select three arbitrators as follows:

(1) One arbitrator to be selected by the representative of the employes.

(2) One arbitrator to be selected by representative of the employer.

(3) One arbitrator to be selected by both parties from a list of five candidates compiled by the State panel. Each party shall strike a candidate until one is left. A coin toss shall determine who gets the first strike.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1123-A), page 5, line 22, by striking out "Section 1123-A. Judicial Determination" and inserting:

Section 1125-A. Determination by Arbitrators

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1123-A), page 5, lines 28 through 30, by striking out "May 1," in line 28, all of lines 29 and 30 and inserting: April 15, submit to the arbitrators their

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1123-A), page 6, line 25, by striking out "he" and inserting: they

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1123-A), page 7, lines 6 through 14, by striking out all of said lines and inserting:

(c) Not later than forty (40) days prior to the budget submission date, the arbitrators shall:

(1) examine each item of dispute;
(2) determine in writing which party's last best contract offer shall be adopted as to that item; and

(3) forward a copy of this written determination to both parties involved in the dispute and to the board.

(d) Upon determination of the arbitrators, the representatives of the employers and employes shall have ten (10) days in which to renegotiate each item of dispute. All agreed to items during this period must be in writing. Items not agreed to will remain as ruled upon by the arbitrators.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1123-A), page 7, lines 19 through 21, by striking out "president" in line 19, all of lines 20 and 21 and inserting: arbitrators.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1124-A), page 7, line 28, by striking out "1124-A" and inserting: 1126-A

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1124-A), page 8, line 1, by striking out "1123-A, the president judge" and inserting: 1125-A, the arbitrators

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1124-A), page 8, line 5, by striking out "1123-A, the president judge" and inserting: 1125-A, the arbitrators

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1125-A), page 8, lines 7 through 10, by striking out all of said lines and inserting:

Section 1127-A. Time Frame.—The time periods set forth in this article are mandatory, and shall not be construed to be directory.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, the amendment has not changed since last week so it is basically the same thing as what I said last week. What the amendment does is establish a state panel of arbitration for education whereby it would be under the Department of Education. The Secretary of Education would appoint members to the state panel. In turn then, whenever we reach the point of going through all the deadlines, and they have not been approved, we get to the last best offer. On the list the union would pick one, the school board would pick one and then five names would be provided. You toss a coin and they would cross off until the third is picked, or the fifth one is open. That person becomes the third member on the panel of arbitrators. They then, in turn, will have presented to them the last best offer by both the union and the school board, and they, item by item, will select which they feel to be the item that should be part of the contract. In turn, there will be ten additional days after the arbitrators have decided, an opportunity for the employers and the employees to renegotiate each and every item of dispute. But I would note that all items agreed to during this period must be in writing and that items not agreed to will remain as ruled upon by the arbitrators. That, in essence, plus the fact too that this makes the time frame mandatory. This is all "shall." That is not "may," but you must follow it through for the 150 days out from the standpoint of meeting mediation—fact finding, last best offer, renegotiating. Hopefully it will all be settled by June 1st.

Senator GREENWOOD. Mr. President, I rise to oppose the Rhoades amendment. As the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades, adequately described, there are two major differences between this amendment and the bill as it stands before us. The first has to do with who it is who does the arbitrating. The bill has the president judge of the Court of Common Pleas in which the school district is located serving as the final best offer arbitrator. The amendment would have a panel of state employees coming from the Department of Education. The reasons I have selected the president judge are many. The strongest argument against binding arbitration in a labor dispute is that traditionally arbitrators come from outside of the district. They come from Harrisburg. They render a decision that has long and lasting and profound impacts upon a community, and then they go back without ever needing to feel the consequences of their action. The president judge lives in the community. The president judge knows the history of the community. The president judge has a great deal of historical information about the ability of that community to pay for education and has a lot of information about the adequacy of the education being provided. The president judge is used to holding hearings and weighing the evidence, and only the evidence, in rendering a decision. And finally, the president judge, because he or she stands for at least a retentional election every ten years, has an instinctive need to be responsive to the community. But because that president judge runs only every ten years, I believe that the president judge will not feel compelled to make purely political decisions. For those reasons I oppose that part of the amendment.

The second part of the amendment has to do with the difference between final and total package arbitration versus line by line arbitration. The fundamental strength of final best offer binding arbitration is that it brings each side in from positions that have more to do with posturing and leveraging in negotiation than their positions have to do with reality and the truth and the facts. Line by line bargaining escapes the necessity of coming to terms with reality. In the line by line arrangement, the president judge would be able to give one line to the teachers and then one line to the school board and one line to the teachers and so on. The problem with that is that the parties will again trade off those lines. The teachers may decide they are going to lose on class size and lose on work week but that they can win on salary. I think it gives again an incentive for both sides to come to the president judge, to come into final offer binding arbitration with unrealistic positions. For those two reasons I would ask for a "no" vote on the amendment.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I believe that for all the reasons that the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, used to argue against the amendment, I would argue for it. I think the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades, even though being denied as the Chairman of the Committee on Education the ability to deal with something dealing with education of our children, has offered a substantially improving amendment. I believe that in spite of being opposed to Senate Bill No. 727, that I am not certain I would vote for it. After this amendment is over I want to take a look at just what final impact it will have on the bill itself, plus I have some very strong personal feelings against what we are trying to do anyway. But I would think that the amendment offered by the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades, takes a very bad piece of legislation and makes it halfway decent. For that reason I would very strongly urge a positive vote on the amendment.

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I rise in opposition to this particular amendment. I think the bill in its current form is in the right fashion. I think that last best offer as a package puts a lot more responsibility on each side to be responsible for each and every part of the proposal that is being considered, and that it ought to be considered in an entire package, not on a line item by item proposal.

Secondly, I think the same as the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, that the judge in the county is the appropriate person to make that kind of decision. Some have said, but in our particular county the judge's wife happens to be a school teacher. Well, many times judges find that for whatever reason they cannot sit on a particular trial. I would think in this particular case, if that kind of a conflict would be evident, that the judge would set himself or herself aside and another judge would be appointed from a county of the surrounding area that would have the same economy as the county that the president judge would be representing. I think we would get far better decisions from the arrangement that is currently in the bill than the arrangement offered by the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades. I would ask for a negative vote on this particular amendment.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, I rise to speak in favor of the amendment of the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades, to this bill. Let me just remind my colleague, the gentleman from Centre, Senator Corman, who just spoke, that in my county sometimes the judge's husband might be a school teacher, but we all live in a changing environment. I think when we talk about judges versus the panel, as offered by Senator Rhoades' amendment, of experts that would sit and hear a number of these cases and, hopefully, would gain some expertise in terms of handling these matters, versus president judges in these various counties, is a much more preferred option. I do not think that either of these two options that are before us now are the perfect way to go. I do not think there is any quick solution to this problem or this dilemma, but given the alternatives at the moment, I would indicate that I am going to vote in favor of Senator Rhoades' amendment because I think it is a reasonable approach to proceeding forward, and I think it does retain the necessity for both parties to be responsible in terms of providing in their last best offer reasonable approaches because some part, if not all of those, will be a part of the final arbitration that panel awards in this matter under Senator Rhoades' amendment. So I would urge my colleagues on both sides of the aisle, that if we are going to proceed down this road that we do it under the guidance and leadership of Senator Rhoades' amendment because I think it is the way to go at this moment.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

The yeas and nays were required by Senator RHOADES and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—25

Afflerbach	Holl	O'Pake	Salvatore
Belan	Jones	Pecora	Scanlon
Bodack	Lincoln	Porterfield	Stapleton
Bortner	Lynch	Punt	Stewart
Fattah	Mellow	Reibman	Stout
Fumo	Musto	Rhoades	Williams
Greenleaf

NAYS—22

Andrezski	Greenwood	Lemmond	Schwartz
Armstrong	Hart	Loeper	Shaffer
Baker	Helfrick	Madigan	Shumaker
Brightbill	Hopper	Peterson	Tilghman
Corman	Jubelirer	Robbins	Wenger
Fisher	LaValle

A majority of the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the affirmative.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration, as amended?

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I rise to move that Senate Bill No. 727 be recommitted to the Committee on Appropriations for a fiscal note. I have a fiscal note done by the Senate Democratic Committee on Appropriations that shows that prior to the amendment of the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades, there was an approximate need for $320,000 to fund the bill.

The PRESIDENT. If the gentleman would yield for just a minute, it would be appropriate for us to put the motion before the Body which is to recommit this bill, as amended, to the Committee on Appropriations.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, should the motion be recommit or rerefer?

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, used the term recommit. We will go with that.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I was under the impression from an earlier ruling that it was just a matter of semantics anyway.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman is correct.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, the bill as before us, prior to the amendment offered and passed by the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades, according to the staff of the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate Democrats was looking at approximately $320,000. The same very capable individuals who drew up this unofficial fiscal note for me have informed me that the Rhoades amendment carries with it approximately a doubling of that cost, and I believe that today the gentleman from Westmoreland, Senator Porterfield, handed me a couple of very important fiscal notes of bills on the Calendar, and I cannot believe we would let this piece of legislation not go because there is no question there is a fiscal impact from what we are asking school districts in the Commonwealth to take on. So I would move that we would recommit to the Committee on Appropriations for a fiscal note.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I would request a temporary Capitol leave for Senator Corman.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Fisher asks for a temporary Capitol leave for Senator Corman. The Chair hears no objection. That leave will be granted.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I would request a temporary Capitol leave for Senator Lynch.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Lincoln asks temporary Capitol leave for Senator Lynch. That meets with no objection, and that leave will be granted as well.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I would move that Senate Bill No. 727 be laid upon the table.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair has entertained a motion from the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Fisher, that the bill be laid upon the table. This is a motion that takes precedence over the motion to recommit and—hear this—is nondebatable.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Senator FISHER and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—48

Afflerbach	Fumo	Loeper	Robbins
Andrezski	Greenleaf	Lynch	Salvatore
Armstrong	Greenwood	Madigan	Scanlon
Baker	Hart	Mellow	Schwartz

Belan	Helfrick	Musto	Shaffer

Considered the third time and agreed to,

On the question,
Shall the bill pass finally?

LEGISLATIVE LEAVE

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I would request temporary Capitol leave for Senator Tilghman.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Fisher requests temporary Capitol leave for Senator Tilghman. The Chair hears no objection. That leave will be granted.

And the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution and were as follows, viz:

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Senator STAPLETON. Mr. President, I welcome the opportunity to make some brief remarks about an issue that is unfortunately not before us today and it should be. I am referring to House Bill No. 1075, a bill that would add state funded colleges and universities to the Right-to-Know Law. This bill passed the House of Representatives on June 5, 1991 and has been in the Senate Committee on Education since June 10th.

According to Senator Loeper, our Majority Leader and the one who controls this Body's agenda, it will remain in that committee until sometime in the fall. I disagree with this decision and I urge him to reconsider it.

In doing so, I would first review the merits of this legislation. The bill would open the books of those colleges and universities receiving substantial state assistance. This would include the four state-related universities—that is Penn State and the Universities of Pittsburgh, Temple and Lincoln along with the State System of Higher Education, the community colleges and, finally, the 11 state-aided colleges and universities.

Under this act the schools would join Commonwealth agencies in being open for examination and inspection by the citizens of this Commonwealth.

Now perhaps you are wondering why the people should have this right. To begin with, the Commonwealth has a tremendous investment in these institutions. Although we wish we could do even more, the amount of public money that has been appropriated and spent by our big schools is still very impressive. Beginning in 1981 to 1990, a ten year span, about $6.7 billion has been allocated to the State System, Pitt, Penn State, Lincoln and Temple.

If we add in the aid that went to the community colleges, the University of Pennsylvania, Drexel and other state-aided schools, this total increases to $8.2 billion. Let me run that number by you again. That is $8.2 billion in public tax funds. This is equal to more than $680 for every man, woman and child in this Commonwealth.

The University of Pittsburgh, which is the subject of so much controversy, has been awarded direct grants in excess of $1 billion in the last ten years. This contribution should buy the public some rights, I believe, and to date we have rarely asked for an accounting of this money. But when we have asked for information we have been ignored and, on occasion, even misled.

Again, Mr. President, although the University of Pittsburgh is a recent and sore example, this problem arises with other state-related schools and 11 state-aided institutions. For years an organization of students at Penn State, for example, has lobbied for open budgeting at that school with no success.

A few years back the Committee on Appropriations on this side of the aisle took up this cause and wrote to all state, state-related and state-aided institutions asking for information on salaries, perks, and so on, for the presidents and other high ranking officials. Except for the State System of Higher Education, this request was ignored or answers were incomplete or summary information did not shed light on the issues. Since then, of course, the Presidents of Temple, Pitt and Penn State have revealed much of this information under pressure, but we still do not know everything we would like to know. Many of us on this side of the aisle, and I am sure on that side of the aisle, would love to know the salary of Joe Paterno, our great coach at Penn State, but that is a big secret, and it has been. For many years we have asked these questions in the Committee on Appropriations and we do not get any answers.

Only the State System of Higher Education and the network of 13 community colleges have been absolutely open in their bookkeeping. Yet the Right-to-Know bill would also extend to these schools just for good measure. I stand proud of the behavior of the State System over the years in its willingness to withstand public scrutiny without resistance. And I am proud of my 15-year association as a trustee at Indiana University and a member of the State System of Higher Education.

One of the reasons used by Senator Loeper in delaying a vote on the Right-to-Know bill is because the Auditor General has started an audit of Pitt and is planning to investigate Temple and Lincoln. Senator Loeper would wait for the results of the Pitt audit before moving on the bill.

I can make several arguments against this approach, Mr. President. First of all, the Office of the Auditor General has only limited authority in what it can undertake. The Auditor General has not scheduled Penn State, for example, because of Penn State's special legal status, even though it receives the most money of all the state-related schools. But the Right-to-Know bill would include Penn State, and it goes well beyond the limited question of audits.

Secondly, the Auditor General's Office is carrying a large backlog. An article in last year's Pittsburgh Press reported that Hafer was carrying a backlog of 7,500 uncompleted audits. This, by the way, is a fourfold increase since she took office in 1988. In considering the work that is not done, how can that office be expected to do a thorough job every time there are questionable expenditures at any of our public institutions?

Finally, on this point, an audit by the Auditor General hardly replaces the public right to know that the disclosure bill would permit. After all, the Auditor General would still serve as a wall between the institutions and the citizens.

Another argument raised by the Majority Leader is that the Senate is too busy with the state budget to take up the bill. Considering that budget talks have been taking place over the last number of days and that we are some eight days past the budget deadline, I think we have plenty of time to work on this bill. We did have time, for example, to work on and pass such matters as traffic signs in Susquehanna County, bridge names in Montgomery County and the construction of fish lifts at the Conowingo Dam. In fact, we had time to consider many other minor and major pieces of legislation during the time that the Senate has had the Right-to-Know bill. In fact, I have mentioned we have had many other minor and major pieces of legislation. Actually it was 196.

I have had a number of letters and telephone calls from constituents who are understandably upset over the University of Pittsburgh's generosity to its retiring president. Many are demanding that publicly funded institutions account for how and where they spend tax dollars.

I know I am joined by many other voices in urging prompt consideration of this bill. Certainly the prime sponsor, Representative Cowell, has been vocal in his public appeal. Other House and Senate Members, including Senator Fisher have spoken out publicly on the need for this bill and their desire to pass the bill before the summer recess.

The mass media also adds its weight to this issue. Cries for action have been printed in the Pittsburgh Press, the Harrisburg Patriot, the Valley News Dispatch, the Scranton Times, the Centre Daily Times, and many others.

Mr. President, in conclusion, I again urge the Majority Leader to reconsider his decision and bring this important issue to the floor of the Senate immediately.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, as a follow-up to the remarks made by Senator Stapleton, I just want to inform the gentleman and the Members of the Senate that I, too, agree with the position that he has espoused, and we have had conversations with the Majority Leader, myself and others, and also with Senator Rhoades, and hopefully—but unfortunately it looks like we are going to continue to be in here for more days than we originally anticipated back in the end of June—House Bill No. 1075 is one of those issues that the Senate would have time to consider. That is one of the reasons why we did not want to give Senator Rhoades any additional burden by having the Act 195 bill recommitted to his committee earlier. So I think sometime before we finish up the budget it is likely that House Bill No. 1075 may be before us or the Right-to-Know bill may be before us for consideration and debate as it applies to the state-aided and other institutions across the Commonwealth.

GENERAL COMMUNICATION

PUBLIC EMPLOYEE RETIREMENT STUDY COMMISSION

STATUS REPORT ON LOCAL GOVERNMENT PENSION PLANS

The PRESIDENT pro tempore laid before the Senate the following communication, which was read by the Clerk as follows:

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA
PUBLIC EMPLOYEE RETIREMENT STUDY COMMISSION
Harrisburg 17120

June 28, 1991

The Honorable Mark R. Corrigan
Secretary of the Senate
Commonwealth of Pennsylvania
462 Main Capitol
Harrisburg, PA 17102

Dear Mr. Corrigan:

Accompanying this letter is the Commission's third report on the status of the Commonwealth's local government pension plans since the enactment of the Municipal Pension Plan Funding Standard and Recovery Act, Act 205 of 1984. The report shows that the actuarial funding requirement implemented for municipal pension plans has significantly slowed the growth of unfunded pension liabilities in the Commonwealth's local governments. The report calculates those liabilities at $3.4 billion, but shows continued growth. The creation of new municipal pension plans and liberalization of pension benefits contributed to the continued growth of unfunded liabilities.

In addition to analyzing the aggregate funding status of municipal pension plans, the status report identifies 107 instances where municipalities failed to comply with the actuarial funding standard mandated by Act 205. Failure to comply with Act 205 actuarial funding requirements is becoming less frequent.

Additional Reform Needed

Viewed in the aggregate, Pennsylvania's local government retirement systems represent one of the largest public employee pension plans in the nation. The Commonwealth's local government retirement systems have more active members and more unfunded liabilities than the State Employees' Retirement System, yet the current legislation governing the local government retirement systems can best be characterized as technically deficient and outmoded. Pennsylvania's local government retirement code is comprised of 50 disjointed statutes enacted over the last 60 years.

One of the largest public employee retirement systems in the nation cannot function efficiently and effectively without adequate policy guidelines. The Commonwealth must recognize the significance of its local government retirement systems and continue the legislative reform process initiated with the actuarial funding guidelines established by Act 205. Through this and subsequent reports, the Commission hopes to facilitate the ongoing reform process by increasing the general awareness of local government retirement issues.

Current Focus For Commission Activity

The Commission is actively engaged in the development of a special report on the current structure of local government retirement systems in Pennsylvania. This special report will focus the attention on Pennsylvania's fundamental local government retirement issue—whether the current structure of local government retirement systems should be maintained. If the present structure is to be maintained, the process to effect a comprehensive review and revision of all local government pension statutes must be initiated. If the present structure is to be replaced, the process to design and implement the replacement structure of local government retirement systems must begin. The Commission expects to issue its special report on the structure of local government retirement systems before the end of this year.

Conclusion

On behalf of the Commission, I hope you find this report informative. It serves to provide basic information on Pennsylvania's local government retirement systems and to convey the Commission's plan to systematically address the many local government retirement issues that require your attention. Through a series of special reports, the Commission is endeavoring to address individual issues by providing background information and suggested resolution. Through your attention and subsequent deliberations, the comprehensive policy guidelines needed for the Commonwealth's local government retirement systems can be established.

Sincerely,

DALE D. STONE
Chairman

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. This report will be filed in the Library.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair notes the presence on the floor of Senator Bortner and his temporary Capitol leave will be cancelled. The Chair also notes the presence on the floor of Senator Baker as well. His temporary Capitol leave will be cancelled.

RECESS

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, at this time I would ask for a recess of the Senate for the purpose of a Republican caucus to begin immediately in the first floor Majority caucus room, with an expectation of returning to the floor at approximately 11:00 a.m. to 11:15 a.m.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I would ask for the Democratic Members to report immediately to our caucus room.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. For purposes of Republican and Democratic caucuses to begin immediately in their respective caucus rooms, the Senate will stand in recess.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant Governor Mark S. Singel) in the Chair.

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed, the Senate will be in order.

SPECIAL ORDER OF BUSINESS
ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SECRETARY

The SECRETARY. Consent has been given for the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations to meet during today's Session to consider certain nominations.

CALENDAR

THIRD CONSIDERATION CALENDAR

BILL OVER IN ORDER

HB 521 — Without objection, the bill was passed over in its order at the request of Senator FISHER.

BILL OVER IN ORDER TEMPORARILY

SB 1171 (Pr. No. 1355) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending the act of July 10, 1990 (P. L. 352, No. 81), entitled "Health Care Practitioners Medicare Fee Control Act," providing exceptions to the prohibition of balance billing by health care practitioners.

Considered the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

Senator RHOADES, on behalf of himself and Senator AFFLERBACH, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A1938:

Amend Title, page 1, line 4, by striking out "exceptions" and inserting: an exception

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 1, line 17, by striking out "EXCEPTIONS" and inserting: Exception

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, what the amendment does, in essence, is maintains current law regarding Medicare payments but also corrects an oversight that was developed when Act 81 was worked on, which basically would allow ambulance services, because they were not discussed during the development of this act, to do the billing at the proper level to meet their costs. The reason I put this in is despite the fact that they were not considered, the Department of Aging, the Department of Health and the Department of State have indicated that they view ambulance services as covered by Act 81. This, in turn, would make an exception.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 1171 go over in its order temporarily.

The PRESIDENT. Without objection, Senate Bill No. 1171 will go over in its order temporarily.

SECOND CONSIDERATION CALENDAR

BILL REREPORTED FROM COMMITTEE AS AMENDED ON SECOND CONSIDERATION

HB 175 (Pr. No. 2246) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act regulating the refrigeration of eggs stored, distributed or held for commercial sale or use; providing for additional duties of the Department of Agriculture and the Department of Environmental Resources; and providing for civil and criminal penalties.

Considered the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be printed on the Calendar for third consideration.

BILLS OVER IN ORDER

HB 222, SB 401 and HB 401 — Without objection, the bills were passed over in their order at the request of Senator FISHER.

BILL REREFERRED

SB 429 (Pr. No. 1427) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act providing for siting limitation on commercial hazardous waste incinerators near prisons, schools and other facilities housing concentrations of people; and requiring an emergency response plan.

Upon motion of Senator FISHER, and agreed to, the bill was rereferred to the Committee on Appropriations.

BILL OVER IN ORDER AND RECOMMITTED

HB 686 (Pr. No. 751) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act prohibiting persons who accept credit cards for the transaction of business from requiring certain additional information from the credit cardholder; providing for enforcement of the act; and imposing civil penalties.

Without objection, the bill was passed over in its order at the request of Senator FISHER.

Pursuant to Senate Rule XI, the bill was recommitted to the Committee on Banking and Insurance.

HB 840, SB 948, HB 1020, SB 1109 and 1200 — Without objection, the bills were passed over in their order at the request of Senator FISHER.

BILLS REREFERRED

SB 1230 (Pr. No. 1448) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending the act of June 13, 1967 (P. L. 31, No. 21), entitled "Public Welfare Code," providing for the regulation of family day-care centers; conferring powers and duties upon the Department of Public Welfare; making an appropriation; and making repeals.

Upon motion of Senator FISHER, and agreed to, the bill was rereferred to the Committee on Appropriations.

SB 1233 (Pr. No. 1417) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending the act of June 13, 1967 (P. L. 31, No. 21), entitled "Public Welfare Code," further providing for public assistance administration, for public assistance community work, for public assistance eligibility and for public assistance identification and residence.

Upon motion of Senator FISHER, and agreed to, the bill was rereferred to the Committee on Appropriations.

HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 105, CALLED UP

Senator FISHER, without objection, called up from page 3 of the Calendar, House Concurrent Resolution No. 105, entitled:

A Concurrent Resolution memorializing the Congress of the United States to restore $600 million preexisting funding for the Clean Coal Technology Program in support of the use of coal in an environmentally compatible manner.

On the question,

Will the Senate concur in the resolution?

SENATE CONCURS IN HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 105

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I move the Senate do concur in House Concurrent Resolution No. 105.

The motion was agreed to and the resolution was concurred in.

Ordered, That the Secretary of the Senate inform the House of Representatives accordingly.

SB 1171 CALLED UP

SB 1171 (Pr. No. 1355) — Without objection, the bill, which previously went over in its order temporarily, was called up, from page 1 of the Third Consideration Calendar, by Senator FISHER.

BILL ON THIRD CONSIDERATION AMENDED AND LAID ON THE TABLE

SB 1171 (Pr. No. 1355) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending the act of July 10, 1990 (P. L. 352, No. 81), entitled "Health Care Practitioners Medicare Fee Control Act," providing exceptions to the prohibition of balance billing by health care practitioners.

The PRESIDENT. We are on the order of business of the consideration of the Calendar, Senate Bill No. 1171. The gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades, has offered an amendment. The question is, will the Senate agree to the amendment? The Chair understands that the gentleman from Venango, Senator Peterson, has some remarks to make on the subject.

Senator PETERSON. Mr. President, Senate Bill No. 1171, without the Rhoades amendment, is here to take one small step in solving a problem that is going to only increase in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania if we do not take a long-term look at the availability and access to health care to all Pennsylvanians.

The amendment that has been proposed by the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades, would remove from the bill the exemption for family physicians and internists. You may ask, why should we not do that? We will only leave emergency services as an exclusion from the MOM bill. There are a lot of reasons why the MOM bill including family physicians and internists is not good long-term public health care policy for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. We have several serious forces that are really going to make health care unavailable to many parts of this Commonwealth. At the present time in this country, two-thirds of our physicians are high-tech specialists, one-third are family caregivers or primary care physicians, which include internists and family physicians, OB/GYN and pediatricians. Today we are just dealing with family physicians and internists who really in all essence should be providing us with the bulk of our health care at a far less costly fashion than we receive our health care from specialists. Specialists should be there—cardiovascular surgeons, ophthalmologists, the radiologists, those who really make the big bucks in medicine—when we need them. But what is most necessary in good general health care to the poor and to the elderly of this country is access and availability of the family physicians and internists who are the ones who really deal with us on a daily basis. The reason for the original bill that was passed to lock link their charges or minimize their charges to Medicare rates was on the concept that medical costs and doctors' costs were threatening people's nest eggs, people's livelihoods, people's funds that were needed for just the basics of life. I do not think it is the cost of an office visit or the cost of a doctor, family physician or internist coming to our home or coming to our nursing home that is really the threat. The threat is the expensive surgical procedures, the expensive ones that run into the hundreds and thousands of dollars. The average visit is very few bucks.

What is happening today? Our young people as they choose to go into medicine are for many reasons choosing all kinds of residencies rather than family practice and internal medicine. The MOM bill is just one more reason not to go into family medicine. We locked into place a payment system called fair that I think is not fair. A family physician can be on the east end of town and make $14 for an office visit. A family physician on the west end of town can make $24 for an office visit. That is the Medicare system. How do they figure that? It is some complicated formula of how much he charged when he started out, how often he raised his charges, and all of those issues that are very complicated and complex, that determines what he gets paid by Medicare. It is nice. It feels good to say to our senior citizens that we are not going to let any doctor charge you more than Medicare rates, and I know that is going to be a big political issue and it is a political issue. That is really what it is. It is not the office visits. It is not the doctor coming to your home that is going to break up family finances. It is the high-tech procedures, the costly procedures that are done by our high-tech specialists, and we are not touching that. Family physicians should never have been included in this bill if you want more family physicians and if you want more internists and you want more primary care physicians, which we need drastically in many of our communities. I want to tell you, a hospital that does not have an adequate number of family physicians or internists is a hospital that is going to go out of business. They are your major admitters. They are the ones who provide health care among all our small communities across this Commonwealth.

This bill that we passed was one more nail in the coffin. I spoke recently to the Society of Internists at a conference they were having in Pittsburgh and I was talking about the rural problem. Rural hospitals—and I just talked to the Hospital Association a few minutes ago—across this Commonwealth are just almost unable to recruit family physicians and internists. They seldom can get one. Most of them are paying for expensive searches. They are using headhunters just like our Governor is for a Secretary of Health. They are having to hire companies to look for them all over this country and try to recruit them for our small rural hospitals. When our hospitals are not successful, sooner or later those hospitals are going to close because it is the family physician or the internist, who gives the primary care to all of us, who are the ones that a hospital's success rises or falls with. I believe it is important that we exempt them. The rate of income of family physicians and internists in no way parallels the figures we often hear of the exorbitant incomes that doctors make. The family physicians and internists are on call 24 hours a day. They work seven days a week. It is a tough business. It is not easy. It is the high-tech specialists who are really the problem in our health care system, who make millions of dollars annually. It is not the family physician. It is not the internist. We have some other policies that add that I might just share. We spend a fair amount of money each year training doctors in this Commonwealth. We have seven very fine schools, but we spend that money to train cardiovascular surgeons and ophthalmologists and radiologists who make the big bucks. We ought to be directing that to train primary care physicians and internists, and we should not have a deterrent on young people who are going into the business. They look at a poor urban area or a rural area and they see a Medicare rate of 40 percent to 50 percent, and that is very common, and they see a Medicaid rate as high as 31 percent in one part of my district. You then have 70 percent to 80 percent of your medical care being paid for by Medicare and by Medicaid. I want to ask you as Senators today, would you start a practice if you were coming out of medical school in a community where up to 80 percent of the bills are going to be paid by Medicare and Medicaid, with government paperwork, government delays? Our Medicaid payment system is an absolute disgrace, not only the rates but the efforts you go through to get paid. We need to take this off the back of the kind of care we need. We need family physicians. In fact, at this conference I spoke at, speaking about the rural problem, there was an internist there who works at a hospital in the Lehigh Valley, an affluent area, one of the more successful parts of the Commonwealth. He is on a search committee for internists and family physicians and he said they were having absolutely no success, and that is one of the more affluent areas in Pennsylvania. I do not care how many doctors we train. I do not care how many doctors we have. If we continue all of the goofy practices that we have, the Band-Aids we put on without looking at the big picture of health care, we are going to have parts of Pennsylvania that do not have primary care physicians to care for the families that we should be caring about. It is not the budget buster. It is the people we should be encouraging to come and practice, and if we are going to do that we need to exempt them from this act. I oppose the Rhoades amendment.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, we just heard the previous speaker issue a very passionate plea for the problems of hospital staffing and I am afraid he has somehow connoted that his bill will solve those problems. Well, it will not. Hospital staffing problems exist across the board. Hospitals have as much difficulty attracting nurses and physical therapists and occupational therapists and so on down the line as they do attracting general practitioners and internists. His bill does not speak at all to the staffing problems of hospitals. We have heard him rail against the Medicare system, which he has just described as disgraceful, but the fact of the matter is that this bill does not address the Medicare system. It does nothing to improve the Medicare system, it does nothing to change the Medicare system, nor can it do anything to change the Medicare system. The thrust of this bill is simply to revisit for a second time in 13 months precisely the issue which the gentleman brought to the floor of the Senate one year ago in June of 1990. At that time the gentleman from Venango, Senator Peterson, as Chairman of the Committee on Public Health and Welfare, used House Bill No. 700 to serve as a vehicle in which he placed an amendment very similar to the content of Senate Bill No. 1171 today. At that time on June 27th, the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades, offered an amendment on the floor of this Chamber very similar to the amendment we are now discussing and that was to ensure that no physician practitioner in the Commonwealth will be exempt from the Medicare standard, no physician in the Commonwealth will be able to charge over and above the Medicare set fee for a procedure. But Senator Peterson would obviate that. He would suggest that we should allow those individuals known as general practitioners or internists to charge whatever they may wish to charge, regardless of what the Medicare standard may be. I would suggest that just as we did a year ago, we should adopt the Rhoades amendment today. This will allow the bill to proceed with an exemption for ambulance corps, which was an altogether different entity and which were never intended to be covered under the MOM legislation to begin with. It will remove Senator Peterson's attempt to once again exempt from the Medicare fee scale a vast number of physicians in this Commonwealth. But unlike the past year, this bill has been brought to the floor of the Senate by a vote of 5-2-2 in the committee, five to report it out, two opposed and two abstentions. Less than a majority of the committee intended this bill to come to the floor, and yet we are faced with it again today. I would like to ask what has changed during these past 13 months that makes this bill palatable today?

Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Venango, Senator Peterson.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Venango, Senator Peterson, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator PETERSON. I will, Mr. President.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, in June of 1990 physicians who were serving in the federally designated physician shortage areas, that is to say rural and inner city areas, were already permitted to charge a fee under Medicare ten percent higher than other physicians providing similar services. Has that changed? Are these physicians no longer permitted to charge that ten percent surcharge?

Senator PETERSON. Mr. President, would the gentleman repeat that question? I am not sure I quite understood it.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, yes. One year ago when we considered this legislation we had established at that time that physicians serving in federally designated physician shortage areas, which is to say rural areas and inner city areas, were permitted to charge a fee under Medicare ten percent higher than other physicians providing similar services. Has that changed or are these physicians no longer permitted to charge that ten percent surcharge?

Senator PETERSON. Mr. President, I am not sure what areas come under that. I do not remember if we debated that the last time.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, one year ago a specialist in this Commonwealth could provide primary health care. Has that changed? Are they no longer permitted to provide primary health care?

Senator PETERSON. Mr. President, no. They can provide primary health care.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, one year ago a patient could choose to go to either a general practitioner or to a specialist for that primary health care. Has that changed? Does the patient no longer have that choice?

Senator PETERSON. Mr. President, no. When they go to a specialist, they usually pay more.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, in fact, when the patient chooses to go to a specialist or a primary health care provider known as a general practitioner or internist, they now do not have to ask whether or not that individual, that physician, may, in fact, overbill or balance bill or overcharge, or whatever you want to call it. Is that not correct?

Senator PETERSON. Mr. President, I take some exceptions to the terms used. I do not think overcharge has anything to do with this measure. That is assuming that all rates are fair. If you really look fairly at the Medicare rates, Mr. President, I think you find that they are not fair. You go to one neighborhood and they are much less than another. They are not overall fair rates, and to say that a doctor who is getting a $14 fee for Medicare who would like to charge $22 for his normal office visit is overcharging would be the same overcharge as someone who is getting $21 and would want to charge $1.00 more. The Medicare system is not a system that is, overall, fair. You are assuming that it is. I am assuming that it is not.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, I am not assuming anything other than the gentleman's own language in the bill which speaks to balanced billing. Now whether we call balanced billing the ability to charge a fee over and above the Medicare set fees or whether we call it an overcharge is virtually irrelevant. The fact remains that today a patient can walk into any physician's office in this Commonwealth, whether it is a specialist or a general practitioner or an internist, and know that physician may not charge over and above the Medicare set fee for that procedure. Is that not correct?

Senator PETERSON. Mr. President, that is correct.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, is it also not correct that under this bill, if the Rhoades amendment is not approved, we will now force consumers to go to their particular physician of choice and ask whether or not that physician can balance bill, whether or not that physician may charge more than the overcharge measure. Is that not correct?

Senator PETERSON. Mr. President, if an individual would go to a family doctor or internist, they would be allowed to charge their normal fee for an office visit. This has nothing to do with any procedures, any surgical procedures or other procedures they might do in that office. It only deals with the person who visits that family physician and has that office visit where they are reviewed, their blood pressure is taken and they are consulted with. No other procedures are covered under my exemption of the bill that is before us. Only the fee for the consultation, the minimum fee that a doctor charges to come to a nursing home and visit your mother or come to the home and visit my mother or for that person to go to their office, their normal office fee is what they are allowed to charge. That is all. Let me tell you one of the ramifications of the direction you are going. In most of the rural areas that I serve, they do not have choices of going to specialists. They do not have those high-tech specialists. You may in an urban area, a suburban area, but in the areas I represent we live or die by our family physicians and by our internists. We do not have on every street corner high-tech specialists who people would be choosing to go to.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, the gentleman has led to my next question which deals with, in fact, the Physicians Payment and Review Commission, which is the commission charged with reviewing the rates and recommending reimbursement by Medicare. Is the gentleman aware of the fact that this commission has recognized the very problem which he has just listed for us and has, in fact, recommended rates that shall be increased for general practitioners and internists to begin in January of 1991?

Senator PETERSON. Mr. President, yes, we have discussed this with HCCCC. We have discussed it with a number of federal officials. When this is finally implemented, it is the consensus of most of those in the health care field at the national level that there will be some significant cuts in the high-tech specialists, but there will be very modest or very few increases at all for primary care. The reason is there are not the bucks to do it. They are looking to save money in Medicare. There are cuts proposed in Medicare. How do you raise rates when you are going to be cutting them out of money that is available to the system? In reality the people who are running the federal system have told me that, if any at all, there will be very few increases for anyone. The majority of adjustments are going to be cuts at the high-tech level, which I do not argue with, but there will not be major increases to equalize. The system that is used to decide whether a doctor makes $14 for an office visit or $24 for an office visit will not change. On the first question you asked me, I am told that the bill we passed last year prevented rural doctors from charging the ten percent. That has been eliminated in Pennsylvania through the bill we passed last year.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, I have completed the interrogation and would like to speak on the amendment.

Mr. President, as I have indicated earlier, what we are seeing here today is simply a revisiting of precisely the same legislation we had before us in June of 1990. I think the gentleman has indicated in the interrogation that very little has changed during that period of time. If there has been some determination made that the physician serving in the federally designated physician shortage areas may no longer charge the ten percent differential, then he is the only one to know about that because that information has not been provided to anyone else, to the best of my knowledge. Nevertheless, we are faced with again the very same situation of are we going to begin exempting practitioners from the Medicare limits or are we not? If, for example, an individual had a problem with their eye, they have a choice of going to a general practitioner who may treat primary eye infections or they may go through an ophthalmologist, the more expensive of the two physicians. If they go to the primary practitioner, under Senator Peterson's bill he may charge them whatever he pleases to charge them over and above the Medicare set fee. If, however, they go to the ophthalmologist, because that is a specialist, they can receive exactly the same treatment. They will not be charged over and above the Medicare set fee. They know that their 20 percent contribution will be precisely what Medicare says it should be and no more than that, and, again, we are encouraging people to use the most expensive form of health care, that is to say the specialist rather than the general practitioner, where they are taking a shot in the dark every time they go in as to how much they are going to have to pay for their service.

I think the Senator may be well-meaning in his intention of trying to provide greater service to rural residents, but I think once again when we look across the entire Commonwealth we find a situation that will have exactly the opposite effect because those people who can charge whatever they wish to charge will certainly move to the more affluent areas where they can charge even more than they do now in the less affluent areas.

For all of these reasons, plus the fact that we create considerable confusion among our constituents by exempting some doctors and not other doctors, in addition to the fact that the federal government is increasing the Medicare reimbursement for general practitioners, internists and family practitioners in January of 1992, less than six months from now, and because of the uncertainty as to how much that will be, I think it is, at best, premature for us to consider exemptions of this nature, and I fully support the Rhoades amendment to do away with those exemptions and to keep the MOM legislation intact as this Assembly passed it last year by an overwhelming vote.

Senator ARMSTRONG. Mr. President, I urge my colleagues to not consider this amendment. I just got off the phone with a friend of mine who is a general practitioner. He has a small practice in a rural area, a small borough in Lancaster County. He has given me some information about the MOM bill and what impact it is having on him, and I thought I would just relate some of it to my colleagues. He charges $29 for an office visit currently, and under the Medicare provision, due to some complicated formula, he says, which he does not even understand, the rate is pegged at $23. This used to be called the MAC fee, but now it is called the limiting fee. He is allowed to collect $19, that is what he would be reimbursed. Everyone else pays $29. Someone on Medicare pays $19. If he does not accept assignment, they will pay $19. Then the patient is reimbursed through Medicare 80 percent of that or they get $15.20 back. So out of their pockets it has cost them about $3.80 for that office visit. If they accept the Medicare charges of a $29 office visit, the patient would pay $4.00 out of his pocket. Then the doctor would put in the paperwork and get reimbursed in about six to eight weeks $16, so they would make a total of $20, $19 if they do not accept, $20 if they do accept it, plus all that time and interest. He said the very frustrating part of it is that both ways, even if a patient is being reimbursed by Medicare, they have to do all the paperwork for the patient, which is another cost, he said, he has to bear, where before, he said, the patient who is receiving all of the money actually filled out all of the forms. He said the very frustrating part of this is that if you do not check the right box or you just do not do it 100 percent right, it comes back to you. He said it is just time after time these forms come back to him. They do not get their money and it is delayed, and I do not know what happens with the budget if they do not get paid these six to eight weeks, maybe it will be ten or twelve weeks.

The gentleman from Lehigh, Senator Afflerbach was saying about overcharge. You know, I think our system is such that in our free enterprise system you do not go to people who overcharge you, you go to people who charge you a reasonable fee for a reasonable service. I do not think $29 for an office visit is being overcharged.

Before the MOM bill, he said he was charging his patients $26 for an office visit. He said now, because of everything involved with the MOM bill, his charges have now gone up to $29, so everyone is paying more money who is not on Medicare. You and I who go to a doctor are paying, in this case, more than ten percent above what you were paying just a year ago. He said one of the other problems is that when you go to sell your practice, as you grow older, usually your patients grow older with you, and you have a large group of senior citizens who you are being a doctor to, and as a result you go to sell your practice and there are no buyers for it because a new doctor does not want to get involved in a practice with senior citizens because it just does not pay. He was advised by his accountant not to accept more than two percent more of Medicare patients. He now accepts one-third of his practice as Medicare, 33 percent. His accountant told him if he went two more percent, above 35 percent, he could be facing bankruptcy and he advised him not to accept any more patients above the 35 percent area.

I asked him if he was having trouble getting a new doctor or if he wanted a new doctor. He said, yes, he would like to have another doctor come into his practice with him. He said he cannot find one. He said nobody wants to get into family practice anymore. He said after college when they pay medical school, they pay $80,000 to $100,000, most of that is loans, plus their college, which may be $40,000 or $50,000. They are trying to pay off those loans. They know they cannot make the money being a family practitioner so they get into more specialized fields. I guess the part that really bugs me is that you can be 65 years of age, or older, and drive up to a doctor, a family practitioner, in your Rolls-Royce and be worth millions and millions of dollars, and you are treated like you are a pauper, that you do not have the funds, and you cannot afford the $29 so you pay the $3.80. All it is is pushing the cost onto those of us who do pay the bill. It would be the equivalent of people who are 65 years of age, or older, paying 80 percent less for electricity than people under 65 years of age. It is just not fair.

In the short term, this may make political sense in the next election when you go to all your senior citizens and tell them how great you are, that you are helping them out, but in the long term it is going to be a disaster for the medical field and it is going to be a disaster for the senior citizens, and I urge my colleagues to vote against this amendment.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Fumo, Senator Mellow, Senator Musto and Senator Porterfield, and I request a legislative leave for the remainder of today for Senator Lynch.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I would also request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Jubelirer, Senator Loeper, Senator Tilghman and Senator Punt.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Lincoln requests temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Fumo, Senator Mellow, Senator Musto and Senator Porterfield and a legislative leave for Senator Lynch. Senator Fisher requests temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Jubelirer, Senator Loeper, Senator Tilghman and Senator Punt. The Chair hears no objection to those leave requests. Those leaves will be granted.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT. The Chair recognizes the presence on the floor of Senator Stapleton. His temporary Capitol leave will be cancelled; and Senator Hopper, whose temporary Capitol leave will be cancelled.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, the debate that I heard in the last half an hour or so is almost like deja vu. It is the same debate that took place in June of last year when we were debating the final passage of House Bill No. 700, and I do not see any reason for this particular bill, Senate Bill No. 1171, being on the Calendar other than the sponsor of the bill itself was one of six people to vote against House Bill No. 700, which was the Medical Overcharge Measure or MOM bill. I do not think the arguments today are any more substantial in favor of exempting 55 percent of the people who we covered with this bill last year, or a number thereabout. I believe the real seriousness of what we are doing here today, beyond the amendment which I support, is that this bill has been run at a time when there is a tremendous amount of confusion going on in state government and we are seeing an awful lot of coverage taking place dealing with the budget problems we are having here in Pennsylvania. I am not certain that very many senior citizens are aware that something they worked many years on and spent a lot of time and a lot of political lobbying with their own Legislators, that they were able to accomplish the Medical Overcharge Measure bill and finally have it become law, that during a time when everything else is taking place in this building, we are sliding through a bill that is going to exempt many of the doctors who were included in the original act. I do not know whether this is being done at this time for that reason or for what. I really have a problem with the way this whole issue is being handled and at the time it is being handled. I also think that going home after voting either against the Rhoades amendment and then for the bill or voting against the amendment and against the bill, or voting for both, I think at some point in time the senior citizens in this Commonwealth are going to catch up to this bill and they are going to be very irate with people who voted for House Bill No. 700 last June and turned around this year and voted to exempt over 50 percent of the people who were covered in House Bill No. 700. I believe we are doing a disservice to Legislators and Senators particularly who are going to be asked to vote on this today without having proper input from a lobbying group that just does not hang around your door all the time. The Medical Society lobbyist is around all the time. They are here all the time. They have a staff of how many countless thousands, maybe. But the people who are being adversely affected and who the impact is going to be the greatest on are generally represented by a lobbying group that we are. We go back home and talk to our senior citizens at our centers and we talk to them on the streets and we do all the other things that get us reelected, and one of them is the large senior citizen contingency among our constituents. I do not think they even know that Senate Bill No. 1171 is being considered. I do not think they have any idea that their very hard-won fight is being jeopardized considerably by this bill. I would be very concerned if I represented a county like Allegheny that just in the last ten days has been determined to have a greater number of senior citizens than Dade County, Florida, which means they are now the number one county in this country with senior citizens living there. I would ask first that we vote for the Rhoades amendment, but the bill is absolutely meaningless as far as the sponsor is concerned if that amendment passes. If the amendment fails, then I will rise again to speak against the bill, but I think it is really a very awkward and somewhat questionable practice we are participating in here today in having this bill called up for final passage and I really, really object to that. We spent months and months and months dealing with House Bill No. 700, and I would ask that we use the good sense and the logic that 44 out of 50 of us did on June 26, 1990, and deal with this amendment in whatever way you want, but in the final analysis, if the bill is in the same form it is after the amendment process, I would urge a "no" vote, and I will speak on that at some point if necessary.

Senator PETERSON. Mr. President, just quickly to recap a couple of issues here, there were a lot of statements made recently here and I think it is fair for the Members to know who has asked and who has come to me for need of this bill. This bill was not requested by the Pennsylvania Medical Society. I think it puts them in a difficult position. It splits their members all up. They probably have more members who are not family physicians than they have who are family physicians. The Academy of Family Physicians, who we work very closely with, realizes where we are headed in this Commonwealth and in this country, having a medical system with no family caregivers, all expensive high-tech specialists, and the bill we passed last year has just added to that. It has just given students one more reason not to go into family medicine. I do not know how many here have had to deal with government paperwork. Unfortunately, not enough of you, or we would make a lot of different decisions than we do. Anybody who depends on government pay, whether it is Medicare, whether it is Medicaid, I am going to tell you that you are talking with a difficult system, and when you state blankety that nothing has changed, that is not true either. The problem that hospitals have had, and that is the other group that is very interested in this, the rural hospitals that I represent, they are not having a problem attracting physicians, they are just not getting them. I have talked to doctors and hospital administrators from suburban areas and they are struggling to attract family physicians. If we continue to just respond to the notion that this first original bill has responded to, under no circumstances do we want to pay above the federal Medicare fee, well, we will pay the consequences. Some talk that nobody knew about this bill. We have met with AARP on this bill many times. They knew when we introduced it. We shared it with them. We were not going behind their backs. They know about this bill. There are those in AARP who probably believe it is not bad public policy to pass this bill. There are those who probably oppose it. But as you look at the health care problems and health care access, and there is no issue that is more important, you can say you are for your senior citizens. You can shoot at me in the next election, and that is fine, and I know who will be shooting those bullets, but when you come right down to good public policy in this Commonwealth there is no crueler hoax to play on the people than to develop a policy that feels good for the day but will mean that we have no general family practitioners in our communities tomorrow. You may say that will not happen. You look at the statistics that are out there. Family physicians are soon going to be a lost breed. Why? For a lot of reasons. The bill that we passed last year is just one of them. The kind of workload they have, the kind of practice they have to put in, in comparison to the regular hours and the high fees of the high-tech specialists, it is time that we take a tough vote once in a while. I am not saying this is an easy vote, but I am seriously convinced, thoroughly convinced, that if we continue to move forward on the "feel good" policy that we have been, we are going to create greater problems for our senior citizens than they have had in the past, and, yes, in many of our communities health care will not be available. I think that is absolutely a fact. It is bad public policy not to do something about this measure. It is bad public policy not to make it that young people want to go into family medicine. I urge people from both sides of the aisle to look at this issue clearly, not politically, as a medical issue, and if you do, I think many of you will oppose the Rhoades amendment and support the bill.

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, I rise in favor of the amendment. I think it is unfair to place this additional burden on our senior citizens of this state and to allow the medical practitioners to charge a greater amount than is allowed under the balanced billing provisions. These individuals, these senior citizens, are the most susceptible to those types of billing practices and are not the ones who are able to protect themselves, and I think this legislation provides that type of protection. I think the family practitioner, that problem has been going on for decades. It is not new and it is not something that just happened, and this legislation is not going to substantially impact on that problem, so I would urge a "yes" vote on the amendment.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT. The Chair recognizes the presence on the floor of Senator Williams. His legislative leave will be cancelled. Also, Senator Tilghman is on the floor with us. His temporary Capitol leave will be cancelled.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

(During the calling of the roll, the following occurred:)

Senator JONES. Mr. President, I would like to change my vote from "no" to "aye."

The PRESIDENT. The lady will be so recorded.

YEAS—27

Afflerbach	Greenleaf	Lynch	Rhoades
Belan	Hart	Mellow	Salvatore
Bodack	Holl	Musto	Scanlon
Bortner	Hopper	O'Pake	Schwartz
Dawida	Jones	Pecora	Stout
Fattah	LaValle	Porterfield	Williams
Fumo	Lincoln	Reibman

NAYS—20

Andrezeski	Fisher	Loeper	Shaffer
Armstrong	Greenwood	Madigan	Shumaker
Baker	Helfrick	Peterson	Stapleton
Brightbill	Jubelirer	Punt	Tilghman
Corman	Lemmond	Robbins	Wenger

A constitutional majority of all the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the affirmative.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration, as amended?

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill 1171, as amended, be laid on the table.

The motion was agreed to.

The PRESIDENT. Senate Bill No. 1171, as amended, will be laid on the table.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE GOVERNOR

RECALL COMMUNICATION LAID ON THE TABLE

The PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following communication in writing from His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, which was read as follows, and laid on the table:

MEMBER OF THE STATE BOARD OF CERTIFIED REAL ESTATE APPRAISERS

July 9, 1991.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

In accordance with the power and authority vested in me as Governor of the Commonwealth, I do hereby recall my nomination dated April 30, 1991, for the appointment of Mary P. Portis (Public Member), 1015 Manhattan Street, Pittsburgh 15233, Allegheny County, Forty-second Senatorial District, as a member of the State Board of Certified Real Estate Appraisers, to serve for a term of three years and until her successor is appointed and qualified, but not longer than six months beyond that period, pursuant to Act 98, approved July 10, 1990.

I respectfully request the return to me of the official message of nomination on the premises.

ROBERT P. CASEY.

EXECUTIVE NOMINATIONS

EXECUTIVE SESSION

Motion was made by Senator SALVATORE,

That the Senate do now resolve itself into Executive Session for the purpose of considering certain nominations made by the Governor.

Which was agreed to.

NOMINATIONS TAKEN FROM THE TABLE

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I call from the table certain nominations and ask for their consideration.

The Clerk read the nominations as follows:

MEMBER OF THE STATE BOARD OF BARBER EXAMINERS

May 31, 1991.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

In conformity with law, I have the honor hereby to nominate for the advice and consent of the Senate, Camillo Micolucci, 987 Rocklyn Road, Springfield 19064, Delaware County, Twenty-sixth Senatorial District, for reappointment as a member of the State Board of Barber Examiners, to serve for a term of three years and until his successor is appointed and qualified, but not longer than six months beyond that period.

ROBERT P. CASEY.

MEMBER OF THE STATE BOARD OF BARBER EXAMINERS

May 31, 1991.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

In conformity with law, I have the honor hereby to nominate for the advice and consent of the Senate, Richard Sciorillo, 3301 "G" Street, Philadelphia 19134, Philadelphia County, Second Senatorial District, for reappointment as a member of the State Board of Barber Examiners, to serve for a term of three years and until his successor is appointed and qualified, but not longer than six months beyond that period.

ROBERT P. CASEY.

MEMBER OF THE STATE BOARD OF BARBER EXAMINERS

May 31, 1991.

ROBERT P. CASEY.

On the question,

Will the Senate advise and consent to the nominations?

The yeas and nays were required by Senator SALVATORE and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—48

NAYS—0

A constitutional majority of all the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Governor be informed accordingly.

NOMINATION TAKEN FROM THE TABLE

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I call from the table certain nomination and ask for its consideration.

The Clerk read the nomination as follows:

MEMBER OF THE STATE BOARD OF OCCUPATIONAL THERAPY EDUCATION AND LICENSURE

May 9, 1991.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

In conformity with law, I have the honor hereby to nominate for the advice and consent of the Senate, James A. Luchansky, 3301 North Front Street, Whitehall 18052, Lehigh County, Sixteenth Senatorial District, for appointment as a member of the State Board of Occupational Therapy Education and Licensure, to serve for a term of three years and until his successor is appointed and qualified, vice Marion M. Parish, Montoursville, whose term expired.

ROBERT P. CASEY.

On the question,

Will the Senate advise and consent to the nomination?

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator SALVATORE. I will, Mr. President.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, could the gentleman from Philadelphia share with the Members of the Body why he has asked for a negative vote on this particular nominee?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I do not think I have to respond to that. It is my prerogative that I asked for a negative vote and that is the way I am going to vote.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, I thank the gentleman.

Mr. President, we now have twice in two weeks the gentleman from Philadelphia asking for a negative vote on nominees made by the Governor and no further explanation has been given than simply that it is his prerogative. Once again we see the people of the Commonwealth disenfranchised from people who are willing to serve with no explanation whatsoever from the Majority. Perhaps one of these days we will have some positive prerogatives from that side of the aisle. I would ask for a vote of confirmation of this gentleman.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate advise and consent to the nomination?

(During the calling of the roll, the following occurred:)

Senator HOLL. Mr. President, I would like to change my vote from "aye" to "no."

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman will be so recorded.

The yeas and nays were required by Senator SALVATORE and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—22

Afflerbach	Fattah	Mellow	Scanlon
Andrezeski	Fumo	Musto	Schwartz
Belan	Jones	O'Pake	Stapleton
Bodack	LaValle	Porterfield	Stout

Less than a majority of all the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the negative.

Ordered, That the Governor be informed accordingly.

NOMINATION TAKEN FROM THE TABLE

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I call from the table certain nomination and ask for its consideration.

The Clerk read the nomination as follows:

SECRETARY OF EDUCATION

May 9, 1991.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

In conformity with law, I have the honor hereby to nominate for the advice and consent of the Senate, The Honorable Donald M. Carroll, Jr., 440 Wood Crest Drive, Mechanicsburg 17055, Cumberland County, Thirty-first Senatorial District, for reappointment as Secretary of Education, to serve until the third Tuesday of January, 1995 and until his successor shall have been appointed and qualified.

ROBERT P. CASEY.

On the question,

Will the Senate advise and consent to the nomination?

Senator HART. Mr. President, when the current Education Secretary appeared before the Senate Committee on Education, he said, quite correctly, that there are three areas we must consider in deciding whether to confirm him for another term. How the department has carried out its mission under the Secretary's leadership is number one. Number two was his personal qualifications to lead the department and number three was his performance in office to date.

These are important areas for us to consider, but to this list I would add another vital consideration: Has the Casey Administration and its current Education Secretary made significant improvements in the quality of education in the Commonwealth? Have test scores and other measures of educational progress improved under the Secretary's watch, and has the department put forth a vision for education that turns Pennsylvania away from the status quo?

Clearly, in all these areas the Pennsylvania Department of Education has come up short, and by judging Secretary Carroll's performance on the terms he has asked us to implement, there is only one conclusion that can be reached. That is that he should not be confirmed for a second term as Pennsylvania's Secretary of Education.

If we examine the objective statistics available, whether in the number of students who go on to college, SAT scores, or many others, we see that they present a pretty sad report card for Pennsylvania. And if a child received such poor marks, you can bet that teachers would be looking to give that child some remedial help, and fast.

In my district, businesses hiring high school graduates have complained that today's young people lack basic communication and math skills that they need to begin high school. Yet these young people have been awarded high school diplomas.

Is there a sense of urgency in the department, though, about the state of learning in this Commonwealth? No.

Is there a focused drive to push the kind of reforms that teachers, parents, students and taxpayers have been calling for? No.

All we hear about are that they are "working on" something or that something else is "under consideration." Or we hear from the Secretary that the problems are the fault of the school districts or the intermediate units or the taxpayers or, as he once said, the media.

Yet, when we look at the mission statement that the Secretary urged the Senate to consider, we find that setting an agenda that will spark educational improvement in the state is item number one.

Let me quote from the mission statement: "In carrying out its mission, the Department of Education will develop and administer educational policies to improve the quality of education in Pennsylvania."

How is the Education Department meeting that goal? Well, the Secretary released a 102 page education plan that offers little in the way of innovation or insight for building a stronger education system.

In a nutshell, the few specific ideas contained in this so-called plan offer little that could bring about educational change. On the other hand, most of the recommendations are so broad that they offer no direction and no leadership.

For example: Included in the listing of Department recommended state legislation in the education plan are proposals to create a fairer system for funding basic education and to develop a fairer system for funding special education. This demonstrates an acute grasp of the obvious. But where are the specifics?

The department did not include a proposed bill analysis for either of these vital issues among the analyses contained in the plan, showing that the Secretary is adept at making broad promises, but far less accomplished at delivering on those promises.

For example, in light of the Secretary's dislike for the current crop of standardized tests, he promised to come up with "a more detailed report for the public in the 1990-91 school year."

Well, the 1991-92 school year is approaching fast, and students throughout Pennsylvania are now enjoying their summer vacations from that 1990-91 school year, but we have not yet seen anything from the Secretary.

Or consider the area of budgeting. In March, the Secretary said: "I have complete confidence in these numbers. I think it is straightforward budgeting." But a few weeks later he was quoted as saying that the funding in the Governor's proposed budget is an educated guess, a very poor way of budgeting. The Secretary is contradicting himself.

What are school districts and taxpayers supposed to believe? The same is true for special education.

Early in his tenure, he said that the department's proposed changes to special education regulations would ensure that "every child in need of special education will receive it. We will accept nothing less." That is a nice sentiment, but as special ed parents will tell you, there is no substance to back up this sentiment. There also was inconsistency over the proposal to close the Scotland School for Veterans' Children. While cavalierly admitting that proposing to close the school for disadvantaged children of veterans while the American troops were fighting a war in the Persian Gulf was abysmal timing, the Secretary also put forth false information about the school to the Senate Committee on Appropriations and in opinion pieces circulated to newspapers around the state.

Although there was a low-key attempt by the department officials to correct the errors in that testimony, there has been no broad public acknowledgement by the Secretary of the false impression the department created about the Scotland School.

However, when attempts are made to measure the progress of education in the Commonwealth, the Secretary discounts these measures as meaningless.

The Secretary has said learning such things as dates and names and facts are far less important than developing the ability to think critically. Yet if students consider the basics of who, when and where as unimportant, how can we expect them to learn why and how events occur? Through his actions the current secretary has denied the people of Pennsylvania the chance to compare their students' academic performance with that of children in other states. And that is something Pennsylvanians are eager to do, especially in light of the fact that three of four school districts are raising taxes, at least in part, because of the Casey-Carroll retreat on state educational funding. The Secretary's proposed changes in the ESBE formula have caused local districts to be uncertain about the amount of aid they will receive. And while he makes claims that all districts will see funding increases in the next fiscal year, some school districts are reporting that their figures indicate a drop in state aid as a result of the Carroll funding proposal.

But it is more than just ill-conceived policy decisions; it is basic mismanagement. Just a few weeks ago, school districts had their accounts credited with large state payments and were shocked to find that the payment—$50 million statewide—had been “cancelled.” The result? School districts were, in effect, bouncing checks that were used to pay bills. Problems also continue in special education. The proposal to channel state funds directly to school districts—bypassing intermediate units—has a number of school districts worrying that they may as usual, be left with the bill for special education programs and services. This effort seems to be aimed more to keep a lid on the amount the Secretary has to spend on special education than on striving to serve handicapped children in Pennsylvania.

So as we cast our vote today on this important cabinet position, we must consider what we truly expect from Pennsylvania's Secretary of Education. We need a leader with a vision for excellence in education. We need a leader who is willing to do the hard work of making that vision a reality. We need a strong advocate for students, parents, educators and local school districts. We need a secretary who is sensitive to the burdens of local taxpayers. We need a secretary who is honest with the people of Pennsylvania about the strengths and weaknesses of education in the Commonwealth, not someone who consistently blames the victims of a failed education policy. We need a secretary who, with a sense of urgency, will not only begin to repair Pennsylvania's education system, but will work to get the job done. But above all, we need a secretary who can give Pennsylvania taxpayers the kind of quality education system that they are already paying the price for. Sadly, the current Secretary has not even met his own test for confirmation, nor has he met the test that the people of Pennsylvania expect from the Education Secretary.

For these reasons, Mr. President, we should reject this nominee and urge the Governor to look for an Education Secretary who will exert leadership and vision, not one who is content to preside over the very dismal status quo.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, if I had walked into this debate just at the end of it, I would have sworn that the lady from Allegheny was talking about Don Carroll, because all the things she alludes to that we need in a Secretary of Education, Don Carroll has. Every one of the attributes that she was critical of him, he has. He has a record of accomplishment in education over a great number of years. He has been a leader. He has been a local through the secretary's position, has gone through the ranks. It is absolutely incredible to me that the facts that have been given to us just in the last few minutes in the litany of whatever the reasons were, I think it is amazing. I wonder if the lady from Allegheny means that next year she is not going to support George Bush for reelection because all of the things that she complained about can be attributed to the Bush legacy with Reagan on what they have done and failed to do in education issues. You talk about a lot of talk and a little action, just take a look at what we have gotten from the federal government in the last eleven and a half years or what we have not gotten. We have a lot of garbage. We have a lot of plans.

POINT OF ORDER

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Fisher, will state it.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I do not believe a debate about the Bush Administration or Reagan Administration is in order on the nomination of Donald Carroll.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, that is outrageous to object. For once in my life I am doing nothing but relating to the issue.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman is talking about education and the gentleman makes an extended but reasonable point about federal funding that the Chair would allow. The Chair will allow Senator Lincoln to continue.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I cannot believe that anyone could get up and be that critical of a gentleman who has only been secretary for approximately a year. The ills of the world have been heaped on Don Carroll's head by the lady from Allegheny, Senator Hart, and I think it is unfair. I think it is a really unfair characterization of a man who has spent his life in education. If you want to start talking and you want to debate this issue for several hours, I am prepared to do that, to go back to Bob Scanlon who was one of our wonderful Secretaries of Education. The rollover in special education brought us to the point through the whole eight years of the Thornburgh Administration where we are today on not doing any certification of budgets. Do you want to talk about that? Fine. I think it is a shame to characterize Don Carroll as not having the qualifications for this job. I think he does, and I think we should vote right now to confirm him.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, I am going to be very brief and only suggest that Don Carroll's work in the field of education is well-known and has been long-standing. He has accomplished a great deal, and the Committee on Education in the Senate forwarded his name to the full Body. The Senator who spoke against this was in the minority then and I would hope she would be in the minority today because he has been a truly extraordinary public servant when it comes to education and he deserves all of our support.

Senator BAKER. Mr. President, when Don Carroll was nominated the first time by Governor Casey to become Education Secretary, I think many of us received a great deal of favorable comment from educators in our districts. He was portrayed as a colleague and someone who understood the challenges and problems and opportunities of education, and someone who would be an ardent advocate for education needs at the grass-roots level.

Unfortunately, the experience during Don Carroll's time as Secretary has not lived up to that promise, and he no longer has that support within his own field.

There is a profound disappointment over the lack of leadership, the inconsistency of performance and the apparent inability to help move forward an education improvement agenda.

There is a growing gulf between education need and what the State Department of Education is delivering under Governor Casey and Secretary Carroll.

At a time when education cooperation is imperative, Secretary Carroll regularly castigates school districts and defends shortsighted state policies.

At a time when the Governor's budget proposal drops the state share of education support to an historic low, Secretary Carroll is claiming it is the best education budget in 20 years. At a point where we need in Pennsylvania educational performance statistics, the statistics we have reveal weaknesses and a lack of bold and innovative leadership.

What we need now is an aggressive agenda of education reform, educational accountability, cooperation with local school districts and more choice for consumers of education. Secretary Carroll offers little more than random and defensive thoughts.

At a time when we should be confronting the enormous challenges that I have just mentioned, Secretary Carroll's department is building its reputation for increasingly picayune regulatory efforts.

At a time when Pennsylvanians want an accurate assessment of how our students measure up, Secretary Carroll seeks to hide our students and evade national comparisons.

At a time when we need to set high standards, he says we ought to be pleased because Pennsylvania students rank 15th in the nation on eighth grade math tests.

In essence, Don Carroll has gone to war with his own constituents, the teachers and administrators on the front lines of our state's education efforts. Recently I received a copy of a memorandum from the Chester County Intermediate Unit which was sent to all school district superintendents in our county. The memo was written to refute the repeated propaganda from Secretary Carroll regarding the Governor's special education funding proposal for fiscal year 1991-92. The memo contained an in-depth analysis of the actual special education revenues and expenditures for the schools in my district.

One side of the page showed the large "savings" that the Secretary claimed would allegedly occur upon the implementation of the Casey proposal. The other side of the page, however, showed the facts, the actual costs of providing these special education services that a few short weeks before had been submitted to the Secretary's own staff. Needless to say, these inconsistencies are more than simply bothersome.

Let me cite a few examples of these factual errors. The Downingtown Area School District would incur $1.4 million more in additional special education costs; Phoenixville Area School District, $916,000; the West Chester Area School District, a $991,000 deficit under this funding plan. This is not "savings," and we wonder why Pennsylvania has seen meteoric increases in school taxes over the past few years while the Governor claims there have been "no tax increases" by conveniently overlooking what he has done to local districts.

Pennsylvanians are tired of uninspired leadership hindering reform. We need to support our teachers and our educators at the local level. I do not doubt Don Carroll's commitment to education. This is not a test of his own good wishes, of his own good intentions. He has been loyal to his Governor, but we can seriously question, as the lady has outlined at length, whether the state of education in this Commonwealth has improved under his tenure. The public expects to see and is paying plenty to fund leadership to get results and they are not there.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY CHAIR

The PRESIDENT. The Chair wishes to announce that there will be a meeting of the Committee on Transportation held off the floor immediately. Would the Members of the Committee on Transportation please meet in the Rules room at the rear of the Senate Chamber.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate advise and consent to the nomination?

Senator BORTNER. Mr. President, I did not come to the floor today with a prepared text to give some remarks in support of Secretary Carroll's nomination to continue as Secretary of Education. Frankly, I did not think that was necessary. But as I have listened to some of the remarks that have been made in opposition to his nomination, I felt compelled to respond.

I have served in the House Education Committee and I serve in the Committee on Education in the Senate, so while my familiarity with him has been somewhat brief, I nevertheless have been impressed not only with his professional credentials but with the way he has not only dealt with me as a Legislator interested in education but also with his concern and commitment to serving kids. I think it is very unfair to blame every problem that we have in education, either in Pennsylvania or nationally—and most of the criticisms that have been cited are national problems. They are not problems unique to Pennsylvania. They are the same problems that the President talks about, the same problems that the new Secretary of Education in Washington talks about—to try to heap them on a man who has been in office—I do not even have all the dates—I think approximately a year, I think is terribly unfair. We do have problems out there in education. I believe that the Secretary, along with other Legislators and administrators in the field of education, is making a real effort to solve them. In York County we began a program with the York County High School which takes dropouts. That was a local initiative, but it was supported and encouraged by the Department of Education and also was provided with funding. There are new and innovative ideas going on out there, and the Secretary, I believe, is doing his best to promote them. I listened to him being blamed for supporting the status quo and then listened to criticism for just about every initiative for change that has been suggested through the department, including a change in the way that we fund special education, something that I think most people realize has to be addressed.

I guess my biggest concern, though, is the numerous suggestions I heard questioning his integrity in the sense that he put out false information or gave false information to Legislators. I have always found him and his key department heads very receptive, not only to meet with me but to answer my questions. In fact, I suspect that one of the problems he may be having is the fact he is so straightforward and candid, and whether it was at budget hearings or at his own confirmation hearing before the Committee on Education, where, by the way, he was supported by every Member of the Committee on Education voting, save one, he did give those candid answers and spoke very directly on what he sees as the problems in education. I think he has been a breath of fresh air to the department. I think his background and his credentials certainly qualify him to be a Secretary of Education. I think if he is given some time and the opportunity, he can be a very strong leader for education in Pennsylvania, and I would urge all the Members of the Senate to support him and give him that opportunity.

Senator ARMSTRONG. Mr. President, I feel it is unfair to blame Secretary Carroll for all our educational problems. We are talking about 25 percent of the children now being born in Pennsylvania, I understand, to unwed mothers. Fifty percent of the kids in my own district come from single parent families. We have complete destruction of the family unit, and we want Secretary Carroll to come along and fix it. The problems are monumental, and if he could do that, he should run for President of the United States. Don Carroll is a class act and I urge our support for him.

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, it is interesting as I listened to the debate, when we are students, we always know better than the teacher. When we are teachers, we always know better than the principal, and when we are principals, we always know better than the superintendent. When we are superintendents, we know better than the board. Of course, the board and everybody else knows better than the Secretary of Education. I think these are the things that we always attribute to putting the blame and pointing the finger someplace else. I am not in love with Don Carroll. I do not always agree with him, but I do not think anybody else does either. I think he is doing what he believes is the best, but that is where the debate comes in, and the uniqueness of the whole thing is that we just put a package in last week, a reform, which was agreed to between the heads of the Committees on Education in both the House and the Senate and we discussed them with the Secretary and his staff, but realize it takes that communication between our four caucuses and our four Chairs and the Secretary of Education which must reflect back to the administration and also the state board before we are able to move on anything. Part of the responsibility will be ours. I look forward to Don Carroll communicating with us in a very open, upright manner. I trust the decisions he could make. I may not agree with him, but I am going to say this too. The man has been in the trenches so he knows where it is. He knows how the system works, and for those of you who have not been there, as I say so often, get a brown bag, put your lunch in it, go to a school. Do not tell them who you are. Work there for two or three weeks. Then come back and tell me what it is all about and what you have to get done.

I will support the nomination of Don Carroll. I have confidence in him. He is going to get the job done because we are going to make him do it.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT. The Chair recognizes the presence on the floor of Senator Loeper and Senator Mellow. Their temporary Capitol leaves will be cancelled.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate advise and consent to the nomination?

Senator ANDREZESKI. Mr. President, I stand here to support the nomination of Don Carroll as Secretary of Education. We have had previous speakers come up and point out the shortcomings or what should be or what should be done or what could be done. But the fact of the matter is, Mr. President, that in Pennsylvania and in America in our public school system we have some very serious problems that cannot, I repeat, cannot be cured by a decision, a dictate, a program that comes from the top. In a public school system or in a school system across Pennsylvania in which 43 percent of the children go home to one parent, 80 percent of those children go home to an empty house, we face a changing society that a legislative program, a legislative appropriation will find hard to change from the top.

Mr. President, when we have a society in which we have children having children and a society in which children are unable to have access to what we would consider the norms we would like them to have at home, we cannot turn and tell teachers or tell superintendents or tell Secretaries of Education, you be the father and you be the mother and you do it all. It is easy to stand and pass judgment on somebody who is at the top, but this same person is somebody who has worked in the trenches, in the schools. I have confidence in Secretary Carroll that he is making progress, he will make progress, and I have confidence in the General Assembly that we will do the right things to give him the tools, not just the financial tools but also the program tools for the teachers and the classroom to have to produce the results we want. But to stand here in condemnation of somebody who has been in the trenches, who has been in the wars, in my opinion is patently wrong. It is my hope that Secretary Carroll will continue to do the fine job he has been doing and I look forward to voting positively on his nomination.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I would request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Robbins, Senator Madigan and Senator Wenger.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I would request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Jones, Senator Stapleton and Senator Williams.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Fisher requests temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Robbins, Senator Madigan and Senator Wenger. Senator Lincoln requests temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Jones, Senator Stapleton and Senator Williams. The Chair hears no objection. Those leaves will be granted.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate advise and consent to the nomination?

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, I have one comment on the confirmation of Secretary Don Carroll and that simply is this: Within the past week or two I received in a routine fashion across my desk, as did all other Members of this Chamber, a memorandum from the Secretary which started with the following words in the very first sentence of the first paragraph: I have created confusion with a number of documents that have been placed in circulation by the Department. I wish to straighten that out. Those are not his exact words because I do not have the document in front of me, but I think that points to the character of the man more than anything else that has been said on the floor of this Senate today. We have before us the nomination of a man for Secretary of Education who is not an elitist, who has not crawled into the ivory tower, who has not blinded himself from the needs of the people, who respects his staff, who respects this Chamber and who, above all else, is not afraid to come out and say in writing, I have created confusion and I wish to set the record straight. I think that is precisely the kind of cabinet official we need. In the 20 years and some odd months I have been here, I cannot remember another cabinet official routinely sending a memorandum of that nature to the Members of this Body. I urge the confirmation of a man who does, Secretary Don Carroll.

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, I rise for the last time. I think what I want to say and what I want to address is, hopefully, the administration is listening to this dialogue because in this they will see that we all have disagreements and comments and concerns that should be addressed. I think in this vote today, the message should be that we are shooting the message, not the messenger. The messenger can get the job done. I think the message has to be changed.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate advise and consent to the nomination?

The yeas and nays were required by Senator SALVATORE and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—33

Afflerbach	Fumo	Madigan	Rhoades
Andrezski	Greenwood	Mellow	Scanlon
Armstrong	Hopper	Musto	Schwartz
Belan	Jones	O'Pake	Shumaker
Bodack	LaValle	Pecora	Stapleton
Bortner	Lemmond	Peterson	Stewart
Corman	Lincoln	Porterfield	Stout
Dawida	Lynch	Reibman	Williams
Fattah

NAYS—15

Baker	Greenleaf	Loeper	Shaffer
Bell	Hart	Punt	Tilghman
Brightbill	Holl	Robbins	Wenger
Fisher	Jubelirer	Salvatore

A constitutional majority of all the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Governor be informed accordingly.

EXECUTIVE SESSION RISES

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I move that the Executive Session do now rise.

The motion was agreed to.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE GOVERNOR TAKEN FROM THE TABLE

Senator SALVATORE, by unanimous consent, called from the table communication from His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, recalling the following nomination, which was read by the Clerk as follows:

In accordance with the power and authority vested in me as Governor of the Commonwealth, I do hereby recall my nomination dated April 30, 1991, for the appointment of Mary P. Portis (Public Member), 1015 Manhattan Street, Pittsburgh 15233, Allegheny County, Forty-second Senatorial District, as a member of the State Board of Certified Real Estate Appraisers, to serve for a term of three years and until her successor is appointed and qualified, but not longer than six months beyond that period, pursuant to Act 98, approved July 10, 1990.

I respectfully request the return to me of the official message of nomination on the premises.

ROBERT P. CASEY.

NOMINATION RETURNED TO THE GOVERNOR

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I move the nomination just read by the Clerk be returned to His Excellency, the Governor.

The motion was agreed to.

The PRESIDENT. The nomination will be returned to the Governor.

RECESS

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, at this time I would ask for a very brief recess of the Senate for the purpose of a meeting of the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations to begin immediately in the Rules room at the rear of the Senate Chamber.

The PRESIDENT. For the purpose of a meeting of the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations to begin in the Rules room at the rear of the Chamber, the Senate will stand in recess.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed, the Senate will be in order.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Senator PETERSON. Mr. President, I rise today to share some information with the Senate that I think is important, and before I do that I would like to just share a few thoughts.

It is a very historic time in this country and in this world where we see the breakup of the Soviet Union, where we see the free people all over Eastern Europe breaking away from central control, central government, a government that knows all, makes all decisions and disseminates what information people should have, governments that do not want good debate, do not want issues debated, do not want all the facts on the table. I have watched in the last couple of years and have been distressed as I see our state government changing to where more decisions are made in central government. In my view, the first one I noticed was in the Department of Commerce. Decisions that used to be pretty well made, priorities that were basically set out in the countryside at the regional offices are now done at central government, Department of Commerce. Shortly thereafter, the Department of Community Affairs regional offices used to prioritize the projects, and in most cases their priorities won. Now their priorities do not mean much because central government in DCA dictates who wins in the grant process and who loses. We saw it in the Department of Health. We see it in the Department of Welfare. We see it in education policy and maybe that is the reason for many of the problems that the current Secretary of Education has had.

Who really set policy in the last year as we have had these budget problems and financial problems across the Commonwealth? When we closed Health Department offices in rural counties, was there any input from the regional offices? Absolutely not. When we made cuts in state hospital budgets and other health care and welfare offices, was there any input from the regions and how they could make the cuts? Absolutely not. Who is driving all the policy? Well, it is my view that it is the Budget Office. The Budget Office has absorbed the Office of Policy and Planning. What we have watched be built in state government is a Budget Office that sets policy almost on an hour-by-hour basis. I do not think that is the way government should be run. I think people who understand programs, whether it is health, whether it is education, whether it is economic development, should be setting policy. Now the bean counters in the Budget Office, they are very important. Those are tough jobs. I do not want to minimize them. I have a lot of respect for the people who do that, but they should not become the decision makers. They should not be setting public policy. They should only be realistically telling people who have to make priorities what it costs to do what people want to do. I think today we hit an all-time low, and that kind of problem has been part of Pennsylvania government in recent times. Too many of the decisions have been made by the Budget Office with little or no input from the department heads, and that is fact.

Today I have a report from an employee of the Department of Public Welfare who said that they have been told if a Republican Legislator's office calls for information in the Department of Public Welfare, they are to take the message and give it to their supervisor who, in turn, will give it to Harry Sewell, the Deputy Secretary of Welfare, and who, in turn, will forward it to Steve Roskopf, who is the Deputy Secretary for the Budget in the Governor's Office, who will decide if the information is to be given to such Legislator's office. Folks, that is bad government. We have a lot of issues to debate. I think a department that stalls or refuses to give data on a timely basis is a government that is not serving people well. They may not agree with the bills proposed. They may not agree with the objectives of certain Legislators as they propose legislation, but if you have good government the facts should be put on the table and the issues should be decided by good public debate. The policy that is happening in the Department of Welfare is one more bit of proof that in Pennsylvania we have a central government that knows more than the region and the people who serve the people. I think that is bad government, and I think the people of Pennsylvania deserve better. I hope these policies will be changed. I know in an electoral process the people will change them in time, but that is quite a ways down the road.

I urge this administration to review their public policy and to rescind policies that deprive Members of information. Yes, I have had a hard time getting information from departments too. It takes forever, if you get it at all, and I think that is a sad day for the citizens of Pennsylvania.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I feel a very strong feeling of responsibility and obligation to respond to the previous speaker's remarks, but I really do not understand what he said. I have no idea what he is talking about. If he is talking about there being problems in state government, well, I think we ought to do a little history then. One, he has been part of the Majority Party here in the Senate for 11 years and has had a great deal to do with the policies of this state government by virtue of the tremendous amount of importance that is put on having the majority in one Body or the other. When one Body has that majority and they are the opposite party of a governor, they do as they should and they have a great deal to say about how things are done. Basically, that is done through the budget process. If he is dissatisfied then I think he ought to look internally in his caucus rather than thrashing about blaming the whole world for whatever the problems are in state government. I also think he ought to reflect on the previous governor who for eight years managed state government in just about the manner that the gentleman from Venango, Senator Peterson, described. We had cabinet-level positions, people who were serving as cabinet members during the Thornburgh Administration who were forbidden to put a press release out without clearing it with the front office. We had legislative liaisons through the cabinet-level position who were forbidden to return phone calls to Legislators on an individual basis without clearing that action with the front office. This administration, much to my chagrin at times, should be more like that. I think there is such a looseness about this administration at times that we lose the advantage of having a Democrat in the Governor's Office, as far as I am concerned as an individual Democrat Leader in the Senate. Centralization is something that is all in the beholder's mind. We have a district office in Pittsburgh. We have district offices in Philadelphia. We have district offices in Scranton and Erie and all the other places that do all of the kinds of work they were set up to do. They take applications for permits from DER. They take applications for whatever the grant program may be through community affairs and they do the processing as they are supposed to do. That is not a policy-making position. The policy-making position is here, in the Governor's Office, in the individual Cabinet Members' offices, in the Budget Office. Yes, but I can tell you one thing, Mike Herschok is one of the most capable persons I have ever dealt with in my life. Policy he does not set. Bob Casey sets policy. I can tell you that Bob Wilburn was a lot more difficult to deal with than Mike Hershock is, and anyone who does not remember the days of Bob Wilburn as Budget Secretary, well, I wish I had the kind of memory that I could forget certain things too. He was much more restrictive and played a great deal more in the policy-making role than anybody who I have ever served with.

The final argument that I will try to make—I probably could go forever but I am going to restrict this to one more issue that I am going to discuss—is that the grant programs are determined by what we do here in the Legislature. We fund them. We make criteria for eligibility. Over the years I have heard all kinds of complaints from both sides of the aisle as to how that criteria is applied, whether it be a Democrat or Republican administration or a Democrat or a Republican Secretary of Community Affairs, Commerce, or wherever it is. In fact, the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades, played a great part in changing the criteria for determining some of those grant awards, along with the late Representative Manderino. A number of years ago we were restricted to the level that a population size could be on certain municipal levels. We do that here. If we have a complaint with that problem and if I were a Member of the Majority Party and had been for 11 years, I would almost be ashamed to stand at a microphone, even in Petitions and Remonstrances, and complain about certain activities. Eight years of that particular reign, six years of that particular 11 years, were with a Republican Governor, with a Republican Majority in the Senate. If you cannot get input through those types of circumstances and you have a complaint 11 years into a process, then maybe, maybe you ought to come and sit down and talk to me and I might be able to tell you how you play this game and how you have the kind of input you need with your own governor. I cannot believe somebody in the Majority Party could come here and put forth this argument. That is why it was very difficult for me to even begin to think about how I was going to answer this, whatever it is—criticism or statement, or whatever. If I were a Majority Member for 11 years, and I have been in the Minority for 11 years, believe me, there would be no way I could stand and be critical of six of those years with my own administration, five now with a Governor who has depended upon the 26 to 27 Members who have occupied the seats on the other side of this room for a budget for every piece of legislation. Nothing moves out of a committee here in the Senate without the Majority Party's approval. I have not seen them falling all over themselves over the last five years in bringing forth legislation that solves the problems without a negotiated process, whether it be a budget, the MOM bill, hazardous waste, PENNVEST. Everything was done in a struggle. So I cannot imagine what the complaints are that the gentleman put on the record here today. I have no intention of attempting to answer anything further. If he gets back at the microphone and speaks for an hour, I will not say another word because I do not believe there is anything I could add that would try to clarify this any further.

Senator PETERSON. Mr. President, I just want to respond to a couple of remarks. He talked about this administration allowing its cabinet officials to put out press releases. Well, lots of people put out press releases but that is not public policy setting. It is my view that cabinet officials in this administration have very little to say about priorities. I went through the appropriations process here. I asked what they requested. I saw the priorities of the Welfare Department, Health Department and all the other departments. When the Budget Office gets done with those priorities they are not very similar. Recently I talked to a former cabinet official who served in this administration. In a public statement I said I have to think his time was most difficult here because I know what some of his goals and objectives were and his views and values and he certainly was thwarted by the Budget Office. After a time he came up to me and he thanked me for those comments. He said they were very frustrating times because he did not make public policy. He did not have much to do with the decisions. They all came out of the Budget Office. There should be a balance of power. The bureau which used to be the Secretary of Policy and Planning has been done away with. What happened to it? It was absorbed into the Budget Office. Those are two distinct parts of government that ought to be at each others' throats all the time. The people who believe in policy and know the issues ought to be debating the direction we ought to be going. The budget people ought to be saying, here is what it is going to cost. But when you give all the power to the Budget Office, I think you are making a fundamental mistake. I want to question one sentence made by the previous speaker that he wants me to sit down with him and learn to play the game. To the Senator, I respect him and I like him, I am not here to play a game. I am not going to play a game. I am here to represent the 25th District first and I am here to fight for public policy that I think is good for the Commonwealth right along with that. That is not playing a game. That is the problem we have here. There is too damn much game playing. It is time we get down and debate issues and stop playing games. Just as an example, we have had pressure not to pass a wetlands bill from this administration because they want to do it through regulations. We have never passed a bill in this Commonwealth to deal with wetlands. I am for protecting wetlands but we have never passed a bill. We have never debated an issue. We have never put a dollar in the budget with wetlands beside it, and yet, we have 30-some people working in a department using regulations that were never approved by this General Assembly or IRRRC running a wetlands program, I think, illegally. That is the kind of central government we have. They do not want to debate the issue publicly. Today, when we read that when a Republican Legislator asks for information it has to go clear up through the Deputy Secretary and over to the Budget Office before they decide whether we should have data and information, that is a disgrace that government, when you are asking for facts and figures and statistics to set policy—that is just information that ought to be automatically available to any Member so they can prudently debate issues—has to go through a chain of command like that. That is a central government that has forgotten about the people.

RECESS

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, at this time I would ask for a recess of the Senate with the intention that the Members would be available on a six hour call to the President pro tempore but with the thought that we would reconvene probably at 10:00 o'clock tomorrow morning, unless some events should happen that dictates sooner.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Loeper requests the Senate do now recess to the call of the President pro tempore with the understanding that we should be returning at approximately 10:00 o'clock tomorrow. At the request of the Majority Leader, without objection the Chair would note, the Senate will now stand in recess.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed, the Senate will be in order.

SPECIAL ORDER OF BUSINESS*GUESTS OF SENATOR ROBERT J. MELLOW PRESENTED TO SENATE

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I would like to introduce a young woman who is serving as a page for us in the Senate today. Her name is Jessica Sapalio. Jessica is a guest page. She is a 12-year-old student at Susquehanna Township Middle School where she participates in the chorus and in the school newspaper. She also plays the piano and violin and is a softball player, so not only is she an excellent academic student, she is a musician and she is also an athlete. I think equally as important, her mother, Patricia Pacifico, is one of the attorneys in my office, and I would wish that the Senate would go ahead and would give a warm welcome to Jessica as she works today as a page in the Pennsylvania Senate.

The PRESIDENT. Will Jessica please rise so we can thank you for your good work as a page and welcome you to the Senate.

(Applause.)

SENATE RESOLUTIONS

MEMORIALIZING THE PRESIDENT AND CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES TO SUPPORT CROATIAN DEMOCRACY

Senators BODACK, BELAN, STOUT, SCANLON, HART, O'PAKE, LINCOLN, BAKER, JONES, SCHWARTZ, AFFLERBACH, REIBMAN, LaVALLE, MELLOW, FUMO, SHUMAKER, HELFRICK, PECORA, STAPLETON, FATTAH, ROBBINS, RHOADES, SHAFFER and WILLIAMS offered the following resolution (Senate Resolution No. 90), which was read as follows:

A RESOLUTION

Memorializing the President and Congress of the United States to support Croatian democracy.

WHEREAS, Croatia and its sister Republics, Slovenia, and Bosnia and Herzegovina, have elected noncommunist governments in their first multiparty free elections to be held in over a half century; and

WHEREAS, Croatia now finds its freely elected government, citizens, territory, economic and natural resources, and indeed very existence, under attack by the Yugoslav military; and

WHEREAS, The protection and nurturing of freedom and democracy in Eastern Europe, which has for so long known only oppression and subjugation, is in the best interest of the entire free world; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Senate of Pennsylvania fully support the new democratically chosen government in the Republic of Croatia; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the Senate hereby condemn all belligerent attacks on Croatia and its sister Republics by the Yugoslav military and government, whether such attacks be political, economic, military, or by any other means; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the Senate deem the Croatian nation vital to the interests not only of Europe but also of the United States and, therefore, to the fundamental principles of peace, equality, freedom, and the pursuit of happiness which would maintain long-term stability in this vital region; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the Senate call upon the United States government to use all its political, economic and moral authority to exert influence on the Yugoslav military and government to cease and desist from its hostile activities against the government and people of Croatia and to allow the root of democracy to take firm hold in this fertile soil so that freedom can be nurtured throughout the Balkans; and be it further

RESOLVED, That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the President of the United States, the presiding officers of each house of Congress and to each member of Congress from Pennsylvania.

Senator BODACK asked and obtained unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of this resolution.

On the question,

Will the Senate adopt the resolution?

SENATE RESOLUTION NO. 90, ADOPTED

Senator BODACK. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do adopt Senate Resolution No. 90.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Senator BODACK. Mr. President, Croatia and Slovenia declared their independence less than a month ago. Now with the help of their European neighbors, the democratically elected governments of these two beautiful regions are negotiating their freedom with the Yugoslavian government.

Slovenia and Croatia have proceeded on a democratic course. This, hopefully, peaceful path of self-determination has taken great courage on their parts.

Now Croatia and Slovenia are asking for our help. Dr. Franjo Tudjman, President of Croatia, has concluded that he knows the journey is not easy, but he prays that Western powers will recognize their commitment to peace, freedom and to the free market economy and asks for the moral and political support of the people and the government of the United States.

We should not fail these fledgling democracies. We in the Senate of Pennsylvania need to encourage our President and the United States Congress to give all due recognition to Slovenia and Croatia. To that end, I, along with a number of my fellow Senators, introduce these resolutions today.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The motion was agreed to and the resolution was adopted.

MEMORIALIZING THE PRESIDENT AND CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES TO SUPPORT SLOVENIAN DEMOCRACY

Senators BODACK, BELAN, STOUT, SCANLON, HART, O'PAKE, LINCOLN, BAKER, JONES, SCHWARTZ, AFFLERBACH, REIBMAN, LaVALLE, MELLOW, FUMO, SHUMAKER, HELFRICK, PECORA,

STAPLETON, FATTAH, ROBBINS, RHOADES, SHAFFER and WILLIAMS offered the following resolution (Senate Resolution No. 89), which was read, considered and adopted:

In the Senate, July 10, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Memorializing the President and Congress of the United States to support Slovenian democracy.

WHEREAS, Slovenia and its sister Republics, Croatia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, have elected noncommunist governments in their first multiparty free elections to be held in over a half century; and

WHEREAS, Slovenia now finds its freely elected government, citizens, territory, economic and natural resources, and indeed very existence, under attack by the Yugoslav military; and

WHEREAS, The protection and nurturing of freedom and democracy in eastern Europe, which has for so long known only oppression and subjugation, is in the best interest of the entire free world; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Senate of Pennsylvania fully support the new democratically chosen government in the Republic of Slovenia; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the Senate hereby condemn all belligerent attacks on Slovenia and its sister Republics by the Yugoslav military and government, whether such attacks be political, economic, military or by any other means; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the Senate deem the Slovenian nation vital to the interests not only of Europe but also of the United States and, therefore, to the fundamental principles of peace, equality, freedom, and the pursuit of happiness which would maintain long-term stability in this vital region; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the Senate call upon the United States government to use all its political, economic, and moral authority to exert influence on the Yugoslav military and government to cease and desist from its hostile activities against the government and people of Slovenia and to allow the root of democracy to take firm hold in this fertile soil so that freedom can be nurtured throughout the Balkans; and be it further

RESOLVED, That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the President of the United States, the presiding officers of each house of Congress and to each member of Congress from Pennsylvania.

RECESS

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, at this time I would ask for a recess of the Senate, first for a meeting of the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations to take place in the Rules room at the rear of the Senate Chamber to be followed immediately by a Republican caucus in the first floor Majority caucus room. It would be the Majority's intention at this time, after the meeting of the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations, to recess the Senate on a six-hour call subject to recall by the President pro tempore.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, may we be at ease for a moment.

The PRESIDENT. The Senate will be at ease.

(The Senate was at ease.)

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, just a clarification on the request for recess. It would be the Majority's intention at this point, like today, if not subjected to a call earlier, to be here at 10:00 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Loeper asks that we now proceed to recess subject to the call of the President pro tempore, on a six-hour call of notification, with the tacit understanding that we will be here tomorrow at 10:00 o'clock.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I would just like to notify the Democratic Members of the Senate that we will, immediately following the conclusion of the meeting of the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations, have a brief caucus in our caucus room at the rear of the Chamber.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair would remind all the Members of the Senate that there will be a meeting of the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations exactly upon the recess, followed immediately by a Democratic caucus. For all of those purposes, the Senate will now stand in recess.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed, the Senate will be in order.

ADJOURNMENT

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I move the Senate do now adjourn until Thursday, July 11, 1991, at 10:37 a.m., Eastern Daylight Saving Time.

The motion was agreed to.

The Senate adjourned at 11:59 p.m., Eastern Daylight Saving Time.

RECESS

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, at this time I would ask for a very brief recess of the Senate for the purpose of a meeting of the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations to take place in the Rules room at the rear of the Senate Chamber.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Loeper has requested a very brief recess of the Senate for the purpose of a meeting of the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations to be held in the rear of the Senate Chamber.

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, at the conclusion of the meeting of the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations, I would request a Democratic caucus in the rear of the Chamber.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Would the lady like to wait until we complete the Calendar of the day and then I will recognize you.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I have just been advised that some of the mechanical process that needs to be completed for the meeting of the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations has not been completed at this point in time. So, therefore, I would ask for a recess for the purpose of a Republican caucus to begin immediately in the first floor Majority caucus room, with an understanding that we would probably be returning to the floor at approximately 3:45 p.m.

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, I request a Democratic caucus in the rear of the Chamber immediately.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. For the purpose of a Republican caucus and a Democratic caucus in their respective caucus rooms, the Senate will stand in recess.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The time of recess having elapsed, the Senate will be in order.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair notes the presence on the floor of Senator Stapleton, Senator Fumo, Senator Lemmond and Senator Williams, and their temporary Capitol leaves are hereby cancelled.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, I rise primarily on what I maybe should call a public service announcement, because I see it as an opportunity for us here, not only in the Senate Chamber but throughout the Capitol and throughout the Commonwealth, to save the Commonwealth some dollars. There is a service purchase contract from the Governor's Office to Ted Ford Webb, P.O. Box 645, Carlisle, Massachusetts, which says: "Contractor will provide recruitment and preliminary screening services for the position of Secretary, Department of Health...The Contractor will conduct a nationwide search through national professional journals and associations to identify the most highly qualified candidates for this sensitive and unique position. The contractor will conduct preliminary evaluation of all candidates, work with the Governor's Office personnel in screening out the least qualified and provide the Governor's Office with detailed evaluations of all potential candidates. In addition, the contractor will provide consultation services to the Governor's Office as needed throughout the recruitment and hiring process. The contractor will travel as necessary to confer with both the Governor's Office as well as potential candidates." It says "Purpose and Justification For Above: These services are needed to provide professional and experienced recruiting services to identify candidates for the position of Secretary, Department of Health who must be a physician with at least 10 years of professional experience and a graduate from a legally constituted medical college." I bring this before our attention not only because this was prepared 5/1/91 and effective date 5/1/91, and termination date 11/1/91. I look at this and say, in this contract is $26,700 for services and $5,000 for travel, for a grand total of $31,700. I do feel and believe for those people who are here and within voice distance that we could save the Commonwealth $32,000 approximately by noting or telling that there has to be a physician within this Commonwealth who would be able to handle this position, let alone people within the department. You know, when I look at that, I say we ought to look at those contracts. I have another one too, from a miscellaneous encumbrance sole source contract for $50,000 for Elliott, Bray and Riley, with no address on that. We are, in essence, paying attorneys $185 per hour and $170 per hour; associates at the regular hourly rates, less 15 percent, up to $130 per hour maximum; paralegals at their regular hourly rates, less 15 percent, up to $60 per hour maximum. Then we go through here and we see reasonable expenses for travel, meals and lodging, communications including telephone, telegraph, postage, parcel post, freight, package, photocopies and other reproductions. Let me put it this way. I think from the standpoint from looking at approximately $82,000, we get accused—in this case I would say Legislators from both sides of the aisle—of spending money, and yet the Governor comes out in November and December and January saying there are no dollars here, that he has to cut programs and personnel—I read that AFSCME has taken a contract without an increase—and then I see these kinds of contracts coming across. I have to say, now wait a minute, you cannot talk out of both sides of your mouth at the same time. If we are being put under the gun legislatively to come up with a budget, to get it done in a cost-effective manner, then I do not think we should have these kinds of sole source contracts going through that we do not have some kind of control over. So I would call upon the Governor to take a look at these things, cut the things that are not necessary so we can get down to the things that have to be done.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, it is not my desire to make a partisan political speech today, but I think that from reading the media, there is much concern about what is going on in negotiations on the budget and there are a few issues I have to address.

The first is the frustration that many people seem to feel at the process. Mr. President, that is not my fault. That is not the fault of any Member of leadership who is involved in those negotiations with, perhaps, the exception of House Republicans. Mr. President, what we are really looking at is the reluctance of Members to vote for a tax increase in Pennsylvania that is needed. The public seems to think that this tax increase, regardless of its size, will go to fund some new programs or things they do not want. The fact of the matter is that if we had a no-tax budget, local taxes would skyrocket. One of the things that would be hit the worst in a no-tax budget would be the ESBE formula for assistance to basic education, and, Mr. President, the most conservative projections I have seen clearly indicate that a no-tax budget would cost that program about $400 million a year. That is money school districts will have to raise at the local level, so people are really not getting a bargain when they say they want no taxes. Mr. President, ESBE is only one of the many needed and necessary programs that must be funded, and it is important that the public realize that. It is important the public also realize that this year's deficit, now that we have closed the books, while it is only $400 million and some odd dollars, if you take away all of the one-time spending we did this year to help cover that gap, things such as the Rainy Day Fund, the refinancing of the PIDA monies and things of that nature, if you take all of those things away, you are probably talking about a number very close to $1 billion. Mr. President, that is without any increases in spending. That is just last year's budget. When you add to that the fact that there is still inflation in this country and next year's budget would be out of whack, that billion plus another billion plus inflation, you get to some very lofty numbers. We can stand around here forever and point the fingers back and forth as to who caused this problem and certainly we have done that an inordinate number of times on this floor, but the public must realize that there is no one here who is more concerned and more reluctant to raise taxes than the Members of this General Assembly. The other fact still remains, Mr. President, and that is it is our responsibility to adequately fund the needs of the Commonwealth. Mr. President, the choices are not easy, they are difficult. I have said from the very beginning that this is a year that requires courage. It requires courage not only of the leadership, but courage of the Members. While I see the Governor occasionally talk about a budget that "rank-and-file" would like, and while I see occasional editorial writers saying, let the guys in the "back bench" take over, the fact of the matter is that we, the leaders of these various caucuses, are, in fact, representing the wishes of those people whom we lead, except for the fact that we have the added responsibility of making sure this budget comes out balanced this year and we adequately fund programs. On that note as well, Mr. President, I have talked to many Members of the General Assembly during the last few weeks of negotiations. I did not just talk to the leadership in that room. What Members tell me is, I will vote for a tax increase provided that my area of the state gets taken care of. That is what causes the numbers to grow. I have yet to run into the Member who tells me that he will vote for a tax increase even if his area does not get taken care of. I have not met that altruistic Member. Mr. President, when you start adding the spending that is needed in rural areas, in urban areas, in the east, in the west, in suburban areas, the numbers grow even more. It is folly to think we will leave here with a no-tax budget. It is also equally folly to think we will be here forever. At some point in time I would hope the rank-and-file and guys in the back bench step up to the plate and realize their responsibility. Not everyone can have the luxury of George Bush and say, read my lips. We are here. We are forced to have a balanced budget, not like they do in Congress where they can balance the budget with never-never numbers and off-budget items and things of that nature. The clear fact of the matter is that in Pennsylvania—and we did not do it last year, but we must do it this year—revenues have to equal expenditures.

Also, Mr. President, I want to assure the public that whatever we do when we conclude these negotiations, whenever that is, it is the absolute intent of each and every one of us that we not revisit this issue again for a very, very long time. Therefore, we are not going to put together a budget this year that next year will require another tax increase. Again, I do not want to seem partisan, but those people who advocate selling the liquor stores to bring in $600 million this year fail to recognize that there will be that same need for $600 million next year if they use that money to balance this year's budget, and there is no money next year even if we sold those liquor stores and even if those liquor stores could bring in the rosy projection that those people advocate. Mr. President, we cannot have gimmicks. We have seen enough of that this year. We have to have hard, cold cash and that means a lot of courage.

Mr. President, on another note, I think it is also very important for the public to understand that we in the Senate have not paid our employees, nor do we intend to, that we in the Senate are not being paid, nor will we be, and that we in the Senate are not paying our bills for any of the expenses that we incur at district office levels, or otherwise, until this budget crisis is solved. Mr. President, I view the acts of the House of Representatives as absolutely unconscionable. I feel for their employees just as I do for ours and just as I do for the rest of the Commonwealth's employees. But it is absolutely unconscionable for anyone to pay their employees while they are, in fact, the part of the problem in holding up the paychecks for the rest. The pain has to be inflicted on everyone. Maybe, just maybe, if one of the secretaries of a Representative over in the House is not getting paid, she will, in fact, drive him to drink or drive him to a tax vote or do something. Mr. President, the pain has to be inflicted at home. You cannot walk away and say, I am okay, because then you do not have any sensitivity at all to what the other people are going through. I would hope and I would pray that House leadership would reconsider their folly and stop their checks immediately or at least not repeat that disaster when their next pay period comes forth. But if they do not, I want the public to clearly understand that we in the Senate, although we do not like it anymore than anybody else does, have adopted a voluntary plan of not accepting or paying anyone any paychecks or any expenses until this crisis is over. The very least we can do is suffer with our brethren throughout state government. If we do not do that, we will not be sensitive to the deadline, and I fear this will go on much longer than it would otherwise.

Mr. President, it is truly regrettable that I have to make those remarks concerning the other Chamber, but I think it is important that we do so because as we look around, although the Majority Leader and myself have some differences yet and our caucus and his caucus have some differences, we are not that far apart. The fact of the matter is that in the House that is not the case, and that is the reason for the delay. We all know it and it is about time we start saying it, and it is about time we look to the House and, in particular, I ask the Minority Leader of the House, Representative Ryan, to start getting a lot more serious about this than he has been in the past. It is time for him to face up to the fact that House Democrats do not have 102 votes for taxes. It is a fact of life. You can castigate them for that. You can say that they are inefficient, ineffective, or whatever you want, but the fact of life is that they cannot do it alone, nor should they have to. To sit there in the Minority in the House and say we do not have any votes until you show us yours is going to keep us here for a very long, hot summer. I would hope that responsibility and responsive leadership would start to blossom in the House Republican caucus because, truly, they are the problem, Mr. President. Not that there is anyone here who is not to blame, but as we look around the table I am sure this could be brought to closure as soon as Representative Ryan and Representative Pitts and the others in that caucus decide they have to step up to the plate and pay for their tickets to ride. There are no free lunches, and there is no way out of this budget crisis that I can see that is reasonable without a tax increase. It is about time we own up to that, and if we do not, then let us pass a no-tax budget. Let local taxes go through the roof and go home and be a hero, if you think you can be under those circumstances. Mr. President, the hour is late. We are now more than halfway through the month. I will grant you there has been much done, but much yet remains to be done. Now is the time for courage to come to the forefront, particularly in the House of Representatives, and I would hope again they would not continue to pay their employees during this crisis.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, it had not been my intent initially to respond to the gentleman in his comments relevant to the budget process. However, I do think there must be some clarification made as far as the role of the Minority in these negotiations from the House of Representatives. Many of us have spent many long hours, morning, noon and night, for the past several weeks trying to reach some sort of agreement as to where we can end up with a spending plan to move Pennsylvania forward and have been requesting a revenue plan in order to fund that. I think, Mr. President, it is unfair to characterize the House Minority as obstructionists, particularly while we are trying to deal in good faith in putting negotiated settlements forward, when we reflect on an action like the House took initially in the passage of a budget, putting a budget bill out on the floor of the House of Representatives, calling the question, which effectively shut off any input or amendments to the process from the Minority, and then on a partisan vote passing that budget bill over to this Chamber. Then to follow that, in a most critical time of negotiations,

Mr. President, just last Friday, with a lottery preservation bill, a bill that had been an issue which had been debated and considered at the negotiating table where substantial progress had been made on that bill at that particular time, and yet what we found was an action once again taken by the House Majority to force that bill through, to cut off any type of debate or amendment process and just force the legislation through. I think, Mr. President, when we talk about trying to work in the spirit of cooperation in order to get a spending plan in place for this Commonwealth, we have to stop that kind of gamesmanship and get serious about our responsibilities in putting a state budget and spending plan into place.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVE CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair notes the presence on the floor of Senator Baker and his temporary Capitol leave will be cancelled.

Continued

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, in response, I did not call the House Minority obstructionists. That is a word that the gentleman, the Majority Leader, used. I guess maybe I feel that way, but I did not call them that.

Mr. President, I think there are a few things you have to talk about here. The gentleman talks about the role of the Minority in the House, but yet when we in this Chamber, the Minority in the Senate, have said that we are willing to put up 50 percent of the tax votes, the only cry I get from that side of the aisle is, that is not enough. We need more. I have yet to hear the Minority in the House match my offer. They have not said 50 percent of the tax votes yet. They are at zero. That, Mr. President, I think is an obstructionist tactic. Certainly they have the same responsibilities I have. Just because they serve in the House of Representatives and not the Senate, being in the minority is being in the minority. I offered here from day one 12 votes and I said I would even go to 13 votes. Mr. President, the Minority in the House has yet to offer anything. Certainly the Minority in the House has as deep an obligation as the Minority in the Senate.

Mr. President, when we talk about the budget bill that was passed by the House to us, the Majority Leader fails to mention an important fact. That budget bill was passed here because the Majority in the Senate told the Majority in the House to do it. They continually questioned, where is your budget bill? Pass it, let us see what you have. Pass it. So the House did. Now we hear complaints. As to the lottery preservation bill, Mr. President, I agree that I probably would not have done that if I were in the House in the Majority, but I can also understand clearly the frustrations of the House Majority leadership when they look at the Minority and they keep saying they do not have any votes. That is frustration, Mr. President, that has to be dealt with. When we talk about cutting off debate, thank God they did because one of the amendments that the Minority in that Chamber was prepared to offer had nothing to do with lottery preservation. It was a break for the widow's tax, spending more money, and the House simply said, we are not going to spend any more money. We are here today to save money, but it was those fiscal conservatives in the Republican caucus in the House that wanted to give a tax break for widows, and I might add very wealthy widows, as we have discussed here many times before. But despite that, Mr. President, what was the vote on that bill? Did it squeak through by some sort of partisan vote? Where was the courage of House Republicans if they truly believed that it was wrong to do that? I did not see any, Mr. President. That bill passed with 166 votes and among that 166 who did we see? The Minority Leader himself, Mr. Ryan, voted for that "evil bill." Mr. President, you cannot have it both ways. I am not happy that I am at this microphone today, but at some point in time someone must address the frustration of state workers, the frustration of those people who receive state funds and, quite frankly, someone must address those idealistic editorial writers who, after this is over, we will never hear from again on this issue unless it is to castigate someone else. Mr. President, we are dealing with a real situation, and I come back to what I have said in the beginning. This budget solution is going to require taxes. Our "fiscally conservative Governor" himself has asked for tax increases in excess of $2.6 billion and, in fact, sent us a budget which I personally have characterized on this floor as underfunded. Mr. President, the truth is there. You cannot run this Commonwealth without money and we need it. We can complain where it came from. We can complain about the recession that has hit Pennsylvania very hard. We can complain about a Washington with a Democratic controlled Congress and a Republican Chief Executive that have turned their backs on Pennsylvania and other states and Philadelphia and all other major cities, but sitting here complaining about it, stamping our feet and being upset does not get us to the end. The end requires courage. The end requires realism and as long as we continue to deal in la la land we are not going to get there. Mr. President, I would urge everyone involved in this process to move forward, but I think it is about time that rather than take a shotgun approach at all leadership, it is time for some rifle shots. It is time for some clear scalpel cutting and we have to target the appropriate people and I suggest we start with the House Minority, and I would like them to come up at least to where I am in the Senate Minority of 50 percent. In fact, I believe the Majority Leader in the House said they only had to come up with 20 percent. Let them move. They are not going to do it with zero. Let them match my challenge at 50 percent.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVE CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT. The Chair recognizes the presence on the floor of Senator Lewis. His legislative leave will be cancelled.

SPECIAL ORDER OF BUSINESS

GUESTS OF SENATOR ALBERT V. BELAN PRESENTED TO SENATE

Senator BELAN. Mr. President, as my guests here today in the gallery are several members of my district office staff and with me today are two summer interns from my West Mifflin office. The first person who I would like to introduce is Michelle Horgos. Michelle is a sophomore at Kent State majoring in architecture and with Michelle today, also from West Mifflin, is Jeff Wilner. Jeff is a student at Muskingum College in Ohio, and here today from my Monessen district is Christin Corroto. Christin is a senior majoring in political science at Seton Hill College in Greensburg. Traveling with these two young beautiful ladies is your good friend and my good friend Joe Dalfonso who is my administrative aide in my district office in Monessen. I would appreciate it, Mr. President, if the Senate would give my guests its customary warm welcome.

The PRESIDENT. Would the guests of Senator Belan please rise so we can welcome you to the Senate of Pennsylvania.

(Applause.)

GUESTS OF SENATOR ROY C. AFFLERBACH PRESENTED TO SENATE

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, I, too, have two special guests here with me today. The first is a young lady named Jeana Scheirer who is doing an internship with me this summer. It is the second year in a row. She will be returning to American University in Washington, D.C. at the end of the summer, and, I might add, Jeana really cut her teeth the hard way last year when she spent most of the summer walking from house to house with me back in the 16th Senatorial District. With her is a very special guest we have today, Laurent Madec. Laurent is from Brest, France, and is spending three and a half weeks in the United States learning as much as he can about our country and about our political system today here in Harrisburg. He is a 17-year-old student and, as I indicated, will be returning, we hope, somewhat enriched from the experience that he observes here and other places in the country, and I would appreciate a traditional warm welcome from the Senate for these two young people.

The PRESIDENT. Would the guests of Senator Afflerbach please rise so we could welcome you to the Chamber of the Senate of Pennsylvania.

(Applause.)

GUESTS OF SENATOR MICHAEL E. BORTNER PRESENTED TO SENATE

Senator BORTNER. Mr. President, I would like to introduce three very important guests visiting from York County today. Seated in the gallery is Penny Jordan, the York County Dairy Princess. Along with her is Annie Rauhauser who is the alternate York County Dairy Princess, and accompanying them is Pam Kilgore, also from York County.

I would remind all the Members that today out in front of the Capitol they will be serving ice cream. You may want to make a visit there and also visit with some of the special guests who are here with the Dairy Association. I would ask the Senate to extend its usual warm welcome to my visitors.

The PRESIDENT. We thank the visitors of Senator Bortner for coming to the Senate and offer you our best wishes.

(Applause.)

ANNOUNCEMENT BY MINORITY WHIP

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, it is my very great pleasure to make an announcement to my fellow Members of the Senate that one of our colleagues became a grandfather for the fifth time last night, and mother and new baby daughter are doing very well. Senator Stout and his lovely wife Lenore became grandparents for the fifth time with a nine pound—as only Barry could explain to me—butterball baby. I know he is relieved that mother and baby are doing very well, and Lenore is, I think, pleased. I look forward to seeing her and congratulating her. I think that Barry is slowly moving into the position of replacing former Senator Jim Ross in putting together a tremendous Democratic team in some future date. He is only about 30 behind Jim Ross, but with six children of his own I think that at some point in time he will catch him, particularly the way it seems to be that the productivity in that family went from one generation to the next. I want to enter on the record my sincere congratulations to both Barry and Lenore and continued health for the mother and baby.

The PRESIDENT. I am sure the Members of the Senate would join in a round of applause for Senator Barry Stout in becoming a grandfather for the fifth time.

(Applause.)

SENATE

WEDNESDAY, July 17, 1991.

The Senate met at 5:30 p.m., Eastern Daylight Saving Time.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore (Robert C. Jubelirer) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The following prayer was offered by the Secretary of the Senate, Hon. MARK R. CORRIGAN:

Our Heavenly King and Comforter, we invoke Your blessing on this Senate Chamber this afternoon. Enlighten the mind of each Senator with Your divine spirit so that the legislation which is enacted will be according to Your will rather than the will of men. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. A quorum of the Senate being present, the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding Session of July 16, 1991.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding Session, when, on motion of Senator LOEPER, further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

POINT OF INFORMATION

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I rise to a point of information.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, will state it.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, on the Calendar, are we to the point of Petitions and Remonstrances?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. We are ready for adjournment, Senator. We have passed that, but if you wish to do that, we have not adjourned yet, and if you wish to return to that order of business, I am sure we can accommodate you.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, during the last 24 hours there has been a change in the manner in which we have been operating, trying to negotiate the budget. I think that is very apparent. We have already expressed ourselves, the leadership on this side, on why we have taken the position we have. Today in Petitions and Remonstrances I would like to get a little bit further along in the process of at least answering some questions in my own mind.

Every day at noon throughout this building there are demonstrations by state employees. Unfortunately, that is the only pressure that seems to be building. I do not see that happening in Pittsburgh or Philadelphia or Uniontown or Williamsport, or wherever. I understand that there are Senators who represent a few state employees and there are Senators who represent a couple more and then there are some like Senator Hopper and Senator Shumaker who represent the bulk of the state employees because of where their districts are located and because of where the state employment is generally located, and I am wondering how Senator Hopper and Senator Shumaker are answering the pleas and the outrage expressed by those demonstrators here in this Capitol building. I know I have answered them by saying to them I am ready to vote at any time in this Chamber for a budget that will substantially fund state government and that I am willing to vote for the taxes necessary to fund that particular budget. We have been thwarted both procedurally and scheduling-wise on the Chamber floor by the Majority Party here in the Senate, and we have, unfortunately, been thwarted by the Majority Party and their counterpart, the Minority Party in the House. I just cannot imagine two people who I have learned to respect a great deal over the years that I have dealt with them, John Hopper and John Shumaker, the intense pressures and the personal feelings they have to be having for individuals who are not going to get paid for the services performed, particularly when their area has been one of the few areas in Pennsylvania that has never had the kind of high unemployment that those of us from southwestern Pennsylvania and from northeastern Pennsylvania and other parts of the state have had to suffer. I would hope that the obstinate positions that have been taken by the Minority Leader in the House and the Republican leadership here in the Senate on refusing to put something on this Calendar where we can offer amendments for a tax package, where we can offer true amendments to have a budget that is funded at the level that we cannot seem to come in agreement to whenever we are meeting in private meetings, if the private part of this procedure is not working, then I would hope at some point in time the two very fine gentlemen who represent a great portion of central Pennsylvania where a tremendous amount of state employees live, that they would start urging their leadership to approach this subject in a little different manner. It is now the 17th of July. We ought to be ashamed of ourselves, collectively. All of us at some point in time ought to have to answer to our constituencies for our irresponsible actions, in fact our lack of responsible actions. I am not saying this in any manner to hurt in any way politically the two gentlemen I have spoken of because I have never had any intentions of being involved in their campaigns, but I think all of us, both Republicans and Democrats, next year are going to face Primary Elections and General Elections. The Republican Party in this state is going to field candidates in the Primary Election, and in districts where you cannot lose a General Election you better start thinking about the primaries because the anti-incumbency is already there to the greatest extent in my lifetime, and we are not doing anything but fueling that particular feeling by how we are acting in this budget process. I would like to see at some point in time a more responsible position taken by rank-and-file Members in both caucuses, and I believe the place where that is going to have to start in the Republican Majority is going to be the two Senators who represent a great, great portion of the state employee population in this state.

Senator HOPPER. Mr. President, since my name was mentioned I guess I better say something. I went out in the hall when those people were going through the halls like a herd of cattle, and I mentioned that we had passed a stopgap because I felt they were complaining about not getting their paychecks. I was told that the other side of the House, the House of Representatives, and the Governor's Office under no circumstances would want a stopgap and the stopgap was for 30 days to see that those people got a paycheck to pay their car payments or buy groceries, or whatever, until a budget could be considered. I talked to some of the people, and I did go out in the hall downstairs because my office is on the first floor, and they were stampeding by there like a herd of cattle. I mentioned it to them and some of their leaders came over and said, yeah, but we want a budget. I said, well, that is being worked on, but the Constitution says that all tax bills—and Senator Fisher mentioned that it is Article III, Section 10—originate in the House of Representatives, and all we were trying to do was to get them a 30-day stopgap so they could get paid. So we did try.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, it had not been my intent initially to respond to the gentleman's remarks. However, I think, in light of the fact that there were Members named as far as their involvement in this process, it might be well to place on the record exactly what some of that involvement has been of the rank and file. Maybe the gentleman is not aware that both Senator Hopper and Senator Shumaker have been meeting on a regular basis with the state employees who are in this Capitol, that both men are extremely sensitive to the needs and the concerns and the hardships that are being experienced by those state workers who may have to suffer needlessly because their regular paychecks are not coming in a timely fashion. I might specifically note, Mr. President, that Senator Shumaker, in particular, did correspond with the Governor, Governor Casey, just yesterday and indicated to him that this Friday was a scheduled payday, once again, for tens of thousands of state employees and that the payment this week is due for the period of the last week of June and the first week of July. Based on the administrative order of Judge Craig, it was Senator Shumaker who requested of the Governor, and my understanding is today the Governor and Budget Secretary agreed that those workers will receive a check for one week, that last week of June, that will be paid in a timely fashion, if not exactly on Friday, as soon as the checks are processed the beginning of next week. So I think for the gentleman to say that they are not concerned about the process, not aware of the process is truly without any type of merit. I think, if anything, Senator Hopper and Senator Shumaker are to be commended for their lead and their sensitivity in trying to meet the needs of state employees during this time of budget crisis. I would also like to indicate, Mr. President, that I think when we talk about the process, at least the Majority on this side of the aisle has continuously tried to negotiate in good faith with or without our counterparts on the other side of the aisle. Just last evening, even though, unfortunately, the Minority Party was not able to be represented, we met with the Budget Secretary of this Commonwealth. We spent about three hours going over various components of a spending plan to try and gain input and resolve outstanding issues and also to get an assessment from the Budget Secretary as to what his views may be on some of those outstanding issues so that we could work collectively together as four caucuses in consonance with the Budget Secretary and the Governor to try and resolve some of those outstanding issues. In addition to that, late last evening I met with the Majority Leader and also the Majority Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations of the House up past midnight last night and this morning continued those meetings to try and resolve the budget crisis that is before us. In fact, at noontime today I had an opportunity to meet with the Governor himself to discuss the progress or lack of progress that was being made in the process, and it is my hope, Mr. President, that all parties involved in negotiations, all Members of this General Assembly, will work together in order that we can come to a satisfactory conclusion and put a budget into place that is going to address all needs of the citizens of this Commonwealth.

Senator LINCOLN. My, how that man has learned to talk. My, has he improved since I first met him and he became the Majority Leader. Incredibly well done, Joe. I think I have to say that my respect for you is growing in leaps and bounds, and I want to tell you how well you have presented your position, but I want to have an opportunity to maybe just go boop, boop, boop and shoot a little hole in it every once in a while. Incredible how we talk about good faith and we have been negotiating for so many weeks that it is hard for me to keep track, and we have not concluded one item where there is 100 percent agreement, not one. We get to 95 percent and then the Majority Party says, let us go to another issue. There has been a deliberate effort to keep anything from being concluded completely, because then we are taking a step towards conclusion of the process and then we have to come to the conclusion that we are going to vote for taxes, and that is the issue that seems to be the bottom line in this discussion, not what we are going to spend. I have found the Republican Party to be very, very cooperative in putting together a spending plan. It is when we start talking about taxes that they become a little less cooperative. I think it is interesting you are talking about your meeting with the Majority Party in the House and your meeting with the Governor, and I think it is safe for me to say, representing my leadership over here, you put something together and we will do what you have been doing for the last six months, we will tell you that we will give you two votes towards passing whatever you put together.

The second thing I would like to talk to Senator Hopper about is, yes, you did pass a stopgap, one that handled the medical assistance and debt service and cash grants. That was on Sunday, I think, the 30th of June. Then you did pass something else that was a 30-day, but it did not work. It did not work. Do you not understand that herd of cattle that goes by you in your hall is doing that because it did not work? We do not have a solution. We do not have a budget. We do not even have a stopgap because what was passed here was not workable. The House passed a budget. They sent a budget, a spending plan, to us with 102 Democrat votes that has been in this Committee on Appropriations since it passed and came to us. Wherever it is at, it is here. There is a budget here. All we have to do is bring it out of that Committee on Appropriations and pass it, and I want to tell you—we will go beyond that a little bit—in the Constitution that Senator Fisher read to us, he conveniently left out a sentence of the Constitution when he put it on the record that day, and Senator Hopper has conveniently quoted Senator Fisher, but there is another part of that Section 10 in the Constitution entitled "Revenue Bills" and it says, "All bills for raising revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives, but the Senate may propose amendments as in other bills." That is not a scapegoat for you guys and it is not an excuse for not doing it. If I represented a district that had as many state employees and my area benefited as much as this area does from having the Capitol in it, I would probably be walking with that herd of cattle when they went by my office and raising hell about my leadership not putting something on the agenda that I could vote for the taxes in the budget necessary to put that in place so that I would not have to have those people walking through my halls and disturbing my day. I want to say to you now that we are prepared, as we have been in the past, to put up our portion of the hard votes to make this work. Whatever that number may be, we are going to come to that conclusion at some point in time, and from what I hear and what I see and how we are doing it, it is going to be August 17th before we get the damn thing done. All I am saying to you today is that we are going to start pointing out where people should be showing their responsibility because of where they represent, and the very first place I believe we ought to be looking at is the two Republican Senators who represent the bulk of the state employees who work in this Capitol and provide a great deal of taxes for this area and a great deal of the prosperity, and I think it is incumbent upon them to lead the way if their leadership cannot do it.

On June 26, 1990, I introduced Senate Bill No. 1706 to establish a statewide program to continue health insurance coverage for persons with AIDS by having the state pay the cost of the premiums. My office worked with the Departments of Health, Public Welfare and Insurance to review my proposal and to determine the estimated savings. The work group determined that for every dollar we spent for insurance premiums, we would save between $7.00 and $8.00 that the medical assistance program otherwise would have spent. After a thorough review of the proposal, an application was submitted to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services for funding for the health insurance buy-in program under the Ryan White Comprehensive AIDS Resources Emergency Act on March 1, 1991.

I am very pleased to announce that the federal government has approved the proposal as a pilot program in the Philadelphia and Pittsburgh areas. Funding is available until March 31, 1993. By January 1, 1992, the first group of eligible individuals will be recruited, approved and have their insurance premiums paid by the pilot program. During the first year, we will evaluate the operations and the results and I expect that when the value of this program can be shown, it will be implemented on a statewide basis. Early estimates are that we can save over a million dollars a year by my proposal.

It is especially gratifying to me that a program that can assist people to continue their chosen course of health care can also save money that can be used by others in need of governmental help. I also want to thank the Departments of Health, Public Welfare and Insurance for helping to make my proposal a reality.

Section 6. Responsibilities of counties.

(a) General responsibilities.—Counties of the first through eighth class funded pursuant to this act shall assign a designated provider or providers in accordance with this act that shall:

(1) Establish protocols between local health departments, children and youth agencies, public and private hospitals and other appropriate local service providers regarding the identification of high-risk infants, the application and use of risk assessments and the coordination of available services.

(2) When referrals of high-risk infants are made, within 48 hours after birth or before hospital discharge if the physician determines a need for extended hospital care, conduct a child welfare risk assessment to determine the level of risk to the infant upon discharge into the existing home environment. Every effort should be made to persuade the mother to allow a risk assessment. If the designated provider's risk assessment indicates that the infant is at imminent risk of harm, or if the mother refuses to allow a risk assessment, the designated provider shall refer the infant to the appropriate county child protective services agency.

(b) Special programs available.—The designated provider or providers shall provide any of the following programs to the extent possible with the funds appropriated pursuant to this act:

(1) An infant follow-up program that includes the following elements:

(i) The ability to accept referrals of high-risk infants from any source.

(ii) The development of referral networks with other local agencies, organizations or persons who are likely to come into contact with high-risk infants.

(iii) The ability to provide up to 12 visits to the home during the first year of the infant's life. At each visit, the infant follow-up provider shall:

(A) Assess the health status of the high-risk infant.

(B) Assure that the family is receiving needed health and social support services.

(C) Provide health guidance and counseling to parents and caregivers.

(D) Provide post partum family planning counseling and instruction.

(E) Review the status of routine immunizations and well-baby care.

(F) Identify the need for and assist in gaining access to such existing services as:

(I) Alcohol or other drug treatment and detoxification programs, licensed under the act of April 14, 1972 (P.L.221, No.63), known as the Pennsylvania Drug and Alcohol Abuse Control Act.

(II) Medical assistance, under Title XIX of the Social Security Act (Public Law 74-271, 42 U.S.C. § 301 et seq.), including early perinodic screening, diagnosis and treatment for individuals under 21 years of age.

(III) Maternal and child health services as established under Title V of the Social Security Act.

(IV) The WIC program.

(V) Programs and services provided under the act of October 20, 1966 (3rd Sp.Sess., P.L.96, No.6), known as the Mental Health and Mental Retardation Act of 1966.

(VI) Early intervention services provided under the act of December 19, 1990 (P.L.1372, No.212), known as the Early Intervention Services System Act.

(VII) Services provided by a county children and youth social service agency.

(VIII) WIC agencies, family planning clinics, housing programs, county assistance offices, job-training programs, schools, shelters for the homeless and drug and alcohol treatment programs and centers.

(iv) Transportation on an as-needed basis for infant and post partum care.

(2) An outreach services program that includes the following elements:

(i) Outreach workers who canvas in carefully defined target areas and seek clients among well-defined target groups for high-risk infants.

(ii) Outreach workers who are able to communicate effectively with members of the target groups.

(iii) Telephone hotline and referral services that can make prenatal appointments during the initial call and can provide assistance to callers in arranging needed maternity, health and social services.

(iv) Television and radio spots and posters and other written information tailored to and easily understood by the target groups explaining the benefits of prenatal care, the need to begin prenatal care early in pregnancy and the procedure for enrolling in prenatal care.

(v) A system for referring pregnant women to Healthy Beginnings Plus and Maternal and Child Health Services Block Grant outreach services providers.

(vi) A system for referring pregnant women to, and providing outreach services to pregnant women already receiving services at, WIC agencies, family planning clinics, housing programs, county assistance offices, job-training programs, schools, shelters for the homeless, drug and alcohol treatment programs and centers and other health and social services providers.

(vii) Efforts to encourage current program participants to recruit additional participants from their friends, neighbors and relatives.

(viii) Home visiting by outreach workers as a means to follow up on missed appointments and as a means of providing social supports to pregnant women. The number of home visits may not be limited, but the department may require adequate documentation of the need for visits that exceed a preset target established for individuals in the group of which the pregnant woman is a member.

(ix) Transportation on an as-needed basis for prenatal care.

(x) Ambulance services to the pregnant woman's chosen delivery site.

(xi) Initial and ongoing training and supervision of outreach workers on the benefits of prenatal care, the need to begin prenatal care early in pregnancy and the referral systems established by the outreach services provider.

(3) Programs as set forth under both paragraphs (1) and (2).

Section 7. Immediate referrals to child protective services.

Nothing in this act shall be interpreted to prohibit any person from referring an infant to the appropriate county child protective services agency if the infant is found to be in imminent risk. Upon the referral of an infant to the appropriate county child protective services agency, the designated provider's responsibilities in section 6 are terminated.

Davis, 25 West Circle Drive, Camp Hill 17011, Cumberland County, Thirty-first Senatorial District, for reappointment as Secretary of Environmental Resources, to serve until the third Tuesday of January, 1995 and until his successor shall have been appointed and qualified.

ROBERT P. CASEY.

On the question,

Will the Senate advise and consent to the nomination?

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator STAPLETON. Mr. President, I would request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Fumo, Senator Lynch and Senator Mellow.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Stapleton requests temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Fumo, Senator Lynch and Senator Mellow. The Chair hears no objection. Those leaves will be granted.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVE CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT. Senator Jones is with us. Her temporary Capitol leave will be cancelled.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate advise and consent to the nomination?

Senator PETERSON. Mr. President, I rise reluctantly today to oppose the confirmation of Arthur Davis. I personally like Art Davis. In fact, I like him a lot. He is a nice man. But, I think we have to look at the record today of one of the most important departments that serves this Commonwealth and how it has served the public or has not served the public. I think throughout the '80s there was some improvement in a department that has always been controversial, that has always been difficult to deal with. I had hopes, when Art Davis came in as Secretary, that improvement would continue and that someday we would have a department that you could work with, that you could deal with, that the people could trust and work with, that you would not always have to be mediating for communities, for companies and for citizens who should be able to deal with government themselves. In the early '80s we had a department called PennDOT that was the most disliked, distrusted department in state government. We all knew that. The first few years, I was first a Member of the House in 1977, the first four or five years the majority of the problems I dealt with were PennDOT. Communities could not deal with PennDOT. Companies could not deal with PennDOT. People could not deal with PennDOT, a state agency that was out of touch with its people. We saw what Dick Thornburgh—and I know that this will raise some eyes on the other side—and Tom Larson did when leadership came to PennDOT. It was reorganized, computerized and became the best run department, in my view, in state government and maybe is yet today. That has not happened in DER. It was improving and that has stopped. In 1986, if my memory is correct, computerization was scheduled for that department, a department with tremendous record-keeping needs. Today in 1991 that computerization is not there. Let us take a look at what a department should or should not do. Let us take stock. Should a department of state government in its regional offices return the phone calls to local officials? Should the mayor of a community be able to get his telephone call answered and his letters answered? I think so. Often not so at DER. Should they get their mail answered in a timely fashion? I think so. Often not true at DER. I am not here to bash DER in toto. Just like PennDOT, the PennDOT that was irresponsible and unavailable and unable and unwilling to work with people. The people in that department were as frustrated as the citizens because the leadership was not there, and that is true of DER. There are a lot of good people in DER. In fact, the majority of them are good people and many of them have shared their frustrations with me. Let us go on. When you have a meeting with DER—I do not know how many you have, but I have had many of them in my district because it dominates my work, it dominates the work of my staff—it is not uncommon to have 10, 12 and 13 people at a meeting that DER is involved in. Is that management of people? It is no wonder they cannot get permits issued. It is no wonder they cannot get their work done when you have 13 people tied up in meetings all day when two or three should be able to do that. They do not manage their people. Should we as Legislators and as citizens be allowed to have information on the educational background and the work experience of DER employees? I think that should be public record. Last fall, I believe it was in August or September, I wrote a letter to Art Davis and I gave him a list of employees, and I asked for not their files, not their personnel records, I asked for their resumes, their colleges, what their education was, what their training was, what positions they filled and what work record they have. I felt that was information I needed and some of my communities needed because they had to deal with these folks. I have been stonewalled. I have followed that up with phone calls. I questioned Arthur Davis in the hearings and he was going to get back to me. As of this day I have no information on those employees that I asked for last fall. Those letters were faxed to his office four and five times after discussions with his legislative liaison. No action. They do not think we have the right to know the resumes and the work records of people who are serving us in DER.

Bureau of Forestry. Now there is one of the bright stars, I think, in DER, a bureau that I think has sort of been neglected for a couple of decades, one very important to Pennsylvania because of the quality of its forests and the great amount of land we own. We own more land than most states, several million acres to manage, and a lot of the service they provide to individuals also. Would you not think that the Bureau of Forestry would flourish when the manager of DER is a forester himself and his deputy is a forester? Well, you look at the record. The Bureau of Forestry has not flourished and only because of legislative pressure in the last couple of years has any additional effort been made to promote the Bureau of Forestry and the service they provide.

State Parks. Have they flourished under this administration? I think not. If you cannot flourish when a forester is at the top, I think those people have given up. I was at a meeting, a public event last Friday. I was approached by a person that just happened to be there who worked for the Bureau of Forestry. Of course, he was interested in getting his paycheck. I was also approached by a person who works for the state park system. Of course, he was interested in getting his paycheck. Both of them, after discussing the paycheck issue, said to me, you know, it is unfortunate that we have to wear the DER badge and we are not the bad guys. The people who have given this department the bad name are the people who do not wear the badges. We have to wear a DER badge. Is there not some way you can get us out from under this department that we are dying in?

I will give you three or four examples here quickly of issues that I think point this out. I have a small company just a few miles from my home that has been growing. There were 20 employees and then there were 40 employees and I believe there are about 70 employees today. As they grew they kept expanding and they were having some problems with their sewage system. They did the prudent thing. As they built their last building they called DER and said, what do we need to do? Folks, this was 16 months ago. They went to DER and said, tell us what kind of a system would be legal, tell us what kind of a system would work. What is okay? We will do it. No problem. It took that bureaucracy 16 months. I want to tell you if it had not been for me and other people raising hell again, again and again, they would not have gotten their permit last week. They would still be struggling to get that permit so they could put in a system that would handle their sewage. They are in a very rural area. They are out there by themselves. They are isolated. It should not take 16 months to get a simple permit.

To show you an attitude, several years ago I had a company in my district that had been struggling with air quality emissions, and each year they were spending hundreds of thousands of dollars trying to make a system that the designing people said should work. Well, it was not working, and when they would get to capacity they were not meeting the air quality standards. This company got new ownership and was really willing to make a commitment to the environment so they wrote DER a letter and in that letter they said, we do not want to spend the $200,000 we said we would to modify our air pollution equipment, we want to put in a brand new system and we will spend $11 million for state of the art. We already have the design people working overtime. We are committed to meeting the air quality standards in Pennsylvania and no longer having this problem. You know what kind of an answer they got? Instead of thank you, God bless you, we will help you, they got a letter back saying, well, in your letter of such and such a date, when you gave up on your present system you have publicly admitted to us that you did not meet air quality standards the last three years. Because of that we are going to fine you, and they were given a multi-million dollar fine, and if my memory is correct, it was $88,000 a day thereafter. Sure, I got a call. The president from New York about collapsed. He never, never had been treated like that, and he owns companies all over this country. He had never been treated like that before. He could not believe it was happening to him, that he made a commitment of $11 million to put in a brand new state-of-the-art system and here he was looking at a multi-million dollar fine. We negotiated for months and we got the fine down to where it was more reasonable but it was still excessive, but that shows you the mentality.

I want to give you another example, and I have this person's permission. This person has spent most of his life in state government. He was a PennDOT district engineer in my district and a very good public servant. He left the department a few years ago and went into consulting work, which he had been in before. As a consultant he took on the job of helping a man put in a little lodge, a 20 bedroom lodge and a dining room up in my district. He was told by people that he had a year to accomplish the fact of getting a sewage permit for an expanded sewage system for that facility. They told him if you do not go to a politician and get help, you will never have your permit. He said, I do not believe that. I have been in government all my life and I know how to deal with bureaucracies. I know how to deal with bureaucrats and I will make it work.

You know this outfit wanted to be open by Decoration Day because in the tourism business from Decoration Day to Labor Day is when you make your money, and about three or four weeks before opening time he came running and said, I apologize that I did not get you involved before but I said I was going to do it myself, I understood government, I knew how government worked. I spent most of my life in government, but I want to tell you, that system is no better than the PennDOT I used to work for. It does not work. I have done everything. I got to the point where I cannot get my phone calls returned and I cannot get my letters returned. He said, I want to tell you I need your help. We helped him, and I think the day before Decoration Day we got the permit issued, but I want to tell you it was not easy and it should not be that way.

Another problem that has been pointed out to me is the department is really being run by the legalese, the legal beagles. I have been told by many people in the department today, because of a lack of management, the lawyers are writing the regulations, not the policy people, not the people who understand oil and gas, not the people who understand coal production, not the people who understand timber harvesting and all the other things they deal with. It is the lawyers who are writing the regulations, and the people who have worked in those fields with 15 and 20 years' experience and know what they are doing get so tired of fighting with the legal people in DER that they give up and they roll over and they let the lawyers write the regulations, and that is why our people cannot deal with them. It is a department that does not want a public debate on a lot of issues. They want to write regulations. A couple of examples are wetlands. They are running a wetland program, in my opinion, illegally. I do not think we have ever passed a law in this Commonwealth to deal with wetlands. We have never debated wetlands on this floor. We have never had a budget with the word "wetlands" in it and any money beside its name. Now we have a blackfly program. It is listed in the budget. We have a gypsy moth program. It is listed in the budget. But there is no wetlands program in our old budgets or in our proposed budgets.

Does Art Davis want debate? No.

Does he want a bill passed like we want in the Senate? No.

He wants to write wetlands laws through regulation. I do not think that is appropriate. I think preserving wetlands, the role DER plays in general is the most important agency we have, but it should not be run by bureaucrats writing regulations. We had the gasoline volatility issue that we debated on this floor that we wanted to deal with legislatively; soil and sedimentation, where we had to vote down their regulations through a process that had never been done before because they were a department that would not listen, a department that did not have its ear out there to what would work, to what could get the job done.

I asked several people who I really respect—they are not radicals, they are not people who speak out a lot—and I said to them, give me your view. You work with DER on a regular basis. Give me your view. This one person who I trust as much as I trust anybody said, DER has no sense anymore of public responsibility. They use the technical part of rules, laws and regulations to delay the decision process, instead of getting it done. How do they do that? They use the 90-day rule. Because of this problem in the past, we put rules in that they have to make decisions within a certain number of days. On the 89th day they ask for some more information and the 90-day clock starts again. I have dealt with people who have been going through that process for five, six, seven years and have never seen the light at the end of the tunnel. I asked another fellow who does legal work and does basically environmental issues with four or five states. He told me that he felt Pennsylvania DER is an agency that has lost sight of its mandate. It is too often used as too much subjectivity and application of its standards. I think as you look at the record of this department, we have a department that has lost its direction. We have a department that no longer is serving us well. It does not just restrain trade and business, it restrains protecting the environment. Many of the decisions they need to make, and they labor over for months and years, when they are not made timely, that does not protect our environment, that hurts our environment. It is a department that is too often confronttational, too often subjective in its decisions. It is a department that has become the champions of delay, the champions of no decision. It is a department with no clear direction. It is a department that needs to find its way. It is a department that needs a leader.

The people of Pennsylvania deserve a Department of Environmental Resources that is tough but fair. Some say, well, people will never like DER. The State Police of Pennsylvania are highly regarded and they do nothing but arrest people. They do nothing but fine people. They do nothing but put people in jail. People do not hate the State Police. People do not hate the Department of State. People do not hate the Attorney General's Office. They are all prosecutors and people would not hate, and I used the word hate, the Department of Environmental Resources if they were fair, if they got a fair hearing, if their issues were debated and taken care of in a timely fashion. The people in my district are frustrated. The people in my district are angry. We have lost thousands of jobs because of their delay. We have lost all kinds of progress because they will not or cannot make a decision. I think it is time this department of state government has a leader who will lead them out of the wilderness because they have been lost there for a long time. It is time for new leadership at DER. The people in the department deserve it. There are a lot of good people there and it is not a personal attack on their present leader. This job was not cut out for him. We need new leadership in DER and I ask you to not confirm Arthur Davis.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I am glad that the former speaker, my preceding speaker, said at the end that he was asking for a "no" vote because I was not sure by listening to his remarks just what the final conclusion and the bottom line of those remarks was going to be because it sounded more like an indictment of a system that he helped create and perpetuate over the years than something that Secretary Davis has had all that much to do with. He talked about public responsibility. During the Thornburgh Administration we had a Secretary of DER who left here with a desk full of violations and fines that had never, ever been acted upon. Every one of those had something to do with the environment and damage to the environment. Through the Thornburgh years we saw the reduction of state dollars used to pay payroll over there down to 49 percent. They were taking all the federal money and putting it into administration and cutting forces. The state park problem we have to this day is because so many wage and hour jobs have been cut out and they were cut out during the eight years of the Thornburgh Administration. It was such a disabling budgetary action that it actually has had an impact on our state parks to the magnitude that the House Democrats recognized that and passed a $300 million bond issue, with $100 million of that going to trying to solve our state park problems. During this administration—the preceding speaker was so critical of the guardianship of Secretary Davis—we have seen an effort made to revitalize those state parks. We have gone out and taken a look at all the problems and there have been recommendations that have come over here in each budget to do something about the maintenance problems, particularly in the state park system. We have given this department the responsibility of handling one of the most difficult tasks that any agency has ever had, and that is to deal with solid waste according to the law we have passed here in the General Assembly. We have a low level nuclear siting problem. I stood on the floor of this Senate a couple years ago and offered a series of amendments that would have opened that process up to where with all the problems that everybody is complaining about now, there would have been a great deal more public input, and there were 27 Republican Senators who voted "no" on the amendments and there were 22 Democrats who voted "yes" on seven or eight amendments. We talk about the underground storage bill that has been put into place that is causing a great deal of havoc in the department because we have not given them the staff to handle that particular issue.

PENNVEST. Something that everybody in this room who lives in a rural area or even in some of the urban areas, PENNVEST has been the most successful program in my 19 years in this General Assembly, and Art Davis' leadership as Chairman of the PENNVEST Board and Secretary of Environmental Resources has played an outstanding part in the success of that program.

We heard a little bit of complaining about the wetlands issue. Last Session I was one of the cosponsors of a bill, and I believe it was Senate Bill No. 1310. I do not control the committee system. The Majority Party does, the party of the preceding speaker. That wetlands issue was never faced because some people wrote some letters and said they do not think we should be dealing with it, and Senate Bill No. 1310, which was an excellent start of what could have finally been an outstanding piece of legislation, was never dealt with. That is the problem with DER. Many of the issues that are difficult to deal with that have to generate from within the General Assembly are not given any attention because it is easier not to deal with them. It is easier to let them slide. It is easier to get to the microphone and complain about Art Davis or whoever may be the Secretary over there and quote anonymous employees who are discontented for some reason or another. We have all kinds of problems out there to deal with in the environmental world, and a lot of the problem is that the department has not been funded for a lot of years to the point they should be. I am saying to you that we could probably double their budget right now and it might not take care of the problem, plus getting good employees over there is a problem because of the fact that private industry pays engineers and they pay the geologists and all the other people a hell of a lot more money than state government does and they get a lot better choice, plus a lot of people work there for a while and get their training and then leave and go to work for private industry somewhere. Can that be laid at the feet of Art Davis? I think that is probably one of the most incredibly unjust things that I can see, and I have not really seen much in this General Assembly that could equal how irresponsible it is to lay at the feet of Art Davis the ills of a lot of years at DER. I think it is unfair to him personally. I cannot think of anybody who has done a better job under the restrictions that we in the General Assembly have placed him under over the past years. I think if you are discontented with DER, fine. If you want to say it is going to be a protest vote against Art Davis because I am discontented with DER, that I cannot get a permit through or that somebody does not do what I ask him to do or one of the district offices got some jerk that I cannot stand, that is a different story because I have heard that for 19 years through a number of different secretaries and three different governors. But I do not believe we have a more outstanding individual in state government than Art Davis, and I think if he is foolish enough to want to continue to do that job, which he evidently is, I think he brings to that job the kind of credentials, the kind of determination and the openness and willingness to deal with issues on an individual basis with people in your district or with you as a Legislator. I believe it is entirely unbecoming of anyone to come before this Body and lay criticism on him for a system that he inherited and he has done a good job of running. It is a hell of a lot better now than it was in 1986. I can tell you that much. I would ask you not to listen to that kind of diatribe on the affairs of state within that department. Yes, there are bureaucrats over there, and, yes, there are things that may be done that could be done quicker, but I can tell you one thing, I have never seen them do anything that would be damaging to the environment, and that is what they are there for. They are not there to provide jobs. They are not there to provide a means of getting something done quicker. They are there to protect the environment. That is their charge. If you do not believe it, go back to the act that originated DER and you will find out that their job is to protect the environment. They just happen to have been thrown into a world created by a president in Washington who has killed our economy here in Pennsylvania, and his vice president who then got elected who has even killed it further. To try to find an excuse for getting around some of the tough environmental laws that we passed here in the General Assembly by saying they ought to just roll over and play dead over there, and that is exactly what the preceding speaker was saying, that whatever we ought to throw at them in a form of a contract, whatever we throw at them in the form of an application for a permit, they ought to just run it through and get it done because that is the important thing. There are days when I feel somewhat uncomfortable with the process over there, but I guarantee you that it is not Art Davis. Art Davis has done an outstanding job, and I believe that he deserves every vote in this Senate to give him the kind of mandate he needs to go ahead and do the job in the future.

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, we will confirm Art Davis today for another term as Secretary of the Department of Environmental Resources, but I think many of us need to indicate our unhappiness and dissatisfaction with the time he has served as Secretary. You get the job as Secretary, or any other kind of job, I guess you apply for it on your credentials, and certainly Art Davis has fine credentials. If you talk with Art Davis you will find a very kind and compassionate and warm individual, and these are all very important things, but I think what Art does not seem to have is that dynamic leadership to try to make something happen at DER. That is a very important part of state government, and you must have someone there who can make things happen. I cannot really point to one accomplishment of Art Davis during the period of time he has been the Secretary, and there are certainly lots of areas for him to get involved in in order to try to establish some accomplishments, but I cannot point to any.

I look at the Solid Waste Act that we passed, and under his leadership I see it spiraling ever higher and higher so that fewer and fewer companies will be able to be involved in the process, so we are going to make very, very wealthy those who can provide for the solid waste landfills, but we are going to drive all others out of the business. What is the answer? I do not know what the answer is, but then I am not the Secretary of DER. I think it is his job to try to seek out answers for us. We will eventually say we are doing a better job because we will reduce volumes of household and other solid waste that would normally go into the landfills, but do you know how we are going to reduce those volumes? We are going to reduce those volumes because it would be so expensive to use the landfills that people will not be using them. They will go to the old-fashioned midnight hauling in which they go out in their car at night and throw things out the window and continue to litter the countryside, as they did once before, and they will be back at it again. Whenever the cost of landfilling becomes so great that you are being told you are allowed so many bags of household waste to be placed at the curb, as will come, or so much weight, and beyond that you have to pay extra, and we will not be paying extra, we will go out in the midnight hauling and throw things out the window. I do not see Art Davis trying to help solve this kind of problem but only make it more difficult for anyone to be getting into that type of business.

I also find in the department a department that cannot seem to separate or to establish priorities of how you solve problems. It seems to me that in this great industrial State of Pennsylvania we have created a lot of problems that need to be attended to. They certainly were not created intentionally by anybody but they, nevertheless, were created. We need to attend to them and we need to establish priorities so the monies we have available to solve these problems can be, in fact, placed on those problems that are the most severe, letting those problems that are not nearly so severe to a later time. Yet, I find in one of my counties, Mifflin County, a very small community with a company called Whitehall, and the Whitehall Company has about 48 customers. The average income for these 48 customers is about $18,000 a year. They have a surface system that provides water. The water is pure. There is nothing wrong with the water. It is good water, and yet they are told by DER that they have to put in a filtration system that is going to cost about a half a million dollars. These 48 people do not have a half a million dollars to put in a filtration system, but yet that does not matter. They have to anyway. When I held a public meeting there, I said to the people from DER, tell us what you are going to do to these people if, in fact, they just do not do it? I was told, well, we may have to put them in jail. So one of the Amish farmers who was one of the 48 customers said, well, describe jail to me. I will describe what I go through every day milking cows by hand. Maybe jail is better. Obviously, jail is not better. They cannot go to PENNVEST because their water is pure, and PENNVEST monies are going first priority to those communities, and I think rightly so, that have difficulties solving their various impurities that are in the water system. So where does a company like Whitehall go? It seems to me common sense would say we tell them you do not really have a severe problem. We are not going to insist that you go into filtration but we will wait until another time and allow you additional time to solve your problem. I could talk about many Whitehalls all across the six counties I represent where DER just does not seem to have common sense to establish priorities of solving problems but jumps in there saying we are going to solve all the problems today, regardless if you have a problem.

Also, I think the Secretary has given a lot of his responsibilities to the legal staff, which must be gigantic, because it seems like you cannot really ever deal with that department in sitting down with problem solvers but you must deal with legal people who immediately want to get whomever it is who seems to be in trouble under a consent agreement before we can decide how to solve the problem. When you get into their consent agreements they really, in many instances, want to make that participant look like a very bad person or a bad group of people, and that is why we have to have these consent agreements.

Recently we had a longstanding battle between the University Area Joint Authority in the Centre Region near State College and the department over how to solve some problems they had. Finally, the University Area Joint Authority decided to succumb to the pressure of the state, but the state insisted in the agreement they would sign that they had to admit they were bad people, that they had dragged the state out far too long and they were bad people who served on this authority. How ludicrous can you be? While the University Area Joint Authority maybe disagreed on how to solve the problem, never did they disagree that the problem should be solved, and the way DER insists on pounding down people when they come up with consent agreements I think is just ludicrous.

Finally—I am not going to speak here much longer—I just want to share with you what is so very disappointing is the department is saying—and you know, you can say if you want to scream about the department, we will do that, and if you want to scream about the Secretary, we will do that. It seems to me a president once had a sign on his desk that the buck stops here, and it seems to me in DER the buck stops with the Secretary and the Secretary does not even believe in doing as he says. He says when you want to do various things that might affect the environment we will have public hearings and sort it out, but he does not even do that when he does it on his own. There is an area in Clinton County where we have a state forest that the Secretary decided without a public hearing, without any monitoring wells, without any bonding of the people who would be involved, to just bring Philadelphia's sewage sludge and spread it in a forested area, an area that was destroyed by fire, and we are going to revegetate it much quicker with this Philadelphia sewage sludge. Well, the idea may be a good idea and I may have supported the idea, but I would think when you are talking about things like sewage sludge, bringing it into a rural area and putting it in the mountains where there was a forest fire, that, by golly, there ought to have been a public hearing. We ought to know exactly how it is going to be done. We ought to know what kind of monitoring devices the department would put in place to know things would be done right and, by God, we ought to know if it does not work right that someone is going to be there to fund whatever it is we need to do to right whatever wrong has been done, and this department did not do it that way. He just said, let us do it, and it was done. I think Arthur Davis is a warm, compassionate person who I enjoy talking with. A leader of this department, he certainly is not. I would wish we had enough colleagues who would vote "no" today and get someone else to head this very important department, but that is not going to happen. We will confirm Art today, but I wish he would think about the things I have said today and provide us with new leadership in the next term.

Senator PORTERFIELD. Mr. President, I had many difficulties with DER over the last three years, but I have also found that Secretary Davis is fully aware of the problems DER has. It is personnel. Its various departments create quite a monster as far as being able to supervise, not to mention the logistics of the department, and, as we know over the past several years, permits, lengthy process time, complaints about quality of personnel, all these things are things I have discussed with the Secretary. In the last several months I have had difficulties in my area with septic haulers. The permitting process needs much revamping.

I will be brief in my statements, Mr. President. Mr. Davis has seen fit that the Secretary knows the problems of his department and, therefore, the restructuring plan was put into place two months ago. I know the problems of DER. I think everybody in this Body and in the House knows the problems, and I think people in business in the communities and individuals know that there are problems with DER for the simple reason we have many problems with our environment. The growth of the population, air and water quality are very important things that have been brought to our attention over the past several decades. Secretary Davis is interested in addressing these very important issues, and I believe he will do so. Therefore, Mr. President, I urge the other Members of this Body to vote in the affirmative and give Mr. Davis a chance to put that restructuring plan and personnel in place.

Senator ANDREZESKI. Mr. President, I stand to encourage Members to vote for the confirmation of Secretary Arthur Davis to DER. I find it interesting that we stand here as a Body year after year and pass laws to protect the environment and then rail against the laws, pass other laws to rescind and change the laws and then go after those whom we have empowered to enforce the laws. We have heard a variety of scenarios where things were not done, permits were not issued and at 89 days the process started again, but some of the other issues that I have seen in my district also include homeowners who have bought homes that are literally in swamps where people have been able to put a road in and drain a swamp, build the homes and every time it rains they have a stream going over their property. We have whole areas where sump pumps are working 24 hours a day because they are in wetlands with homes.

Do we need some regulation? Yes.

Do we need enforcement? Yes.

It is unpopular to do these things and it is unpopular for people to somehow accept the fact that we cannot be all things to all people all the time, but I would like to say that we do have some responsibility as a Body and as a whole to help to protect the environment. Those who do this often are not very popular. Those who do this try to act in a professional manner, in my opinion, most of the time. I would hope that we as a Body would confirm Secretary Davis.

In closing, I again find it ironic that after we pass all these bills to protect ourselves from the environment, we rail against those things we passed.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I hope that Secretary Davis has been listening today to the debate because I think he will find how intensely some people feel about the department and about the job which he has done over the past four years, or the past four and a half years now, as the Secretary of the Department of Environmental Resources.

I had the opportunity for four of my ten years when I served as Chairman of the Committee on Environmental Resources and Energy to serve and to work closely with Art Davis when he was the Secretary of the department. Certainly Art Davis is a true gentleman. Art Davis is a very, very decent person. He is also an environmentalist. He brings a background to the department that, perhaps, few of the recent Secretaries have brought to that department. But at the same time, although I have had few personal complaints with Secretary Davis himself about things he has done as Secretary of that department, I have had many complaints that I have voiced for myself, complaints that I have voiced for other Members, complaints that I have had from constituents about problems and particularly about policy of the Department of Environmental Resources. I have heard the complaints today that have been discussed by my colleagues, the gentleman from Venango, Senator Peterson, and the gentleman from Centre, Senator Corman. I have heard the praise that has been heaped upon the Secretary by my colleagues on the other side of the aisle, particularly the gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln. I think that, clearly, when you look at the Department of Environmental Resources, it is not all black or white. The problems that we have seen under the Davis administration existed before Art Davis came and I suspect that many of those problems will continue to exist if, in fact, Art Davis leaves today or whenever Art Davis leaves. The department was not perfect under the Thornburgh Administration, but the problems have continued. I think what you see and what Secretary Davis, if he has listened, has heard is that many of those problems, instead of getting better, have gotten worse under his stewardship as the Secretary of that department. This is not a condemnation of all the employees at the department. I think I have had, in fact, a very good working relationship with some of the employees, particularly the employees in the southwestern region around Allegheny County. The one thing I have seen in my perspective as chairman of that committee is what I would categorize as at least a partial condemnation of the policy that has been established by the department under Secretary Davis. That policy, I think, has most importantly fostered itself in what I believe would probably be a record number of vetoes of environmental legislation that passed through this General Assembly during any particular administration or any particular governor. I would be willing to bet we had more laws vetoed dealing with the environment during the last four years than any environmental laws in recent years. When you look at that, I think it points to a breakdown, if not a complete at least a partial breakdown, of a working relationship with this Chamber and the other Chamber of the General Assembly. These were not just Republican initiatives. These were initiatives in the coal area, the oil and gas area, problems we dealt with with heavy manufacturers, problems which little business people such as service station dealers face. Certainly, those kinds of policy initiatives and the wrong course of those policy initiatives are items which really have to be laid at the feet of the Secretary, but, yet, as there were failures there also were achievements. I had the opportunity as chairman to work with Secretary Davis on what I think is landmark legislation—Act 101, other legislation dealing with PENNVEST which was shaped jointly by this Chamber, the Hazardous Sites Clean-up Act, which was shaped jointly with both caucuses in this Chamber, and there have been some accomplishments. But yet there continues to be pending problems, problems in the direction of how we will enforce a wetlands policy in this Commonwealth and whether or not a wetlands policy should be enacted under policy as opposed to legislation as defined by the Senate and by the House.

Mr. President, I heard my colleague, the gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, say that Secretary Davis did an outstanding job as Secretary of this department for the past four years. I have to disagree with that. I do not think he did an outstanding job but I think Secretary Davis, a decent man, did a decent job. I think when I look at the qualifications and when I look at the position I am going to take based on my years of experience, I recognize that this Governor has the opportunity and has, under the Constitution, the prerogative of picking his Secretary. I would hope that Secretary Davis, if he is confirmed, and I suspect that he will be confirmed, will take very seriously the things that have been said here, will take very seriously, the decent man that he is and a man with unique capabilities in this region, the challenge which he will have in the next four years to truly make some changes, to truly make a difference in this department and truly make a difference to make the kinds of changes that can bring about the kind of environmental policy that I believe many of us have tried to foster. That is a strong, clean, healthy environment with a recognition of the importance of economic development, particularly at a time in this state when all of us feel so strongly about continuing to produce jobs in Pennsylvania.

No, I do not think Secretary Davis did an outstanding job, but I think he is a decent man. I think he is a fine man. I am going to vote for him, but I certainly hope that he takes to mind and to heart those things that have been said here and the shortcomings that those of us who have spoken have tried to point out objectively.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I would request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Bortner and Senator Dawida.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Tilghman and Senator Loeper.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Lincoln requests temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Bortner and Senator Dawida. Senator Fisher asks for temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Tilghman and Senator Loeper. The Chair hears no objection. Those leaves will be granted.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate advise and consent to the nomination?

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I have heard several speakers say they hoped that Secretary Davis is listening and will take some heed to the direction in which this debate has gone. I would say to those speakers I am here and I do not know what direction this has gone. I do not know how on one hand there can be such very serious criticism of an individual and then a well, I am going to vote for him kind of an attitude, and I think that is really more unfair than standing up and saying I am going to vote against him because I believe he has not done a good job. I think it is unfair because there are four areas that I have written down here while this debate has been going on that Art Davis has been a national leader in, and that is PENNVEST, he has been a national leader; recycling, he has been a national leader; toxic waste cleanup, he and Pennsylvania have been a national leader; hazardous waste protection, one of the few states that has the courage to take the positions we have taken. And, yes, a lot of that generated from here in the General Assembly, that legislation and the ultimate laws that were passed, but Art Davis has taken what we have given that department and done an outstanding job nationally. I also wonder when I hear about Philly sludge. Ladies and gentlemen, Philly sludge was a long time ago. It was during the Thornburgh Administration that we passed laws because of what the Thornburgh Administration allowed with Philly sludge and Baltimore sludge and all the other places. That is not a problem in any of the rural districts anymore because this administration has done something about it and Art Davis has led that fight. Also, we will talk about Act 101 which is probably the best solid waste act in this country. One aspect of that act that Art Davis had to lead as the Secretary of Environmental Resources, there were 75 solid waste sites in this Commonwealth that had to be repermited within 24 months, and each one of those applications was anywhere from six inches to a foot thick. Over one million pages were submitted. It took one thousand hours; one thousand work hours to review that part of this process, and out of all of this we have 43 brand new permitted sites and 32 of them did not meet the law. A couple of people in this Senate were so upset that we would not allow environmentally unsound solid waste sites to continue to exist that they actually came here and passed a law that allowed two of them to continue. Do not blame Secretary Davis. He has done exactly what we have dictated and he has done it well. I do not believe anybody should say they are going to vote for him simply because he is a nice guy. The record says he has done a great job. He has been a very low-key, outstanding leader and he does not deserve to be treated like he is being treated here today, but he deserves a mandate to continue to do a very difficult job and to do it in the very good manner that he has. I personally would like to see a 50-0 vote, or however many Members are on the voting rolls today. Art Davis has done a good job. He is going to continue to do a good job, and we are going to continue to give him good legislation and good laws for him to enforce over there. I would ask that we do not let our individual dealings with certain DER people throughout the state color what we are talking about. We are talking about the Secretary, not some inspector or some reviewer, or whatever. Art Davis has done a good job and he deserves to be reconfirmed and we give him the strength that we have from within this Body to go out and do a good job for the next three and a half years.

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I only want to correct the record and indicate that the sewage sludge I spoke of was hauled into Clinton County, Pennsylvania, from Philadelphia during the years of 1990 and 1991.

Senator PETERSON. Mr. President, I was not going to speak again, but due to recent comments from the gentleman from Fayette, I feel compelled to. When the statement was made that Legislators here have actually passed laws to allow landfills to continue, I will challenge the gentleman from Fayette to prove that in court because that is not the truth. Those landfills have never even been cited for problems. Just because a member of the Sierra Club made those irresponsible statements to the Associated Press, I talked with the attorney who was involved in that issue just the other day, and he talked about the ridiculousness of those statements in what was said. Those two landfills were allowed to continue to take waste through September. There were a lot of good reasons for that, but I will not go into that today, but those statements were highly inaccurate. Being that I am back at the mike, the gentleman also alluded that I was angry about tough enforcement. That is not what I am angry about. I am angry about unfair enforcement. Let me give you something to show you how a department that has the wrong attitude and is not well managed does not serve us well environmentally. A couple of years ago on Easter Sunday, I got a call from a constituent who said, I have had it. I said, sir, it is Easter Sunday. I am with my family. I am trying to have a nice day. He said, well, I have fought this problem for four or five years, and I have had it. I have a neighbor who has a tank in his basement where he collects his sewage and every so often he has a grinder and he grinds it up and pumps it out into the ditch. I said, well, he cannot do that. He said, I have had DER here, and they will not do anything about it. Well, we know what happened. I called DER and they gave me the song and dance. I told them they either fix that—they said there was no statute, they had to catch the guy. They had to see him pump it into the ditch. When I got on that agent of DER, it got fixed. That person got prosecuted and that problem was taken care of.

There is a problem presently that I think the Senator from Erie ought to be interested in, where there are two sour gas wells where people have been hospitalized several times. The only time DER comes to the scene is when we apply pressure, and they have been lackadaisical in their efforts to solve that problem. They claim they do not have the equipment and they have at times. We have actually had more help from the Health Department than we have had from DER. These are people who have been ill for almost a year now because of pollution from two gas wells where when they clean the gas they put pollutants into the air and these people have actually been hospitalized. DER has been rude to them at times, has hung up on them at times, and has as much as left these people hanging. That is not an agency that is doing its job.

I just want to share one final incident with you that happened this year. If you have not heard about the Snowman farm, you ought to. The Snowman farm in Potter County is where a disgruntled former employee of a farmer, one of the finest citizens of Potter County, came to DER after he got fired and said, my boss has had an illegal dump on his farm for years and you need to do something about it. DER did their real thorough investigation and they said, boy, this is terrible. I could not find a neighbor, a farmer or anybody in that region of soil service, no one who deals with environmental issues that had ever been interviewed by DER. They did not do an adequate investigation. What they did was enjoin the Attorney General's Office. They marched in there in unison with 20 people with guns on their sides. They walked up to the farmer and they said, we are seizing this piece of property. We are fencing it off. You cannot come on it. You cannot watch. You cannot take pictures. Yes, that happened with the Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Resources. They did not do an adequate, thorough investigation. This man went through hell. This man almost lost his health over this. In fact, the person they were dealing with was the son who had just inherited the farm from his father. A disgruntled employee—DER runs off very unwisely. I will not use the word I was going to use. It is not appropriate here—puts this family through absolute hell. They asked the advice of my staff person for split samples. Every sample you take from this farm, we want one. They have the right. That is law. They are allowed. DER only gave them one out of about 20 samples. It took six months to have the tests back, and it was only from pressure of our office that they finally completed the tests. You know what? They did not find anything significant. This family was put through hell because DER did not do an adequate investigation first, and I want to tell you the threat that was on them with pesticides and herbicides, which every farmer uses and most farmers have put in dumps over the years, the waste cans and so forth, could be challenged with the same thing. That is a department that is not serving us well. That is a department that uses fear and intimidation to scare people. That is not what enforcement is about. Those are not the big bad polluters we want DER to go out and chase, some farmer who is trying to make a living raising potatoes. I do not think so.

In conclusion, I have a friend who has been in the department for many years. He is a supervisor, and he said it is pretty common because of their lack of adequate records, because of their lack of adequate computers. Most people ought to be really doing the job, not spending their time in the caves of all of their offices, going through cardboard file boxes where their records are kept. It is a department that has lost its way. It is a department that needs a Tom Larson type of person to come in here and reorganize it, enforce our laws toughly and fairly but get the job done. Make a decision yes or no. Stamp the permit approved or disapproved. Do not take 16 months. Do not take 18 months. Do not jerk people's lives around. Do not make us in western Pennsylvania lose thousands of jobs because you will not make a decision.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, very briefly, I think I heard the gentleman from Venango, Senator Peterson, say that he would like for me to prove in court whatever took place. I do not have to. It is a matter of public record. The reason why those two people, those two nonpermitted landfills in his district were denied their permits was because they refused to file the applications like the other 75 in Pennsylvania. They refused to do it on a timely basis. They refused to put any information before the department. Instead they ran to Senator Peterson and he passed a law here—and I did not say his name before, but he did—that allowed two unpermitted—questionably whether they were environmentally safe or not—landfills to continue, and he has the gall to stand up and be critical of the department for enforcing the law. Come on. What are we all about here today? I mean, that was done unabashedly and very boldly on the floor here. Instead of going through the same procedure that everybody else went through, those two landfills went to him and he was able to circumvent the law. I do not have to go to court for that. It is a matter of record here in our Journal and down at the department.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate advise and consent to the nomination?

The yeas and nays were required by Senator SALVATORE and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—42

Afflerbach	Fumo	Lincoln	Reibman
Andrezeski	Greenleaf	Loeper	Rhoades
Armstrong	Greenwood	Lynch	Salvatore
Baker	Hart	Madigan	Scanlon
Belan	Helfrick	Mellow	Schwartz
Bodack	Holl	Musto	Shumaker
Bortner	Jones	O'Pake	Stapleton
Brightbill	Jubelirer	Pecora	Tilghman
Dawida	LaValle	Porterfield	Wenger
Fattah	Lemmond	Punt	Williams
Fisher	Lewis

NAYS—6

Bell	Hopper	Robbins	Shaffer
Corman	Peterson

A constitutional majority of all the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Governor be informed accordingly.

NOMINATION TAKEN FROM THE TABLE

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I call from the table certain nomination and ask for its consideration.

The Clerk read the nomination as follows:

INSURANCE COMMISSIONER

May 9, 1991.

To the Honorable, the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

In conformity with law, I have the honor hereby to nominate for the advice and consent of the Senate, The Honorable Constance B. Foster, 1079 Beech Avenue, Hershey 17033, Dauphin County, Fifteenth Senatorial District, for reappointment as Insurance Commissioner, to serve until the third Tuesday of January, 1995 and until her successor shall have been appointed and qualified.

ROBERT P. CASEY.

On the question,

Will the Senate advise and consent to the nomination?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, for the sake of the rest of the Members, I am not going to bore them. I intend to vote "no," and I will submit my remarks for the record.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair appreciates the gesture. Without objection, the Senator's remarks will be spread upon the record at this point.

(The following prepared statement was made a part of the record at the request of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator SALVATORE:)

Mr. President, I rise to voice my opposition to the confirmation of Constance Foster as Pennsylvania's Insurance Commissioner. I oppose the nominee, Mr. President, because I believe during her first term as Insurance Commissioner she failed the consumers of this state by misleading them with promises of lowered insurance premiums that for too many drivers never became a reality.

Throughout our efforts to devise auto insurance reform legislation, Mr. President, the Casey Administration, through Commissioner Foster, repeatedly talked about a 10 percent reduction in premium costs for those who elected to keep their tort option and a 22 percent reduction for those who elected to limit their tort options.

And though the legislation crafted by us and ultimately passed by us was intended to do that, the savings were lost to many consumers because the Commissioner went about granting rate increases for many of the companies selling auto insurance. This is particularly true in Philadelphia where drivers pay some of the highest auto insurance premiums in the nation.

Additionally, Mr. President, I think the Insurance Commission has failed in its efforts to enforce the state's laws which are very tough on drivers who operate vehicles that are uninsured.

In Philadelphia, alone, Mr. President, authorities estimate—and some suggest their estimates are conservative—that 50 percent of the motorists are driving uninsured vehicles. There simply is no excuse for that, Mr. President. It is costing every law-abiding driver more in premiums. In Philadelphia the cost of auto insurance for one car is often higher than the property taxes some residents pay. And until something is done to curb this problem, as well as others, the cost of auto insurance in Pennsylvania will continue to climb. I feel, Mr. President, that during her first term as Commissioner, she both misled the consumers of this state and then let them down.

I oppose her confirmation, Mr. President, and urge all of my colleagues to join with me in sending a clear message to the Governor that we will no longer tolerate Cabinet officials who cannot or will not carry out the mandates of their offices.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Williams and Senator Porterfield.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I request a temporary Capitol leave for Senator Jubelirer.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Lincoln requests temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Williams and Senator Porterfield. Senator Fisher requests temporary Capitol leave for Senator Jubelirer. The Chair hears no objection. Those leaves will be granted.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate advise and consent to the nomination?

The yeas and nays were required by Senator SALVATORE and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—46

The motion was agreed to.

The PRESIDENT. The bills will be placed on the Calendar.

CALENDAR

THIRD CONSIDERATION CALENDAR

BILL ON THIRD CONSIDERATION AND FINAL PASSAGE

SB 1197 (Pr. No. 1474) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act relating to high-risk pregnancy and high-risk infant follow-up programs and services for pregnant and postpartum substance-abusing women and their newborns; defining Department of Public Welfare and county children and youth social service agency responsibilities; and making an appropriation.

Considered the third time and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Senator GREENWOOD. Mr. President, Senate Bill No. 1197 is the so-called drug baby bill. Every hour in Pennsylvania a baby is born after being exposed to drugs in the womb. These children face a double jeopardy. First, they are born with low birth weight. They are born addicted, suffering neurological and other medical complications. But the second strike against them is what happens next. These fragile children desperately need the very best of parental care, nurturing, medical follow-up, patience and love. Instead, too often they are taken from hospitals into homes with parents, at best, who are ill-prepared to meet their needs and, at worst, to parents who subject them to lives of chronic neglect and abuse. Eighty percent of all child abuse reports in the City of Philadelphia are drug and alcohol related. There is no problem that faces our nation that is more devastating in its human and economic costs than this one. Senate Bill No. 1197 is intended to stop this cycle of addiction and abuse at birth. It ensures that substance-exposed babies will be identified at birth and given the protection they deserve. Additionally, the measure's prenatal outreach and infant follow-up programs included yesterday in the Schwartz amendment will help to reduce the number of substance-exposed babies born in Pennsylvania in the first place and provide those who are born with an array of services intended to offer effective medical and social intervention that will reduce their impact on the health care, the children and youth and the educational systems.

Mr. President, the Senate of Pennsylvania passed this legislation unanimously two years and nine months ago. It died in the House. The Senate of Pennsylvania passed this legislation unanimously again two years and two months ago, and it died of neglect in the House. Since we first passed this bill, more than 40,000 substance-exposed children have been born in our state. For them this legislation comes too late. It comes too late for the children who have died at home from inhaling crack cocaine smoke. It comes too late for 22-month-old Kareem Garner who died from the effects of savage beatings while his mother used the diaper money to buy cocaine, and it comes too late for the fetal alcohol syndrome children born in this state mentally retarded. But it does not have to come too late for the children who will be born tomorrow or who will be born next year.

Mr. President, I urge the Senate to pass Senate Bill No. 1197 today. I urge the House to move on it as quickly as possible, and I implore the negotiators to incorporate this legislation into the 1991-92 fiscal year budget.

Senator SCHWARTZ. Mr. President, I would also like to lend my support to this Senate bill. As we all know, it was amended yesterday, and I believe that this bill, which is well-intentioned, began with the notion of identifying and doing risk assessments on substance-exposed infants. Yesterday it was made much stronger by the inclusion of an outreach program to encourage women to come into prenatal care who are substance abusers, and will, in fact, do what we need to do, and that is not only identify and do a risk assessment but to make sure we start to get services to these families, we start to give these babies a chance at a healthier life and give these mothers a chance at stronger parenting skills and a stronger family relationship. I believe that with this appropriation in this bill, we actually have a chance to really make a difference in thousands of babies' lives in Pennsylvania. I believe it is an investment in the future of Pennsylvania for these babies, for these mothers, for these families, and will ultimately, hopefully, save money for the state as we start to see these children have a healthier, more successful life. The high-risk infant follow-up program that will be expanded under this bill will do more than just watch these families. It will provide someone to go into the home during the first year of life, help to assess the child's health status, make referrals, help those women and those children get to the kind of services they need and truly make a difference.

I will say, Mr. President, that I appreciate the responsiveness of the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, in working out the details of the amendment and making it a much stronger bill, and I encourage my colleagues to make this truly a bipartisan effort to do something for the children of Pennsylvania.

Senator O'PAKE. Mr. President, it is very popular these days to talk about the victims of drug abuse. The truly innocent victim of drug abuse is the newborn infant who comes into this world addicted to drugs as a result of the mother's addiction during pregnancy. This bill seeks to address that problem and I urge support. As the result of the Schwartz amendments, this does many, many things. It not only creates a system for identifying and the paperwork that that involves, but it also addresses the very, very important issue of prevention in high risk areas.

I commend the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, for his persistence. We did pass this kind of bill last year, last Session, but it died in the House of Representatives. I think as a result of the compromise on amendments, this is a much better bill, a stronger bill, a more humane bill and one that can pass the House of Representatives this year. I want to commend all those who had a role in presenting and advocating this kind of legislation that is long overdue. The expense involved in this is nothing compared to the expense involved in trying to remedy the problem after it has occurred. I urge support for this. This is a very progressive, forward looking, badly needed piece of compassionate legislation, and I hope this year the House of Representatives agrees and gets this bill to Governor Casey so we can say that, yes, we did something, not just talk about the problems of drug-addicted infants who were born addicted just because their parents were addicted. They had no choice in this matter.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I, too, support the bill, but I think there is another area that we have not talked about and I, quite frankly, do not have the answer to the problem, but I think it is one that we cannot let go unspoken. That is, Mr. President, what happens to the people who have perpetrated this upon these innocent victims? What happens to the irresponsible parents who are causing this problem to happen? At some point in time, Mr. President, we have an obligation to these children, these victims, to punish or do something to prevent this from happening in the future. It is one thing to do the humane thing, to take care of these children after they are brought into the world in this fashion, but we cannot continue to allow this. We cannot just sit around and throw our hands up in despair. We have to start searching for answers as to what we can do to the parents to prevent this in the future. There is no deterrent, Mr. President, regrettably, and it is a tough issue to talk about, but each and every day more and more of these children come into the world and parents either do not care or do not have the ability to care or the intelligence to care or do not have the will power because they are on drugs. Very soon we have to start thinking about the answer to that problem because you must get at the root of this. You cannot continue to treat the symptom of the problem. You have to find a way to get a cure. I do not know what the answer is, but I would hope that my colleagues would begin thinking about that and discussing it because it is a very, very serious problem. It is one thing to take care of the ills of these children after they are brought into the world, but they should not be brought into the world in this fashion in the first place.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVE CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT. The Chair recognizes the presence on the floor of Senator Hopper. His temporary Capitol leave will be cancelled.

And the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Senator STEWART. Mr. President, as we all know, the Department of Revenue employees, along with all other state employees, are not being paid. It has come to my attention that the Lottery Commission employees, even though they work side by side with many of the Department of Revenue employees, are being paid. First of all, I think that has caused a great deal of dissension in the ranks over there, but, more importantly, as we know, the senior citizens are not getting their rebate checks, yet the lottery personnel are being paid. We checked with the Governor's Office and the Budget Office, and Budget Secretary Hershock told us that they have no control over that because the lottery is structured as a separate commission. I do not know who does have control over it, Mr. President, but whoever does ought to rethink this policy of paying employees who work side by side with employees who are not being paid and, more importantly, paying employees when senior citizens are not receiving their benefits from the lottery program.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, today again we have tabled Senate Bill No. 401. This is the second time this bill has been laid upon the table in this Session. Although I thank my colleague Senator Pecora for helping me get it off the table the last time, we are really getting nowhere as long as we continue to table this bill. Mr. President, I would urge the Majority again to not only remove this bill from the table as soon as we can when we get back, but also to pass it. This bill is probably rapidly becoming the source of many, many problems in our counties. What we must do is stop mandating programs to local counties without adequate funding for those programs. That is what Senate Bill No. 401 does. That is why Senator Pecora and myself cosponsored this piece of legislation. We cannot continue to allow this problem to fester. We must go forward. We must stand up to the pressures, mostly, I would think, from the unions and other people, but we have to do it. It is not fair to the counties. It is not fair to Pennsylvanians. Mr. President, we must recognize that those counties in Pennsylvania are not Russian states. They are Pennsylvania counties. We live in those counties when we leave this hall. We have an obligation to them, and even if you do not want to help them, you at least have an obligation not to hurt them any longer. I would urge the Majority to lift this bill off the table as soon as we can and to finally, once and for all, pass it, get it out of this Chamber and let the House deal with it.

A RESOLUTION

Memorializing the President and the Congress of the United States to maintain the high priority of the issue of America's prisoners of war and missing in action, to investigate the live sightings of prisoners of war and missing in action, and to investigate our national policy in this area.

WHEREAS, Seventeen years after the Vietnam War, there currently remain more than 2,272 Americans still missing or otherwise unaccounted for in Indochina; and

WHEREAS, The families of servicemen and civilians missing in Indochina still suffer untold grief and uncertainty due to the lack of an adequate accounting; and

WHEREAS, The President has declared the issue of America's missing or otherwise unaccounted for in Indochina a matter of high national priority and has had high level dialogue with the governments of the Lao Peoples' Democratic Republic and the Socialist Republic of Vietnam on this issue; and

WHEREAS, In February 1984, the Socialist Republic of Vietnam promised to accelerate the resolution of this humanitarian issue and, in February 1985, indicated it was interested in normal relations with the United States; and

WHEREAS, Despite these assurances, there is a growing body of evidence that Americans continue to be held captive in Indochina; and

WHEREAS, 114 Pennsylvanians who served in Vietnam are still unaccounted for; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania support the President's pledge of high national priority to resolve the status of more than 2,272 Americans still missing and unaccounted for in Indochina; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the strongest signal that can be sent to the governments of Vietnam and Laos is the united voice of the American people, demanding that the United States Government and Congress take more decisive and aggressive action to secure the freedom of our POW's and MIA's; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the Senate urge the President and the Congress of the United States to ensure that this issue remains one of highest national priority and to accelerate efforts in every possible way to obtain the immediate release of Americans who are still being held captive in Indochina; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the Senate memorialize the Congress of the United States to investigate the live sightings of POW's and MIA's in Southeast Asia and to investigate the current policy of the United States regarding the sightings of POW's and MIA's; and be it further

RESOLVED, That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the Honorable George Bush, President of the United States, to the presiding officers of each house of Congress, and to each member of Congress from Pennsylvania.

Senator RHOADES asked and obtained unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of this resolution.

On the question,

Will the Senate adopt the resolution?

SENATE RESOLUTION NO. 92, ADOPTED

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do adopt Senate Resolution No. 92.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, the resolution in essence, I think, addresses something which we are all aware of. In fact, 17 years after the Vietnam War, there currently remain more than 2,272 Americans still missing or otherwise unaccounted for in Indochina and 114 of that number are Pennsylvanians. What the resolution does is offer our support to the President's pledge of a high national priority to resolve the status of the more than 2,272 Americans still missing. It is intended to send the strongest signal that we can to the Congress to send to Vietnam and Laos demanding more decisive and aggressive action is taken to secure the freedom of our POWs and MIAs. I think this issue has to remain one of our highest national priorities and that we have to accelerate every effort that we possibly can to obtain their immediate release. We also call upon the Congress to investigate the live sightings of the POWs and MIAs in southeast Asia. That is what the resolution in essence does, but I think the bottom line of all the things we do, even going through this budget process and whatever it brings, the essence is that no American should ever be held hostage, prisoner or unaccounted for anywhere in the world, or else we lose faith with them and lose purpose of all we are doing.

Senator PUNT. Mr. President, I would just like to echo the remarks of the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades, but in addition I would also just like to point out for the record, and I sincerely hope that the United States government continues to pursue its effort here, that there are still 6,000 POWs/MIAs from the Korean War who have been unaccounted for. I would hope we would place the same diligence and commitment in ascertaining the whereabouts, location and disposition of those 6,000 brave Americans who are still unaccounted for today.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the motion?
The motion was agreed to and the resolution was adopted.

DESIGNATING DECEMBER 15, 1991, AS "BILL OF RIGHTS DAY" IN PENNSYLVANIA AND HONORING PATRICK HENRY FOR HIS EFFORTS IN MAKING THE BILL OF RIGHTS
A FUNDAMENTAL PART OF THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNITED STATES

Senator LOEPER offered the following resolution (Senate Resolution No. 93), which was read, considered and adopted:

In the Senate, August 2, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Designating December 15, 1991, as "Bill of Rights Day" in Pennsylvania and honoring Patrick Henry for his efforts in making the Bill of Rights a fundamental part of the Constitution of the United States.

WHEREAS, December 15, 1991, is the Bicentennial of the Bill of Rights; and

WHEREAS, On that day in 1791 the first ten amendments to the United States Constitution became binding upon the Federal Government and several states; and

WHEREAS, The Bill of Rights protects individual freedoms such as the right to peaceably assemble, the freedoms of speech and of the press, the free exercise of religion, the right to trial by jury and the right to be secure against unreasonable searches and seizures; and

WHEREAS, The Bill of Rights also provides for protection against excessive bail, fines, or cruel and unusual punishment and for protection against being deprived of life, liberty or property without due process of law; and

WHEREAS, The United States Constitution was originally ratified by the several states without this enumeration of the fundamental principles of liberty; and

WHEREAS, Patrick Henry, a noble patriot and statesman, was strongly opposed to the ratification of the Constitution until there was such an enumeration of these rights; and

WHEREAS, Patrick Henry was most singularly influential in having the Bill of Rights ratified by the states as the first ten amendments to the Constitution; and

WHEREAS, The Bicentennial of the Bill of Rights is a most appropriate time to honor Patrick Henry, one of our Nation's true patriots, for his efforts in making the Bill of Rights a fundamental part of the Constitution and to be grateful to God for the blessings of civil and religious liberty as expressed by our forefathers in the Bill of Rights; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Senate of Pennsylvania designate December 15, 1991, as "Bill of Rights Day" in Pennsylvania and honor Patrick Henry for his efforts in making the Bill of Rights a fundamental part of the Constitution of the United States; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the Senate of Pennsylvania encourage all Pennsylvanians to appreciate the role the Bill of Rights has played in protecting our individual rights and to learn more about Patrick Henry's significant contributions to our history.

DESIGNATING AUGUST 5 THROUGH 11, 1991,
AS "ADIOS WEEK" IN PENNSYLVANIA

Senators STOUT, FISHER, BELAN, PORTERFIELD, STEWART, WILLIAMS, BORTNER, AFFLERBACH, REIBMAN, O'PAKE, BODACK, MELLOW, FUMO,

JONES, LaVALLE, SCHWARTZ and MUSTO offered the following resolution (Senate Resolution No. 91), which was read, considered and adopted:

In the Senate, August 2, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Designating August 5 through 11, 1991, as "Adios Week" in Pennsylvania.

WHEREAS, Ladbroke at The Meadows is a harness track located 25 miles south of Pittsburgh in Washington County; and

WHEREAS, Ladbroke at The Meadows has been a major part of the southwestern Pennsylvania sports and entertainment community; and

WHEREAS, The Meadows has been in existence since 1963, and The Adios Pace has been raced at The Meadows every year since 1967; and

WHEREAS, 1991 is the Silver Anniversary of the $500,000 Adios "Pace For The Orchids," the richest race in Pennsylvania; and

WHEREAS, The Adios was founded by The Meadows' Founder Delvin Miller and was named after the greatest sire of his time; and

WHEREAS, The Adios has become an annual tradition in southwestern Pennsylvania; and

WHEREAS, The Adios and Adios Week have helped to promote the horsebreeding industry in Pennsylvania; and

WHEREAS, The Adios and Adios Week have generated millions of dollars for the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania through pari-mutuel wagering; and

WHEREAS, The Adios and Adios Week have generated millions of dollars in additional tax revenue and additional business for other local businesses in and around The Meadows; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Senate designate August 5 through 11, 1991, as "Adios Week" in Pennsylvania.

HONORING THE CITY OF NEW KENSINGTON ON ITS 100TH ANNIVERSARY

Senators HART, BELAN, PORTERFIELD and BELAN offered the following resolution (Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 94), which was read as follows:

In the Senate, August 2, 1991.

A CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

Honoring the City of New Kensington on its 100th Anniversary.

WHEREAS, The City of New Kensington traces its roots to the earliest settlements in western Pennsylvania; and

WHEREAS, The Burrell Improvement Company purchased a large tract of land situated 18 miles south of Pittsburgh in July 1890 and set down the boundaries of the town of Kensington; and

WHEREAS, The first sale of land in the town attracted 15,000 potential buyers and resulted in the first plot being sold on June 10, 1891; and

WHEREAS, By 1892, 500 homes had been built in the town and the Westmoreland County Courts issued an order to incorporate the Borough of New Kensington; and

WHEREAS, In 1932 local residents voted to become a third class city to realize the many advantages associated with that form of government, and New Kensington officially became a third class city on January 1, 1934; and

WHEREAS, Industry has always found a special home in New Kensington, and the establishment of the mother plant of the aluminum industry earned the city the appellation "The Aluminum City"; and

WHEREAS, New Kensington has, throughout its history, grown and prospered through the skills and labors of its residents, embracing and exemplifying the energy, dedication and diversity from which this Commonwealth and this nation draw their strength; therefore be it

RESOLVED (the House of Representatives concurring), That the General Assembly honor the City of New Kensington on its 100th Anniversary; and be it further

RESOLVED, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted to the Mayor and City Council of New Kensington.

Senator HART asked and obtained unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of this resolution.

On the question,

Will the Senate adopt the resolution?

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION
NO. 94, ADOPTED

Senator HART. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do adopt Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 94.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The motion was agreed to and the resolution was adopted.

Ordered, That the Secretary of the Senate present the same to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

REQUEST FOR RECESS

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, at this time I do not expect any further slow roll call votes today. It is my understanding we are still waiting for two bills to come down which can be dispatched in about a half hour. In light of that, I would suggest to the Members that there is no need for them to be on the floor for an actual vote, and at this point I would ask for a recess of the Senate to the call of the President pro tempore.

The PRESIDENT. If the gentleman does not object, the Chair would suggest that we clear the desk of a few informational items before the recess request.

COMMUNICATION FROM THE GOVERNOR

NOMINATION BY THE GOVERNOR REFERRED TO COMMITTEE

The PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following communication in writing from His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, which was read as follows, and referred to the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations:

MEMBER OF THE STATE BOARD OF EDUCATION

August 2, 1991.

CONSIDERATION OF CALENDAR RESUMED

HB 1344 CALLED UP OUT OF ORDER

HB 1344 (Pr. No. 2096) — Without objection, the bill was called up out of order, from page 2 of the Third Consideration Calendar, by Senator LOEPER.

BILL ON THIRD CONSIDERATION AMENDED

HB 1344 (Pr. No. 2096) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act relating to agriculture and rural youth; creating an Agriculture and Rural Youth Organization Grant Program; imposing duties on the Department of Agriculture; and making an appropriation.

Considered the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

Senator LOEPER, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A2207:

Amend Title, page 1, lines 3 and 4, by striking out "making an appropriation." and inserting: providing for funding.

Amend Sec. 3, page 2, line 28, by striking out "majority"

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

Without objection, the bill, as amended, was passed over in its order at the request of Senator LOEPER.

RECESS

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, at this time, before I make a request, I would just like to apologize to the Members for the way the delays have been going today, but, unfortunately, when we get to this time of year there are many things which seem to take some time to try and get a program straightened out to follow forward. I would just ask all Members to try and bear with us as we move through this process for the next day or two, or whatever it takes.

At this time I would ask for a recess of the Senate, first for the purpose of a Republican caucus to begin immediately in the first floor Majority caucus room. It is my understanding, Mr. President, that the Democrats have already caucused today. It would be the Majority's intent to reconvene at 7:00 p.m. this evening here on the Senate floor. With that in mind, I would ask for a recess of the Senate at this time.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Loeper requests a recess of the Senate for the purpose of a Republican caucus to begin immediately in the first floor caucus room, and for that purpose, and with the intent of returning to the floor at approximately 7:00 p.m. this evening, the Senate will stand in recess.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant Governor Mark S. Singel) in the Chair.

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed, the Senate will be in order.

CONSIDERATION OF CALENDAR RESUMED

RECONSIDERATION OF HB 840

BILL ON SECOND CONSIDERATION AMENDED

HB 840 (Pr. No. 1589) — Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which House Bill No. 840, Printer's No. 1589, was agreed to on second consideration.

The motion was agreed to.

The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill entitled:

An Act amending Title 75 (Vehicles) of the Pennsylvania Consolidated Statutes, further providing for funeral processions.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on second consideration?

Senator CORMAN offered the following amendment No. A2000:

Amend Title, page 1, line 2, by inserting after "Statutes,"; defining "farm equipment"; further providing for the responsibilities of vehicle transferees, for exemptions from registration and certificates of title, for the use of dealer plates, multipurpose dealer plates and farm equipment plates; and

Amend Bill, page 1, by inserting between lines 4 and 5:

Section 1. Section 102 of Title 75 of the Pennsylvania Consolidated Statutes is amended by adding a definition to read: § 102. Definitions.

Subject to additional definitions contained in subsequent provisions of this title which are applicable to specific provisions of this title, the following words and phrases when used in this title shall have, unless the context clearly indicates otherwise, the meanings given to them in this section:

***

"Farm equipment." A vehicle designed or used exclusively for agricultural operations and only incidentally operated or moved upon highways, including, but not limited to, farm tractors, choppers and balers.

***

LEGISLATIVE LEAVE CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT. The Chair recognizes the presence on the floor of Senator Lewis. His temporary Capitol leave will be cancelled.

RECESS

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, at this time we have completed about as much business as we can transact until further action occurs in the House of Representatives. In discussions with the Majority Leader of the House, he indicates to me that he believes it will be about one more hour before they will be ready to go on the floor of the House. I would at this time, in light of that, suggest a recess of the Senate until approximately 1:30 a.m., or thereafter, if Members could be in their offices subject to recall at that time.

Senator PECORA. Mr. President, I rise for the purpose of making a recommendation for an adjournment until 10:00 o'clock tomorrow morning. I feel that working here this evening and waiting for a tax proposal that we have no obligation or knowledge of, that by 10:00 o'clock tomorrow morning we would have more information, we can vote more intelligently and we do not look like we are sneaking bills through in the middle of the night again. I have been embarrassed in previous times when we passed budgets at three or four in the morning. No one knew what we were voting for. Everybody was talking. No one paid attention because they had no time to read the legislation.

The PRESIDENT. If the gentleman would yield. Is the gentleman making a motion to adjourn?

Senator PECORA. Mr. President, I am making a motion for adjournment until 10:00 o'clock tomorrow morning.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Pecora moves that the Senate do now adjourn until 10:00 o'clock tomorrow morning. All those in favor of the motion say "aye," all those opposed "no." In the opinion of the Chair, the "noes" have it.

Senator PECORA. Mr. President, I request a roll call.

The PRESIDENT. The Clerk will call the roll.

The Senate will be at ease.

(The Senate was at ease.)

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Andrezski, Senator Scanlon, Senator Bodack, Senator Fumo, Senator Stout and Senator Jones.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Lincoln requests temporary Capitol leaves for the following Senators: Senator Andrezski, Senator Scanlon, Senator Bodack, Senator Fumo, Senator Stout and Senator Jones. There being no objection, those leaves will be granted.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVE CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT. The Chair recognizes the presence on the floor of Senator Salvatore. His leave will be cancelled.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I would simply ask for a "no" vote on the motion.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I, additionally, would also ask for a "no" vote on the motion.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Senator PECORA and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—5

Afflerbach	Holl	Pecora	Reibman
Greenleaf

NAYS—45

Andrezski	Fumo	Loeper	Salvatore
Armstrong	Greenwood	Lynch	Scanlon
Baker	Hart	Madigan	Schwartz
Belan	Helfrick	Mellow	Shaffer
Bell	Hopper	Musto	Shumaker
Bodack	Jones	O'Pake	Stapleton

Brightbill	LaValle	Porterfield	Stout
Corman	Lemmond	Punt	Tilghman
Dawida	Lewis	Rhoades	Wenger
Fattah	Lincoln	Robbins	Williams
Fisher

Less than a majority of the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the negative.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Loeper has requested a recess at this time with the anticipation of returning at approximately 1:30 a.m. There being no objection to that request, the Senate will stand in recess.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed, the Senate will be in order.

SPECIAL ORDER OF BUSINESS ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SECRETARY

The SECRETARY. Consent has been given for the Committee of Conference on Senate Bill No. 405 to convene during today's Session at 3:20 a.m. in the Majority caucus room. Also, for the information of the Members, at the same time the Committees of Conference on House Bills No. 221 and 1536 will convene in the Majority caucus room.

RECESS

The PRESIDENT. Without objection, the Senate will now recess to the call of the President pro tempore.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT pro tempore (Robert C. Jubelirer) in the Chair.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The time of recess having elapsed, the Senate will be in order.

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEE

Senator TILGHMAN, from the Committee on Appropriations, reported the following bills:

HB 804 (Pr. No. 2441) (Amended) (Rereported)

An Act amending the act of April 9, 1929 (P. L. 177, No. 175), known as "The Administrative Code of 1929," further providing for membership of the board of The Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority, for crime victims' compensation and assistance and for the rights of crime victims; providing for the continuation of medical insurance coverage for survivor-spouse annuitants; and providing for costs for offender supervision programs and for the deposit of certain surplus; further providing for the submission of agency budget requests to the General Assembly and for control of the budgeting processes by the General Assembly; providing for electronic access to certain information provided by the Governor; authorizing the Department of Environmental Resources to indemnify and hold harmless PermaGrain Products, Inc. from and against certain damages related to personal injury and property damage at Quehanna, Pennsylvania; permitting the drilling of water wells on State lands under certain conditions; further providing for municipal notices relating to certain permits issued by the Department of Environmental Resources; and providing for the expiration of the health-care facilities certificate of need process.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE SUBMITTED AND PLACED ON THE CALENDAR

Senator TILGHMAN submitted the Report of Committee of Conference on SB 405, which was placed on the Calendar.

HOUSE MESSAGE

HOUSE INSISTS UPON NONCONCURRENCE IN SENATE AMENDMENTS TO HB 1536 AND APPOINTS COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE

The Clerk of the House of Representatives informed the Senate that the House insists upon its nonconcurrence in Senate amendments to HB 1536, and has appointed Messrs. DeWEESE, EVANS and PITTS as a Committee of Conference to confer with a similar committee of the Senate (already appointed) to consider the differences existing between the two houses in relation to said bill.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES OF CONFERENCE SUBMITTED AND LAID ON THE TABLE

Senator LOEPER submitted the Reports of Committees of Conference on HB 221 and HB 1536, which were laid on the table.

BILLS SIGNED

The PRESIDENT pro tempore (Robert C. Jubelirer) in the presence of the Senate signed the following bills:

HB 1055, 1105, 1607 and 1644.

RECESS

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now recess to the call of the President pro tempore.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The motion is carried.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant Governor Mark S. Singel) in the Chair.

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed, the Senate will be in order.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT. The Chair recognizes the presence on the floor of Senator Fumo. His temporary Capitol leave will be cancelled. Also, Senator Salvatore is with us. His temporary Capitol leave will be cancelled as well.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE

REPORT OVER TEMPORARILY

SB 405 (Pr. No. 1502) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending Titles 24 (Education) and 71 (State Government) of the Pennsylvania Consolidated Statutes, further providing for the Public School Employees' Retirement System and the State Employees' Retirement System; adding and amending certain definitions; further providing for membership in the systems, for creditable nonschool and nonstate service and the purchase of credit, for incentives for special early retirement, for contributions to the retirement funds, for annuities and the rights and duties of annuitants, for health insurance premium assistance, for board membership and for the re-amortization and management of the retirement funds.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I move the Senate adopt the Report of Committee of Conference on Senate Bill No. 405.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I am going to be voting "no" on this bill. It has just arrived on my desk. It is rather thick. I have no knowledge of all the things that are in it. So for those who may be a beneficiary of this piece of legislation and wonder why I voted against it, it is not that I am necessarily opposed to all the things that are in here, it is just that I do not know what all is in here.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I would request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Loeper and Senator Jubelirer.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I would request a temporary Capitol leave for Senator Lewis.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Fisher requests temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Loeper and Senator Jubelirer. Senator Lincoln requests temporary Capitol leave for Senator Lewis. The Chair hears no objection. The leaves will be granted.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I request temporary Capitol leave for Senator Fumo.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Lincoln requests temporary Capitol leave for Senator Fumo. The Chair hears no objection. That leave will be granted.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, I just received a synopsis of this bill a minute ago, and it is the first time that I have seen it so I would ask that we go over it so we have an opportunity to review it. I am not prepared to vote for this bill without at least some study, without just a one minute notification.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Greenleaf has asked that we take the conference report to Senate Bill No. 405 over temporarily. Is there any objection to that request?

Without objection, the bill will go over temporarily.

THIRD CONSIDERATION CALENDAR

BILLS REREPORTED FROM COMMITTEE AS AMENDED ON THIRD CONSIDERATION AND FINAL PASSAGE

HB 804 (Pr. No. 2441) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending the act of April 9, 1929 (P. L. 177, No. 175), known as "The Administrative Code of 1929," further providing for membership of the board of The Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority, for crime victims' compensation and assistance and for the rights of crime victims; providing for the continuation of medical insurance coverage for survivor-spouse annuitants; and providing for costs for offender supervision programs and for the deposit of certain surplus; further providing for the submission of agency budget requests to the General Assembly and for control of the budgeting processes by the General Assembly; providing for electronic access to certain information provided by the Governor; authorizing the Department of Environmental Resources to indemnify and hold harmless PermaGrain Products, Inc. from and against certain damages related to personal injury and property damage at Quehanna, Pennsylvania; permitting the drilling of water wells on State lands under certain conditions; further providing for municipal notices relating to certain permits issued by the Department of Environmental Resources; and providing for the expiration of the health-care facilities certificate of need process.

Considered the third time and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, would someone summarize the various things that are in this bill? It is another one of those that just arrived on the desk and I would like to know what I am voting for or against.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, may we be at ease for a moment.

The PRESIDENT. The Senate will be at ease.
(The Senate was at ease.)

RECESS

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, at this time I would ask for an unusually brief recess of the Senate for the purpose of a meeting of the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations to take place in the Rules Committee room at the rear of the Senate Chamber.

The PRESIDENT. For the purpose of a very brief meeting of the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations, the Senate will stand in recess. Would the Members of the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations please report to the Rules room at the rear of the Chamber.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed, the Senate will be in order.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT. The Chair recognizes the presence on the floor of Senator Hopper, Senator Armstrong, Senator Jubelirer and Senator Fumo and their temporary Capitol leaves will be cancelled.

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEE

Senator LOEPER, from the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations, reported the following bills on concurrence in House amendments:

SB 1059 (Pr. No. 1504)

An Act amending the act of April 9, 1929 (P. L. 343, No. 176), entitled, as amended, "The Fiscal Code," providing an amnesty program for the payment of delinquent taxes; providing for the examination of books and records by the Department of Revenue; further providing for certain interest payments and the rates of interest, for the settlement of taxes and for the filing of liens and writs of revival; providing certain subpoena powers to the Department of Revenue; providing for unfair sales of cigarettes; and making a repeal.

HB 185 (Pr. No. 2444)

An Act Amending the act of March 4, 1971 (P. L. 6, No. 2), known as the "Tax Reform Code of 1971," further providing for the imposition of sales and use tax on certain services and for the reissuance of sales and use tax licenses; providing for the increase of personal income tax, for poverty exemptions to the tax, for notice of certain sales and transfers and for the withholding of certain tax on shares; further providing for the imposition, rate and collection of corporate net income tax and capital stock and franchise tax; further providing for the collection of bank shares tax, insurance premiums tax, and title insurance and trust companies tax; extending the utilities gross receipts tax; further providing for the collection of the public utility realty tax; increasing the rate of the cigarette tax; imposing a cigarette floor tax; further providing for commissions for cigarette tax agents, and dedicating a portion of the revenues for agricultural farmland preservation and children's health care; further providing for imposition, collection and administration of tax on property passing upon death; further providing for the reports and payments of certain estimated taxes; and making repeals.

SPECIAL ORDER OF BUSINESS*SUPPLEMENTAL CALENDAR NO. 8*BILL ON CONCURRENCE IN HOUSE AMENDMENTS TO SENATE AMENDMENTS*SENATE CONCURS IN HOUSE AMENDMENTS

HB 185 (Pr. No. 2444) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act Amending the act of March 4, 1971 (P. Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I move the Senate do concur in the amendments made by the House to Senate amendments to House Bill No. 185.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Loeper.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Loeper, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator LOEPER. I will, Mr. President.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, there is a question that has arisen regarding the interpretation of the taxability of dividends between corporations and their subsidiaries. It was my understanding that foreign dividends or dividends from corporations outside the United States would not, in fact, be taxable under this Tax Code. I would like to know if the Majority Leader, as one of those who helped to craft this amendment, knows whether it is the intent of this section, which can be found on page 61 of the bill, Section 401, (3)(B), to treat all dividends, regardless of origin, according to the federal method of taxing dividends received from United States corporations?

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, yes. In the negotiations it was in fact the intent, and I think the simple answer to the gentleman's question is yes.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Lebanon, Senator Brightbill, will state it.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, I believe this bill provides for the taxation of storage units. Is that correct? Sales tax on storage unit rentals?

The PRESIDENT. The Chair is advised that the gentleman is correct.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, I am the proprietor of storage units. Does that fact create any kind of conflict which would prohibit me from voting?

The PRESIDENT. The Chair would rule that the gentleman is, in fact, a member of a class and not benefiting directly from the language of this bill and, therefore, is not only allowed to vote but required to vote if he is present on the floor.

Senator PECORA. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Loeper.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Loeper, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator LOEPER. I will, Mr. President.

Senator PECORA. Mr. President, this has a tax pertaining to storage units. Are any counties exempt from this tax or is it all counties of Pennsylvania?

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, could the gentleman indicate to me what section of the bill he is referring to?

Senator PECORA. Mr. President, I do not have the bill here. I just have a Supplemental Calendar.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, could the gentleman repeat the question?

Senator PECORA. Mr. President, is there any county in this Commonwealth that is exempt from this tax? It has been brought to my attention that one county is exempt.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, my understanding is there is an exemption for the port district of warehouses where, in fact, merchandise may be stored that would be related to a port exemption.

Senator PECORA. Mr. President, is the port exemption in Philadelphia?

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, the language dealing with the port storage issue specifically indicates that the term excludes storage of such property which is unloaded from maritime vessels and which is stored and then later loaded on maritime vessels when such a storage or loading takes place within 25 miles of a port district, and a port district is defined as that in the Philadelphia Regional Port Authority Act.

Senator PECORA. Mr. President, I thank the gentleman.

Mr. President, I rise in opposition to House Bill No. 185. I feel that a one percent increase in the personal income tax is outrageous. I feel it is a tremendous burden to the working people of this Commonwealth. I feel that the sales tax increase is also an additional burden, and other taxes, and the expansion of that sales tax to other items which the average working person will be hurt the most. We sit up here and give the impression that we are representing our constituents, and we are providing taxes and voting for these taxes to give a tremendous tax increase in this Commonwealth which could be the highest tax increase that Pennsylvania has ever had. Mr. President, I feel that is a very bad move on the part of this Senate. We are trying to get out of a recession in this country. We cannot blame that recession on Pennsylvania alone, but we can help not create this recession to extend beyond the Commonwealth and other states. We must do our best to keep a lower budget. I was expecting a much lower budget than this, comparable to the budget that was first initiated by the Governor. Mr. President, it has been brought to my attention after the Governor also initiated his budget, he sent down additional expenditures and increases in his own budget. Then our four leadership groups of the House and Senate put in additional revenues, revenues that give you the impression that everybody has their own agenda, and that agenda is not the people of this Commonwealth.

Mr. President, I can only request a negative vote upon this legislation and believe that we should start over and do a better job for our constituents.

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, I rise in opposition to this legislation. For weeks I have been advocating a more balanced approach and, unfortunately, there have been some cuts in the budget, but as compared to this tax increase, which is the largest tax increase in the history of this state, I do not believe we have accomplished our purpose. States such as Michigan, and others, when they have dealt with this problem, have at least had it half and half—half cuts and half taxes. This budget does not reach that level. We have a situation where the average wage earner is going to be hurt by these income tax increases. The consumer is going to be hurt by the sales taxes that have been expanded and, of course, business and industry are going to be hurt in regard to creating more jobs in commerce. I think, unfortunately, we have engaged in a spending frenzy rather than a cutting frenzy. I think this is unfortunate for Pennsylvania and obviously unfortunate for the citizens of this Commonwealth.

Senator HOLL. Mr. President, not having had an opportunity to participate in the preparation of this legislation and having been denied an opportunity to offer amendments on the floor to change this legislation and having had little or no time to properly study the budget, I will vote "no." This experience in 1991 makes it incumbent on this legislative Body to find a better way to enact future budgets, a better way to develop legislation on a vital item to all taxpayers and Pennsylvanians, such as a budget. The public will care little nor long remember the rhetoric heard on the floor here today or in the House of Representatives, but the public will remember those who are responsible for this budget and these taxes. Certainly no one can ignore the recent reaction of the taxpayers in New Jersey after the ill-fated tax increases. You will recall that Senator Bradley almost lost his election because he did not oppose the Florio tax package. No one here can forget the reaction in Pennsylvania to the ill-fated CAT Fund, and that was only $5.00. For these reasons and others, I intend to vote "no." This legislation also contains an item taxing premiums on insurance providing for annuities. The proposers and originators of this tax call it a tax on non-retirement annuities.

The proposers say that if an annuity is purchased for retirement, it will not be taxed under the plan. This is not true. The only exempted annuities by the language of the bill will be those exempted under the Internal Revenue Code such as IRA and the 401K plans. This means that if you buy an annuity for your retirement, it will be taxed. It provides a double burden upon small Pennsylvania insurance companies, and we can expect to see an exodus of these companies to other states.

Let me give you one example of an insurance company—the Protected Home Mutual of Sharon, Pennsylvania. Under this proposal, they would pay Pennsylvania $320,000 a year in premium tax returns, but to other states $2 million a year. So what we are doing with this legislation is causing a Pennsylvania domiciled insurance company to pay other states, through their retaliatory tax situations, millions of dollars, and this is only one insurance company.

Senator SHUMAKER. Mr. President, in business it is bad business and bad practices when you have deficits to just throw money at them. In effect, here we have not tried or used any business practices such as seeing where cost savings could be effected before raising taxes. Too often we have solved problems in the General Assembly by just raising money, throwing it at the problem, and coming back again the next year and the next year and the next year and throw more money at it. Therefore, this is not a good business bill. This is an anti-business bill, and I would urge a negative vote because we are doing nothing except throwing money and not going back to the core of seeing where we can save money. I think we must do that first.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT. The Chair recognizes the presence on the floor of Senator Andrezeski and Senator Williams and their temporary Capitol leaves will be cancelled.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Senator ARMSTRONG. Mr. President, I was hoping this year things would be a little different. Things are so bad in Pennsylvania perhaps we could start looking at some of the programs that are useless or some of the programs we should cut back and we could actually start saving some money and cutting expenses. I think that is what the people of Pennsylvania want. You would think in a recession the worst case scenario is that we would increase our budget maybe two or three percent, like other states are doing, but, no, we are increasing our budget 12 percent. Now we have to raise the taxes to match it. I think if you go in your local diner and have a cup of coffee and start talking to people, you get a feel of what is really going on out there. They feel very, very strongly about raising taxes and they feel very strongly about cutting expenses, and we are doing just the opposite. I think this has far-reaching implications on businesses in Pennsylvania, and it is going to be months and maybe years before we really see how bad this really is. It is going to make Pennsylvania so uncompetitive that other states and other countries are going to be beating us out of jobs. When you lose a job—you talk about a tax on that person—that is 100 percent tax. It does not get any worse than that. I feel very strongly that this is perhaps the last straw, and the voters of Pennsylvania will remember this for quite a long time.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, we probably have before us today one of the most controversial pieces of legislation of this Session of the General Assembly. I would just like to take a moment to reflect on it and speak a little bit about it because I guess I have spent quite a bit of time in the last eight weeks at a negotiating table with fellow leaders of our respective caucuses trying to hammer out a spending plan as well as considering a revenue proposal in order to match that spending plan. I think to characterize it, when I came to my caucus this week and we started to distribute the highlights of the spending plan and also those of the revenue proposal, I indicated to the caucus that what we are going to talk about today and what I am showing you is certainly not pretty. It is not nice. There are a lot of things about it that are not nice or are not pretty, but I believe it is the best example of a responsible proposal that the negotiators could put forward. I think, Mr. President, if we were just to take a moment and reflect upon the process and really look at the options that were available to us in trying to put a spending plan together for Pennsylvania for fiscal 1991-92, sure there was the option, number one, of a no-tax-increase budget, and I think all of us realize what the implications of a no-tax-increase budget would be. That would be approximately a 20 percent cut in our school funding formulas to each one of the school districts. It would force a massive county increase in taxes to cover human services that have not been funded properly for at least the last year or payments not made in a timely manner. It would have hurt all of our institutions of higher learning, all the programs we had so diligently fought for in past years. That was option one.

Option two was to take a look at a deficit that was approaching the neighborhood of about $1.5 billion, and we could have enacted last year's budget. However, just to enact last year's budget, and if we looked at that spending level we also see that there are certain things we really have no control over as far as escalating costs from that budget are concerned, costs such as mandated services, an increase in medical assistance recipients, an increase in cash welfare assistance, increases in court settlements that are mandated by the courts for the state to pay for services rendered, settlements of certain suits, and I think, Mr. President, if we were to look at that and say, well, why do we not enact last year's budget, we would be looking at trying to fill a hole in the neighborhood of about $2 billion. That means we would have to put up our tax votes in order to fill that hole of $2 billion. I think each one of us in this Chamber is very concerned about the votes we are about to make, not only on this particular bill before us, but also on a General Appropriations bill which we will be considering in this Chamber later this afternoon. When you look at the options, Mr. President, none of them are pretty, none of them are very nice. But you know, Mr. President, it is now August 4th. We are already 34 days or 35 days past the date of putting into passage a spending plan for fiscal 1991-92. There are many hard decisions that have to be made, but I believe that I am going to be a tax vote today in order to fund the plan we have before us. There are many Members of my caucus who feel very strongly that we should have tried to cut as much as we could and then try to deal with revenues that were needed to balance that budget. I think in the case of the negotiators, and we talked about it, we tried to cut in many cases, but yet there were issues that were out on the table that we felt very strongly about, that the House Republicans felt very strongly about, and yet in a negotiated compromise there is give and take and some of those issues were included and some were not. I believe, Mr. President, that the plan that is before us today represents an adequate revenue proposal, one that will fund the General Fund spending plan that is before us also today. I would just like to take this opportunity to indicate that I am going to vote for this in the text that I believe it is the best job we can do under the circumstances.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, we have before us a revenue plan but what we do not have before us is a revenue plan that exists in a vacuum. I remember sitting here several months ago and watching the YMCA students debate various proposed laws and I remember sitting over on the other side of the aisle where the staff of the Democratic caucus is sitting today and thinking that this was a great experience for these young people but that it lacked a certain element of realism in the sense that there is no real world constituency out there. Everything that they did they did in a vacuum. Today, Mr. President, we do not have that benefit, we are here in a real world. There are people out in the street today who are out in that street, one way or another, a lot worse off because of the kind of debate, the length of debate, the inability of the Pennsylvania General Assembly and Pennsylvania government to get itself moving forward. There is a real constituency out there in the real world. We are hurting people by being here today, Mr. President. We are hurting people by being indecisive. We are hurting people by not coming up with a solution. I agree very much with the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Loeper. I do not like the solution. There is much in this bill that philosophically I have real difficulty with. There was a time that I would have said that I would never vote for the kinds of things that are in this bill, never vote for the kinds of taxes that are represented in this bill. I am going to do that today, Mr. President, because I know that the time for debate has come and gone and the time for decision is here and the time to exercise political courage and responsibility is right here today in this Chamber. We need to end the chaos. We need to end the debate and we need to end the perception of the public that we cannot do our job. Mr. President, I am a proud Member of this General Assembly, and I am a proud Member of this Senate and I am proud of the people who I serve with. I think the process that we have is a great process and I do not think there is anything wrong with this process, but I do think the time comes when some people have to get up and say we have had enough talk, we have had enough rhetoric. The time has come to cast a vote and make this government move forward. I plan to vote "aye" and do that here today. We also have to remember, Mr. President, that this is a plan which after hours and hours of debate and backroom negotiations, passed the Pennsylvania House of Representatives with only 103 votes. Give it another five hours and those 103 votes may have been 101 or 100 votes. Give it another 30 days, and there may only be 50 votes there. Mr. President, my judgment is that the longer this goes the worse it is going to get, not only for the public we are supposed to serve, but also for this government. We have two choices. We can move forward or we can move backward. I believe an "aye" vote is a motion to move forward. I would not be surprised if we come back here and change some of these taxes. I hope we do. I would not be surprised, as these taxes take effect and there is public debate, that we modify these taxes, and I hope we do that. The time has come to put up our votes and to say what kind of a person we are. Politically, Mr. President, we are all expendable. The time comes in each of our political lives when we have to do what is right. That time is here today.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, as a Member of the Senate, a freshman Member of this Body, I stand and rise in support of House Bill No. 185. I think the previous speaker said much of what I would like to say inasmuch as we can all be opposed to these taxes if we want, but we cannot be opposed to what our real mission is—to help the people who have elected us, to respond to the needs of 501 school districts, to make sure that our state universities are adequately funded and to provide for the health and welfare of the citizens of this Commonwealth. In order to adequately do that we need to have the revenues available. Tax votes are going to be tough votes, but I remember as a Member of the Legislature over the last 8 years many a vote in which we decreased taxes here in the State of Pennsylvania when it was felt in the collective wisdom of the General Assembly that we had appropriate revenues to respond to the needs of the people in this state. If, on one hand, we can do that in an hour where we think we have the needed revenue, then we should be able to stand up and be counted to respond to the real needs that exist now and raise revenues. There is a real constituency out there, a constituency that understands the real issues of life, that costs do rise, that needs are sometimes greater at certain times than at other times. Across this country we see other states—California, New York, we saw New Jersey last year and this year—tussling with major budget issues. We had to act like we are what we are. We are a major state in this country. We have our own needs and we have to be as responsible as we pledged we would be when we ran for election. I have heard a couple of the previous speakers say, well, the public will remember this. I would hope that they would, for I believe that when it is all said and done they will understand what we should have understood a month ago, that there is a need for additional revenues to continue to respond to the real needs of real people in this state, that we have to think a little bit more about the next generation than the next election. So I rise in favor of House Bill No. 185 and I would hope for favorable consideration of this bill today.

Senator PECORA. Mr. President, I appreciate some of the comments made, but when I spoke previously I did not say the budget was bad. I was talking about the taxes being bad. I talked about the one percent tax increase, that one percent personal tax increase that I have been receiving calls back home about. State employees of AFSCME signed a contract with no pay increase. Now they are calling my home and complaining: We did not get a pay increase but, boy, you are sure taking it from us and I only make $20,000 a year. You are taking one percent, $200, out of my paycheck; you are taking an increased sales tax out of my paycheck; you are taxing my cable TV service; you are taxing everything that walks and everything that does not move. Mr. President, I know the needs of this Commonwealth. I know that we need a budget. I did not say that we went from one extreme to the other like one of my fellow Senators said here. I said that we should have a more responsible budget, a budget that represents the people who elected us to be here, not all this bull we are giving the public at this microphone. I looked at the Governor's budget. The Governor, for grants for the arts organization, the National Endowment of the Arts, recommended $9 million. Our leaders came up with $11 million. We increased what the Governor projected.

For government operations in the Commerce Department, the Governor said he only needed $7,494,000. We in the Senate and House raised it to $13,324,000. We are saying the Governor does not know what he is doing. We add on, add on and add on. We are not representing our constituents. We are representing ourselves, our own agenda, which I said earlier. I could go on and on where the Governor recommended other expenditures and we put in increases of $45 million, increases of $46 million.

We bloated this budget to the Legislative Body. We over-bloated it. We can talk about our responsibility for the future. We are going into the future by bankrupting our working people in this Commonwealth and by additional burdens on our unemployed in this Commonwealth. There are many good things in the budget and there are expenditures that are needed, Mr. President, and I am willing to support them, but do not bloat our special agendas. We should look out for the priority and that is the people in this Commonwealth and not ourselves.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Loeper.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Loeper, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator LOEPER. I will, Mr. President.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, there are a number of items in here which expand the sales tax, and I look at the effective date section and the last two pages of the bill, and I do not see any specific reference to those sales tax issues. I was wondering, Mr. President, if Senator Loeper could indicate what the intent was regarding the implementation of the changes in the Sales Tax Act?

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, it was the intent of the drafters to follow the statutory construction principles, which means a 60-day effective date.

Senator HOPPER. Mr. President, I would like to reflect a minute on the retirement aspect of this bill. Before being elected as a Senator, back in 1976, I worked as an attorney in the field of estate planning. In the 1960s the federal government passed what we called the PBGC, that means Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation. That provided that anybody installing a pension plan had to pay an extra dollar or two—I think it was a dollar for each participant under a pension plan—into the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation. This corporation was to guarantee people their retirement, whether it be through an annuity or whether it be through an endowment policy or whether it be through a retirement income policy, or whatever. With the failure of the Executive Life Company and the failure of the Mutual Benefit of New Jersey, the rest of the companies that survived, like Prudential, Aetna and the rest of them—I am not going to name a lot of them—were nailed pretty heavily by the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation in order to completely fund people's retirement benefits. In those days if you had a qualified pension plan under the Revenue Code or 401-type pension plan, you were exempt, and the point of my observation is that in addition to the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation really nailing the surviving insurance companies in the industry that are providing retirement to individuals, this bill puts an extra two percent tax on it. It is going to drive business out of Pennsylvania because a lot of people were funding their retirements through Executive Life and through Mutual Benefit of New Jersey, and the Pension Benefit Guaranty Corporation, as I just mentioned, nailed them pretty heavily to help make up for the losses of pension benefits in Executive Life and Mutual Benefit. I rise to say that I am going to vote against this plan. It has a lot of other problems in it, but on that problem alone I am going to vote against this bill.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVE CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT. The Chair recognizes the presence on the floor of Senator Jones. Her temporary Capitol leave will be cancelled.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I said months ago in order to get through this budget crisis it was going to take one human trait and none other, and that was the trait of courage. That is true today as it was when I said it before. Yes, this tax increase is a big tax increase. It is always difficult to vote for tax increases, particularly in the light of the media bombardment that we have been receiving in presidential campaigns for the last 12 years. It does not make it easy for us who are in government, who want to be responsible to do that job, when we are told day in and day out that there is a free lunch and the public is entitled to it.

Mr. President, I heard people on this floor tonight talk about cutting the budget. In our caucus we showed our Members a no-tax budget. That pretty well ended that discussion in our caucus, and I thought it ended in the Republican caucus as well. The fact of the matter is that in this tax increase there is almost $2 billion devoted just to handling deficits. We can talk for hours and hours and hours about whose fault that is, and certainly I have talked often on this floor about that. Mr. President, we did not do what we probably should have done last year, and that was to raise taxes to meet last year's deficit and at least take away the deficit this year that only grew almost geometrically. But I see the problems we are having tonight in doing it a year late and not in an election year. I can easily see what happened last year when it was an election year. But all of those problems and all of that lack of courage does not change the reality that government has a function in our lives, and it is a function that is clearly defined in Pennsylvania in this budget and in the programs we have in this state. They have been negotiated and fought for, both from a liberal point of view and a conservative point of view. Mr. President, I was asked many times during this crisis, why can we not only raise taxes $2 billion or $2.4 billion or $2.6 billion? The answer to that question is that the art of this budget, as is the art of politics, is the art of compromise. In the House we saw the very close majority that this passed by. Yes, there are some things in this budget that if I were the only one writing it, I would take out. I would not put money in here for affluent school districts just because they have to get something, and I know full well if there were other Members in this Chamber who had the right to vote this just as one vote and write it themselves, they would take out programs from my county and everybody else's county. But the fact of the matter is that in order to get a constitutional majority, you have to accommodate people. The distasteful part about this to me is that there are a lot of people who are going to be helped and know they are going to be helped but absolutely refuse to share the responsibility of that aid. Mr. President, I know that some leaders who were negotiating this package received calls from Members, and the Members chastised them and said, make sure you do not spend a lot of money, make sure you do a lot of cuts and oh, by the way, do not forget my program. Make sure it is in. I say let he who is among us without sin cast the first stone. As I look around this Chamber, I do not see many people who told those negotiators, do me a favor, I am not going to vote for taxes so why do you not save a little money and stick it to my county because it will make the tax bill a little smaller. I never got a phone call like that and I know that the House Democratic Leader never did, and from my conversation with the Republican negotiators, ironically, they did not get any either. But yet, if and when we pass this, that money will be pumped into those districts. Yes, Mr. President, state workers will be paid. I have very few in my district. The overwhelming majority live in the Harrisburg area. They are constituents of other Senators. Their constituents will be paid.

Mr. President, I have heard about useless programs. Why do we not cut some things? Well, let me ask, where shall we cut? Shall we cut prisons? Can we afford to cut prisons when we got wrapped up in the Willie Horton politics of the day, when we passed mandatory sentence upon mandatory sentence saying to put people in jail for anything you can think of? We all demagogued it to death and now what do we have? A prison crisis. We cannot build cells fast enough. And has the crime rate gone down? No, but guess what. Every time we snatch a member from society and live up to the rules that we adopted, it costs us $35,000 a year for every one of those turkeys, $35,000 a year. Well, maybe we should cut that and then we will have a Camp Hill crisis, and then we will have Members here complaining that we are not doing enough, that we need more security. Maybe we should bump that cost up to $50,000 a year and hire more guards to protect us. So I doubt very much, Mr. President, if we could cut prison costs, but they are rising through the roof.

Maybe we should cut basic education. Certainly in this budget we put over a quarter of a billion dollars in new money into that program. Is that one of the cuts that somebody who is not going to vote for taxes wants to propose? And if we did that, do we really think we would be helping our constituents at home, or do we not realize that the equation must balance and those costs must be paid and local taxes will go up? Mr. President, do we cut federally mandated programs? Certainly for some people in this room that would be the easiest thing to do. Let us cut medical assistance. Let us cut cash grants. Let us cut AFDC. I submit to you, though, many of you have constituents who need that aid, but even if you want to say that, you cannot do it because the federal courts will not let you.

I do not like taxing insurance companies. I do not like taxing any companies, but I like taxing consumers less. I have heard the wrath and cry from the business community what a horrendous tax this is because they are going to pay their fair share, maybe a little bit more than their fair share because the problem is so big. Mr. President, we have had a history in this state of raising taxes when they are necessary and then lowering them when we can. There is no one in this Chamber, whether he is a "yes" vote or a "no" vote today, who harbors deep in his heart the vendetta to never lower taxes. In fact, I submit everyone would like to do it as quickly as we raise them. We cannot afford the luxury in Pennsylvania of saying no new taxes because our budgets have to be balanced. Does it impress anyone that Pennsylvania is 43rd in government spending for $1,000 of personal income? Does it impress anyone that we rank 39th in combined state and local taxes per $100 in personal income? Does anyone listen when we know that we are 50th, dead last, in the number of state employees per 1,000 citizens? Is that a bloated budget that we have to cut? If so, why has that logic and that light not appeared to the 49 states ahead of us? Mr. President, this income tax that we currently pay today, not the increase but the one we currently pay today, is actually lower than it was 20 years ago when it was enacted. It was enacted at 2.3 percent, and it went down and it went up and it went down and it went up. It even went up during a conservative Governor's term, Dick Thornburgh, and I will not belabor the record by reading back to the Members on that side of the aisle who then felt an obligation to defend their Governor and said why we have to raise taxes during a recession. Mr. President, this recession we are suffering in Pennsylvania and America is far worse than any recession we have seen before, and I fully suspect if it would not cause a panic we could probably almost cause a depression. But I know a little bit about economics and I know a little bit about political economics, and one of the things that keeps the economy going is hope. I fully expect our President to say every day that the recession is over. I want him to say that. I want him to make people feel good. I wish he had started to say it earlier and I wish he were more convincing. Mr. President, the fact of the matter is when you look at the economic indicators in Pennsylvania and you look at the money we are receiving in taxes, et cetera, the economy has not even begun yet to shift. So what are we to do? Are we to stand here like a three-year-old child who says I want to spend but I do not want to tax? I want my cake and I want to eat it too. Mr. President, how do we do that? Is that a good business practice I heard somebody talk about? I do not know. No one in this Chamber was forced to be here. We all ran voluntarily. Maybe one or two of us, and not me certainly, have had the luxury of being drafted by someone, although I only see that in movies, but no one is here because they do not want to be. When you come here, your obligation was stated the day you were sworn in, to defend this Constitution and to live by it and to obey it. This Constitution requires a balanced budget. It does not require demagogic statements. It does, however, require courage. Today will be the test of that courage.

Mr. President, I want to thank the Republican leadership for the efforts that they put through in trying to help us today and the efforts they put through in the Senate, particularly in light of the pressures they received from some of their more conservative colleagues in the House. That took courage. Mr. President, I want to thank the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Loeper, who helped move these negotiations along so many times when they were stalled, who knew, as we all knew, that this has to get done. There is no escape. I want to thank the other Members who helped negotiate this budget and this tax program. It was not easy. It was long and it was hard and it was difficult. I want to thank the staffs of the Committees on Appropriations and the leadership who have been here with us day and night. I want to thank those staff members who stood up for 24 hours, and we finally sent some of them home at 10:00 o'clock this morning and they are back again, people who have not been paid in this Chamber, people who have families and people, in many cases, who truly live paycheck to paycheck, but they did not walk away. They stayed and did their job, as tough as it was and as long as it was.

Mr. President, I do not know where the votes will come out on this. I would only hope that people would put aside some petty ego problems they may have, and granted, that is on my side of the aisle much more than the other, and that people would recognize that courage is what makes the difference between a politician and a statesman, and I would hope that tonight this Chamber will be filled with statesmen and not with politicians.

Senator STOUT. Mr. President, I do not know what famous American said this—maybe it was Casey Stengel or maybe it was Yogi Berra—I think it is deja vu all over again.

I have literally come full circle in the 20 years I have been privileged to serve in the General Assembly. I came in 1971 as a freshman Legislator, full of idealism and maybe I could do a lot to change Pennsylvania, because when I got elected in November of 1970 Pennsylvania was then in a budget crisis. We had gone through stopgap budgets before that for 18 months, and I came in and not only once, not only twice, but three times as a freshman House Member I put up a vote for then the Governor Shapp Administration for the first personal income tax in Pennsylvania. We passed that bill because we had court challenges and we passed it again and we struggled. My reward as then a candidate as a sophomore Member was redistricting. You saw five of my colleagues around go down. My opponent put my picture on the first state income tax, which, incidentally, was filed April 15, 1972, which was not a good year for Democrats because you guys had Nixon and we had George McGovern. But I survived by 197 votes, and I spent six years at the other end of this building. In 1977 I came into this Body, along with my good friend, the gentleman from Centre, Senator Corman, as a freshman Senator, and lo and behold, the tax crisis of 1977. Ladies and gentlemen, you are looking at vote number 26 on August 10th in this Chamber to pass that tax bill, the good old down country boy J. Barry. In the 1978 Primary Election my own party went after me. They drowned but I survived because I told people the truth. If you are going to be responsible and fund state government, be it for your senior citizens, for the young people we need to educate, for the people for higher education, for the roads, for the economic development things all of us know we have to have here in Pennsylvania, and I voted and I survived. I will vote for this bill in 1991. Twenty years I have supported that. I have supported every tax measure, not only for Democratic governors but for Republican governors, and I have survived because I have told people the truth. If you are going to be for a program, then you need to support it. There should be a lot more than 26 votes on this floor. There should at least be 27 because you know what your opponent will use. If so-and-so had not voted for it, it would not have passed. We know that is not fair to those of us who have to put those votes up.

I argue and I joke with my colleagues here about the whole hog sausage, and I do not want to see Philadelphia get all the loins and Allegheny County get the hams and the rest of us get the sow belly, just grind it up. I know Philadelphia and Allegheny County, because they are bigger, will get more. But we have to be responsible to those people. We are nearly 35 days late. We have literally caused chaos in this Commonwealth, and if we do not do that we are going to have chaos and everybody in this Chamber knows it. Those Members who are not going to vote for that—I am sure their printing presses and the fax machines will be sending all those good increases in school subsidies back to their districts—how is that going to reduce taxes, kaput. We put a clause in there to cause the reopener and to show people where their money is going to go. But, as I like to use a lot of old country sayings, I think the one that is really appropriate is what my grandmother Grace used to say. You know everybody here wants the good things, the good life, the money for education, the money for higher education, the money for roads, for senior citizens, for all the human services programs. Just like grandma Grace used to say, everybody wants to go to heaven; ain't nobody wants to die. Do the right thing, both sides of the aisle.

Senator ARMSTRONG. Mr. President, I realize voting for taxes is no easy thing for anyone in politics. I voted for them and I voted against them, but I think the frustrating part is that there are ways that we could cut and it seems that we never address those because politically, I guess, it is very unpopular. Just a few things popped into my head. I think we are the only state that has a no-waiting period for welfare recipients from other states. You can come in here from New York, come right into my hometown, go into Lancaster City, and that day you are on welfare grants and you can go and get free medical care. Most states have a 30-day waiting period. That would save tens of millions of dollars. I do not think we should be beholden to anyone from any other state to come in here and abuse our system, but that is what they do. This is what was told to me by welfare workers at Manor Street in Lancaster. They are fed up with the system because it just gives people a free ride in Pennsylvania. A welfare recipient can go into an emergency ward and charge $125 to $200 to come in for anything at all, whether it is serious or not serious, whether it is a headache or a hangnail or something very serious. Why not go to a family practitioner for $25 to $30 a visit?

True story. My son last summer was 19 years old. He got out of high school. We have a backhoe on the farm so he learned how to operate a backhoe. He got a job for a local contractor in Lancaster. He was making $9.00 an hour, not a bad wage for a 19-year-old boy. He got into a prevailing wage job. We have to pay artificially high wages to build our schools. His wages went from $9.00 an hour to $28.22. He was bringing home more money per week than I was with my Senate pay. Something is wrong with a system like that, that pays someone three times their salary from one day to get into a prevailing wage job to build a school, or whatever it is. We are paying people for votes is what it is. It is wrong. Maybe we should sell the liquor stores, that is another thing that is not paying its way but that is something we have talked about. Bond counsel. We do not want to touch bond counsel. We could probably have our own group of lawyers up here and do all the bond counsel work in Pennsylvania and save tens of millions of dollars. We do not want to do that because we defend those people who send checks for campaigns. It is wrong. Architect fees, 6 percent of a school in Lancaster, a $30 million school, $1.8 million for an architect fee. Why do we not have standard architect drawings here for schools, you know, maybe 10 or 12 that we could use? Six percent fee, that is exorbitant. I think the thing that really frustrates me is that we always say we are going to do something about it but every year it gets worse. But the thing is, it is even worse this year than it has ever been. I have been up here 15 years. I do not know of one year during the entire time we have had an increase in the budget this high. We are talking 12 percent. Most years it is 3 or 4 or 5 percent, the cost of living. Now we are at 12 percent and it is a recession. It is not business as usual, it is worse than usual.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, as in every debate, I believe there are issues that have to be dealt with that sometimes end up being part of the record that are not quite accurate. The gentleman from Lancaster, Senator Armstrong, made reference to residency requirements for welfare recipients, and as far back as the 1930s, with a very conservative Supreme Court in the United States, decisions were made that prohibited states from extending their laws to their borders to keep individuals out who needed that type of assistance. A very important Supreme Court decision took place in 1969 in the Shapiro v. Thompson decision when durational residency laws were ruled unconstitutional and it is under the 14th amendment. So there are some things that we just do not have any control over, and I believe that is such a minor part of what we are dealing with today that I had to make some remarks that I was not prepared to do in regard to some of the reasons why we are facing the vote we are facing right now. I have been part of the negotiating team that started sometime back in June. We have explored every option available. We have allowed each caucus to see what a scorched-earth budget produced. We have looked at every particular issue as far as the taxes we are recommending to become part of the law, and we did everything possible to make that tax burden as less onerous as we could. There are times in every government's history when a number of factors come together that cause problems. Other speakers have spoken to those issues such as a receding federal commitment to state and local and county and city governments, an increasing burden of education, a very large increase in medical assistance payments due to the downturn in the economy which has caused a lot of working men and women in this state to not have employment, and basic health care is then provided. For the first time in my 19 years in the General Assembly, I personally believe we have addressed the funding of basic education throughout Pennsylvania in a manner that we should be proud and pleased with. Many of the changes in basic education are going to reduce the burden of the local property taxpayer for our most important and vital service we provide and that is education to our young people. We are also doing something that cannot be measured in the tax vote or the budget vote in that we have changed the law to reduce the school districts' contribution for retirement for their teachers. Many of the school districts, if not all of them, have incorporated into the budget we are now funding for them a much higher rate for retirement. That total is $123 million statewide to the 501 school districts. They are going to be able to keep that money in their hands. They are going to be able to adequately fund the next year's budgets with the savings we are providing by that action alone, absent the tremendous increases in the ESBE formula. We also have, during this budget session, faced one of the most difficult issues we have ever had to face, and that was the escalating, out-of-control costs in special education. The balance that had to be struck in that issue was one of the most difficult that I have had to deal with, along with the other Members of the General Assembly, in a lot of years because there had to be a need, there was a need, and there had to be action taken to restrict the outrageous growth caused by excess spending. The core of that whole issue was the student who absolutely cannot have interruption in his or her education. We have addressed that issue to the point that there will be a transition from one system of funding to another system and there will not even be a heartbeat missed. I believe the time involved in bringing this particular budget to today and this tax vote—which, believe me, I have just as much concern with the vote I am about to cast as any Member of this General Assembly—and my responsibilities to everybody who I represent, and then I extend that to the other 49 Senate districts, goes beyond my concern for my personal political future. Whether this is going to be damaging or not, I think only time will tell. I believe my responsibility goes beyond any of the issues that you can attribute to what you personally feel, one way or the other, about the tax in front of us. I believe we have an obligation. I believe it is a fair assessment of those necessary tax increases. I believe we have come to this conclusion after some very agonizing, long nights. I believe we have tested the waters in every way we could possibly do to come to this particular bottom line of where we are. I am going to vote with a number of other Members on both sides of the aisle to pass this particular bill today. I do that with a heavy heart because I know it is going to inflict some measure of repression on people who are going to pay those taxes, but I also know that without this very difficult task being performed, that two months or two weeks or two days from now it would be worse. We have to fund government. We have to get it back on track. We have to start things going in the right direction, and this is the first step in bringing about that step in the right direction. I would urge my colleagues who have sat through this debate and maybe are not quite sure which direction they are going to go on the vote, to give some very serious consideration to supporting this effort.

Senator ARMSTRONG. Mr. President, just a point of clarification, the gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, was referring to the waiting period of the Shapiro decision which was stricken down. That was a one-year waiting period for welfare recipients. I agree with that decision. I think one year is entirely too long. We are talking 30 days, not one year. So we are talking apples and oranges.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I think the gentleman misses the point entirely. It is not a year or 30 days that is the issue, it is the action of denying, based on residency requirements, that the Constitution is being violated by the Supreme Court's decision in 1969 in Shapiro v. Thompson. It very clearly says that it does not make any difference if it is 30 days or a year, it is unconstitutional for that kind of a test to be applied to anyone in need of that particular type of help.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair would intervene at this point and thank the gentlemen for the colloquy and remind the gentlemen that it is a bit afield from the issue of the tax vote. I would appreciate the forbearance of both speakers.

Senator SCHWARTZ. Mr. President, I rise to join my colleagues who have spoken for this tax package, and as a first term Senator it is certainly not easy to put forward a tax vote. But listening to my colleagues it is clear that it is never easy to put forward a tax vote, but I think none of us can deny the financial situation of this Commonwealth, the deficit, the hard fiscal times, the economic realities of 1991 and the human needs. I believe we cannot be irresponsible, that those who will vote against this spending plan and against this tax plan, in fact, are being irresponsible. This budget is not about excess spending. There are, in fact, mandates to be met across the state. There are human needs. We have talked about education, both basic ed, special education and higher ed. There is child welfare. There is health care. In rural counties and in the urban areas there are services for the elderly, and there are the economic needs. This budget addresses PIDA and the loans that we talked about earlier in the Session about job training, and it includes rural initiatives as well. There are also, in fact, as we are reminded every day at noon, state employees who are waiting for us to take action, and I believe we have to do so and do so today. There is our commitment as elected officials to the men, the women and the children of this Commonwealth. As it has been said before by a previous speaker, possibly we will be able to reduce some of these taxes in the years ahead. I would hope so. But it is certainly not satisfactory right now for us to say there is nothing we can do or should be doing about the rising demands for revenue in this Commonwealth. It is our responsibility as elected officials, and I as a newcomer should not have to say this to all of you, but we have been sent here to do what is necessary. I believe if we explain it, then, in fact, people will understand it. They know we do not have enough revenue to meet the needs. They know that they want services from government. They want good services. They deserve high quality services from us. The only responsible position is to support this tax package. Does each of us like every part of the tax package? Certainly not. But as I understand it, it is really the best that our negotiators could come up with. It is a reasonable sharing of taxes between business and individuals, and it is one we should agree to. I would hope, too, that we could have large numbers of us willing to stand up and not just have the minimum number of votes for this tax package. I am told that is unrealistic. But I would say that the citizens of this Commonwealth are asking us to do just that, to stand together, to finally on this day, after these many hours, to do what we should do and support this tax package and then support the spending plan that joins this. The citizens of this Commonwealth need us to do this. They expect us to do it and they want us to do it, and I think we should stand together to make sure that it happens.

Senator WILLIAMS. Mr. President, thank you for very graciously allowing me to make a few brief remarks on this very trying issue before us. There is enough blame for us to go around and, of course, the citizens and the workers of this state are in deep demonstration about how bad things are with them in a very basic and fundamental way. As a veteran going through the profile and the anatomy of this kind of issue several times, there is not much that I can add, but I did want to say that as I drive my car the radio tells us what is going to happen and it says the Senate is going to do its thing today and at some removed predilection. I was beginning to think about how things were a few months ago and some work has been put into the result here, whatever you vote or do not vote. A lot of people have put in a lot of time, being badgered by both us and by our constituents. I do believe the representatives of this Body on both sides of the aisle did a brilliant job steering and guiding a result which some months ago seemed to be far, far, far off. So I just thought I would take this one moment, Mr. President, to say that the leadership in this Body—in my observation in watching it day-to-day and knowing how difficult this could be, I thought there would be at least three fistfights. There was only one. I thought there would be about three break loose once the matters were resolved and those things did not happen—the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Loeper, and the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, really deserve special attention for their skill and their statesmanship and the hard work of their staffs. Amid all the other pronouncements we are making, that is real, and as a veteran I can say that because I saw it, and I thought we ought to give some public recognition to the high abilities that are possessed by this Body. End of speech, Mr. President.

HB 840 (Pr. No. 2446)

An Act amending Titles 74 (Transportation) and 75 (Vehicles) of the Pennsylvania Consolidated Statutes, codifying provisions relating to public transportation; imposing certain fees and taxes; further providing for certain Pennsylvania Turnpike projects; defining "farm equipment"; further providing for the responsibilities of vehicle transferees, for exemptions from registration and certificates of title and for the use of dealer plates, multi-purpose dealer plates and farm equipment plates; further providing for funeral processions; further providing for a restricted receipts fund and for registration for snowmobiles and ATV's; establishing the Snowmobile Trail Advisory Committee; further providing for the highway maintenance and construction tax; and making repeals.

SUPPLEMENTAL CALENDAR NO. 2

BILL ON CONCURRENCE IN HOUSE AMENDMENTS TO SENATE AMENDMENTS

SENATE CONCURS IN HOUSE AMENDMENTS TO SENATE AMENDMENTS

HB 840 (Pr. No. 2446) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending Titles 74 (Transportation) and 75 (Vehicles) of the Pennsylvania Consolidated Statutes, codifying provisions relating to public transportation; imposing certain fees and taxes; further providing for certain Pennsylvania Turnpike projects; defining "farm equipment"; further providing for the responsibilities of vehicle transferees, for exemptions from registration and certificates of title and for the use of dealer plates, multi-purpose dealer plates and farm equipment plates; further providing for funeral processions; further providing for a restricted receipts fund and for registration for snowmobiles and ATV's; establishing the Snowmobile Trail Advisory Committee; further providing for the highway maintenance and construction tax; and making repeals.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I move the Senate do concur in the amendments made by the House to Senate amendments to House Bill No. 840.

On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, we have dealt with a lot of weighty issues the last two days. I guess we have been here two days on these issues, and this is certainly one of the very important issues as well. With House Bill No. 840 we are talking about mass transportation in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania as well as highway funding. I am very much a believer in mass transportation. I use it every time I go to Washington, D.C. I believe we must find ways of attracting people out of cars and into mass transit operations. We cannot constantly, continually build more lanes to all of our various superhighways to move traffic across this Commonwealth. However, my people I represent in Central Pennsylvania I think have a difficult time believing they should be the prime funder of mass transit in Pennsylvania, when they get their magazines that they are going to be paying 6 percent tax on for funding of mass transit, when they are paying an extra dollar on the tires they buy, when they see their electric bill go up and they turn on the switch and realize they are funding mass transit. I guess they would not mind so much if they felt that two things were happening. One, that, in fact, they were served by mass transit because they have to pay for it. Two, if they felt confident that the monies that were used by mass transit organizations were used appropriately and there was an accountability built into the mechanism that allowed the state dollars to go to these mass transit organizations. Mr. President, we have not built in accountability. All we have done is said that all people in Pennsylvania who use public utilities are going to be paying extra for the use of that public utility in a 12 mill increase in the PERTA tax as well as their magazines, the tires they buy, if they lease vehicles, if they rent a car they are going to be paying for this mass transit. Now we are a bit of a beneficiary, in the center of my district in State College, of the monies that are involved here. It is about $200 million. We will get a piece of that in State College and, in fact, in Bellefonte where I live. It is not a very big piece. The mass transit funding will be split by saying SEPTA will get 70.3 percent of all of these dollars. PAP, the Port Authority in Pittsburgh, is going to get 25 percent. The rest of the Commonwealth will get about 4.7 percent, or some number close to that, and of that 4.7 percent we will get a small piece of it in Centre County to use for mass transit. In Mifflin County they do not have mass transit so they will not have any use of it, or in Juniata County or in Clinton County or in Cameron County or in Clearfield County which I represent, but they will be paying the taxes regardless. They just will not get any benefit from it. They will get benefits from part of this bill, and that is the part that deals with highway funding. If we look at page 114, line 14, it ends that portion of dealing with mass transit and begins the portion dealing with highways.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The gentleman from Centre, Senator Corman, will state it.

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I would like to inquire if we could divide the issue and separate this bill so we can support highway transportation additional offerings as proposed in this piece of legislation and those who do not want to provide all of these additional dollars to mass transit without providing for any accountability so people can separate the issue.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The gentleman's point is correct. The Chair would rule that it is divisible and that as a matter of right I believe the matter can be divided.

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, then is it appropriate that I would so move that we divide the issue?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair has already ruled. You do not have to make the motion.

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, what is my next step to bring this whole process about?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question would go to the Body on each of the separate issues. The question before the Body is, will the Senate concur in amendments of the House of Representatives to Senate amendments in part 4, beginning with line 15 on page 114 to the end of the bill, which, frankly, is the highway section, for lack of any other description?

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I would encourage the passage of that portion of the bill.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator, the matter is before the Body.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, may we be at ease for a moment.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senate will be at ease.
(The Senate was at ease.)

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator O'Pake, Senator Williams, Senator Reibman, Senator Belan, Senator Mellow, Senator Stapleton, Senator Lynch, Senator Scanlon, Senator Dawida and Senator Jones.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Lincoln has requested temporary Capitol leaves for Senator O'Pake, Senator Williams, Senator Reibman, Senator Belan, Senator Mellow, Senator Stapleton, Senator Lynch, Senator Scanlon, Senator Dawida and Senator Jones. The Chair hears no objection. Those leaves will be granted.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Holl and Senator Loeper.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Fisher has requested temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Holl and Senator Loeper. The Chair hearing no objection, those leaves will be granted.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Once again, the question before the Body is, will the Senate concur in amendments by the House of Representatives to Senate amendments in House Bill No. 840, beginning with line 15 on page 114 through the end of the bill?

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, will state it.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, in my point of parliamentary inquiry there are two equally important issues addressed in this bill. So that I know which one we are dealing with, is this vote going to be the mass transit portion of the bill?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. This is the highway portion of the bill, Senator Lincoln.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I would urge a "yes" vote on this portion of the bill.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question before the Body would be, since Senator Corman asked to have the question divided, will the Senate concur in House amendments to Senate amendments in House Bill No. 840 on the highway portion of the bill, which would be part 4, beginning with line 15 on page 114 to the end of the bill?

The yeas and nays were required by Senator CORMAN and were as follows, viz:

A constitutional majority of all the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the affirmative.

On the question,

Will the Senate concur in the remainder of the House amendments to Senate amendments?

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Noah W. Wenger) in the Chair.

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I would now like to speak on the remaining portion of House Bill No. 840. Earmarking of taxes in some states has become very popular, and I have reams of material here that I would like to share with my colleagues because I have spent considerable time researching this issue. I do not think many in this room have spent the time I have, and I do not think they appreciate the problem we are placing the Commonwealth in if we pass this portion of the bill. I would like to cite a California example. This year it was facing a $14.3 billion budget deficit. I have with me a copy of a study done by the Golden State Center for Policy Studies. They talk about "The Deeper Lesson of California's Budget Crisis." According to their document, California faced this unprecedented deficit and they point out that a goodly portion of it was caused by earmarking taxes.

If I may read a portion of this, Mr. President, it says: "The state is said to face a Hobson's choice between spending cuts and tax increases. Even the Governor has proposed some $6.6 billion of the latter. But we must resist the steady drumbeat of pressure for higher taxes, understanding that the working people of our state are already overtaxed, and that justice requires that they retain as much as possible of what they earn.

"There is an urgent requirement to stop the incredible waste of the taxpayer's dollar in California. The Governor and his Working Group have come up with ideas that represent a good beginning. The Little Hoover Commission and various private-sector groups have proposed others. No stone should be left unturned.

"The deeper lesson to be drawn from this crisis," as it points out in this article, "is that there is a systemic problem with our state's budgeting process. In short, centralized administration and the increasingly common practice of 'earmarking' portions of the budget have rendered California's government essentially unaccountable, not only to the people, but even to their elected officials."

It is amazing that California has earmarked about, according to this article, 90 percent of the state's spending by prior statute, judicial decree or federal mandate, and rises inexorably without either legislative deliberation or rational relationship to revenue growth. I say to you, Mr. President, we already have established a Lottery Fund and dedicated those funds, quite appropriately, to the senior citizens. We have an earmarked or dedicated fund for highway transit. If we continue to move along in earmarking funds, after a bit our budget process will not amount to anything in Pennsylvania. It will become a matter of merely handling that five or ten percent of the budget that is remaining while all of the rest automatically would go to whom we have previously designated. It is amazing that California is confronting a $14.3 billion deficit, as it points out in this report. One way of gaining perspective on the situation is to recall the words of Governor Ronald Reagan in 1973: "Unless something is done to curb the government's unlimited power to tax, this year's $9.3 billion budget will grow to a staggering $47 billion by 1989." It so happened that in 1989 their budget was $50 billion. If eight percent is the budget they have left in California to fight over, you know, you would wonder why the elected representatives even need to discuss it.

An important complement of earmarking is a procedure known as workload budgeting or current services budgeting. Automatically each year the costs of each program are notched upward, and that is the same way it would happen in Pennsylvania, Mr. President. The structural problem with budgets arises from the following facts: While the average annual growth rate of personal income in California for the last decade has hovered around eight percent per year, the tax revenues have been growing about seven percent. Spending has been growing at approximately 11 percent, and this year and next it has moved to beyond about 13 percent.

The budgeting phenomena of earmarking and workload budgeting really mean that when it comes to budgeting—the bread-and-butter function of the Legislature and Executive Branches—our representatives have abdicated or let slip away their responsibilities. Missing from the current budget debate is the recognition of the extent to which government spending has ceased to be in the control of elected officials. This is why the spending reforms proposed by Governor Wilson and others, by themselves will not solve the problem, as this article so indicates.

I have some other articles I would like to share with you on this same subject. This is a 1983 USDOT report prepared by Don Pickrell, who was with the John F. Kennedy School of Government, and he is now at the Transportation Systems Center in Cambridge, Massachusetts. He also points out the inappropriateness of dedicated or earmarked taxes for mass transit funding.

Recognizing government's transportation policy, as they point out in this study from the John F. Kennedy School, the alarming deterioration in the financial condition of the U.S. public transit industry during the past decade also raises serious challenges to government policies toward urban transportation. There is accumulating evidence that growth and the availability of government operating assistance may itself be a primary cause of the escalation of costs and deficits. One of these challenges is clearly to reassess the design and operation of government subsidy programs for transit at the federal, state and local level. Local and state government agencies involved in transportation finance should very carefully, they point out in this report, evaluate decisions to earmark specific tax sources for transit assistance, since these decisions often exempt operating subsidies from much of the fiscal scrutiny normally applied to annual budget appropriations.

Similarly, state and federal transit assistance programs that distribute operating subsidies according to the formulae that fail to take financial and operating performance of the recipients into account need to be seriously reconsidered. The distribution formulae for these programs should be revised to establish specific incentives for transit operators to reduce operating expenditures per passenger, or passenger-mile carried, as well as to cover a large share of those expenses for farebox revenues.

Even if the distribution of operating subsidies can be rationalized to provide incentives for improved cost control and passenger-carrying productivity, their effectiveness is likely to be limited as long as subsidies continue to be offered only for conventional mass transit services operated by public authorities. Changes in the underlying cost structure in urban transit operations, together with continued evolution in urban transit demands, suggest that some of the vital, historically served by conventional bus and rail systems, could be served more efficiently at a lower cost by other travel modes. Further, in some urban travel corridors, private operators of conventional transit service may be able to provide it at a more reasonable cost than those now incurred by public transit authorities. Thus the most important challenge for government policies toward the nation's urban transit industry may be to reduce rather than to increase reliance on heavily subsidized conventional mass transit service. There is quite a nice discussion here on the effects of guaranteed subsidies, and I thought that would be of interest to you, Mr. President.

Finally, this analysis attempts to test the effectiveness of guaranteed availability of government assistance on transit operating expenditures. It does so by examining the association of operating costs with the fraction of each system's operating budget derived from state and local tax sources that are specifically dedicated to finance transit assistance. While it is also tempting to introduce some measure of federal operating payments, the dominant role of population and population density in the Section 5 distribution formula makes it nearly impossible to separate any effect of operating assistance from those of the population and density variables themselves.

The potential for confusing the direction of causality between federal subsidies and the unit cost levels introduced by including such a measure would also be difficult to avoid without a considerably more complex model, more complete and reliable data, and perhaps more complicated statistical techniques than those used here. The guaranteed, specifically earmarked nature of assistance funded from dedicated local and state tax sources makes the anticipated direction of their potential effects on transit expenditures much clearer than is the case with federal assistance. Although it certainly seems reasonable to hypothesize a similar effect of federal subsidies, federal payments under fixed formulas are not reported separately from discretionary assistance—

POINT OF ORDER

Senator BELL. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Delaware, Senator Bell, will state it.

Senator BELL. Mr. President, I raise a point of order that the gentleman is not debating the specifics of this bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman does appear to be debating the subject matter at hand, but the gentleman's point is well made from the standpoint that you could proceed with the process. We remind the gentleman from Centre County of the time of day and all the things that have happened in the previous two days, if he would make every effort to make his point.

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I will try to move along expeditiously, but you have to admit we are talking about dedicated earmarked taxes for a transit organization, and that is what the piece of legislation is all about.

Senator BELL. Mr. President, how many movers are necessary to move the previous question?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If it is moved, it needs to be seconded by four Senators.

PREVIOUS QUESTION MOVED

Senator BELL. Mr. President, I move the previous question.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Senator Bell has moved the previous question.

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I question the presence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Are there four seconds? The Chair sees none. The motion fails.

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I withdraw my question.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Jubelirer, Senator Tilghman, Senator Salvatore, Senator Loeper and Senator Helfrick.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Senator Fisher requests temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Jubelirer, Senator Loeper, Senator Tilghman, Senator Salvatore and Senator Helfrick. Seeing no objections, the leaves will be granted.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I would request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Musto and Senator Andrezski who have been called to their Capitol offices.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Senator Lincoln requests temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Musto and Senator Andrezski. Hearing no objection, the leaves will be granted.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate concur in the remainder of House amendments to Senate amendments?

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, are leaves of absence germane to my discussion?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. I am not sure but the gentleman may proceed.

Senator CORMAN. It also provides some evidence that government operating assistance weakens transit managers' incentives for cost control sufficiently to allow part to be absorbed by higher cost operating expenditures.

Another important part of this report from the Kennedy School says, nevertheless, the most important sources of cost escalation including explosive wage and fringe benefits increases and unnecessarily protective labor agreement provisions hampering the productive use of labor are more directly subject to management control. Others, principally the distribution of operating assistance without regard for its effects of managerial incentives, are the product of well-intentioned but conceptually errant government policies. It is a very good study on the subject of earmarking taxes and obviously it encourages governmental units not to pursue them.

Moving on, Mr. President, yet on the same subject, I would like to point out a study by the University of Mississippi. They also did a study on earmarking of tax revenues. They also have quite a lengthy document here suggesting that is certainly not the way to go for governments, to earmark taxes for transit organizations. I know how everyone is waiting on the edge of their seats for me to read it to them, and I will pass it up and I will move on to my next document.

My next document is earmarking of state taxes. There is a booklet put out by the National Conference of State Legislatures. This was copyrighted in 1987 by the National Conference of State Legislatures, and they have an executive summary. It might be interesting rather than reading the entire booklet if we merely talk about the executive summary. They suggest on the first page that earmarking is controversial, involving complex political and analytical issues. Common criticisms of earmarking include the allegations that it hampers budgetary control, leads to misallocation of resources, makes the revenue structure inflexible, and infringes upon the policymaking prerogatives of the Executive Branch and the Legislature.

PREVIOUS QUESTION MOVED

Senator BELL. Mr. President, I move the previous question.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Senator Bell moves the previous question. Are there four seconds to the gentleman's motion?

Senator FUMO. I second the motion.

Senator HOPPER. I second the motion.

Senator HELFRICK. I second the motion.

Senator LaVALLE. I second the motion.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. I think we have four seconds which is the required amount.

ABSENCE OF QUORUM

Senator CORMAN. Do we have a quorum, Mr. President?

Senator BELL. Can I vote proxies? I can give you ten more.

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I believe a quorum is made up by people present. Is it not, Mr. President?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Senator Corman has suggested the absence of a quorum. Are there four seconds to the gentleman's inquiry on the quorum?

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Centre, Senator Corman, will state it.

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, do you mean the proper procedure is if people suggest there is a quorum, that is merely it? Is there not a roll call to determine if, in fact, there is a quorum present?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. If there are four seconds to the gentleman's request for a quorum, then there will indeed be the roll call for the quorum. Otherwise, it is assumed that there is a quorum. Again, the question would be, are there four seconds?

Senator RHOADES. I second the inquiry.

Senator PECORA. I second the inquiry.

Senator HOPPER. I second the inquiry.

Senator HOLL. I second the inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There are, indeed, four seconds to the gentleman's inquiry on the quorum. Being a quorum call, no one on leave can be voted. The Clerk will call the roll. Those Members present on the floor will be polled.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, will state it.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, the gentleman has questioned a quorum. He has his four seconds. May we proceed with the roll call to see if there is a quorum?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. That is what I just ordered a roll call for, Senator Fumo.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Centre, Senator Corman, will state it.

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I am inquiring as to if the votes may only be cast by those present on the floor. Is that correct?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Only those present on the floor may cast votes. We cannot vote people on leave. They have to come onto the floor.

QUORUM PRESENT

The Clerk called the roll and the following Senators were present:

Afflerbach	Fumo	Lemmond	Rhoades
Andrezeski	Greenleaf	Lewis	Robbins
Armstrong	Greenwood	Lincoln	Salvatore
Baker	Hart	Loeper	Schwartz
Bell	Helfrick	Madigan	Shaffer
Bortner	Holl	Pecora	Shumaker
Brightbill	Hopper	Peterson	Stewart
Corman	Jones	Porterfield	Stout
Fattah	Jubelirer	Punt	Wenger
Fisher	LaValle

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Thirty-eight Members answering present, the Chair finds the presence of a quorum.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate concur in the remainder of House amendments to Senate amendments?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore (Robert C. Jubelirer) in the Chair.

Senator BELL. Mr. President, I have been assured by my floor leader that the gentleman only desires two more minutes to wrap up his speech. I would therefore, with the concurrence from my seconds, withdraw my motion with the understanding that in five minutes I am going to make it the second time.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Bell withdraws the motion.

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I thank the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Bell, and I thank you, Mr. President. I will wrap up. I think I have made my point. There are a lot of people in Pennsylvania who will not benefit from the passage of this legislation but all will pay. There are reams and reams of material saying what we are about to do if we pass it is not the right thing to do for government but, in fact, the wrong thing. I would encourage all of my colleagues to join me in voting "no" on this portion of the legislation.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I think what we are discussing in this portion of this bill is a very good microcosm of Pennsylvania, in that it is a wonderful state in its diversity. Even though there are many of us throughout the state who may not benefit as greatly as others from the intention of this part of this bill, I think it is really the secret to why Pennsylvania has been somewhat successful when other states have not been over the years. We have to realize there are times when certain aspects of funding in state government are not going to go on an equal basis or distributed even somewhat equally over the course of the state. Major urban areas of our state are dependent upon mass transportation. There has been a major move on the federal level to bring about a more dedicated or a more sound funding mechanism. I would urge that we support this particular section of this bill as strongly as we supported the other section that we passed a few minutes ago. I would ask for a "yes" vote.

Senator STOUT. Mr. President, I will be very brief. It is essential that this bill be passed in order to preserve for Pennsylvania some $146 million worth of federal funds that could be lost if we do not pass a dedicated funding source for mass transit. Every Member in this Chamber should be familiar with this issue and now we have to do that. It has to be in place by the end of September. It is my understanding when we adjourn, there will be a motion, we will not be back here in time to get this done. So let us go ahead and pass this legislation to ensure and prevent the loss of some $146 million worth of federal highway funds paid by Pennsylvanians and due to Pennsylvania.

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, I will be even shorter than my good friend, the gentleman from Washington, Senator Stout. I am going to use some of his down home logic. Cut it, slice it or fry it, baloney is still baloney, and the way you are fronting this bill is nothing but baloney.

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I have to rise to respond to what the gentleman from Washington, Senator Stout, said because it is inaccurate information.

Senator BELL. Mr. President, I think we have a rule somebody can only speak twice on a bill. I think this is the third time for the gentleman from Centre, Senator Corman.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. I was off the floor. I am told he has only spoken once.

Senator BELL. Mr. President, if he is brief and does not filibuster, I will withdraw my objection.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. I believe he wants to clarify the point of the gentleman from Washington, Senator Stout.

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, the passing of this piece of legislation is not the only solution to the Gray amendment that would cost us money. In fact, Congressman Shuster has inserted into the Surface Transportation Act legislation that would set aside the Gray amendment. As well, Senator Stout himself has sponsored a resolution that, if passed, would also avoid us losing those dollars.

Senator BAKER. Mr. President, I am loath to extend this debate except for a very brief period. I think we risk losing something that is very important that has developed during the negotiations over this particular package, and that is the end of the battle between highway funding and mass transit funding and the blending of them together in the recognition that all forms of transportation need to be dealt with, both in terms of capital and operating costs, maintenance costs, et cetera. I feel it is very important that we provide capital for the type of funding that this package will provide. I do feel that the gentleman from Centre, Senator Corman, is making an important point. I take his point to be from the massive material he has presented, that competitive contracting offers a great deal of potential efficiency in transportation, and his chagrin that it is not being included in this package, I think, is worthy of note. Since he is the Chairman of the Senate Committee on Transportation, I fully expect that he will have many opportunities in the future to develop his thoughts further.

I do have a question and I am not sure anyone is able to answer it at this time, but the bill as it was received from the House does include asset maintenance in the capital portion, and I am hoping if someone is present who can answer the question as to how it is to be interpreted that they will do so at this time.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Since Senator Baker has raised the question, I do not know. Senator Lincoln, do you wish to respond?

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, my understanding is that it just conforms with federal capital standards.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. I do not know if that answers the question. Senator Baker, is that—Senator BAKER. Mr. President, does that mean that Senator Lincoln knows what the federal standards are?

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, if I were required to know federal standards on every issue that I voted on in this Chamber, I am afraid I would have to—

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. I think the answer is no. I do not think anybody is rising to respond to your question, Senator Baker.

Senator BAKER. Mr. President, let me just conclude then by saying that I think it is important that we keep the coalition together for transportation finance for both highways and mass transit.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question before the Body is, will the Senate concur in House amendments to Senate amendments in House Bill No. 840 on the mass transit portion of the bill, beginning with page 1, going to the middle of page 15?

The yeas and nays were required by Senator CORMAN and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—30

Afflerbach	Fattah	Lincoln	Scanlon
Andrezski	Fisher	Loeper	Schwartz
Baker	Fumo	Lynch	Stapleton
Belan	Greenleaf	Mellow	Stewart

A constitutional majority of all the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Secretary of the Senate inform the House of Representatives accordingly.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVE CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair notes the presence on the floor of Senator Holl. His temporary Capitol leave is cancelled.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

RECESS ADJOURNMENT

Senator LOEPER offered the following resolution, which was read, considered and adopted:

In the Senate, August 4, 1991.

RESOLVED, (the House of Representatives concurring), That when the Senate adjourns this week it reconvene on Monday, October 7, 1991, unless sooner recalled by the President Pro Tempore of the Senate; and be it further

RESOLVED, That when the House of Representatives adjourns this week it reconvene on Monday, October 7, 1991, unless sooner recalled by the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Ordered, That the Secretary of the Senate present the same to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

HOUSE MESSAGES

HOUSE CONCURS IN SENATE AMENDMENTS TO HOUSE BILLS

The Clerk of the House of Representatives informed the Senate that the House has concurred in amendments made by the Senate to HB 804, 1551, 1552, 1553, 1554, 1556, 1564, 1570 and 1579.

BILLS SIGNED

The PRESIDENT pro tempore (Robert C. Jubelirer) in the presence of the Senate signed the following bills:

HB 89, 185, 221, 804, 1536, 1551, 1552, 1553, 1554, 1555, 1556, 1557, 1558, 1559, 1560, 1561, 1562, 1563, 1564, 1565, 1566, 1567, 1568, 1569, 1570, 1571, 1572, 1573, 1574, 1575, 1576, 1577, 1578, 1579, 1580, 1581, 1582, 1583, 1584, 1585, 1586, 1587, 1588, 1589 and 1590.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I would be remiss if today I did not specifically thank a number of people who assisted greatly during the last few weeks in helping us resolve this crisis. First and foremost, I would like to thank Senator Mellow, my floor leader, for giving me the leeway, not only this year but in prior years, to negotiate to the best of my abilities what we could for our caucus, and I want to thank him this year for his participation and for his help. I also want to thank my good friend Senator Lincoln who occasionally keeps me calm except when his head is riding at the heat of anger.

Mr. President, specifically on the staffs, I would like to thank Paul Dlugolecki, our Executive Director, for the fine job he did in his quiet, easy way of keeping things moving along; Virginia Joyce, for her help on the pension bill; Sandy Leopold, for his help on the child welfare bill; Jerry Sabol, for his extraordinary work on the education formula; Randy Albright, for his terrific work on the transportation bill; and Liz Sheehan, for her great service on the lottery preservation bill. Also, I would like to thank our clerical staff: Susan Swett, my secretary who is not with us now, although she put in 30 hours today; Vicki Strohm who also went home; and Monica Eutzy; and Tom Guelcher for following the Calendar and Pete Freeman and his staff in the Computer Department.

Mr. President, also the guy who had the toughest job of all of putting together the toughest bill to vote for it all, John Raymond on the tax bill. It was an intricate and very complex problem. He spent at least three days here—I should say three complete nights—and we did not see them in the mornings when we had to send them home.

On Senator Mellow's staff I would like to thank C. J. Hafner, our Chief Council; Jim Tanase, Mike Korposh and Neil Malady for their excellent work. Yes, Mr. President, on that side of the aisle I would like to thank the individual who still, as I understand, has a reservoir of goodwill left in this General Assembly, Steve MacNett, as well as Mr. Bittenbender and his staff from the Republican Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. President, without the aid of these loyal and dedicated state employees and Senate staffers, we would not be where we are today. We would not be as eloquent as I think we are on the floor, and we certainly would never be as knowledgeable as I know we are on these issues. It is also important to note that these people on this staff, unlike their colleagues in the House, served from the very first day without pay. It caused them as well as the other Senate staff members untold grief for their families, and we apologize to them for any harm we inflicted upon them in particular, because they could have been paid but they stood with us and waited until everyone else could be paid. Mr. President, again I thank my colleagues in this Chamber for helping us to resolve these issues in a positive way, and I wish everyone a very good summer.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I, too, would just like to follow up on the words echoed by Senator Fumo. This year was the first opportunity that I had to participate in the budget negotiation process. I certainly saw a lot of hard work, arduous days, a lot of tedious work that was put in by many, many dedicated people who have been mentioned by Senator Fumo. Certainly I want to extend my comments and my praise to our Majority Leader, Senator Joe Loeper, for all of the outstanding work that he did representing our caucus. We worked as a team. We had an outstanding staff on this side that was here day in, day out, night in, night out. I believe that from the perspectives that I saw, the firsthand perspectives, that the interests of our caucus and the interests of the people who we represent were, in fact, well represented during the budget negotiation process.

Senator STOUT. Mr. President, since the last few days here we have been saying back down home that we have been working from can to can't, from when you can see in the morning, till you can't see at night. I would just like briefly to comment on the transit legislation and highway funding that passed here a few minutes ago. That legislation, those two proposals, were literally joined at the hip. We accept precedence in creating a dedicated funding source for mass transit and to preserve federal dollars due Pennsylvania and to assure ongoing operations for transit in this Commonwealth. But more importantly, in the area on highways, with the additional $240 million we will be providing $100 million of needed maintenance funding in this Commonwealth that will reflect in every district, every county in this Commonwealth. We have also provided $40 million for capital construction to continue our ongoing highway improvement projects in this state. The $30 million needed for funding for bridge replacement and repair is unique, something near and dear to the President and myself and other Members, in identifying for the first time approximately $5 million a year for county bridges and for so-called forestry bridges. In the county bridges, Pennsylvania has an historic asset in this Commonwealth. It is called covered bridges that stretch from Bedford County and to Washington County and Lancaster County and many of the counties of this Commonwealth that we want to preserve and repair so our posterity will be able to enjoy the historic value of covered bridges in this Commonwealth. Also $30-some million for local roads that come back into the townships and the municipalities to help maintain their local road system is vital to our highway network. But for the first time we are going to identify approximately $35 million to be used towards Act 61 of 1985, the so-called toll road expansion legislation. That is legislation I started working on with many Members at that time in the General Assembly. Many of them are not with us today, and it took a number of years to get that legislation passed and moved forward. I knew at the time we needed to have a dedicated source to enable us to leverage out our federal dollars to be able to build these vital road links, and they are really avenues and boulevards of opportunity and economic development which we need so badly throughout this Commonwealth, particularly in southwestern Pennsylvania with our changed economy. So, likewise, I think we have made some historic things in the last few days.

I also want to give my thanks to the leadership on my side of the aisle and across the aisle for the people who worked so diligently and the staff who did that. But also I would like to recognize and say a few words about one of the new negotiators who happens to be one of my Legislators, Bill DeWeese, the Majority Leader in the House. Bill has been in that position for just a little over a year and stepped into a very difficult situation in putting together the budget, the tax package and all the other important legislation. I think Bill really showed his mettle, and we all know he likes to have the decorum of the Marine Corps, and so forth, but I think Bill was severely tested, but he met that test along with a new Majority Appropriations Chairman in Representative Dwight Evans, and all of their people who worked together.

Also, in concluding, wrapping up until October, I want to wish each and every one of my colleagues and the staff here in the Senate an enjoyable summer.

BILL SIGNED

The PRESIDENT pro tempore (Robert C. Jubelirer) in the presence of the Senate signed the following bill:

HB 840.

HOUSE MESSAGE

HOUSE CONCURS IN SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

The Clerk of the House of Representatives informed the Senate that the House has concurred in resolution from the Senate, entitled:

Recess Adjournment.

ADJOURNMENT

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I move the Senate do now adjourn until Monday, October 7, 1991, at 2:00 p.m., Eastern Daylight Saving Time, unless sooner recalled by the President pro tempore.

The motion was agreed to.

The Senate adjourned at 6:45 p.m., Eastern Daylight Saving Time.

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

LEGISLATIVE JOURNAL

MONDAY, OCTOBER 7, 1991

SESSION OF 1991 175TH OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

No. 60

SENATE

MONDAY, October 7, 1991.

The Senate met at 2:00 p.m., Eastern Daylight Saving Time.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant Governor Mark S. Singel) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The following prayer was offered by the Secretary of the Senate, Hon. MARK R. CORRIGAN:

Heavenly Father, we pause this beautiful afternoon to thank You for once again bringing us safely to our fall legislative Session. Be with these Your servants today as they address the affairs of this state. May the hand of God work among the hands of men, and the voice of God be heard among the voices of men. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present, the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding Session of August 4, 1991.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding Session, when, on motion of Senator LOEPER, further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

COMMUNICATIONS FROM THE GOVERNOR

SENATE BILL RETURNED WITHOUT APPROVAL

The PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following veto message from His Excellency, the Governor of the Commonwealth, advising that the following Senate Bill had been returned without approval:

SB 1059, entitled:

An Act amending the act of April 9, 1929 (P. L. 343, No. 176), entitled, as amended, "The Fiscal Code," providing an amnesty program for the payment of delinquent taxes; providing for the examination of books and records by the Department of Revenue; further providing for certain interest payments and the rates of interest, for the settlement of taxes and for the filing of liens and writs of revival; providing certain subpoena powers to the Department of Revenue; providing for unfair sales of cigarettes; and making a repeal.

The Clerk read the veto message as follows:

August 4, 1991

To the Honorable, the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

I return herewith, without my approval, Senate Bill 1059, Printer's No. 1504, entitled "An Act amending the act of April 9, 1929 (P. L. 343, No. 176), entitled, as amended, 'An act relating to the finances of the State government; providing for the settlement, assessment, collection, and lien of taxes, bonus, and all other accounts due the Commonwealth, the collection and recovery of fees and other money or property due or belonging to the Commonwealth, or any agency thereof, including escheated property and the proceeds of its sale, the custody and disbursement or other disposition of funds and securities belonging to or in the possession of the Commonwealth, and the settlement of claims against the Commonwealth, the resettlement of accounts and appeals to the courts, refunds of moneys erroneously paid to the Commonwealth, auditing the accounts of the Commonwealth and all agencies thereof, of all public officers collecting moneys payable to the Commonwealth or any agency thereof, and all receipts of appropriations from the Commonwealth, authorizing the Commonwealth to issue tax anticipation notes to defray current expenses, implementing the provisions of section 7(a) of Article VIII of the Constitution of Pennsylvania authorizing and restricting the incurring of certain debt and imposing penalties; affecting every department, board, commission, and officer of the State government, every political subdivision of the State, and certain officers of such subdivisions, every person, association, and corporation required to pay, assess, or collect taxes, or to make returns or reports under the laws imposing taxes for State purposes, or to pay license fees or other moneys to the Commonwealth, or any agency thereof, every State depository and every debtor or creditor of the Commonwealth,' providing an amnesty program for the payment of delinquent taxes; providing for the examination of books and records by the Department of Revenue; further providing for certain interest payments and the rates of interest, for the settlement of taxes and for the filing of liens and writs of revival; providing certain subpoena powers to the Department of Revenue; providing for unfair sales of cigarettes; and making a repeal."

Senate Bill 1059 amends the Fiscal Code to create an amnesty program for taxpayers, to add provisions to the Unfair Cigarette Sales Tax Act, with amendments, and to add or change several Department of Revenue enforcement powers including provisions relating to examination of records, settlement, lien revival, and the use of sampling during audits.

I have previously indicated my willingness to accept a limited form of tax amnesty as part of our overall effort to boost tax collection during the current fiscal year. Unfortunately, the amnesty program contained in Senate Bill 1059 is seriously flawed in several aspects. These flaws in draftmanship have an adverse impact on our revenue estimates and would, if left uncorrected, throw the budget out of balance.

The definition of "taxpayer" in the bill includes only those taxpayers required to remit taxes under the Fiscal Code and Title 72 of the Consolidated Statutes. However, there are no taxes that are required to be remitted under either tax law and, therefore, no one would be eligible for tax amnesty. Further, even if the bill could be given effect, the definition of eligible liability is overly broad and would reward those who are known consistent tax-evaders. Also, due to the broad definition of eligible tax, the so-called "amnesty" revenues would merely supplant revenues that are currently being collected. In other words, under this bill the department would reap substantial revenues that it already expects to collect, but would lose the interest and penalties it would otherwise expect to realize, but for the amnesty features of this bill.

An amnesty program which provides relief only to those whose liability is not known to the Department or to those who only have known liabilities which are too old to be effectively enforced would be productive. However, this bill tends towards being a pure giveaway for known tax "cheats" and, therefore, is highly unfair to the vast majority of law-abiding taxpaying Pennsylvanians.

I remain willing to work with the General Assembly to arrive at a more limited tax amnesty program, one that can be effectively administered without unnecessarily sacrificing interest and penalties which the Commonwealth expects to receive.

ROBERT P. CASEY.

The PRESIDENT. The communication and bill will be laid on the table.

RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

The PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following Senate Resolutions numbered, entitled and referred as follows, which were read by the Clerk:

August 13, 1991

RECOGNIZING 1991 AS THE 50TH ANNIVERSARY OF THE AMERICAN TREE FARM SYSTEM

Senators HELFRICK, WENGER, STAPLETON, JUBELIRER, PETERSON, O'PAKE, SHUMAKER, HOLL, MUSTO, SALVATORE, BAKER and RHOADES offered the following resolution (Senate Resolution No. 95), which was read and referred to the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations:

In the Senate, August 13, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Recognizing 1991 as the 50th Anniversary of the American Tree Farm System.

WHEREAS, Pennsylvania joined the American Tree Farm System on June 12, 1947, six years after the system was established; and

WHEREAS, Pennsylvania today has 1,700 tree farms that collectively total more than 891,000 acres; and

WHEREAS, Tree farms are managed resources that help meet our nation's needs for wood and paper products, water, air, wildlife, aesthetics and recreation; and

WHEREAS, Pennsylvania tree farms and all nonindustrial private woodlands in this Commonwealth are important sources of raw materials for both the domestic and international forest products industry, industries which manufacture goods valued at more than $4.5 billion annually; and

WHEREAS, Pennsylvania's forest products industry has one of the largest wood-related work forces in the nation, providing more than 100,000 jobs at more than 2,000 locations and representing more than 10% of Pennsylvania's manufacturing work force with an annual payroll exceeding $2 billion; and

WHEREAS, Pennsylvania's timber industry is the nation's leading producer of hardwood lumber in high demand for furniture and cabinets; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Senate recognize 1991 as the 50th Anniversary of the American Tree Farm System and congratulate those involved with the system on 50 years of growth and development.

MEMORIALIZING THE GOVERNOR TO PROCLAIM APRIL 22, 1992, AND EACH APRIL 22 THEREAFTER AS "QUEEN ISABELLA DAY" IN PENNSYLVANIA

Senators STAPLETON, TILGHMAN and HOLL offered the following resolution (Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 96), which was read and referred to the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations:

In the Senate, August 13, 1991.

A CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

Memorializing the Governor to proclaim April 22, 1992, and each April 22 thereafter as "Queen Isabella Day" in Pennsylvania.

WHEREAS, Queen Isabella I of Spain had great interest in promoting world exploration and did in fact offer discoverers of the day much encouragement and support; and

WHEREAS, Queen Isabella I showed great foresight in her patronage of Christopher Columbus' voyage after every other power of that day turned the navigator down; and

WHEREAS, On August 3, 1492, Cristobal Colon sailed from Palos, Spain, with three small ships and soon discovered several islands in the northern hemisphere; and

WHEREAS, Cristobal Colon's voyage to America is an example of great courage and adventuresome spirit; and
WHEREAS, The 500th Anniversary of America's discovery is fast approaching; therefore be it

RESOLVED (the House of Representatives concurring), That the General Assembly memorialize the Governor to proclaim April 22, 1992, and each April 22 thereafter as "Queen Isabella Day"; and be it further

RESOLVED, That on April 22, 1992, the occasion of the 541st birthday of Queen Isabella I, the people of this Commonwealth pay tribute to Queen Isabella I and to the people of Spanish descent who have made great contributions to the culture and language of the United States of America and this Commonwealth; and be it further

RESOLVED, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted to the Governor.

September 9, 1991

DIRECTING THE EDUCATION COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE THE FEASIBILITY OF CONSOLIDATING SCHOOL DISTRICTS INTO COUNTYWIDE SCHOOL SYSTEMS

Senator PUNT offered the following resolution (Senate Resolution No. 97), which was read and referred to the Committee on Education:

In the Senate, September 9, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Directing the Education Committee to investigate the feasibility of consolidating school districts into countywide school systems.

RESOLVED, That the Senate direct the Education Committee to investigate the feasibility of consolidating school districts into countywide school systems; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the committee may hold hearings, take testimony and make its investigations at such places as it deems necessary in this Commonwealth. Each member of the committee shall have power to administer oaths and affirmations to witnesses appearing before the committee; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the committee make a report of its findings and recommendations to the Senate as soon as possible.

October 1, 1991

MEMORIALIZING CONGRESS TO REJECT A PROPOSED RULE WHICH WOULD PROHIBIT STATES FROM USING A POOLING MECHANISM FOR MEDICAID FUNDING

Senators O'PAKE, MELLOW, JONES, REIBMAN, WILLIAMS, AFFLERBACH, MUSTO, HART, BORTNER and HELFRICK offered the following resolution (Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 98), which was read and referred to the Committee on Intergovernmental Affairs:

In the Senate, October 1, 1991.

A CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

Memorializing Congress to reject a proposed rule which would prohibit states from using a pooling mechanism for Medicaid funding.

WHEREAS, The Federal Government has mandated that the states provide health care for the poor; and

WHEREAS, The Pennsylvania Medicaid system meets that mandate by providing health care to the State's poor; and

WHEREAS, The Medicaid program includes ever-growing numbers of eligibles and benefits which are mandated by the Federal Government; and

WHEREAS, Those Federal mandates are driving up the costs of the Medicaid program, causing costs to the states to triple in the last ten years; and

WHEREAS, Pennsylvania has utilized a Federally-allowable "pooling" mechanism to match the Federal contribution toward the costs of Medicaid; and

WHEREAS, The Federal Health Care Finance Agency is proposing to prohibit states from engaging in "pooling"; and

WHEREAS, The elimination of "pooling" has the potential for costing Pennsylvania one billion dollars over the next three years; and

WHEREAS, Pennsylvanians cannot afford the rate of taxation which would be required to supplant that one billion dollar loss; therefore be it

RESOLVED (the House of Representatives concurring), That the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania memorialize the Congress of the United States to reject these proposed rules of the Health Care Finance Administration; and be it further

RESOLVED, That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the presiding officers of each house of Congress and to each member of Congress from Pennsylvania.

SUPPORTING THE RED RIBBON CAMPAIGN AND DESIGNATING THE WEEK OF OCTOBER 19
THROUGH 27, 1991, AS "RED RIBBON WEEK"

Senators GREENLEAF, JUBELIRER, HOLL, SCHWARTZ, HART, HELFRICK, MADIGAN, AFFLERBACH, LaVALLE, JONES, BORTNER, GREENWOOD, BRIGHTBILL, TILGHMAN, MUSTO, O'PAKE, SHUMAKER, BELAN, WENGER, CORMAN, SHAFFER, HOPPER, STOUT, PECORA, ROBBINS, REIBMAN, SALVATORE and RHOADES offered the following resolution (Senate Resolution No. 99), which was read and referred to the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations:

In the Senate, October 1, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Supporting the Red Ribbon Campaign and designating the week of October 19 through 27, 1991, as "Red Ribbon Week."

WHEREAS, It is imperative that visible, unified prevention education efforts by community members be launched to reduce the demand for drugs; and

WHEREAS, President George Bush and Mrs. Barbara Bush are the National Honorary Chairpersons, and Governor and Mrs. Robert Casey of Pennsylvania are the State Honorary Chairpersons to provide this community focus on a Drug-Free America; and

WHEREAS, Pennsylvanians Aware, a Statewide parent-community organization, is sponsoring "Red Ribbon Week" October 19 through 27, 1991; and

WHEREAS, Schools, businesses, law enforcement agencies, churches, hospitals, service clubs, government agencies, and individuals in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania will demonstrate their commitment for a drug-free society by wearing and displaying red ribbons during this week-long campaign; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Senate support the Red Ribbon Campaign, designate the week of October 19 through 27, 1991, as "Red Ribbon Week" in Pennsylvania, and encourage the citizens to participate in drug awareness activities, making a visible statement that we are strongly committed to live healthy drug-free lives; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania encourage all citizens to pledge: "THE CHOICE FOR ME... DRUG-FREE!"

The PRESIDENT. This report will be filed in the Library.

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION REPORT TO THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE IMPLEMENTATION PROGRESS OF THE REQUIREMENTS OF ACT 1988-101

The PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following communication, which was read by the Clerk as follows:

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION

Harrisburg, Pennsylvania 17120

September 26, 1991

Honorable Robert C. Jubelirer
President Pro Tempore
Senate of Pennsylvania
292 Main Capitol Building
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania 17120

Dear Senator Jubelirer:

The Department of Transportation is proud to submit this annual report outlining our activities relative to Act 1988-101.

Since the passage of this act, the Department has initiated many actions; not only to comply with the act, but to promote the use of otherwise waste material in the transportation sector.

We have actively pursued not only the recycling of material generated in our facilities but, have also expended considerable resources in the area of waste reduction. Another area that is receiving much attention is the use of waste material in highway construction and maintenance projects as a substitute or replacement for virgin materials.

The Department is presently considering the use of: glass in asphalt (Glasphalt); glass as a backfill material for pipe installations, waste tire rubber in asphalt, and roofing shingle scraps in asphalt. Research projects have been constructed or are planned for all of the above materials.

Glasphalt should be approved for use on local roads and glass for pipe backfill should be approved for general use in the spring of 1992.

All of the above activities are just a part of what the Department is doing to encourage the use of recycled waste material. I am sure the efforts put forth will go a long way to help stimulate new markets for many recycleable materials.

Sincerely,

HOWARD YERUSALIM, P.E.
Secretary of Transportation

The PRESIDENT. This report will be filed in the Library.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

The PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following communication, which was read by the Clerk as follows:

SENATE RESOLUTION

PROCLAIMING OCTOBER 6, 1991, AS "GERMAN-AMERICAN DAY" IN PENNSYLVANIA

Senators BORTNER, SHUMAKER, O'PAKE, AFFLERBACH, MUSTO, BELAN, HOPPER, SCHWARTZ, LEWIS, SHAFFER, GREENWOOD, REIBMAN, CORMAN, BRIGHTBILL, PECORA, BODACK, HOLL, FUMO, LYNCH, FISHER, SALVATORE, RHOADES and JONES offered the following resolution (Senate Resolution No. 105), which was read, considered and adopted:

In the Senate, October 8, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Proclaiming October 6, 1991, as "German-American Day" in Pennsylvania.

WHEREAS, It was on October 6, 1683, that the first Germans arrived in the United States; and

WHEREAS, Today, more than 60 million Americans trace at least part of their ancestry to Germany; and

WHEREAS, The sons and daughters of Germany have served our State and this country steadfastly over the years in all fields; and

WHEREAS, In 1990, German-Americans experienced the extraordinary historical event of reunification; and

WHEREAS, German immigrants have been the staunchest supporters of the democratic values and principles of this country; and

WHEREAS, German immigrants were the first ethnics who objected to slavery; and

WHEREAS, For more than two centuries, German immigrants in the United States have built a long tradition of loyalty in both peace and war; and

WHEREAS, "German-American Day" was inaugurated in 1987 by Joint Congressional resolutions and has gained increasing popularity since its inception; and

WHEREAS, On October 6, government officials, legislators, state governors and mayors nationwide will remind Americans of the German-Americans and recall their contributions to the life and culture of the United States; and

WHEREAS, On October 6, German-Americans will remember their history and heritage and will recall their achievements and will once again pledge their unwavering support of the United States and the democratic way of life; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Senate proclaim October 6, 1991, as "German-American Day" in Pennsylvania and call upon all citizens to recognize the vital role German-Americans have played in the development of our State and nation.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Senator BORTNER. Mr. President, a short time ago I introduced a resolution designating October 6th as German-American Day. Many of the Members cosponsored that resolution. Those of us who are referred to as Pennsylvania Dutchmen perhaps do not often or do not always think of ourselves as German-Americans, but those are our roots, whether they are recent or whether, as mine, they go back some time. In my particular case I go back eight generations when my great-great-great-great-grandfather, if I have counted that right, came from Germany and landed in Philadelphia. I was hoping Senator Fumo would be here. I guess in addition to Germany I can trace my roots to Philadelphia. On the ship Adventure which was bringing immigrants to the New World from Germany, many of those people ended up living in central Pennsylvania as my family did, migrating through Berks County and Lancaster County and eventually settling in western York County where they found not only some of the most fertile soil any place in Pennsylvania or in the New World, I suppose, but also land they could afford. It is there that they settled and began raising their families.

While these immigrants did not bring with them many worldly possessions, they did bring some other things, and included among those I believe were their values: their belief in God, their strong sense of community and their work ethic, which I think has allowed them to become very successful and very productive members of their communities.

Over the last year, through 1990, as we watched some of the most extraordinary historical events, really in the history of the world, unfolding in Germany, I think German-Americans can feel a special sense of pride, not only with what happened in Germany but which later spread through the rest of Eastern Europe and even now with what we see going on in the Soviet Union.

So with that brief historical perspective, I offer the resolution and I thank the other Members who sponsored my resolution in designating October 6th and this week as German-American Week, and I hope everybody will join in the celebration of Oktoberfest in their own communities.

RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

The PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following Senate Resolutions numbered, entitled and referred as follows, which were read by the Clerk:

October 8, 1991

DIRECTING THE LEGISLATIVE BUDGET AND FINANCE COMMITTEE TO STUDY RECENT STATE TAX INCREASES IN RELATION TO SMALL BUSINESSES

Senator GREENLEAF offered the following resolution (Senate Resolution No. 101), which was read and referred to the Committee on Finance:

In the Senate, October 8, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Directing the Legislative Budget and Finance Committee to study recent State tax increases in relation to small businesses.

WHEREAS, The effect of recent State tax increases which went into effect July 1, 1991, and October 1, 1991, on Pennsylvania small businesses is, as yet, unknown; and

WHEREAS, It was not the intent of the legislature, in enacting these tax increases, to chill job creation and economic growth in this Commonwealth; and

WHEREAS, Despite the legislature's good intentions to the contrary, various private sources have alleged that the tax increases will indeed chill job creation and economic growth in this Commonwealth; and

WHEREAS, The legislature desires to have a study conducted to determine the veracity of these allegations; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Senate direct the Legislative Budget and Finance Committee to conduct a study to determine whether recent State tax increases are having a chilling effect on Pennsylvania small business, especially in the areas of job creation and economic growth; and be it further

RESOLVED, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted to:

Philip R. Durgin, Exec. Dir.
Legislative Budget and Finance Committee

CONGRATULATING THE TELEPHONE PIONEERS OF AMERICA ON ITS 80TH ANNIVERSARY

Senators SALVATORE, TILGHMAN, O'PAKE, SHUMAKER, BORTNER, REIBMAN, WENGER, PORTERFIELD, CORMAN, BELL and HELFRICK offered the following resolution (Senate Resolution No. 102), which was read and referred to the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations:

In the Senate, October 8, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Congratulating the Telephone Pioneers of America on its 80th Anniversary.

WHEREAS, The Telephone Pioneers of America, the world's largest industry-related service organization, is celebrating its 80th year; and

WHEREAS, It has more than 750,000 members in 12 regions throughout the United States and Canada, and they have contributed hundreds of thousands of volunteer hours to community service; and

WHEREAS, The pioneers from three Pennsylvania chapters located in Region 8, Fort Pitt, Leonard H. Kinnard and Liberty Bell, have made an outstanding contribution to the quality of life throughout this Commonwealth; and

WHEREAS, The Pennsylvania chapter members have focused on helping the elderly and the young, participated in literacy and drug abuse programs, developed annual sports jamborees for the handicapped and designed special books and games for the visually impaired; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Senate congratulate the Telephone Pioneers of America on its 80th Anniversary and wish it continued success and thanks for its contributions to this Commonwealth.

HB 1541 — Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations.

SPECIAL ORDER OF BUSINESS
CONGRATULATORY RESOLUTION

CONGRATULATIONS OF THE SENATE
EXTENDED TO SENATOR EDWIN G. HOLL

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, many times Members of the Senate, for various reasons, offer congratulatory resolutions to those Members in our various districts who have achieved outstanding accomplishments. It is not often, Mr. President, that we get the chance to offer a congratulatory resolution in this Chamber to one of our own Members on behalf of some outstanding achievements that they themselves have accomplished. However, Mr. President, it is my great pleasure today to have the opportunity to present to the Members of the Senate a congratulatory resolution on behalf of one of our Members, and I would like to take just a moment in order to read this congratulatory resolution.

Senator LOEPER offered the following congratulatory resolution which was read as follows:

In the Senate, July 15, 1991.

WHEREAS, The Honorable Edwin G. Holl, Pennsylvania State Senator, has been honored by the Boy Scouts of America as a recipient of the Silver Antelope Award, the highest award bestowed upon an adult scouters; and

WHEREAS, Senator Holl has been chosen to receive this prestigious award by a special selection committee of the northeastern region comprising the New England States, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Puerto Rico and the American territories in the Caribbean. He was recognized during the Boy Scouts of America biennial meetings, May 22-24, 1991 in Puerto Rico; and

WHEREAS, Senator Holl has earned recognition for more than fifty years of dedicated involvement in Scouting at various levels and for his tireless efforts to protect and assist young people in this Commonwealth as a distinguished member of the Pennsylvania State Legislature; and

WHEREAS, The sponsor of various bills to promote the safety, education and welfare of children, Senator Holl has been an ardent supporter of funding for public education, children's programs and programs to assist children with developmental disabilities. In addition, he has been associated with the Valley Forge Council, Boy Scouts of America, since 1960 and has served since 1983 as chairman of the council board.

NOW THEREFORE, the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania extends congratulations to the Honorable Edwin G. Holl, well deserved recipient of the Silver Antelope Award; offers best wishes for his continued outstanding contributions to the Boy Scouts of America and the young citizens of this Commonwealth;

And directs that a copy of this document, sponsored by Senator F. Joseph Loeper, be transmitted to Senator Edwin G. Holl.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I would like to ask Senator Holl if he would come up here and I can present this resolution to him.

Senator HOLL. Thank you, Mr. President. Thank you, Senator Loeper and Members of the Senate. I am just delighted to hear this. It is a very pleasant surprise this morning. The only thing I regret is that my mother is not here to hear it. Thank you all very much.

(Applause.)

The PRESIDENT. All those in favor of the resolution indicate by saying "aye," all those opposed "no." The "ayes" have it and the resolution is adopted.

RECESS

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, at this time I would ask for a very brief recess of the Senate for the purpose of a meeting of the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations to begin immediately in the Rules room at the rear of the Senate Chamber.

The PRESIDENT. For the purpose of a meeting of the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations to begin immediately in the Rules room at the rear of the Senate Chamber, the Senate will stand in very brief recess.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed, the Senate will be in order.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS REPORT FROM COMMITTEE

Senator LOEPER, from the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations reported the following bill:

HB 1541 (Pr. No. 2460)

An Act amending the act of August 14, 1991 (P. L. , No. 36), known as the "Lottery Fund Preservation Act," further providing for human service shared ride transportation services for older adults; and providing for grants.

BILLS ON FIRST CONSIDERATION

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I move the Senate do now proceed to consideration of all bills reported from committees for the first time at today's Session.

The motion was agreed to.

The bills were as follows:

SB 1264, HB 626 and 1132.

And said bills having been considered for the first time,

Ordered, To be printed on the Calendar for second consideration.

BILL ON FIRST CONSIDERATION AND REREFERRED

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I move the Senate do now proceed to consideration of the bill reported from committee for the first time at today's Session.

The motion was agreed to.

The bill was as follows:

HB 1541.

And said bill having been considered for the first time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be printed for second consideration.

Upon motion of Senator LOEPER, and agreed to, the bill just considered was rereferred to the Committee on Appropriations.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVE CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT. The Chair recognizes the presence on the floor of Senator Jones. Her temporary Capitol leave will be cancelled.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Senator STAPLETON. Mr. President, first of all, I want to congratulate Senator Holl for the honor bestowed on him today by the Boy Scouts of America. Certainly, that is an honor he is proud of and will cherish the rest of his life.

However, Mr. President, I want to take this opportunity to acknowledge a new anniversary for me, the three-month anniversary of the last time I asked for action on House Bill No. 1075. Ninety days ago, on July 9th, I addressed this Body to urge speedy consideration of the college and university right-to-know law. This bill originally passed the House of Representatives on June 5th by a vote of 202-1 and has been in the Senate Committee on Education since June 10th. Although the chairman of that committee called a public hearing on the bill late last month, I question how much more study we need on that bill. This issue has been hotly and publicly debated since its original introduction by Mr. Cowell last April. I disagree with any further delay, and I urge my colleagues on the other side of the aisle to take some positive action on this bill. In doing so I would like to briefly reiterate my reasons. First of all, the bill would only open the books of those colleges and universities receiving substantial state assistance. This would include Penn State, Pitt, Temple and Lincoln, along with the State System of Higher Education, the community colleges and finally the 11 state-aided private colleges and universities. Under the act the schools would join Commonwealth agencies in being open for examinations and inspections by the citizens of this Commonwealth. I want to remind you of the tremendous investment that the Commonwealth has in all of these institutions. Between 1981 and 1991, a ten-year span that includes this year, about $7.6 billion has been allocated to the state system and the four state-related. When we add the aid that went to the community colleges and the other state-aided schools, this number increased to $9.3 billion.

Let us look at this aid in another way. The total aid this year to all the institutions that I have just mentioned exceeds $1 billion. This is more than one-third of the total tax increase this year. It is seven percent of the total state budget. As I said three months ago, this contribution should buy the public and the Legislature some rights, but the schools still resist disclosure. The universities' representatives told us that they already report regularly to the feds and to the state. But many of these reports are confusing to the lay person and they do not pass the true test of House Bill No. 1075, and that is to provide access to the public. On the other hand, the funding that we allocate for basic education is fully accountable. In fact, we told the school districts this year to reopen their budgets to see if they could cut local taxes. One of the reasons used in the spring by Senator Loeper to delay a vote was because the Auditor General had started an audit of Pitt and was planning to investigate Temple and Lincoln. As I have already said, the Office of the Auditor General has only limited authority in what it can undertake. Secondly, the Auditor General's Office is carrying a large backlog. Finally, an audit by the Auditor General does not replace the public's right to know. I think the fact that the Auditor General is on record supporting the bill's concept proves my point.

Now that the budget is passed and the taxes have been enacted, there is no good reason for further delay. I know I am joined by many other voices, including the press and the public, in urging prompt consideration of this bill, and I am hopeful that Senator Loeper and his side of the aisle will move this bill and schedule it for a vote as soon as possible.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I could not help but respond to the gentleman's remarks concerning pending legislation in the Senate Committee on Education. Unfortunately, I do not have a prepared press release to distribute concerning this, but I think it is important, however, that we comment on this issue. I think it is important the public also be aware that the Senate Committee on Education did just recently hold a public hearing on this most important issue. My office has never received any communication from the gentleman from Indiana as to his interest in this bill and would we please work with the Committee on Education to move this process along, nor, Mr. President, was it even in his interest for the gentleman to attend the public hearing in order that he could hear what some of the concerns were of many of the institutions that would be affected by this legislation. I think that Senator Rhoades, as Chairman of the Senate Committee on Education, is very carefully considering the legislation, trying to gain public input throughout this Commonwealth as to what effect this legislation may have, both positively and negatively, upon our educational institutions of higher learning. I believe that Senator Rhoades and his committee have moved ahead in consideration of this legislation, and I look forward to its continued deliberation with that process.

Senator STAPLETON. Mr. President, I am certainly pleased to hear that Senator Loeper and Senator Rhoades are moving forward to bring this bill out for consideration. I certainly felt all along that Senator Rhoades would do just that. I know there are a number of Senators on his side of the aisle who want to see this bill brought up for consideration and have the opportunity to vote on it, the same as many Members on this side of the aisle.

CONGRATULATORY RESOLUTIONS

The PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following resolutions, which were read, considered and adopted:

SESSION OF 1991

175TH OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

No. 63

SENATE

TUESDAY, October 15, 1991.

The Senate met at 2:00 p.m., Eastern Daylight Saving Time.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant Governor Mark S. Singel) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Reverend KAREN LAYMAN, Pastor of Hope United Methodist Church, Mechanicsburg, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

O God, at a time when we as a nation are so consumed with judging the moral rectitude of others, help us to be a people beyond reproach. May we not so much look for the specks in others' eyes as the motes in our own. Make this great Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania an example of the highest moral character. May the words and actions of each man and woman, each Senator and staffer, in public and in private places beyond closed doors be honorable and courageous. For we know, O Lord, that in the final analysis You who see and know all are our only ultimate judge. In Your holy name we pray. Amen.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair thanks Reverend Layman who is the guest this week of Senator Andrezeski.

RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

The PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following Senate Resolutions numbered, entitled and referred as follows, which was read by the Clerk:

October 15, 1991

OFFERING GRATITUDE TO THE MEN AND WOMEN WHO ARE AND HAVE BEEN CAREER FIREFIGHTERS IN PENNSYLVANIA

Senators SALVATORE, BELAN, SHAFFER, LEWIS, LaVALLE, MUSTO, SCANLON, TILGHMAN, LOEPER, PECORA, O'PAKE, HOLL, CORMAN, WENGER, BORTNER, JUBELIRER, ROBBINS, HART, PUNT, MADIGAN, SCHWARTZ, HELFRICK and REIBMAN offered the following resolution (Senate Resolution No. 106), which was read and referred to the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations:

In the Senate, October 15, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Offering gratitude to the men and women who are and have been career firefighters in Pennsylvania.

WHEREAS, The men and women who fill the ranks of firefighters have unselfishly dedicated themselves to protecting the lives and property of the people they serve; and

WHEREAS, This dedication, knowing no limits, has sometimes resulted in the death of a firefighter whose commitment and determination to save and protect rose above all else; and

WHEREAS, The International Association of Fire Fighters has established the Fallen Fire Fighter Memorial to honor the men and women who have given their all in the line of duty; and

WHEREAS, This monument, with its powerful symbolism, clearly and fully expresses the heartfelt gratitude of the people of communities everywhere who know and respect the enormous commitment that is the creed of every firefighter; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania pause in its deliberations to offer on behalf of all the people of this Commonwealth its deep and everlasting gratitude to the men and women who in their role as career firefighters protect the lives of so many everywhere; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the Senate commend the International Association of Fire Fighters for its commitment to perpetually honor the men and women who as career firefighters have made the ultimate sacrifice by establishing the Fallen Fire Fighter Memorial.

DESIGNATING OCTOBER 20 THROUGH 26, 1991, AS "CONSUMERS WEEK" IN PENNSYLVANIA

Senators BELL, SHUMAKER, LYNCH and REIBMAN offered the following resolution (Senate Resolution No. 107), which was read and referred to the Committee on Rules and Executive nominations:

In the Senate, October 15, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Designating October 20 through 26, 1991, as "Consumers Week" in Pennsylvania.

WHEREAS, The President of the United States has proclaimed the week of October 20 through 26, 1991, as "National Consumers Week"; and

WHEREAS, A major function of our competitive free market system is to satisfy consumer demand; and

WHEREAS, All Pennsylvania citizens are consumers of goods and services in trade or commerce throughout the world, the United States and the Commonwealth; and

WHEREAS, Consumers should have access to a wide variety of competitively priced goods and services produced here and abroad and to accurate information on product content and care, contractual obligations, cost of credit and all information necessary to make informed purchase decisions; and

WHEREAS, The active cooperation of educators, business, government and consumers working together can fuel our free market economy; and

WHEREAS, "National Consumers Week" will promote dissemination of sound consumer information by both public and private sectors, including the media, on subjects such as complaint handling and on public policy issues which affect consumers; will encourage dialogue and cooperation among consumers, business and government; and will broaden the scope of consumer and economic education by heightening consumer awareness that we function in a world market and by acknowledging that our interdependence extends far beyond the boundaries of the United States; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Senate designate the week of October 20 through 26, 1991, as "Consumers Week" in Pennsylvania.

APPOINTMENT BY MAJORITY LEADER

The PRESIDENT. The Chair wishes to announce the Majority Leader has made the following appointment:

RECESS

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, before we begin considering Senate Bill No. 727, I understand there may be more amendments to be offered to that bill, and in light of that fact, I would now ask for a short recess of the Senate for the purpose of a Republican caucus to take place immediately in the Rules room at the rear of the Senate Chamber.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I would think that the Democrat caucus should meet in the Democrat caucus room.

The PRESIDENT. For purposes of Republican and Democratic caucuses to begin immediately, the Senate will stand in brief recess.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed, the Senate will be in order.

THIRD CONSIDERATION CALENDAR RESUMED

BILL ON THIRD CONSIDERATION AMENDED

SB 727 (Pr. No. 1449) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending the act of March 10, 1949 (P. L. 30, No. 14), entitled "Public School Code of 1949," providing for collective bargaining.

Considered the third time,

On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

STEWART AMENDMENT

Senator STEWART, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A2582:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1131-A), page 9, lines 24 and 25, by striking out all of said lines and inserting:

Section 1131-A. Strikes Prohibited.—Selective teacher strikes are prohibited.

On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator STEWART. Mr. President, Senate Bill No. 727 before us has been promoted as a bill to eliminate teachers' strikes. Whether or not my colleagues agree with that or disagree with that is a matter of a great deal of debate, and whether or not Senate Bill No. 727, when it finally leaves here, this Chamber, does that or does not do that will be determined in the hours ahead. But there is one type of strike that is occurring out there in districts all over the Commonwealth and it is a teachers' strike termed as a selective strike. For the benefit of the Members who may not have experienced that in their districts, a selective strike, as it is termed, can mean teachers leaving the classrooms in the middle of the school day, leaving the children with no bus rides home, with no supervision. Or, in the case of Westmont Hilltop School District that is currently undergoing a selective strike in my district, the teachers notify the school board usually 9:00 or 10:00 o'clock at night that they are either going to be in the classroom the next day or not going to be in the classroom the next day. When this bargaining tool first surfaced it seemed on the surface to maybe be an idea to keep everybody at the table, keep everybody on their toes, keep the board on their toes, keep the teachers on their toes, keep everybody talking because no one would know what the other side was going to be doing. The effect of this, Mr. President, has been to keep the parents watching the 11:00 o'clock news, not knowing until the newscaster, the anchor, comes on at 11:00 o'clock, and it has become almost like the snow day report that we are all used to hearing on the radio in the morning in the winter, whether the kids will have school or not have school that day.

Mr. President, this amendment simply prohibits selective teacher strikes, and I would urge its adoption.

Senator STAPLETON. Mr. President, I just want to offer my support to the amendment of the gentleman from Cambria, Senator Stewart. I, too, believe that the time has come to do something about this issue. I believe we can no longer stand on the sideline and fail to take some action. These selective strikes occur against children and certainly their parents, and I believe there are many, many teachers in this Commonwealth who will admit that such strike tactics may be counterproductive. This is the time for us to take some action, and I would be hopeful that Senator Stewart would have support from both sides of the aisle.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

GREENWOOD AMENDMENT A2567 TO STEWART AMENDMENT A2582

Senator GREENWOOD, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A2567 to Stewart Amendment No. A2582:

Amend amendment page 1, lines 4 to 8 by striking out all of said lines and inserting:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1101-A), page 2, line 2, by striking out "professional"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1101-A), page 3, lines 5 and 6, by striking out all of said lines

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1121-A), page 4, line 7, by inserting after "Mediation.—": (a)

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1121-A), page 4, by inserting between lines 16 and 17: (b) The Pennsylvania Bureau of Mediation shall employ a complement of not less than fifty (50) mediators which shall be available to mediate according to the provisions of subsection (a).

Section 1122-A. Fact-finding Panels.—(a) (1) Once mediation has commenced, it shall continue for so long as the parties have not reached an agreement. If, however, an agreement has not been reached within twenty (20) days after mediation has commenced or in no event later than one hundred thirty (130) days prior to the budget submission date, the Bureau of Mediation shall notify the board of the parties' failure to reach an agreement and of whether either party has requested the appointment of a fact-finding panel.

(2) Either party may request the board to appoint a fact-finding panel. Upon receiving such request, the board shall appoint a fact-finding panel which may consist of either one (1) or three (3) members. The panel so designated or selected shall hold hearings and take oral or written testimony and shall have subpoena power. If, during this time, the parties have not reached an independent agreement, the panel shall make findings of fact and recommendations. The panel shall not find or recommend that the parties accept or adopt an impasse procedure. The parties may mutually agree to fact finding at any time.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1122-A), page 5, line 18, by inserting after "boards.": The board shall, within sixty (60) days of the effective date of this act, increase the number of available panels of qualified persons to serve as members of fact-finding boards to meet the expanded role of fact finding as provided for in this act.

Amend Sec. 1, page 5, lines 24 through 30; page 6, lines 1 through 30; page 7, lines 1 through 7, by striking out all of said lines on said pages and inserting:

Section 1123-A. Negotiated Binding Arbitration.—(a) The parties to a collective bargaining agreement involving public school employees shall be required to bargain upon the issue of acceptance and adoption of one of the following approved impasse procedures, with the proviso that such an obligation does not compel either party to agree to a proposal or require making a concession:

(1) Arbitration under which the award is confined to a choice among one of the following single packages:

- (i) the last offer of the representative of the employer;
- (ii) the last offer of the representative of the employees; or
- (iii) the fact-finder's recommendations, should there be a fact-finder's report.

(2) Arbitration under which the award is confined to a choice among one of the following on an issue-by-issue basis:

- (i) the last offer of the representative of the employer;
- (ii) the last offer of the representative of the employees; or
- (iii) the fact-finder's recommendations, should there be a fact-finder's report.

(3) Arbitration under which the award is confined to a choice among one of the following on the basis of economic and noneconomic issues as separate units:

- (i) the last offer of the representative of the employer;
- (ii) the last offer of the representative of the employees; or

(iii) the fact-finder's recommendations, should there be a fact-finder's report.

(b) As used in this section, economic issues shall mean wages, salary, fringe benefits or any form of monetary compensation for services rendered.

Section 1124-A. Method of Selection of Arbitrators.—The board of arbitration shall be composed of three members. Arbitrators as referred to in this act shall be selected in the following manner:

(1) Each party shall select one member of the panel within five (5) days of the parties' agreement to submit to binding arbitration.

(2) The third arbitrator shall be selected from a list of seven (7) arbitrators furnished by the American Arbitration Association within five (5) days of the publication of the list. Each of the seven (7) arbitrators shall be a resident of this Commonwealth and knowledgeable in the areas necessary to effectively make a determination. Each party shall alternatively strike one name until one shall remain. The employer shall strike the first name. The person so remaining shall be the third member and chairman.

Section 1125-A. Determination by Arbitrators.—(a) If the parties have agreed to submit the dispute to binding arbitration, the procedures set forth in this section apply. When fact finding has not occurred, this submission to arbitration shall be made by April 15, consistent with the arbitration option selected.

(b) If within ten (10) days after publication of the findings of fact and recommendations as provided in section 1122-A(c) but not later than May 1, the parties have neither accepted the recommendations of the fact-finding panel nor reached an independent agreement on the issues in dispute, either the employer or the employees may request binding arbitration:

(1) If the employer requests binding arbitration:

(i) the employer shall notify the Bureau of Mediation, the board and the employees in writing; and

(ii) the parties shall submit to binding arbitration.

(2) If the employees request binding arbitration, the employees shall notify the Bureau of Mediation, the board and the employer in writing. The employer shall, within ten (10) days of notification by the employees, notify the employees in writing of its agreement or refusal to submit to binding arbitration. Employees may not strike during this ten (10) day period or until notified of the employer's refusal to submit to binding arbitration within the ten (10) day period. Employees may strike if the employer refuses to submit to binding arbitration. If the employer refuses to submit to binding arbitration, arbitration shall only occur if both parties agree to submit to binding arbitration.

(c) If the parties are unable to agree on the adoption of one of the approved impasse procedures under section 1123-A, the mediator appointed pursuant to section 1121-A shall select the procedure.

(d) Within ten (10) days of the agreement to submit to binding arbitration, the parties shall submit to the arbitrators their last best contract offer with certification that the offer was delivered to the opposing party, together with documentation supporting the reasonableness of their offer. This documentation shall include, but not be limited to, the following:

- (1) The public interest.
- (2) The interest and welfare of the employee organization.
- (3) The financial capability of the school entity.
- (4) The results of negotiations between the parties prior to submission of last best contract offers.

(5) Changes in the cost-of-living.

(6) The existing terms and conditions of employment of the employee organization members and those of similar groups.

(7) Such other documentation as the arbitration panel shall deem relevant.

(e) Arbitration shall be limited to unresolved issues. Unresolved issues shall mean those issues not agreed to in writing prior to the start of arbitration.

(f) The parties may mutually agree to submit to binding arbitration at any time.

(d) Strikes and Lockouts.

Section 1131-A. Strikes Prohibited in Certain Circumstances.—Strikes by employees are prohibited unless employees have offered in writing to submit to at least one of the impasse procedures described in section 1123-A and the employer has failed to accept such offer in writing within ten (10) days of receipt of such offer, or unless the employer has failed to implement the award of the arbitration panel. A strike must cease where the parties request fact-finding for the duration of the fact-finding. A strike must end where the parties agree to arbitration.

Section 1132-A. Lockouts Prohibited in Certain Circumstances.—Lockouts by employers are prohibited if the employees have offered in writing to submit to at least one of the impasse procedures described in section 1123-A. A lockout must cease where the parties request fact-finding for the duration of the fact-finding. A lockout must end where the parties agree to arbitration.

(e) Binding Arbitration.

Section 1141-A. Power of Courts to Order Binding Arbitration.—If the court enjoins the strike of public school professional employees, in accordance with the procedures now provided for by law, the court shall have the authority to order the parties to submit to binding arbitration under one of the options provided under section 1123-A. The court shall not be empowered to assume the role of arbitrator.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment to the amendment?

Senator GREENWOOD. Mr. President, so the Members understand where we are procedurally, the amendment that I have offered represents a comprehensive binding arbitration amendment which I will describe briefly. It would delete the Stewart language in its entirety. I would like to offer some comments as to why I am offering this amendment at this time.

Mr. President, 21 years ago the Pennsylvania Legislature passed and Governor Shapp signed into law Act 195. This new law was intended to bring order to an ad hoc, unstructured and chaotic process of bargaining by teachers. Unfortunately, Act 195 has also visited upon the citizens of Pennsylvania more strikes than have occurred in any other state in the union. Sixty-eight percent of the Commonwealth's 501 school districts have endured at least one strike. Some districts have been torn apart by as many as six. Pennsylvania students, parents, teachers and taxpayers have suffered over 800 strikes, and throughout the past 21 years the Pennsylvania Legislature has failed to offer its citizens a better way to resolve school contract disputes. Clearly, we need a more effective and orderly way to resolve legitimate differences, one that does not sacrifice our children's fundamental right to an uninterrupted, quality education, victimize the taxpayer or deprive our valued educators of the means to bargain for fair and reasonable wages. This amendment, which I offer on behalf of myself, the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades, and the gentleman from Chester, Senator Baker, will provide every school district in Pennsylvania with an opportunity to resolve disputes by employing a fair and an objective process of negotiation, mediation, fact-finding and last best offer binding arbitration. Teachers will be prohibited from striking unless they request binding arbitration and the school board refuses. School boards may place all unresolved issues in the hands of an arbitration panel at any time after May 1st, prior to the expiration of a contract. Additionally, under this amendment either party may invoke fact-finding during the early stages of negotiations.

Mr. President, for two decades agreement on reforming Act 195 so that it better serves Pennsylvania's families has been unobtainable. The people of Pennsylvania have demanded a change, and tonight we face an historic opportunity. We have hammered out an agreement between the school boards and the teachers, and I must take this opportunity to commend PSBA and PSEA for their willingness to compromise. Let us now seize this opportunity to provide a means other than a strike to ensure an orderly and timely system of public education, to serve our taxpayers, our teachers, our parents and, most importantly, the 1,700,000 students of Pennsylvania. I urge an affirmative vote.

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, first of all, I want to correct the record. The gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, mentioned that Act 195 was signed into law by Governor Shapp. That is not true. Act 195 was enacted in 1970 and signed by Governor Shafer. The reason for the enactment of Act 195 was the fact that Pennsylvania, like many other states, prohibited public employees from striking. Strikes occurred all over Pennsylvania as well as in other states which have a law prohibiting strikes. Governor Shafer convened the Hickman Commission which was a bipartisan representative blue-ribbon commission to study the problem of how to deal with collective bargaining for public employees. After a year of extensive public hearings they came up with a process and a procedure which resulted in meet-and-discuss mediation, fact-finding and the very limited right to strike. This was then incorporated into the legislation—Act 195. Pennsylvania, as you heard, has 501 school districts. There are many school districts that have concluded contracts without strikes. Some have been able to write contracts for multi-year, and that is very important to note. However, there have been some strikes which have been so brutal in many respects that they have torn the communities apart. During the Shapp Administration he appointed the Jones Commission, which was headed by Chief Justice of the Supreme Court Ben Jones, to head a commission to restudy the reasons for Act 195. I introduced legislation which called for the binding arbitration, not mandated, which was recommended by the Jones Commission. That legislation never saw the light of day in our committees, and I would say that was maybe seven or ten years ago, whatever it was. Since then, another committee of the Legislature was established to study the effects of Act 195 and what could be done. The gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Fisher, was a member of that committee as I was. None of the legislation came out of committee. I think the agreement that was reached between Senator Greenwood and myself incorporating some of the Jones Commission, which I had in my legislation, is good. I think it will very much limit strikes. States which have adopted this procedure of binding arbitration, or last best offer arbitration is what it really amounts to, have been very successful in reducing the number of strikes in those states. I think that there are three parties to this whole issue of school strikes. One, of course, is the teachers, the other is the school boards representing the citizens and the taxpayers, but this is an altogether different mix because now you have a third element and that is the education of the children. And it seems we must arrive at a solution that is fair to all the parties and still permit a constitutional right to strike under certain circumstances and Senator Greenwood has outlined that. Either side can call for final best offer binding arbitration. If the school board calls for arbitration and teachers refuse, strikes will be prohibited. If teachers call for binding arbitration and the school board refuses, the teachers right to strike is preserved. If the parties cannot agree on an arbitration option which is included in this amendment, the mediator then shall select the option for binding arbitration. There is provision in the amendment following pretty much the procedure of Act 195, so that a judge upon request for an injunction may require the parties, both the employers and the employee group, to binding arbitration, adopting one of the options outlined in the bill. This is a good amendment. I think it will go a long way to resolve a lot of bitterness inherent in many of the collective bargaining agreements and negotiations. I believe that still there are rights that are preserved under certain limited circumstances. Act 195 does not give the right to an unlimited right to strike. It is a limited right to strike. And that is what we are trying to do here, to limit and to narrow and provide for the options so that there can be a place in collective bargaining for the education of the children, as well as recognizing all of the interests involved in collective bargaining.

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, I rise to support the Senator Greenwood Amendment and it is indeed with mixed emotions that I do so, since the Stewart Amendment in summary fashion outlines my view that I have held for a number of years and that view is that the selective strike is a new tool, fairly new, that is to say in the last five or eight years in Pennsylvania, and is indeed in my judgment the most violently anti-education and truly mean-spirited tool in the arsenal today of striking.

Mr. President, I am the prime sponsor of Senate Bill No. 738, which is a little more elaborative than the bill of the gentleman from Cambria, Senator Stewart, and he is not a sponsor. I hope if things do not come to pass as we all hope, I hope next year I will have you on as a cosponsor of Senate Bill No. 738 or its successor.

Mr. President, the so-called hit and run or selective strikes accounted for 22 percent of the total strikes in Pennsylvania since 1988. Indeed, Mr. President, in the last school year 1990-91, there were a total of 16 professional work stoppages by teachers in Pennsylvania, and of those five, or 31 percent, were of the so-called selective or hit and run variety.

I would like to read, Mr. President, if I might, from the testimony of a member of the Neshannock School Board in Lawrence County. This testimony was given on April 11, 1991 at a hearing which was held by the Senate Committee on Education which dealt with a number of factors, including the right to strike. This testimony which I am going to read from in part is by a school board member, Mr. Bruce Waldman. The district we are talking about is the Neshannock School District in Lawrence County, a district that had a selective strike within the last year. I can assure you, Mr. President, that no Member of this Chamber who is from a district, who represents a district that has had a selective strike, I believe it to be true they will not stand here and defend the right of the selective strike.

Mr. Waldman, in his testimony back on April 11, said as follows: "Although teachers have had the right to strike under Act 195 since its inception, the selective strike has been a new weapon in the arsenal of disruptive action by the P.S.E.A. The right to strike, in general, gives the union member, or employee, the legal right and the economic ability to disrupt the activity of the workplace. In most circumstances, striking is meant to shut down that activity, whether it be in the private or public domain. The use of a selective strike can be even more damaging than a general strike.

"Before I discuss the damages accomplished by selective striking, it is important to recognize there are several ways of selective striking."

I think it is important here, not so much for the Members because most of us are pretty well informed as to selective strikes, but there are a number of people out there who may become privy to this discussion here this evening, Mr. President, who have not been through a selective strike and do not understand just how anti-education, just how totally disruptive this course of action can be. One form of selective strikes is selective days.

"Under this method, teachers will pick particular days and not come to school at all. In most circumstances, a school district could not find sufficient substitutes to provide education on the days that teachers call off."

The P.S.E.A. makes it particularly difficult in our situation because it would announce, at least early on, at 11:00 o'clock p.m. the night before to make sure the substitutes could not be found. Selective days is the first kind of strike.

Selective times is another method. Teachers may work part of the day and take off the rest of that day. That is legal under Pennsylvania law, Mr. President.

"Although this was not done in the Neshannock strike, it has been done in other strikes in Pennsylvania. Obviously substitutes can't be found to fill all slots when this occurs. The busing program is totally disrupted and a good and safe method of getting the children home cannot be effectuated. Moreover, if this method is done"—that is to say choosing a selective time to strike—"many children go home to vacant houses because the parents work or have not had the time to make sufficient preparation for someone to meet the child."

Selected activities strike. "At Neshannock, the athletic program continued during the selective strike, but the band leader refused to practice with band members, and would not perform during games or at other times. In addition, the open house scheduled for the secondary school was not attended by the teachers"—Mr. President, at Neshannock School District at a scheduled open house for the parents, the teachers did not attend—"which caused great concern to many parents in the community."

The fourth method, at least according to Mr. Waldman, is in-class slowdowns. "This type activity is extremely difficult to measure but during the bitter times in selective striking there is certainly sufficient evidence to indicate that teachers move ahead at a much slower pace in their lesson plans. In many instances, emotions by teachers at Neshannock were worn on their sleeves and children in the school were subjected to strike-talk by teachers rather than doing needed education."

The damage accomplished according to the school board member, one, "Lack of Quality Education - Several teachers at Neshannock, upset with selective striking, informed me that"—and I think this is important, Mr. President—"continunity is a critical element in a child's learning scope. When children do not know whether or not they will be taught the next succeeding day, or the next succeeding class, they don't know whether to prepare their work or when it will be accepted. This issue is far greater than giving a child a day's grace from doing his or her homework. The loss is very difficult to quantitatively measure, but no doubt it is there."

Damage number two. "Anxiety in Students - Selective striking particularly takes a toll on elementary students who have very regimented patterns that should not be interrupted. When the P.S.E.A. informed Neshannock superintendent as late as 11:00 p.m., my own ten year old son"—this is Mr. Waldman speaking—"would stay up long past his bed hour and actually worry whether or not there was school. I told him it was out of our hands but the worry and the concern remained. Secondary students likewise suffered from anxiety but rebelled by having their own strike in retaliation for the selective striking of Neshannock teachers. Two wrongs don't make a right and our students were told that their striking was illegal. That was hard for them to digest and obviously not well accepted."

The third damage inflicted, Mr. President, "Destruction of Role Model - Because of the anxiety and concern suffered by the students, many of them have reevaluated the role model that the stellar teacher once served in their life. In their formative years, parents and teachers were both held on pedestals and now I can see in my own family and from my friends, that the selective strike has made the teacher less respected than before. It becomes harder to discipline students and to motivate and encourage them when they have less respect."

Finally, Mr. President, the fourth damage is "Confuse Daily Adult Schedules - By selective striking, adults who have children in the community and must make arrangements for transportation, housing or other elements of a family circumstance are completely disrupted by selective strike. Leaving notification"—as they frequently did—"to the last minute, it was obvious that one of the intentions of the P.S.E.A. was to create hardships within working families."

Mr. President, I think you will find very little disagreement among this Chamber that selective strikes is really a gorilla or a jungle warfare tactic used against our children, and which, Mr. President, incidentally, is also opposed by such various groups as the American Federation of Teachers and even the Casey Administration, through Secretary Don Carroll, has condemned the selective strike. So I am very interested to see that this is eliminated but hopefully, the larger good, the greater good will be accomplished, in my judgment, if and when the legislation sponsored by the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, and the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, supporting in such a great fashion, is adopted. I am willing to put aside what is my own strong personal feeling, at least for the moment, and ask that the Greenwood amendment be adopted and, therefore, at least temporarily, the Stewart amendment be vitiated. The reason I am doing that, Mr. President, is because I believe Senator Greenwood, with Senator Reibman's assistance, has reached what might possibly be actually an historic compromise, where for the first time in over 20 years this Chamber and indeed this General Assembly and indeed this Governor have a chance to really do something to increase the educational quality and to lower and to lessen the activity of work stoppages in our public schools. I commend the gentleman and the lady as I have indicated, and PSBA and PSEA which do not agree on much have agreed at least in principle. If any other amendment such as the Stewart amendment is adopted, I believe that the entire agreement will fall apart and we will end up in exactly the same spot where we started this day, which was a situation where strikes are endemic to our system. So it is with those comments, Mr. President, that I ask for adoption of the Greenwood amendment.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, since my election to the General Assembly some 17 years ago, problems with Act 195 have been a paramount issue to the people in my district and they have been an issue that I have worked on over that period of time and during these many years. As the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, indicated, I had the opportunity in 1984 with her to chair a Senate task force on Act 195 which was formed as a result of this Chamber's concern about the number of strikes that had been occurring in the Commonwealth, and that task force made certain recommendations at that time. Since then, the incidents of school strikes have continued to increase. There have been new tactics, tactics like selective strikes which I believe are clearly intolerable in this Commonwealth. That type of a gorilla tactic is one which is very detrimental to the quality of education which we all support for our children and for the rest of the children in the Commonwealth. We have really never come to a consensus as to what to do to solve the problems brought about by Act 195. The people out there are still angry. They were angry in my Senatorial district for a number of years. Fortunately, we have not had any lengthy strikes in my Senatorial district in the last few years, but I know that anger has changed and has moved to other districts such as in Butler County, in eastern Pennsylvania and central Pennsylvania. The anger has built up all across the Commonwealth. I commend the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, and the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, working with two of the organizations that have been obviously key players in Act 195, with coming up with what appears to be a consensus piece of legislation which is incorporated in the Greenwood amendment before us here tonight.

I am not sure when I look at the problems as I have seen them and I look at what is in this amendment that last best offer binding arbitration is really the answer to solve the problem of school strikes as we have seen them. It is a solution which many members of school boards, at least in western Pennsylvania, have been very skeptical of, at least when it has been advanced as an option that was compulsory. But I think the proposal that is before us, at least in not mandating last best offer binding arbitration but making it an alternative for either side, is an option that deserves to be considered. I do not, however, know whether or not the school boards in my district or yours may, in fact, ever adopt that approach to try to solve an impasse. Only time will tell. But I do recognize that in addition to those options there are other changes contained within this bill, changes in the timetable, strengthening of mediation and making fact-finding available to either party at an appropriate time. Those are all changes which we recommended in 1984 and have been the subject of legislation that has been pending in this Senate. There are other provisions, however, dealing with economic loss, dealing with putting some penalties in if, in fact, a strike occurs and, in fact, strikes are going to continue to occur. Let us not think this legislation is going to eliminate all strikes. If it eliminates most of them, however, we will have accomplished a major event. We will have passed significant legislation here in the Senate. But it is my concern that there is no language that would put some economic loss in the law.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Fisher, will state it.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, can I be recognized at this time for the purpose of offering an amendment to the amendment of the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, which amends the amendment of the gentleman from Cambria, Senator Stewart?

The PRESIDENT. The Chair would advise the gentleman that even though I would like to accommodate him, that an amendment to an amendment may not be amended according to Mason's. Therefore, his amendment would be out of order.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I have had the opportunity to look at the Mason's Manual and have read section 409 in the Mason's Manual which refers to that, and it refers to it being out of order only because in most instances it would be too complicated. I do not believe that under the circumstances here that the issue would, in fact, be too complicated. I think the issue would be understood by the Members of this Chamber. As a consequence, it would, in fact, be possible for me to move, I believe, to suspend the rules, those parts of the rules which incorporate those sections of the Mason's Manual and, therefore, have the opportunity to offer what would be a tertiary amendment. Would I be correct in that, Mr. President?

The PRESIDENT. If the gentleman wishes to move to suspend the rules and that motion succeeds, then the amendment to the amendment may be amended. Is it the intention of the gentleman to move to suspend the rules to allow that to transpire?

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, it is my intention to do that. However, I raise the issue of the amendment which I would seek to offer which, in fact, would put some economic loss into the law by limiting the number of days which could be rescheduled in the event of a strike. But I have had the opportunity to discuss this amendment which I would very much like to offer, whether it would be by suspension of the rules or otherwise, with the sponsor of the amendment, Senator Greenwood. Senator Greenwood has informed me that the amendment before us is an amendment which was a negotiated amendment. It is an amendment which is one that he feels if it is further amended, including the language on economic loss, may result in those negotiations being bogged down. As a consequence, Mr. President, I am not going to offer the amendment which would insert the change to allow the school boards to not have to reschedule all the days and accordingly provide some economic loss for both sides. But I do say that I hope if, in fact, we adopt the Greenwood amendment, which I would recommend based on learning that it has the support of the Pennsylvania School Boards Association and others, that we be aware that if, in fact, these changes do not work that we may need to address those changes later. Mr. President, I appreciate the opportunity the Chair gave me to discuss the subject of that amendment and, accordingly, will not move to suspend the rules at this time, but would urge support for the Greenwood amendment.

Senator BAKER. Mr. President, I rise in support of the Greenwood amendment to the amendment of Senate Bill No. 727, cosponsored by myself and other Senators which would reform the provisions of Act 195 as they pertain to schools. It is important to preserve the compromise that has been worked out as it has been incorporated in this amendment to the amendment. Even alternative amendments which might be attractive must not be allowed to jeopardize this fragile agreement, and I support and commend the comments of the gentleman from Butler, Senator Shaffer, and the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Fisher, along this line. It has been a matter of deep public concern for many years that the chaos brought to the education system by the current provisions of Act 195 need to be changed and improved. In my district I have, unfortunately, had numerous bitter, divisive and harmful strikes in which literally no one could be said to emerge a winner and in which the loss of public confidence and the disillusionment of school students means that there were many losers. The gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, is well known for his concern for the youth of our Commonwealth. He has authored and supported numerous pieces of innovative legislation on this topic, and he continues this concern by basing his reform efforts on the needs and concerns about our school children. In addition, this legislation addresses the legitimate concerns of teachers, administrators, school board members and parents. Along with his colleagues, they have wended their way artfully among the many interests that have been brought to bear on this question and have crafted a compromise which has a strong continuing focus on the desired end result, protecting our Commonwealth's children from school strikes. It is unfortunate that Pennsylvania, which we would like to see be a leader in educational statistics, is a leader in this category, mainly not very desirable, of school strikes. Nonetheless, we must ensure that this reform bill is seen as neither anti-teacher nor anti-school board.

On examining this bill, along with Senator Greenwood and those with whom he has worked, including the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades, the Chairman of the Committee on Education, the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, and the staff members of the Senate, we have been able to achieve a balance. All too often it falls to us in the General Assembly to make difficult choices between competing interests. In many cases it is far more desirable, as in this case, for us to create a fair system of conflict resolution by local or private sector interests than to try to impose our own judgment or to arbitrarily tilt the process between contending interests. In my opinion, through a long period of gestation and a recent period of negotiation, this has been achieved. A notable provision is that for last best offer arbitration, Mr. President. In utilizing this concept we are creating a process in which those who are willing to be most reasonable and temperate in their decision making will be the ones who prevail. We will make it possible to utilize the system that has proven successful in other public sector bargaining situations since it pulls the parties toward compromise and toward moderation rather than the current system of arbitration used in other Pennsylvania public sector labor matters which tends to promote and reward the taking of extreme bargaining positions. There are those on all sides of this process who maintain that they neither need nor desire so-called third-party intervention. If we were dealing with industrial plants, perhaps that would be the case. This is not the forum in which to argue that question, but the point is we are not dealing with industrial plants that manufacture inanimate objects. We are dealing with a process whose product is students, real people whose lives are affected by our decision. The fact that representatives of the organizations that participated in the drafting of this bill have not obtained their ideal preferences but have been able to accept its provisions is an indication of responsible, constructive recognition of the public interest in this public decision making. Whatever our concern about outside intervention in the bargaining process on this question, there is a stronger interest, the public interest.

It is no secret that feelings run deep, Mr. President, on matters involving the education of our youth and on the expenditure of public monies toward that end. But I do want to express my gratitude to Senator Greenwood and those with whom he has worked for making it possible through research, drafting and negotiation to provide a vehicle for true, long overdue Act 195 reform. I am proud to be a cosponsor of this amendment, and if it is successful I look forward to the opportunity to review the empirical results over the next period of years to see whether the hopes of those of us who support this bill will be realized. I believe they will.

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, for 20 to 21 years we have tried to remedy or adjust the problems that Act 195 has created for us, basically I think with just two points in mind, number one, have our children in school, and, number two, have our teachers in the classroom. I do not like strikes. I do not like selective strikes, but I also do not like inequity or unfair treatment. I have stood on both sides of this issue because when Act 195 was passed I was on the first negotiating committee we had. I also was a principal in a middle school when I had three to four hundred kids sitting in an auditorium because the teachers were outside. The conflict that we have had developing over a period of time has continued to grow. It has grown to the point and to such proportions that I think the people have sent us a very loud, clear message—we are dissatisfied. We want you to do something. We want you to make the changes. I think this amendment speaks to having our kids in school and our teachers in the classroom. It speaks to a compromise where both parties who have been in conflict hopefully will be able to resolve in a more cooperative sense and in a more direct and timely fashion that conflict, still with the sense that there are negotiations which will be fair and equitable. Remember, no matter what we do here today there will be negotiations. No matter what we do here today there may still be strikes. But this amendment speaks to aiding this negotiations process and minimizing the amount of strikes that we have. There are many who are saying, well, you should do this, you should do that, we have tried to do that for 20 to 21 years. Finally the should of, could of and would of is right here before us. Today we have the opportunity to make the change, to make the move to minimize that conflict, so we get on with the job and the role, that of the responsibility of educating our children. It is a very tenuous situation. It is a very fine line. Please let us not jeopardize our opportunity to remedy this. Let us get our kids in the classroom, let us get our teachers there and let us pass this amendment.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, lest we get too carried away into the glorious heights that we seem to have been going to on this issue this evening, this is not a conference report. This is not a final passage vote on this bill going to the Governor for signature. It is an amendment to a Senate bill that must go to the House and go through the committee system, go through their compromise amendment type process as we have had here. So this is not the end of the world. This is not going to cure everything tomorrow, and I think anyone who leaves here tonight and tomorrow, when we finally pass this bill, is being very unfair to their constituency if they represent that type of an approach. I also believe that it is very important that we recognize that a compromise generally is only possible when there is more than one person involved and that the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, has introduced in previous Sessions practically everything in this compromise. She has been a leader in this field, as she has been a leader in the field of education, over all the years that she has been a Member of the House and Senate here in Pennsylvania. I think it is important to recognize that, that the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood has, yes, done a good job, but I can tell you that Senator Reibman has been there for a lot longer time than any of us, fighting for better education for the children that go to our schools in Pennsylvania. And I have had a history of standing at this microphone or that microphone, or wherever, opposing what is being done here this evening simply because, according to my dear friend, the gentleman from Schuylkill, Jim Rhoades, Senator Rhoades, we are not dealing with Act 195. That is the important difference in what we are doing here this evening and what Senator Reibman introduced in legislative efforts in previous Sessions. I do not believe that the final passage of this bill, in the form it is in, amending the School Code is going to alter in any way whatsoever the situation as far as strikes are concerned in Pennsylvania. Act 195 is what originated both for public employees and for school employees the right to negotiate and the right to strike. I think in the very first court test of this if it becomes an act, that the courts are going to say it is not applicable because it is not amended to the right act. Now that is an argument that I have used over and over and over and, as my good friend Senator Rhoades related to us, in 21 years since the passage of the bill that became Act 195, we had the Jones Commission study that act and make recommendations and Senator Reibman made a great deal of her efforts legislatively in previous Sessions based on that particular report. The very stark reality of what is taking place here this evening is that it has been 21 years since we passed the bill that became Act 195.

I have been here 19 years. In all 19 years of my experience in the House and the Senate, there has never been a bill reported from any committee in the House or the Senate that dealt with Act 195. Now I ask a very real question. Why? Why have we not chosen to take that route here this evening, to have a piece of legislation that would amend the proper act—Act 195? Now in spite of my statements, in spite of my continuing and ongoing questions about why we do not deal with Act 195, I am heeding to what the majority of my caucus agrees with, and that is that this compromise could possibly be the start of finding some way of solving what many believe is the most serious problem in education in this state. I am not going to debate this to any great extent any further. I just think it is very important that the record reflect that we are amending the School Code. We are amending a situation that was brought about by Act 195 and the provisions that deal with the right to strike and the right to negotiate. If I am wrong and this solves the problem, that would not be the first time I have been wrong in my life. It would be one time that I probably would be very happy that I would have to stand here and say I was wrong. Unfortunately, I am not sure that might be the case.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, I will be brief. I would just like to relate to the Members in terms of commitment the conversation I had with the president of a local the day before that local went on strike. What she told me was, very simply, that philosophically she did not believe that teachers should go on strike, but that the General Assembly gave that tool to teachers and that, therefore, they felt compelled to use it. Mr. President, like many other Members I am here to give these people a different tool, because what we have learned is that Act 195 has produced strikes but not higher teacher salaries.

Senator GREENWOOD. Mr. President, very briefly, in response to the comments of the gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, first off, the Senator indicates that Senate Bill No. 727 does not amend Act 195. As a matter of fact, it does. It is an amendment to the School Code, but on page 10, lines 18-20, this bill provides that Act 195, "known as the Public Employe Relations Act, is repealed insofar as it is inconsistent with this act." We very consciously drafted an amendment to the School Code that lifts those sections from Act 195 that apply to public teachers, put it in the School Code so that all of the other employees covered by Act 195 did not need to fear that their collective bargaining rights would be fair game as this bill moves through the process. It is, I think, a way to prevent the objections of those parties to moving any bill at all. The gentleman well knows that the problem has been—even if we could come to agreements in the past about incremental changes in Act 195—the complaint, the concerns of public employees have been, if you bring that thing out on the floor of the House and the Senate, there is no guarantee that everything will not fall apart. This is our way of sectioning off the part that we want to deal with, bringing it through the process and leaving the rest intact.

Senator STEWART. Mr. President, as the sponsor, the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, of the amendment to my amendment, indicated in his opening remarks, the effect of passage of his amendment negates the language of my amendment which prohibits selective strikes. I understand the mechanics of that, but I would hope that Senator Greenwood would have taken to heart the comments he has heard here this evening from myself, the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Fisher, and the gentleman from Butler, Senator Shaffer, and many others in my caucus and I believe his caucus on this unique issue of selective strikes. I checked Senator Shaffer's bill that accomplishes the same thing as my amendment, and Senator Greenwood and myself are not cosponsors. I would hope that my non-cosponsorship of that would not reflect my opposition, and I would hope Senator Greenwood's non-cosponsorship of that bill would not reflect his opposition to prohibiting what is clearly a detriment to all concerned and actually helps no one in the process.

I do not oppose Senator Greenwood's amendment to my amendment, and I would not ask my colleagues on behalf of saving my amendment to oppose it. This issue has been debated long and hard, not so much in this Chamber but in the media and back home in our districts, and I think it is time that we start the process to bring it to a resolution.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment to the amendment?

A voice vote having been taken, the question was determined in the affirmative, and the amendment was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment, as amended?

A voice vote having been taken, the question was determined in the affirmative and the amendment was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration, as amended?

BORTNER AMENDMENT I

Senator BORTNER, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A2563:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1131-A), page 9, lines 24 and 25, by striking out all of said lines and inserting:

Section 1131-A. Notice.—School employe organizations must provide at least forty-eight (48) hours' notice to the school entity prior to the commencement of any strike, and no strike may occur sooner than forty-eight (48) hours following the last notification of intent to strike. Violation of this section is an unfair practice, and the Secretary of Education may petition any court of competent jurisdiction for appropriate relief or restraining order.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator BORTNER. Mr. President, I will be very brief. I do not want to extend this process any longer. I offer a very simple amendment. This amendment would require 48 hours notice to any school entity prior to the commencement of a strike. Under the amended legislation that was just agreed to, there could still be strikes in the public schools. I believe that parents should know when they send their children off to school in the morning that there is going to be school that day. This does not in any way affect the rights that are reserved for teachers or other labor organizations organized through the school districts to exercise their rights to a strike. It is a common sense amendment. I believe it is one that parents will overwhelmingly support, schools would support and the majority of teachers will support.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Lewis and Senator Musto.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Lincoln requests temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Lewis and Senator Musto. The Chair hears no objection. Those leaves will be granted.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator GREENWOOD. Mr. President, I rise to ask for a "no" vote on the Bortner amendment, not because it is necessarily a bad idea. In fact, it is a fine idea. It ought to be the law. The problem is that, as has been stated by a number of speakers tonight, what we have before us in Senate Bill No. 727, with the Greenwood, Reibman, etc, amendment, represents a very fragile, delicate balance agreed to by the State School Boards Association and the largest teachers union in this state. Any amendments whatsoever, move a comma, move a colon, change a parenthesis and we have violated our agreement to pass this bill with this amendment and with this language only. The impact of adopting any other amendments to this bill is to scuttle the plan, to scuttle the agreement and to really take away this one historic window of opportunity that we have, and for that reason I would ask for a negative vote and I would ask, Mr. President, for a voice vote.

Senator STEWART. Mr. President, a few minutes ago at ten minutes before 8:00, I acceded to the loss of my language which is prohibiting selective strikes. The next best thing is at least, if they are going to go on strike, selectively or nonselectively, give the parents and the students some notice. This seems to me to be a pretty simple amendment. I cannot imagine how any balance could be that delicate that this would upset it. The previous speaker indicated that this is a subject of our negotiations. I was not involved in any of these negotiations, and I know a lot of my colleagues here were not. This is an attempt to provide some input based on what we are seeing and hearing in our districts from our constituents. I would urge a roll call vote for 48-hour notice before teachers go on strike.

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, I rise again in opposition to the proposed amendment of the gentleman from York, Senator Bortner. I am, as I indicated earlier, the prime sponsor of Senate Bill No. 738 which includes as one of its provisions the precise language which the Senator is proposing here this evening. However, for the same reason that I gave earlier in supporting the Greenwood amendment to the Senator Stewart proposal, I would ask that for the cause of the greater good and because I believe we have an historic chance here with last best offer binding arbitration to actually make a difference in the way business is done in education in Pennsylvania, that once again I am asking that we forego what might be instantaneous gratification, which I want as much as or more than the gentleman from York, for the hoped for possibility that with the passage of the legislation as amended by the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, and the lady from Northampton, that we vote "no" on this amendment, Mr. President, with the caveat, please understand that the language in Senate Bill No. 738 has not been lost forever, and if, indeed, the language of last best offer binding arbitration is not adopted by the General Assembly and is not signed into law by the Governor within a reasonable length of time or if it is changed in the House of Representatives or if the delicately balanced agreement between so many parties falls by the wayside in the next several months, please understand and everyone realize that I and other supporters of eliminating the blight of selective strikes, we will be back. We have not retreated in the slightest from our efforts. We have only agreed to a cease fire.

Senator BELL. Mr. President, I have listened with great interest to this entire debate, and I noticed all the way through that the right to strike of American working men and women has been protected because strikes only are caused, only result, as a last resort. Now, let us be careful that if this were adopted, 48 hours notice of any strike, this is a precedent for all working men and women of Pennsylvania, and often in my district we do have wildcat strikes, largely due to very dangerous working conditions and we must not set a precedent.

Senator BORTNER. Mr. President, I would like to briefly respond to one or two points. First of all, this is an amendment to the School Code. I believe it is very carefully tailored to the School Code and is very narrow. I do not think this sets a precedent for any other working people or strikes that occur under any other circumstances than the very unique ones that I think we all realize involve public schools, and if we did not think that strikes in those circumstances were unique, we would not be here on the floor of this Senate at 8:00 o'clock this evening. I am also a little weary about hearing about this delicately balanced agreement. As the gentleman from Cambria, Senator Stewart, pointed out, I am only one Senator. I was not part of that. I am moving forward an issue that I believe is important to my constituents. They have told me that. This does one very, very small thing. It requires 48 hours notice when a strike would take place under the circumstances that are already provided for in the legislation. I will leave it up to the people to decide how much that can possibly put these delicately balanced scales out of balance.

Senator ARMSTRONG. Mr. President, I feel this amendment plays right in the PSEA's hands, and it is going to scuttle the whole bill and it will be status quo. I do not think the people of Pennsylvania want status quo, I think they want change. By scuttling this bill, what have we achieved? Just helping out PSEA. I do not think we want that.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I would request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Pecora and Senator Peterson.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Fisher requests temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Pecora and Senator Peterson. The Chair hears no objection. Those leaves will be granted.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, I could hardly believe my ears over the past several minutes. It is just incredulous to me that the prime sponsor of this bill, who up until this morning wanted to prohibit strikes in their entirety, now objects to such a simple thing as a 48-hour notice before a strike takes place. It is just incredulous to me that the same individuals who wanted to prohibit strikes in their entirety now suddenly come to the realization that parents can easily make arrangements to have child care services on a moment's notice and want to oppose providing those parents ample opportunity to have those services aligned and ready for their children. I just cannot understand this sudden change of heart and this sudden opposition to what is a very simple amendment, what is a very reasonable request and certainly will not scuttle the information in this bill as a result of the Greenwood amendment. As I said, it is just incredulous to me, and I would urge support for the Bortner amendment.

Senator STEWART. Mr. President, I just wanted to be sure it was made clear in my previous statements that I would want a roll call vote on whether or not parents and students should have a 48-hour notice before a strike occurs in their district.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

The yeas and nays were required by Senator BORTNER and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—22

Afflerbach	Fattah	Musto	Schwartz
Andrezski	Fumo	O'Pake	Stapleton
Belan	Jones	Porterfield	Stewart
Bodack	LaValle	Reibman	Stout
Bortner	Lincoln	Scanlon	Williams
Dawida	Mellow

NAYS—26

Armstrong	Greenwood	Loeper	Robbins
Baker	Hart	Madigan	Salvatore
Bell	Helfrick	Pecora	Shaffer
Brightbill	Holl	Peterson	Shumaker
Corman	Jubelirer	Punt	Tilghman
Fisher	Lemmond	Rhoades	Wenger
Greenleaf	Lewis

Less than a majority of the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the negative.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration, as amended?

BORTNER AMENDMENT II

Senator BORTNER, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A2562:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1131-A), page 9, lines 24 and 25, by striking out all of said lines and inserting:

Section 1131-A. Equitable Relief.—When in the judgment of the Secretary of Education, a strike by school employes may create a clear and present danger or threat to the health, safety, welfare or education of the public, he also may initiate, in the Commonwealth Court of Pennsylvania, for equitable relief as provided in the act of July 23, 1970 (P.L.563, No.195), known as the "Public Employe Relations Act."

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator BORTNER. Mr. President, this amendment would grant some additional authority to the Secretary of Education, and it is some authority that he has requested and spoken to me about on past occasions. It would allow the Secretary to seek injunctive relief when a strike by school employes may create a clear and present danger or a threat to the health, safety, welfare or education of the public. It would allow the Secretary of Education to go into court and get an injunction in appropriate cases. I believe that the exercise of this authority would be rare, but I believe it is important. There have been strikes where the strike has become so bitter, where the positions have become so extreme, where there has even been some evidence of violence, and certainly the strike in Turkeyfoot School District in the district of the gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, if anybody recalls any of the history of that, is one good example. I believe in those situations the Secretary ought to be able to insert himself into the process, get the schools reopened, get the sides back to the bargaining table. The Secretary of Education has a responsibility to ensure that every child is guaranteed the right to a quality education. This is some authority that takes nothing away from teachers, takes nothing away from school districts. It simply provides an additional tool that may be used by the Secretary of Education to fulfill his responsibility in heading the Department of Education in this Commonwealth.

Senator GREENWOOD. Mr. President, once again for the reasons I stated in the last amendment, I have to ask for a negative vote. I appreciate the actions of the Members of our side who have avoided the opportunity or foregone the opportunity to grandstand on the issue, but rather have taken a position that they want to actually see something done. There have been comments about who was and who was not party to this agreement. This is an agreement, as I have said, between PSEA and PSBA. I do not think any Member of this Senate or any Member of the House has been told that if they could reach an agreement like this that they would not be welcome to bring it forward and have a vote cast upon it. That is what we have done. I did not need an invitation to do it. Nobody else did either, but we have an agreement and let us not blow it.

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, very briefly, the Senator from York has outlined in a skeleton fashion the elements of his proposal, and I would like, if I might, to maybe put a little bit of flesh on those bones. As a matter of fact, what the gentleman is asking for was tried by the Secretary of Education, Don Carroll, and I believe it is the only one time that an injunction has been requested by the Pennsylvania Department of Education to forestall or to put to an end, at least in a temporary fashion, a work stoppage. That situation occurred last year in a very mean strike, a very prolonged strike in the City of New Castle. That strike went on in the neighborhood of 35-40 days. The Secretary of Education's opinion, his demonstrated position, in written and verbal form, was that the Department of Education does not get involved in local education work stoppages. That is a matter for the local bargaining agent and the school district to agree upon as per Pennsylvania law. Miraculously, three days before the violation of the 180-day rule, that is to say three days before the teachers would have started to lose money in the New Castle school strike, for the first time in the history of Pennsylvania education, the Secretary of Education, Don Carroll, went to court asking that a rule be issued upon the New Castle School District to mandate that they go in and ask for an injunction which would be a compulsory act on the part of the school board. What the Secretary of Education asked for is for the court to require the local school board to do precisely what the local elected school board did not want to do. This Secretary of Education, Don Carroll, is the last person who I would want to entrust with such a power.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I think we are getting a fair example this evening of just what compromise means to certain Members of the Legislature. I feel sorry for them when they leave office and have to go back to the real world and find out that 26 votes versus 24 votes makes a compromise. I mean, I cannot believe that anyone who stood up and spoke in favor of a compromise amendment offered by the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, and the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, could possibly get up and say that. We are doing precisely in that amendment what he is critical of in the Bortner amendment, and that is taking away from the local school districts their ability to deal with negotiating contracts. That is precisely what that agreement is doing. It is bringing it here, and we are saying we are going to tell you how to do it. To be critical of a Secretary for stepping in in a bitter strike situation to try to help, that does not make any sense. If we are talking about compromise and we are talking about getting this thing through, ladies and gentlemen, we better stop talking pretty soon because pretty soon I am taking my gloves off, and if you want to get into a hell of a good debate here over this issue at 8:00 o'clock at night after we have been pitter-pattering through the raindrops, believe me, I have been here more than one night until midnight and I am damned well prepared to do it. But I do not want any more of that kind of criticism that is unjust of one of our cabinet members.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

A voice vote having been taken, the question was determined in the negative, and the amendment was defeated.

The PRESIDENT. Without objection, Senate Bill No. 727, as amended, will go over in its order.

LEGISLATIVE JOURNAL

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1991

SESSION OF 1991

175TH OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

No. 64

SENATE

WEDNESDAY, October 16, 1991.

The Senate met at 11:30 a.m., Eastern Daylight Saving Time.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore (Robert C. Jubelirer) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Reverend KAREN LAYMAN, Pastor of Hope United Methodist Church, Mechanicsburg, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

O God, from the beginning of time You have been our teacher. Teach us today to see as You see. As we look at one another and at the issues of the day may it be with Your eyes. Help us always to keep in mind Your grand design for creation, but never let us forget the needs of the smallest individual part. We need "bifocals of faith" to be able to see clearly the larger aims while at the same time never missing the values of the personal.

Be our teacher here in this Senate of this great Commonwealth. That we may prove worthy in all of the tests that are to come. For we pray it in the name of the Master. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. A quorum of the Senate being present, the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding Session of October 15, 1991.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding Session, when, on motion of Senator LOEPER, further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

HOUSE MESSAGE

HOUSE CONCURS IN SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

The Clerk of the House of Representatives informed the Senate that the House has concurred in resolution from the Senate, entitled:

Weekly Adjournment.

RESOLUTION INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

The PRESIDENT pro tempore laid before the Senate the following Senate Concurrent Regulatory Review Resolution numbered, entitled and referred as follows, which was read by the Clerk:

October 15, 1991

DISAPPROVING ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY BOARD REGULATIONS CONTROLLING VOLATILE ORGANIC COMPOUND EMISSIONS FROM GASOLINE DISPENSING FACILITIES

Senators BRIGHTBILL, MUSTO, LOEPER, BELAN, SALVATORE, SHUMAKER, STOUT and PECORA offered the following resolution (Senate Concurrent Regulatory Review Resolution No. 2 of 1991), which was read and referred to the Committee on Environmental Resources and Energy:

In the Senate, October 15, 1991.

A CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

Disapproving Environmental Quality Board regulations controlling volatile organic compound emissions from gasoline dispensing facilities.

WHEREAS, The Environmental Quality Board has, at 20 Pa.B. 3174 (June 16, 1990), proposed regulations controlling volatile organic compound emissions from gasoline dispensing facilities (number 7-195) under the authority of section 1920-A of the act of April 9, 1929 (P.L.177, No.175), known as The Administrative Code of 1929, and section 5 of the act of January 8, 1960 (1959 P.L.2119, No.787), known as the Air Pollution Control Act; and

WHEREAS, On September 20, 1990, the Environmental Resources and Energy Committee of the Senate recommended changes to the proposed regulations to the Environmental Quality Board under section 5(c) of the act of June 25, 1982 (P.L.633, No.181), known as the Regulatory Review Act; and

WHEREAS, On September 28, 1990, the Independent Regulatory Review Commission delivered comments to the Environmental Quality Board outlining major concerns with the regulation; and

WHEREAS, The Environmental Quality Board took action to adopt final form regulations on May 22, 1991; and

WHEREAS, The committee recommended disapproval of the final form regulation to the commission on July 1, 1991; and

WHEREAS, The commission disapproved the regulations on July 18, 1991; and

WHEREAS, The department notified the standing committee on July 31, 1991, of its intention to proceed with final form regulations; and

WHEREAS, On October 7, 1991, the department delivered to the committee the report required under section 7 of the Regulatory Review Act, providing its response to concerns raised by the commission; and

WHEREAS, The committee reports this resolution under section 7 of the Regulatory Review Act for action by the General Assembly within 30 calendar days or ten legislative days, whichever is longer, from the date of reporting this resolution; therefore be it

RESOLVED (the House of Representatives concurring), That the General Assembly disapprove the final form regulations number 7-195 of the Environmental Quality Board on air quality control approved May 22, 1991; and be it further

RESOLVED, That this resolution constitutes a bar to publication under section 7(d) of the Regulatory Review Act, and the Department of Environmental Resources and the Environmental Quality Board are prohibited from publishing these regulations; and be it further

RESOLVED, That notice of the final disposition of this resolution be sent to the Department of Environmental Resources and the Environmental Quality Board, presented to the Governor and published in the Pennsylvania Bulletin.

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES

Senator HELFRICK, from the Committee on Agriculture and Rural Affairs, reported the following bills:

SB 1069 (Pr. No. 1607) (Amended)

SB 1239 (Pr. No. 1608) (Amended)

An Act providing for long-term care insurance, for disclosure and performance standards, for authority to regulate, for administrative procedures and for penalties.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I request a legislative leave for the day for Senator Wenger and a temporary Capitol leave for Senator Robbins.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Fisher requests a legislative leave of absence for today for Senator Wenger and a temporary Capitol leave for Senator Robbins. The Chair hears no objection. Those leaves will be granted.

Senator STEWART. Mr. President, I request legislative leaves for Senator Andrezeski, Senator Dawida and Senator Fumo.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Stewart has requested legislative leaves for Senator Andrezeski, Senator Dawida and Senator Fumo. The Chair hears no objection. Those leaves will be granted.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Senator STEWART asked and obtained leave of absence for Senator LYNCH, for today's Session, for personal reasons.

Senator FISHER asked and obtained leave of absence for Senator HOPPER, for today's Session, for personal reasons.

SENATE RESOLUTION

MEMORIALIZING THE PRESIDENT, THE CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES AND THE DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS TO MAINTAIN THE HIGH PRIORITY OF VETERANS' HEALTH AND WELFARE, RESCIND THE PROPOSAL, ELIMINATE SURGICAL UNITS AT THREE PENNSYLVANIA VETERANS ADMINISTRATION HOSPITALS AND TO STUDY THE PROPOSAL TO DISCONTINUE THE SURGICAL UNITS IN VETERANS' HOSPITALS

Senators LOEPER, JUBELIRER, PUNT, PETERSON, BRIGHTBILL, SHAFFER, ROBBINS, ARMSTRONG, WENGER, SALVATORE, GREENWOOD, SHUMAKER, HOPPER, LaVALLE, FUMO, TILGHMAN, JONES, BELL, PECORA, RHOADES, MADIGAN, HELFRICK, O'PAKE, REIBMAN, PORTERFIELD, CORMAN, LEWIS, FISHER, LEMMOND, FATTAH, STAPLETON and MUSTO offered the following resolution (Senate Resolution No. 108), which was read as follows:

In the Senate, October 16, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Memorializing the President, the Congress of the United States and the Department of Veterans Affairs to maintain the high priority of veterans' health and welfare, rescind the proposal, eliminate surgical units at three Pennsylvania Veterans Administration Hospitals and to study the proposal to discontinue the surgical units in veterans' hospitals.

WHEREAS, The average age of veterans who have served this country continues to increase requiring additional comprehensive medical care; and

WHEREAS, The veterans have served their country and now are reaching the age where they want to live and die with dignity; and

WHEREAS, The Office of Inspector General conducted an audit of Veterans Health Administration Surgical Programs Realignment, which called for the elimination of surgical units at certain veterans' hospitals; and

WHEREAS, Three Veterans Administration Hospitals located in Pennsylvania were identified in the audit report; and

WHEREAS, The elimination of the surgical units of the veterans' hospitals would deprive veterans of geographically accessible medical attention; and

WHEREAS, The proposed elimination of the surgical units in veterans' hospitals would impose a terrible burden on veterans and their families; and

WHEREAS, The cost-cutting rationale of the proposal is false since the cost of treating veterans at other facilities may not only negate any monetary savings, but providing treatment outside the hospital may even cost more; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Senate of Pennsylvania memorialize the Department of Veterans Affairs to rescind its proposal to eliminate surgical units at the three Pennsylvania Veterans Administration Hospitals; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the Senate of Pennsylvania urge the President and the Congress of the United States and the Department of Veterans Affairs to investigate the current proposal and examine alternate cost-cutting solutions; and be it further

RESOLVED, That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the Honorable George Bush, President of the United States, to the presiding officers of each house of Congress, to each member of Congress from Pennsylvania and to the Secretary of the Department of Veterans Affairs.

Senator LOEPER asked and obtained unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of this resolution.

On the question,

Will the Senate adopt the resolution?

SENATE RESOLUTION NO. 108, ADOPTED

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do adopt Senate Resolution No. 108.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Senator LOEPER and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—48

Afflerbach	Fisher	Lincoln	Robbins
Andrezski	Fumo	Loeper	Salvatore
Armstrong	Greenleaf	Madigan	Scanlon

Corman	LaValle	Punt	Tilghman
Dawida	Lemmond	Reibman	Wenger
Fattah	Lewis	Rhoades	Williams

NAYS—0

A majority of the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the affirmative and the resolution was adopted.

SPECIAL ORDER OF BUSINESS ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SECRETARY

The SECRETARY. Consent has been given for the Committee on Environmental Resources and Energy to meet during today's Session to consider Senate Concurrent Regulatory Review Resolution No. 2.

SPECIAL ORDER OF BUSINESS

GUESTS OF SENATOR MICHAEL A. O'PAKE PRESENTED TO SENATE

Senator O'PAKE. Mr. President, visiting the Senate and the Capitol today are two groups from Berks County. The first is a group of fifth and sixth graders from Saint Mary's School in Reading with their Principal Mrs. Kathleen Scaboria. In addition, there is a group of Berks County Home School Educators who are in the gallery, and I would appreciate if the Chair would extend its usual warm welcome to Saint Mary's School children from the fifth and sixth grades and the Berks County Home School Educators.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Would those guests of Senator O'Pake who are in the gallery please rise so that the Senate may give you its usual warm welcome.

(Applause.)

CALENDAR

THIRD CONSIDERATION CALENDAR

BILL REREPORTED FROM COMMITTEE AS AMENDED, AMENDED

HB 1541 (Pr. No. 2507) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending the act of August 14, 1991 (P. L. , No. 36), known as the "Lottery Fund Preservation Act," further providing for human service shared ride transportation services for older adults; and providing for grants.

Considered the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

Senator CORMAN, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A2590:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 704), page 3, line 7, by inserting after "contracts": and shall incorporate the preferred alternate approach into contracts executed thereafter

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

Without objection, the bill, as amended, was passed over in its order at the request of Senator CORMAN.

BILLS OVER IN ORDER

SB 6, 197, 205, 221, 413 and 645 — Without objection, the bills were passed over in their order at the request of Senator LOEPER.

BILL ON THIRD CONSIDERATION AND FINAL PASSAGE

SB 727 (Pr. No. 1606) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending the act of March 10, 1949 (P. L. 30, No. 14), entitled "Public School Code of 1949," providing for collective bargaining.

Considered the third time and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Senator GREENWOOD. Mr. President, they said it could not be done. For 20 years everyone who has looked at the issue of teachers strikes said that it was impossible for this Legislature to come to an agreement on a way to reform this system that would better serve Pennsylvania's school pupils, its teachers and the taxpayers. Yesterday we did it, Mr. President. We can be proud of what we did yesterday. We forged an agreement that was adopted by voice vote in this Senate that is going to make history. Mr. President, this bill is going to pass today. It is going to pass in the House and it is going to become law, and I believe that is all going to happen very quickly. I want to commend all of the Members of this Senate before the vote for their support yesterday. I think that what we are doing here is worthy of this Senate, one of the few things we have done recently that is worthy of this Senate. There has been a lot of commendation about the Members of the Senate who put time in on this. We have commended the PSBA and the PSEA. I would like to take a moment to commend a couple of people who do not usually get commended on the floor of this Senate, and that is some of the Senate staff members. Judy Borger, my Executive Assistant, has worked tirelessly on this issue for years. Helen Caffrey from the Senate Committee on Education has been a tremendous help to us and also Ed Brown in the legal staff who did our drafting for us. I think it is worthy of us to take a moment to thank the staff who do so much of that important work. I urge a positive vote.

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, I, too, would like to commend the Members of the Senate for voting for the amendment to Senate Bill No. 727 last night. While it did take 20 years to reach this point, I regret very much that it has taken all this time because the elements of what was in Senate Bill No. 727 was the amendment which I introduced to Senate Bill No. 727 based on the Jones Commission report studying Act 195 and which was the subject of legislation introduced in previous Sessions. It is too bad that those pieces of legislation never really saw the light of day. If they had, I feel certain that the incidents of unpleasantness and strikes across the Commonwealth would have been significantly decreased as evidenced by what is happening in other states which have adopted last best offer binding arbitration.

I just picked up the telephone in my office. My husband called me to tell me that the bitter school strike in the City of Bethlehem had been brought before the judge in Northampton County on a motion, and that he had ordered binding arbitration last best offer. That decision is being met with a great deal of approval in the City of Bethlehem because they now finally see a resolution based on what is considered a fair approach of both sides offering a last best offer, and it is recognized that those last best offers will be reasonable and not outrageous, recognizing that one of the two of those offers has to be accepted, and that has been the experience of other states. So I, too, would like to commend my colleagues and the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, who worked with us as well and who agreed to have my amendment included into Senate Bill No. 727. Much compromise was being done with the help of other interest groups, and, indeed, I think this is a good day for good labor relations in Pennsylvania with respect to education.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, this is a significant day at least in the history of the Senate for the past twenty years because I believe it is the first time in which we are soon to approve a bill which will amend Act 195 and provide some change in the way in which negotiations take place between teachers in the public system and school boards throughout the Commonwealth. The gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, and the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, and others have done a tremendous job in putting together a package which at least has some of the interest groups in support. I continue to have some concerns that the reliance on last best offer binding arbitration may not be the best way to go in the final analysis for the people of Pennsylvania, particularly the taxpayers, but I recognize that there are other provisions in this bill which are meaningful and also significant changes in the way school contracts will be negotiated in the future. I refer specifically to the changes in the timetable. I refer specifically to the fact that either side can now request fact-finding, which anybody who has looked at Act 195 believes can be a very valuable tool at arriving at a settlement of a contract and avoiding a strike. But I also recognize that there are certain things that are not contained in this bill. There is still no provision by which a teacher who goes out on strike will necessarily lose any pay as a result of that strike, and that makes strikes in the public school sector altogether different from any other strike in either the public or private sector in this economy. I recognize that, but I still am willing to support this effort today because I think there is significant change, and it is an indication that at least as far as this Body is concerned, we have reached a milestone where we are willing to take a bill that is before us and attempt to make some significant changes in the way school contracts are negotiated in the future. The public, quite frankly, is fed up with strikes. They are fed up with the continued spiraling costs of education. They are fed up to a point where someday it may be, if it is not already, the most paramount issue that we face. So I would urge the approval of this bill. It is not perfect, but it is a major step forward. I commend Senator Greenwood and others for what they have done in putting it together.

Senator BORTNER. Mr. President, I also rise in support of Senate Bill No. 727 as it was amended, while I think it is a little early and a little premature to claim victory and pop the corks off the bottles of champagne, because I think there is still a lot of work to do on this issue. I think there will be opposition when this bill goes to the House. I think that many of these issues that were discussed here last evening will be revisited, and I think there will be organizations and individuals who will not want to see this process move forward. Nevertheless, I do think this is a significant event, and while I do not have the time here that certainly the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, has and have not put in the kind of time on this issue as she has, I still can look back over six or seven years and believe that this is a pretty dramatic event. I do want to commend the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, who has worked hard on this issue, Senator Reibman, who I believe was able to help forge the compromise that will help garner enough votes to get this bill out of here, and I do commend those representatives of the teachers' associations and those who work on behalf of the school boards for recognizing that this was an important issue and recognizing that it was in the interest of both of their constituencies to work to try to come up with an agreeable solution to the problem of school strikes.

I speak passionately on this issue because over the last several months my area has experienced four different strikes, and there has been an outpouring from my constituents on this issue. I also speak passionately on it because as a parent my children just started school last week and, under the revised calendar, they will be in school until June 30th, have one day at Thanksgiving, Christmas Eve, Christmas Day, New Year's Eve, New Year's Day and not many other days off between now and then. So I have experienced what it means to a family to have the school year interrupted, what it means to have your children's education interrupted, but beyond that the days will be made up, they will still get their 180 days in school and family life can return to normal. What concerns me even more are some of the more lingering effects that I have seen in districts that have had strikes and that I still see in York County where four districts that had strikes have now returned to school, and I do not believe anybody, not teachers, not administrators, not parents, would argue that things have truly returned to normal. Strikes have created a great deal of turmoil in our communities. They have caused the very people that we want working together to improve the quality of education for our children to be at odds with each other. We need school boards and teachers, superintendents and administrators and parents all pulling in the same direction. I believe that there are still some aspects of this bill that can be improved upon if I were doing it by myself. I understand, however, that through this process nobody ever gets exactly what they want, and in this bill I am sure there will be teachers who will say that there are parts of it that they do not like. I have already talked to some board members who may question a couple of aspects that their association may have agreed to and I think that is all right. But I do think we all here ought to feel very good that we are moving forward a process, a very important process, that I think will greatly improve the quality of education across the Commonwealth for all of our children.

And the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution and were as follows, viz:

LEGISLATIVE JOURNAL

MONDAY, OCTOBER 21, 1991

SESSION OF 1991

175TH OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

No. 65

SENATE

MONDAY, October 21, 1991.

The Senate met at 2:00 p.m., Eastern Daylight Saving Time.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant Governor Mark S. Singel) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Reverend MICHAEL M. MAZER, Pastor of First Baptist Church, Washington, offered the following prayer:

Before we pray, let me first acknowledge that it is my privilege to return to this Chamber to bring the invitational prayer to this Body. We must recognize before we pray that the Members of the Senate have been under a lot of pressure and stress by the members of the Commonwealth, and so we call upon Almighty God to intercede on their behalf to make their tasks a bit easier.

Let us now go to God in prayer.

Almighty God, if ever there was a need for Thy wisdom and Thy guidance, it would be now. As the Members of this Senate begin the work of this week, as they stand on the verge of an election just a few weeks away, as they look at the numerous opportunities that present themselves to the Commonwealth, we pray that Thou will bless these men and women who have been chosen by the citizens of this state, for Thou knowest them, for Thou knowest their needs and their motives, their hopes for a better Pennsylvania and the fears and the concerns which they have for their constituents.

Lord God in heaven, put Thine arms around them and give them strength and speak to them in an encouraging and intimate way to give them wisdom which is greater than their own. May they hear Thy heavenly voice and seek Thy divine guidance this day. May they remember that Thou art concerned about what is said and what is done in this place, and may they have a clear conscience before Thee that they have no fear of anyone back home, colleague or anyone who might be in an adversarial relationship with them. Bless us each this day according to our deepest needs and use us all for Thy glory. We humbly ask this prayer in Thy precious name. Amen.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair thanks Reverend Mazer who is the guest this week of Senator Stout.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present, the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding Session of October 16, 1991.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding Session, when, on motion of Senator LOEPER, further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

In the Senate, October 21, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Expressing the deep sadness of the Senate at the death of former member Clarence F. Manbeck and extending heartfelt condolences to his widow and family.

WHEREAS, Clarence F. Manbeck was born in 1909 in Bethel, Berks County, Pennsylvania; and

WHEREAS, He served in the General Assembly for 22 years, first as a representative from 1961 to 1966 and as a senator from 1967 through 1982; and

WHEREAS, While in the General Assembly, he served as Chairman of the Senate Transportation and Labor and Industry Committees, as vice chairman of the Agriculture Committee and also served on the Appropriations, Education, Environmental Resources, Game and Conservation, Rules and Executive Nominations and State Government Committees; and

WHEREAS, He was a strong supporter of the legislation that created the Swatara State Park; and

WHEREAS, While his service in the General Assembly brought him the respect and loyalty of Lebanon Countians, he was perhaps better known in his home town of Fredericksburg as the founder of C.F. Manbeck Poultry Inc., (now known as Farmers Pride, Inc.); and

WHEREAS, C.F. Manbeck Poultry Inc., a poultry processing firm, provided steady employment for many residents of the Fredericksburg area; and

WHEREAS, Clarence Manbeck loved flying and founded the Farmers Pride Inc. Airport in Fredericksburg shortly after World War II and was awarded the Aviation Council of Pennsylvania's Distinguished Aviation Award; and

WHEREAS, He was a school director of the Northern Lebanon School District, a director of Fredericksburg National Bank and Lebanon Mutual Insurance Company, an honorary member of the Board of Trustees of Lebanon's Good Samaritan Hospital and a past director of the Lebanon Valley Chamber of Commerce; and

WHEREAS, Beneath his sometimes seemingly gruff exterior, he was a sentimental man who regularly assisted needy people yet never talked about his benevolence; and

WHEREAS, Clarence F. Manbeck died at his home in Fredericksburg on May 14, 1991, at the age of 82; therefore be it RESOLVED, That the Senate express its deep sadness at the death of Clarence F. Manbeck, respected Senator, businessman and supporter of his community, and extend heartfelt condolences to his widow, Eve P. Manbeck, and to his family.

Senator BRIGHTBILL asked and obtained unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of this resolution.

On the question,

Will the Senate adopt the resolution?

SENATE RESOLUTION NO. 109, ADOPTED

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do adopt Senate Resolution No. 109.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, Senator Manbeck, who was my predecessor, was the kind of man who in every respect very much typified what is best about America and what is great about Americans. He was born in 1909 in Bethel, Berks County, a very rural area. He was not born of any means and began his life as a workingman. I remember going door-to-door and meeting people who worked as a full-fashion knitter with Clarence Manbeck. While I am not an expert on that industry, I know that there was a time that full-fashion knitters made a lot of money and there was a later time that you could not make a living as a full-fashion knitter. It was one of those professions that sprung up and grew, was very prosperous in a certain sense and then if you were a working person, you had to find some other way of making a living. I am not sure what got Clarence Manbeck into the poultry business, but in 1940 he and a gentleman by the name of Kissinger founded a firm called Manbeck and Kissinger. He later bought out Mr. Kissinger and changed it to C. F. Manbeck Poultry, Inc. Clarence Manbeck was an entrepreneur. He was a person who, starting with nothing, built up something and today that same firm is quite a prosperous firm. C. F. Manbeck Poultry Inc., now Farmers Pride, Inc., sells chicken products throughout the East Coast, and if you go to the Waldorf you will have Farmers Pride chicken.

Clarence Manbeck was a man who had very much of the simple touch but knew how to accomplish things in the more sophisticated areas of government, politics and business. I first remember Clarence Manbeck when he and my dad used to sit at the end of the counter at the Lincoln Diner. My dad bought his chickens from Clarence Manbeck and my dad had an interest in politics and political happenings and I would imagine it was those two things that would bring Clarence in to sit and talk. This was before Clarence was in politics. He may have been on the school board at that time, but I remember from the way my father introduced me that he was someone important and someone special. My first recollection of Senator Manbeck was in 1966. At that time he was one of two Members of the state House representing Lebanon.

You know, Mr. President, we sometimes think as politicians that only we can goof up things. Well, in the 1960s reapportionment was a hot issue, and somehow the General Assembly and the courts and everyone else had goofed up reapportionment, and from 1964 to 1966 Lebanon County went without a Senator. We did not have one. We had an acting Senator, and it was in that year again this Commonwealth was reapportioned and Lebanon was to be part of a district that included Lancaster County and parts of Berks County. The purpose of this meeting that I attended was for the announcement by Representative Seltzer and Representative Manbeck that the junior Representative Clarence Manbeck would become the candidate for the state Senate. I was there because I was the newspaper reporter who was covering it, and it was my job to write the story. Little did I imagine at the time I wrote that story that I would be Clarence Manbeck's successor.

Senator Manbeck served here from 1967 to 1982. It followed three terms in the House that he was here for 16 years. He retired in 1982. While I was not close to the Senator, I know that he hated to leave because he loved the Senate and he loved the process. While here, he had particular interests in transportation and agriculture, and while here, I have learned from my colleagues, particularly on the other side of the aisle, he was a very fine man, a man of his word and a man of integrity. I say particularly from the other side of the aisle because I expected the people on this side of the aisle to say that, and I was very pleased when the Members on the other side also agreed.

Clarence Manbeck retired in 1982 and went back to the airport. Sometimes you would see him in his old clothes mowing the grass, but he was always interested, he was always active. One of the things I think I feel the best about Clarence is this. Since he retired, I got to know a gentleman by the name of Scott Sechler. Scott Sechler now runs C. F. Manbeck Poultry, Inc., or Farmers Pride. What I learned from Scott was that when Clarence Manbeck sold his business, he sold it to someone who was very much in Clarence's mold—a poor boy from the northern portion of Berks County—and he did not sell his business to the person who was willing to pay the highest price. He sold it to someone who was willing to carry on the hard work and the traditions that Clarence had established in his business. I think that speaks very highly of the Senator, and I know that Clarence Manbeck and Mr. Sechler became quite close. I think that speaks as well as anything as to the quality of the human being. Lebanon, Lancaster and Berks Counties were well represented by Clarence Manbeck, not because he was a good politician, which he was, and not because he was a good businessman, which he was, but because he was just a plain old, good human being. He was the best that America has to offer, and I am proud to be here representing the area he represented during his time.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Mr. President, I rise to second the resolution and to commend the gentleman from Lebanon County for his very warm and sincere remarks about a person who was very warm and very sincere.

We are here today, Mr. President, to memorialize two of our colleagues, Senator Manbeck and Senator Messinger. It is hard for me to think of one without the other and think of Groundhog Day, February 2nd, when all of us used to enjoy coming in here and listening to Clossie Manbeck and Henry Messinger debate the issue of Groundhog Day in Pennsylvania Dutch, something that has been very special and which all of us enjoyed so very much. Much of Senator Manbeck and Senator Messinger were alike in a sense. They were quiet men. They were not men known for their great emotional oratory on the floor, but they were solid in their political thinking and in their principles. Clarence Manbeck, particularly for me when I came in in 1974, was almost like a father figure. I had the opportunity many times at his invitation—please come into my office—to sit down and talk. Through difficult times, personal times, it would be Senator Manbeck who would counsel me and give me the lift I needed at that time. He was truly very special, as was Senator Messinger, in the sense that he was, I guess, for lack of a better term, he would try to portray the country boy image, but let me tell you, there was no shrewder politician in the Senate of Pennsylvania than was Clarence Manbeck. There was no wiser person in the Senate than was Henry Messinger.

Mr. President, one of the great thrills I had that he enjoyed but did not see and I saw but lived vicariously through is, I saw Clarence Manbeck have a hole in one at Lebanon Country Club. His eyesight had failed him greatly, and I saw it go in. He got the thrill of having that hole in one. It was the first one I had ever seen, but what a joy it was for him. How thrilling it was to have something like that happen. He had never had it happen before, and what a joyous day that was.

Mr. President, as I think of the quiet man, Henry Messinger, and the shrewd, rural politician, Clarence Manbeck, I cannot help but think how, perhaps, times have changed. Those days were fun. There were some great times on the floor. There were some great times afterwards as we were representing the people of Pennsylvania in our respective districts. Somehow, well, I am not sure it is as much fun anymore as it used to be. I have to tell you, Mr. President, those two leaders, those two quiet men, those two well-respected human beings, those two warm and decent people were part of this institution as much as anybody who has ever served here. I looked to both of them for guidance and counsel. They were highly principled. They were shrewd politicians, and in many ways they represented all that is good about this institution. I think of them often, because as I think back on when I came here in 1974—and it is ironic that my friend John Sweeney should be here because we sat across from one another; Craig Lewis and others also came here in that year—I am not sure that any two people exhibited more of a quiet leadership and gained more respect than did the late Senator Messinger and Senator Manbeck.

So, Mr. President, it is well that this Senate, those of us who were here when they served, use this time to remember two very, very special and decent human beings and two people who represented their districts and their constituents exceedingly well, two people who were able to rise above partisan politics at a time when even though one might have been Chairman of the Committee on Transportation and strong in agriculture and another coming out of the education arena, rising to become Majority Leader of this Body, they gave as much to this Body as anybody could ever ask, and it is well that we pause today to remember these two special leaders, these two very able Legislators and these two very kind and decent human beings. I know that I am better for having served with them and known them, and this Senate and this Commonwealth are better for having had the benefit of their service.

Senator O'PAKE. Mr. President, it is funny how Senator Jubelirer's line of thought parallels mine. He almost took the words out of my mouth, but in the last year and a half or so it seems to me that this Senate in Pennsylvania has lost three of its stalwarts, its living legends, if you will. In many ways Senator Manbeck personified the Senate that used to be. And each year, although he did not speak much during the year, Clossie would get up on my birthday, Groundhog Day, and he and Senator Messinger would involve themselves in a debate. I do not know exactly what they were saying but it had to do with the groundhog. As my neighbor from western Berks, on many occasions Senator Manbeck and I would be speaking to a farmers group or another civic group and every once in a while right in the middle of a sentence he would break out into this Pennsylvania Dutch, so farmers and other people used to laugh generally and then I would have to figure out what he said, but it was usually very positive and very constructive to the point at issue. As Senator Brightbill pointed out, Clossie did represent the typical Horatio Alger story and here in the Senate he brought with him all the best qualities of his district. He did have a tremendous sense of humor. He was as sly and crafty as a fox at times, a very, very gracious gentleman, fiercely independent, who would stand up for what he thought was right even when it bucked his party's caucus at times. He always, and this was something where—and I remember Ernie Kline was Lt. Governor at the time—Clarence initiated his annual summer picnic at his farm and we could always tell we were at a chicken farm. You could smell it. And at a lot of those occasions many problems were resolved, as they say, in the old tradition of the Senate. I know he did not speak much but he was tremendously effective. He was Chairman of the Senate Committee on Transportation. He was a Member of the Transportation Commission, and jokingly back home people would ask, how come the improvements to this highway end right here? And the answer of course always was, well, that is where Senator Manbeck's district ended. He was tremendously popular back home. At his viewing on a very stormy, rainy night the crowd and the lines were still there almost an hour past the scheduled closing time. I think that speaks well of a public servant whom his constituents appreciated and one who did make an impact here, not by being loud or a show horse, but by being very quiet and effective and by being a true work horse. Senator Manbeck, we will miss you. His lovely wife Evie, Evie was a tremendous partner, a tremendous asset, who helped him through his latest successions of health setbacks, including his heart problems and the bypass surgery which he undertook. So, yes, Senator Manbeck was a tremendous leader in his own way. We will miss him and the Senate has been a better place for the years that he gave to this august Body.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, it is quite ironic when you do listen to these speeches on the floor of the Senate here this afternoon, certainly not eulogizing Clarence Manbeck, but talking about Clarence Manbeck the friend because I can recall very vividly when I first walked onto the floor of this Senate back in January of 1971 and one of the first individuals who I was introduced to was Senator Manbeck. The one thing that has always stayed with me about that introduction to Senator Manbeck is that early in my legislative career I found out that Senator Manbeck had a problem with pronouncing "v"s. His "v"s were "w"s. If you talked in Pennsylvania about a vote with Clarence Manbeck, it was "wote," and if you talked about the State of Pennsylvania with Clarence Manbeck it was "Pennsylvania." I think you know there are so many nice, wonderful memories that I have of Clarence that I will take myself to my own grave. Senator O'Pake just talked about the chicken barbeque. I think I attended every chicken barbeque that Senator Manbeck had while I was a Member of the Senate, and I enjoyed each and every one of them. Obviously, the chicken barbeque was delicious, to say the least, but I can recall that both his wife and his daughter would also make desserts and they would make shoo-fly pie. The first time that I, a coal cracker from northeastern Pennsylvania, had an opportunity to eat shoo-fly pie was in Lebanon County at the home of Clarence Manbeck. I can also remember at that particular time there was a delicious apple pie that was made and I commented to his wife on how good the apple pie was, and she did not forget it because shortly thereafter when we came back into Session, Clarence came to my office with a pie and a recipe and it was with the compliments of his wife and he said to me, not only did she make the pie for you, but she also gave you the recipe in case you would like to try to make it yourself.

There are so many other things that I can recall about Clarence. I had the opportunity, Mr. President, of playing golf with Clarence when he had real good eyes, and although he might want to tell you that his glasses were kind of thick and he could not see, but when he would line up the putt on a green, you had better not bet against him because he probably would have defeated each and every one of us. I remember one particular golf trip I was on with Clarence when we were playing golf and we had it set up in two ways. You had an honest John score and you had the best golfing score, the lowest score. Clarence was my partner in the honest John score and I was no competition for him as far as the low score would go. The way the honest John score would work is that you would select a score that you as a team thought you would be able to reach in 18 holes. Each one of us would put in a very small amount of money and we would play and the winner, obviously the most accurate, would receive the money. Clarence had the opportunity on this particular day we were playing golf, if he sank the putt, he would win the low score and he would win whatever the prize was for himself. If he would go ahead and three-putt from no more than about 18 inches away from the hole, then he and I would win the honest John score. I really thought that what Clarence would have done is that he would have put in the 18 inch putt and he would have won the low score, but he looked at me and he gave me the wink as he would do to us many times and, of course, I do not know if he would pronounce it as wink, but in any event, he gave me the wink and he three-putted so that he did not win the low gross score, but he and I won the honest John score and we shared whatever the gift was at that particular time.

When you talk about an all-star team you have to look at Clarence Manbeck, you have to look at Senator Wood, you have to look at Senator Stroup, you have to look at Senator Wade and Senator Marty Murray. You have to talk about a guy like Ben Donolow and several others who made this particular institution what it is today. When I first came here I was told by Clarence and others who are not with us today, they are not living today, that this is the greatest governmental Body in the United States and I believed them then and I truly believe what they said to be even more accurate today. The main difference then as compared to today was that things were much easier then. When there was a problem on the floor of the Senate, regardless whether it was a problem for the Democratic Members or the Republican Members, you could always come up with an understanding and an agreement. When there was a problem with a budget, you always knew full well that regardless of where the problem may have developed, that at the right time several people would come forward and they would take the leadership on a bipartisan basis and they would say, yes, we will get the job done and we will do it today. So, I think many of those very nice times that we think back upon and we reflect upon on a day such as today in memorializing, in this particular case Senator Manbeck, we also have to think about the other Members who have gone before us, the other Members who have made this Body what it is today and those who will be here for many years to come. I am very happy and proud to say that although Senator Manbeck served in the Senate for some 16 years, that I had the privilege and the honor and the pleasure of having been able to serve with him 12 out of those 16 years, and, Clarence, wherever you are today, I am sure you are looking down upon us and you are telling us that remember that Election Day is a couple of weeks away and make sure you go out there and you "wote" for "Pennsylvania."

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I also would like to second the resolution for Senator Manbeck. I came here as a young Senator, a freshman, in January of 1979, and like some of the previous speakers have indicated, I found the same type of fair and compassionate gentleman, and much like Senator Mellow just related, I had a very difficult time understanding Senator Manbeck when he would speak once in a while as far as that Pennsylvania Dutch dialect that he had. But I also soon learned that he was the kind of gentleman who would take you under his wing, so to speak, any time he could counsel you or help you to understand better some of the ways of the Senate or the committee process. I particularly remember as Chairman of the Senate Committee on Transportation, Senator Manbeck working on an issue with us dealing with truck axle weights, and we had a series of hearings throughout the state, and working very closely with Senator Lynch at the time who also was involved with the Committee on Transportation, and many of those committee hearings and the functions that would follow those hearings and really to listen to Senator Manbeck and the knowledge that he could impart about the various issues affecting the state. But I recall also most vividly some of the conversations that we would have within the confines of our caucus and where it would be Senator Manbeck who sometimes with his dry wit and humor might really break the ice, so to speak, of a caucus room on a particular critical issue. I think also that it was interesting the stories that Senator Manbeck used to be able to relate, whether it be in the lunchroom over a sandwich or out in the evening, that Senator Manbeck would have stories of the folklore of Lebanon and Lancaster Counties as well as things about his business, his childhood and how they affected the way he looked at life. I think also very important was upon his retirement from the Senate of Pennsylvania we still saw Senator Manbeck very active in many of the activities that he so much liked to participate in, as we heard earlier, the variety of activities in which he was involved. Certainly, his local bank board, one which he very much cherished and worked continuously and tirelessly on behalf of the people in Fredericksburg, and also with his business until the time that he did sell his business. He certainly was a genuinely warm person that we are all going to miss, and it is with that that I second this resolution.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I rise too, to echo the sentiments of the other speakers and to bring out another area of Senator Manbeck that has not been talked about. Clarence and I were friends when I first got here and remained friends through his tenure in office when I was here. He was like a father figure and, as Senator Loeper said, one who would help you along and explain the process and give you a wink from time to time as Senator Mellow would say. He was also someone who told stories about the fact that he had a store in Philadelphia where he used to sell some of his chickens, and he had some affinity for Philadelphia. I will never forget one of the last things he ever did when he left the Senate, right before he left the Senate, before he retired, was that there was a very critical vote concerning the Philadelphia wage tax, and it was a very close vote. At that time the Republican caucus was either playing games with us, or whatever, but it was serious stuff, and Clarence gave us the vote that protected Philadelphia. I remember going to his retirement dinner and he came over to me and said, in his inimitable way, those guys really did not like that, meaning his Republican colleagues, but he said, I know the problems of Philadelphia and they cannot have this happen to them, and plus, if it happens to Philadelphia, we will only have to pay for it anyway. So he had a brilliance about him that escaped the thought processes of others. But he was a very good friend of mine. He will be sorely missed by all of us. He was very close to Senator Lynch and, regrettably, Senator Lynch is not with us today to speak about the many good times they had. But I remember when I needed that vote for Philadelphia, I sent Senator Lynch to Senator Manbeck and he came back and said he will be okay, and he was. So the citizens of Philadelphia owe a great debt to him as well. Some of the people in his district will not be happy to remember that, but I think we all as Pennsylvanians are happy, and I share the grief of his leaving us on this earth. He was truly, as someone else said, the essence of what American politics should be about and was about during his time.

The PRESIDENT. With the indulgence of the Senate, the Chair would like to add just one very brief anecdote. In my early career as a young state Senator, I recall delivering a speech on the floor of the Senate. It was one of the first times I rose to speak on this floor, and I remember finishing with a flourish, returning to my chair and sitting down, flushed with the excitement of what I thought was a brilliant and moving speech, and Senator Clarence Manbeck came over, leaned his hands on my desk, leaned right in toward me and said, "Windy, aren't we?" I have always been grateful for that subtle but important admonition and like to think that it has helped me temper some of my excessive rhetoric.

MOMENT OF SILENCE

The PRESIDENT. On the resolution, all those in favor of the resolution please rise and join in a moment of silence in memory of Senator Clarence F. Manbeck.

(Whereupon, the Senate en banc stood in a moment of silence in solemn respect to the memory of Senator CLARENCE F. MANBECK.)

The PRESIDENT. The resolution is hereby unanimously adopted by the Senate.

SENATE RESOLUTION

EXTENDING CONDOLENCES ON THE DEATH OF SENATOR HENRY C. MESSINGER

Senators AFFLERBACH, JUBELIRER, MELLOW, LINCOLN, BODACK, O'PAKE, FUMO, STAPLETON, REIBMAN, LOEPER, FISHER, WENGER, SALVATORE, TILGHMAN, BRIGHTBILL, HOPPER, ANDREZESKI, ARMSTRONG, BAKER, BELAN, BELL, BORTNER, CORMAN, DAWIDA, FATTAH, GREENLEAF, GREENWOOD, HART, HELFRICK, HOLL, JONES, LAVALLE, LEMMOND, LEWIS, LYNCH, MADIGAN, MUSTO, PECORA, PETERSON, PORTERFIELD, PUNT, RHOADES, ROBBINS, SCANLON, SCHWARTZ, SHAFFER, SHUMAKER, STEWART, STOUT and WILLIAMS offered the following resolution (Senate Resolution No. 110, which was read as follows:

In the Senate, October 21, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Extending condolences on the death of Senator Henry C. Messinger.

WHEREAS, Former State Senator Henry C. Messinger of Allentown passed away May 13, 1991, at the age of 75; and

WHEREAS, Senator Messinger represented the 16th District of Lehigh County in the Pennsylvania Senate for three terms, serving from 1970 to 1982. He held the posts of Senate Majority Leader, Majority Whip and Democratic Policy Chairman during his tenure. Among his notable achievements, he was a driving force in campaign financing reform and the elimination of senatorial scholarships, and he authored the resolution which opened up all Senate records to public inspection; and

WHEREAS, Senator Messinger began his career as a science teacher in Chester County and moved to the Lehigh Valley in 1943. He taught science at Allen High School and was named head of the science department and science supervisor for the Allentown School District in 1960. He resigned in 1968 to become eastern field officer of the National Education Association. A graduate of Kutztown State College, he held a master's degree from Cornell University. He served with the United States Marines during World War II and was an active community servant, generously contributing to the benefit of Planned Parenthood of the Lehigh Valley, Saint Mark's Lutheran Church in Allentown and the Lehigh County Conference of Churches; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Senate note with sadness the passing of Henry C. Messinger, distinguished educator, legislator and community steward; extend heartfelt condolences to his wife, Mrs. Ruth E. Messinger; son, Allan; daughter, Tish Steward; foster daughter, Patricia Hunsicker; two brothers and a sister; four grandchildren; five foster grandchildren; and six foster great-grandchildren; and be it further

RESOLVED, That a copy of this resolution, sponsored by Senator Roy C. Afflerbach, be transmitted to Mrs. Ruth E. Messinger, 1001 South Sixth Street, Allentown, Pennsylvania.

Senator AFFLERBACH asked and obtained unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of this resolution.

On the question,

Will the Senate adopt the resolution?

SENATE RESOLUTION NO. 110, ADOPTED

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do adopt Senate Resolution No. 110.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, I think it is only appropriate that we also say a few words in memory of Senator Henry Messinger. Henry Messinger and I came here to the Senate together in December of 1970 just after he had won an election which, frankly, very few people expected him to win, including some of our closest and most ardent campaign workers in Lehigh County. I will never forget that. He and I met just several months prior to that election on the campaign trail at which time he asked me to serve as his campaign manager and campaign coordinator and I was under no illusions. I was being asked to serve in that position, in part, because, frankly, it was an uphill battle. Virtually no one expected him to win. We had no money and no one else would take the job. But Henry, being the kind of an individual that he was, was willing to give some young fresh upstart from the countryside a chance to show what they could do and he gave me that opportunity. And with $2,200 we won a Senate seat and defeated the then incumbent Majority Whip.

When Henry came to Harrisburg in December of that year and sat in the Democratic caucus for the first time, he was always fond of remembering that then Senator Tom Lamb, who was to be the Majority Leader, and Senator Martin L. Murray looked across the table and said to each other, we are going to have trouble with that fellow. That was really because they did not know Henry Messinger. They had not really paid a great deal of attention to the campaign for reasons I have already mentioned. Henry had a stature about him and a gruff look on his face that generally terrorized people until they got to know him, because it seemed that he would never crack a smile and would not say a friendly word and yet as soon as you began speaking with the gentleman you realized that his outward appearance was totally the opposite of his inward self.

Henry was a teacher all of his life. He was very proud of that fact and he conducted his office in the same fashion. He believed that you taught not simply through the didactic method of telling people what they should do or how to do things but by giving them the opportunity to find out for themselves what really works and what does not work. As a result he provided me and every member of his staff a great deal of freedom to do what we thought was the proper thing to do and to make the recommendations that we thought were appropriate to him. In fact, on very many occasions a lot of those recommendations probably were not the best thing that we could have done, but Henry was never one to criticize. He would take the recommendation and he would run with it and he would modify it as he saw fit at the time that he was following it, and in that way he taught all of us who worked with him how we might better do the job the next time around. He had many favorite times in this Senate and particularly as he rose through the ranks to the Secretary of the Caucus, the Majority Whip, the Majority Leader and then continued to serve as the Policy Chairman after that and then chairman of a number of committees in this Senate. And I do remember many times he would say that despite some of the turmoil and some of the trying times, he generally enjoyed the entire opportunity because he really did believe that he was able to make a difference and that the people whom he worked with in this Body, even though they may disagree almost violently on occasion, he knew that they too were trying to do what they believed was best and believed that they would really make a difference. He was also not given to long and windy speeches. Perhaps not because it was not necessarily that he did not have something to say but that he just believed what you had to say you could say in simple terms, and he always tried to do that and did it very, very effectively. I think it is ironic that both he and Senator Manbeck, who had become very close friends while they served here, would pass on on almost the same day, the two Dutchmen of the Pennsylvania Legislature. I recall one time when Henry was the Majority Leader a bill was on the floor that Senator Manbeck was promoting. He wanted to interrogate Senator Manbeck, but did not want to embarrass him on the floor and asked for the indulgence of the Members while he interrogated Senator Manbeck in Pennsylvania Dutch. Senator Manbeck responded in Pennsylvania Dutch, and those were the only two gentlemen on the floor who knew what either one was talking about. But it was very short, very crisp and the bill passed unanimously because the exchange had settled all of the questions, and that was Henry's manner, to get to the root of things without embarrassing anyone and then do what was necessary. In all the things he did here, however, there was one thing that Henry Messinger still believed and that is that he did not happen to be a teacher who became a Senator, rather he just happened to be a Senator who was a teacher. If there is one thing for which he would like to be remembered, it was truly that, that he just happened to be a Senator who was a teacher and, indeed, he was.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I also had the opportunity of spending some very informative years with Senator Messinger as I did with Senator Manbeck. November of 1970 was quite an astonishing year for the Democratic Party here in the Senate. I believe, if my memory serves me correctly, that there were ten new Members of the Pennsylvania State Senate elected in that year. I believe three were Republican and seven were Members of the Democratic Party. That was the first time in many years that there were 26 Democrats in the Senate and 24 Republicans, and I say this only for background information because that is when I had the opportunity of being elected to the Senate and, once again, one of the first individuals who I was able to meet not only during the campaign but when I got here in Harrisburg, was Senator Henry Messinger. Because if you go downstairs, Mr. President, and you walk into the Capitol on the Senate side, you come to the office where now Senator Lincoln is located, you will find that in January of 1971 there were three Senators in that office, three newly-elected freshmen Senators. Senator Henry Messinger was one, Senator Joe Ammerman was another and I was the young kid on the block. I had a lot of fun with both Senator Ammerman and Senator Messinger in that office until we were given little better facilities that would give us better accommodations. But I learned a lot from Senator Messinger in that very short period of time that we worked closely together as far as the relationships of our offices would go. I found out that he was a very charming individual. He was extremely bright, and he was a very competent person who was loyal to the people who were loyal to Henry. Mr. President, I think if you go back to 1977—and obviously history repeats itself, because we had in reality the same type of financial fiasco and budgetary problems here in 1991 that we had in the summer of 1977—the fellow we are talking about right now and memorializing—I hate to use the word “eulogy”, but I guess to a certain point we must—was the man who was the Majority Leader for a good part of that 1977 budget battle. I think, Mr. President, that really did take a tremendous amount of work to go ahead and to accomplish the final resolve and the final resolution that eventually sometime in August gave us a tax package and then later on in the year finally gave us a budget. The one thing I heard Senator Messinger say many times, not only here on the floor but also in caucus when he would conduct and preside over our caucuses as the Majority Leader, he talked about consistency and he would say that foolish consistency is the hobnob of small minds. When you think about that, it is so true that sometimes we want to go ahead and we want to be consistent on what we do regardless of whether it is right or it is wrong. I think in that little message he was telling us that to be consistent is great, but to be consistent only because we want to be foolish and not recognize that we are not doing the right thing basically is to mean that we have kind of a small mind. I think when we talk about a hall of fame of the Senate of Pennsylvania the same way, one of the shining stars would be Clarence Manbeck. I think right there along with Clarence Manbeck and the others that we have mentioned would be Henry Messinger. To his family, his lovely wife and to the other colleagues who had the opportunity of serving with Henry for the 12 years he was a Member of the Senate, including me, it was an honor and a privilege and it was something that I will remember forever and ever. And Henry, to you too, wherever you are, today I am sure you are looking down over us and saying, you people down there are having a lot to say about me when I really do not deserve to have that much said. But Henry was a true stalwart, a man that has been missed and a great Pennsylvanian, and I would like to also second the resolution, Mr. President.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, it is strange when you have to stand and talk about someone who you served with and it seems like we have been doing a great deal of this in recent years in this Senate. But Henry Messinger was a special person to me because I worked with him when I was in the House. He was a staunch advocate of education and I had the privilege of working with him and Senator Reibman while I was still in the House. I remember my first term and my first month of being here when we did that crazy thing we call reorganization when we elect leaders, and there was an effort being made at that time to remove Henry as the Majority Leader. A very good friend of mine who I did not know at all at that time who became a very good friend later, Eddie Zemprelli, was his opponent. As we all know, the craziest elections we go through in this business are the ones for leadership positions. I had made a commitment to Henry Messinger early, even before we even thought about reorganizing. One of my friends who is no longer here in the Senate talked to me about that election and said to me, well, you vote for Henry Messinger, but whenever you meet with Senator Zemprelli, you tell him that you do not know what you are doing, or whatever. So I went to Henry and I said, Henry, I have a problem. One of your friends wants me to lie to Eddie Zemprelli. He looked me square in the eye and he said, young man, if you have to lie to vote for me, then I do not want you to vote for me, and I said, well, I had no intention of doing that but I just wanted you to know some of your supporters maybe are doing a disservice to you. I went to Zemprelli and told him the truth and told him that I was going to vote for Henry. I think later when “Zemp” and I became friends the fact that I told him the truth probably had a great deal to do with the fact that we could develop a friendship. I think, when I hear people talk about public officials who have no integrity and no ethics, then I say that they have never met Henry Messinger, because there was a man who just absolutely lived every day of his life the same way, with humility. He was straightforward. He was decent and he was honest. He led the fight in opening up a lot of the very old traditional standards of keeping things secret here in the Senate and throughout the rest of government. Henry Messinger was one of the people who led the fight in opening everything up for the public. I feel honored that I have had the opportunity to serve with him, and I feel honored that he was my friend and I would say to Henry, wherever he is today, that he made us all look better and I wish we had a few more like him around now.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore (Robert C. Jubelirer) in the Chair.

Senator O'PAKE. Mr. President, it is ironic that the two groundhog debaters both retired from the Senate on the same day and both died on almost the same day. As we all know, when Henry Messinger was elected to the Senate in 1970, he shocked the political world because, as I understand it, he spent about $1,500 to unseat the Senate Majority Whip, Senator VanSant, who had served for 16 years. No Democrat had been elected from that district since the mid-1930s, and Senator Messinger, spending the grand total of about $1,500, unseated that incumbent by a victory margin, I am told, of 1,299 votes, but it was a victory. Fortunately for the Senate Senator Messinger was here as Majority Leader through very, very stormy times, and it was good that we had a man of his honesty and candor and firm hand on the reins of the Senate because those were very difficult years. As Senator Lincoln pointed out, a lot of reforms happened under Senator Messinger's short tenure as the Senate Majority Leader in the '70s. It was hard to get to know Henry because, as Senator Afflerbach pointed out, on first measure he seemed very, very reserved and very gruff and very authoritarian and teacher-like, but underneath that veneer was a very gentle and warm and kindhearted person, someone who always examined legislation in terms of how it would affect people. We talk a lot about serving the little guy and the little people of Pennsylvania. Senator Messinger did just that for many, many years here on the floor of the Senate and in his church. He was the President of the Lehigh Valley Council of Churches. He held an office in the statewide board and was dearly loved by the clergy and those who worked with that organization, and you got the distinct impression that here was a man who brought to politics a refreshing sense of values. He did stand up strongly for what he believed. He was very, very effective in his own way, a very modest and unassuming person who never carried the aura of being a Senator, the trappings of Senatorship. As a matter of fact, I understand that when he was a Senator and even the Majority Leader, he insisted that his administrative assistant, who I think was someone by the name of Roy Afflerbach, would have a larger office than he because Roy was here every day and the Senator was only here when we were in Session.

Ruth Messinger was also a tremendous asset to the Senator, and we were speaking earlier about the culinary skills of the spouses of both Senator Manbeck and now Senator Messinger. She, too, was an excellent baker, and as Henry's neighbor I used to look forward to when she would visit because she would usually bring a homemade cake or pie with her to share with us.

I do not know how you can more properly sum up Senator Messinger's contributions to the Senate and the Lehigh Valley and to the people of Pennsylvania than the sign that was handwritten and posted on the Lehigh Valley Conference of Churches' Office the day of Henry's funeral. It said, "Closed today for the funeral of Henry Messinger, our President and a man who did more for you than you will probably ever know."

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, so much has been said about both of our friends, Senator Messinger and Senator Manbeck. I would only add that for most of the time that they were present in the Senate, I was the only woman here. I might add that I was impressed not only with their sincerity, their honesty, but also with the respect that they accorded me as one of their colleagues. I was also impressed with the fact that both gentlemen had a life experience that encompassed many aspects of everyday living, family living, and that their values were expressed in the kind of legislation they espoused and supported. One other aspect, and it was touched on very briefly, was the sense of humor of both of these gentlemen. Both had, I do not know whether it is indigenous to Pennsylvania Dutch, a dry sense of humor, and when they would come out with a witticism, there was always a warm sparkle in their eyes. Never was their humor directed to anyone in a sarcastic way or in a way that would hurt, but it was always kind. It was funny. It had a lot of meaning to it and somehow you would take it, and when you would think about it you would think, you know, what they said was true. So I, as a neighbor of Senator Messinger, when I represent Northampton County and when he represented Lehigh County, we always considered our two counties—as Senator Afflerbach and I do today, and it started with Senator Messinger—as the Lehigh Valley, and that both of our counties had so much in common. I, too, feel very pleased that I had the honor of serving with both Senator Manbeck and Senator Messinger. They will be missed.

MOMENT OF SILENCE

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Will those in favor of the resolution please rise for a moment of silence.

(Whereupon, the Senate en banc stood in a moment of silence in solemn respect to the memory of Senator HENRY C. MESSINGER.)

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The resolution is unanimously adopted.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair notes that during the course of the resolution several Members returned from leave and the Chair would like to note for the record that Senator Corman, Senator Schwartz, Senator Andrezski, Senator Reibman and Senator Jones are on the floor, having voted on the resolution. The Chair also notes the presence on the floor of Senator Porterfield and his leave is cancelled.

RECESS

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, at this time I would ask for a recess of the Senate for the purpose of a Republican caucus to begin immediately in the first floor caucus room, with an expectation of returning to the floor at approximately 4:15 p.m.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I would ask that the Members of the Democrat caucus report to the caucus room off the floor immediately after we break.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. For purposes of Republican and Democratic caucuses in their respective caucus rooms, the Senate will stand in recess.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant Governor Mark S. Singel) in the Chair.

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed, the Senate will be in order.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVE CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT. The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Scanlon. His temporary legislative leave will be cancelled.

NAYS—1

Schwartz

A constitutional majority of all the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the affirmative.

RECONSIDERATION OF SB 197

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which Senate Bill No. 197, Printer's No. 206, just passed finally.

The motion was agreed to.

And the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?

Senator SCHWARTZ. Mr. President, first, let me say that I understand that I am somewhat alone in this position, but I did want to express my feelings about this particular piece of legislation. Let me say that I do sympathize with parents, probably across this state, who have had serious frustrations with not being able to get the proper kind of care or found that their children, particularly youth between the ages of 14 and 18 who have been uncooperative, have drug and alcohol problems, and they really are not sure what to do about these children and would like to get care for them. Unfortunately, while this bill does attempt to address this concern, it does not, I think, provide the answer, and I think voting for it makes us feel a little bit better but, in fact, will not help these youth or the parents who we are trying to help. It does require single county authorities to do assessments when requested by parents, and it does say that if the youth are found to be dependent on drugs or alcohol that they should authorize placement.

There are several problems with this, and I will try and be brief about it. First, there are no funds in this bill, which means that we know already there are inadequate facilities for youth and particularly for appropriate facilities for young adolescents, many of whom are suffering from alcoholism or the use of alcohol and not necessarily drugs. I think we should address that problem of requiring single county authorities to refer youth to services that do not exist and no provision being made to assure that those services exist and this bill will not, in fact, help those parents or those youth.

Secondly, there are no advocates for the children. Children in the Child Welfare System do often have appointed advocates and, of course, in the delinquency system they do have legal representation. We are now creating another system in which the youth will have no one representing them and, in fact, the only allowance in this bill is that parents would be able to, if they did not agree with the single county authority, ask for an appeal of that decision so that the youth who may have something to say or want to have something to say about this would not, in fact, have any right to any kind of appeal process. So that is my second point.

Third, the system applies only to youth who have insurance and I assume medical assistance as well, which means those families who do not have drug and alcohol coverage for their children, which includes, as we know, thousands and thousands of Pennsylvanians, would not, in fact, be affected by this bill. So you are talking about working families who do not have adequate health insurance or may have no health insurance who may have the same problems. So you are creating at least a two-tiered system where if you have health coverage you can be confined to treatment but if you do not then you cannot as a parent go to the single county authority and seek care for your child against their wishes. Of course, you can now with their consent.

Fourth, drug and alcohol treatment facilities are not locked facilities. There is, in fact, no way to keep youth there. Many of these young people are already runaways, they have already left one or two other kinds of treatment facilities and the drug and alcohol treatment people tell me this is not going to be easy to do. There is no way for them to keep the children there.

Next, I would say that the 30 days which is renewable every 30 days means that you could potentially detain a youth between the ages of 14 and 18 against their will on an ongoing basis. Yes, the single county authority has to review the child's progress every 30 days, but nothing prevents them from keeping them there on an ongoing basis.

I would just conclude by saying that the bill will not assure more available treatment for youth. It may make us feel better for a few minutes but, in fact, I do not think this will address the problems these parents have apparently come to some of the Senators and asked them to help with. I will also say that when I discussed this with some of my colleagues, they said, what else can we do? And I think this is, in fact, a desperate move. I think what else we can do is, in fact, maybe harder because it confronts our willingness to deal with some very difficult problems—use of drugs and alcohol by our youth, some of whom have seen the experience in their own families and have to confront their families in this experience. But I think what we should do and if we are, in fact, serious about dealing with the problems of youth who have drug and alcohol problems, is that we have to, one, do a much better job of prevention. We have to make sure that we are in schools at a very young age explaining about drugs and alcohol to young kids. I think we ought to consider offering counseling on drug and alcohol in the schools. I do not see anything about that in the bill. I think we should be sure that there are available and accessible services for adolescents. There are not adequate services for adolescents. Maybe one of the reasons that the kids run away is that we are not meeting their needs in these facilities. In fact, drug and alcohol experts will tell me that not only was the drug and alcohol system set up for adults, it was set up for male adults. It is only newly coming for how to treat women and certainly newly coming for how to treat adolescents. So I think we have a long way to go on this, but I would just say, Mr. President, that this bill will not get to the problem that I have a great deal of sympathy for, both for the parents and the young people involved. I understand that my colleagues "want to do something," but I am afraid that this bill itself will cause confusion at the county level with single county authority. It will not increase availability of services. It will exclude groups of parents and children, frustrating many of our constituents who will then be angry at us that we excluded them from this process and we may well have a group of even angrier adolescents coming back at us once they turn eighteen. I thank you for the opportunity to speak on this bill and I will just say that I will be voting against this bill.

Senator WILLIAMS. Mr. President, some few years ago, not too very long ago, maybe three or maybe four, maybe two and one-half, I do not know, the question and the problem of the threat of drugs was not really upon us in the Legislature and the administration as something we really, really, really were concerned about. Some events in our state, even though things were happening in other states, drove many of us in this Body and in the House to organize and to confront and challenge the administration and ourselves to the issue and the question that far into the next century, if we do not do something comprehensive, intelligent, organized and cogent, that all the other issues that we debate about and legislate about would be of little or no meaning because of the drug threat, so overpowering and especially on young lives, that our energy and our productivity, indeed, would be sapped and we would have been destroyed internally. After a few short years I do not judge that that judgment has changed a bit. The urgency may change from day to day, depending on what calamity has taken place or what drug raids had been had or what criminals in that trade had been brought before the TV camera and arrested and convicted. But, nevertheless, the day-to-day inching toward some comprehensive and organized attack on the problem is yet to come, and so we do inch along, and some of us, as we combine and present to this Legislature and to the Governor some steps to take in our conference, some of those steps were taken. Now in Pennsylvania many community-based groups are getting help along the way, and some police units are getting help along the way, and the state Attorney General, his energetic efforts have been supported and promoted, and so we have a glimmer that we might get to the best possible arming on this question that we can. My hope is that there will be a department some day because the issue will not go away.

Along the way, in all of my discussions and deliberations and my experience both as a citizen and as a community person and as a Legislator, connected with that frustration and looking into the eyes of mothers and also looking into the eyes of judges, the proposal on the floor has great merit because I tell you, Mr. President, that the power of the drug to disorient the intelligent, to disorient the nice and the meek, to disorient the responsible is total, and there are chapters and verses of cases. If we are talking about young people on top of that, there is no question in my mind, there is no question in the minds of those who plead for some order, some system, that those of younger age can terrorize the quietude of a family who is on a shoestring already and terrorize the families who are not on shoestrings into almost total social dismemberment is very great. So this small measure is one, Mr. President, of order. It is a proposition well thought out by both experience and inquiry among people of all persuasions and all situations, and a very small but significant step, and so I rise to support the legislation as only one recognition of something we have to have. This is not an issue where we can be wishy-washy. This is not a situation where we can be theoretical. This is not an issue where we can think that the people who actually suffer in neighborhoods from this danger, that the danger is not real and unrelenting, and so I want to assure the Members of this Body that a lot of us involved with the sponsor that the issue is well thought out and, hopefully, an addition to what might become a comprehensive plan one day by this Legislature.

Senator JONES. Mr. President, I do appreciate the opportunity to stand and speak on this bill. Listening to both of my colleagues from Philadelphia, I understand their concerns as I have some of the same concerns. I really want that understood. However, coming from a very drug-infested community, a drug-infested city and, I might say, a state, young people now are not allowed to get treatment. They are uncontrollable when it comes to their parents. It is because of the substances of drug and alcohol. They lose control of their real thinking. I held hearings with adults and I know what happens, and these drugs can be even more, I think, devastating on young people's brains. Even though I do not support everything in this bill, I support the concept as a temporary healing ground to try to help some of the parents get control of their children. So not to totally disagree with my colleagues from Philadelphia, but I have to, since working in this field for a while, disagree and say that we have to start somewhere. I think something is better than nothing. After 30 days of the treatment of these kids or a reexamination of the problem, we can see whether or not it has helped or not helped, and I think this helps the parents because until we really stop drugs from coming into this country, we have to try to find some solutions to help our young people because young people are our future, and even though some of us may not like the whole idea of this, we have to rethink in our minds, are we really trying to preserve our young people? I see this as a start, and if this bill is passed, we will certainly be watching it and see what happens.

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, I will not take much time, but I would like to point out that the reason for the introduction of this legislation, as the previous speakers have touched on, is that over the years parents have come to me and I have seen situations in which children have become involved with drug or alcohol abuse and the family has no recourse. Many times they resort to the police and they almost ask the police to arrest their children so they can put a stop to their downward spiral to prevent them from killing themselves or injuring someone else. I have seen that over the years and I think it is something we should not allow, to allow our parents in this Commonwealth to just stand by helplessly while they see their children self destruct. This bill certainly is not perfect. It is not all-encompassing, but it does start and at least give an opportunity to parents to provide treatment for their children. It provides all types of safeguards, as many safeguards as we could possibly think of in regard to the procedure. It is very similar to the mental health AFDC procedure. It provides a single county agency setting up standards. It provides for licensing professionals to make sure they are drug or alcohol dependent. It provides for a Department of Health review. It provides for a common pleas court review of the procedures from this administrative procedure and it also provides for regular 30-day reviews of the process. There are many parents' groups that support this. The Pennsylvania Family Advocacy supports it as do MADD and the Federation of Women's Clubs. I also understand that in a little over a year that also Medicaid would kick in here and provide for assistance for those families who may not be able to completely afford all of this. It is a beginning, and I would hope that we would be able to pass this and for the first time in Pennsylvania give parents the right to intervene and to try to help their children in their dependency.

LEGISLATIVE JOURNAL

TUESDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1991

SESSION OF 1991

175TH OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

No. 66

SENATE

TUESDAY, October 22, 1991.

The Senate met at 1:00 p.m., Eastern Daylight Saving Time.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore (Robert C. Jubelirer) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Reverend MICHAEL M. MAZER, Pastor of First Baptist Church, Washington, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

Almighty God, we first and foremost come before You to acknowledge that all good gifts have come from above and have come from Thy mighty hands, and so we gather here in a spirit of thankfulness and of deep appreciation. But we also recognize the matters at hand, and so we would pray to You, O God, that You would keep this moment from being merely a gesture of tradition and custom, but rather that You would make this moment a real experience whereby we may recognize Your presence in this place and thus we are capable of calling upon You for guidance and for help.

Lord, as we have felt Your presence and nearness in the experience of worship, we would ask that we could feel that same presence and nearness in the business of this day. We would pray that what the Senators say and what they do may be in accordance with Thy will for the people of Pennsylvania. We are reminded, O God, that when we stand praying that we should forgive, if we have anything against one another. And so, I pray on behalf of the Senate that You would give them grace to lay aside all bitterness and resentment which they may be nursing in their hearts, lest the acid from such bitterness would eat into their souls, would mar them from peace and would corrode their spirits.

We are also mindful that it is more blessed to give than to receive and so, God, we pray that You would give the Senators grace to think not what they can get out of these meetings and out of committee, but rather what they can give on behalf of the people they represent, that what You would give them would be the ability to have a new spirit, whereby they may enter their work for this day, that You would give them a new vision for the possibilities of Pennsylvania and that You would renew their purpose to doing that which would be pleasing unto Thee, so that You would delight to bless their efforts of this day. We offer this prayer in Your name, the God of all people. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. A quorum of the Senate being present, the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding Session of October 21, 1991.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding Session, when, on motion of Senator LOEPER, further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

HOUSE MESSAGES

HOUSE BILLS FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the House of Representatives presented to the Senate the following bills for concurrence, which were referred to the committees indicated:

October 22, 1991

HB 1443 — Committee on Consumer Protection and Professional Licensure.

HB 1510 and 1663 — Committee on Judiciary.

HOUSE CONCURS IN SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

The Clerk of the House of Representatives informed the Senate that the House has concurred in resolution from the Senate, entitled:

Recess Adjournment.

RESOLUTION INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

The PRESIDENT pro tempore laid before the Senate the following Senate Resolution numbered, entitled and referred as follows, which was read by the Clerk:

October 22, 1991

MEMORIALIZING CONGRESS TO MAINTAIN THE STRENGTH OF THE NATIONAL GUARD

Senators PUNT, O'PAKE, SALVATORE, REIBMAN, SHUMAKER, HELFRICK, CORMAN, MADIGAN, LaVALLE, PORTERFIELD, BELAN, MUSTO, STEWART, LEWIS, AFFLERBACH, STAPLETON, FISHER, HOPPER, BELL, BRIGHTBILL, JUBELIRER, DAWIDA and TILGHMAN offered the following resolution

(Senate Resolution No. 111), which was read and referred to the Committee on Military and Veterans Affairs:

In the Senate, October 22, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Memorializing Congress to maintain the strength of the National Guard.

WHEREAS, The men and women of the Pennsylvania Army and Air National Guard have repeatedly demonstrated the wisdom and success of maintaining a strong, ready National Guard, most recently by the mobilization and deployment of the National Guard in support of Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm; and

WHEREAS, A Department of Defense study has recommended relegating major portions of the National Guard to a reinforcing role with little or no responsibilities in contingency operations; and

WHEREAS, There are enormous pressures being brought to bear on the Congress to concur in proposed drastic reductions in National Guard and Reserve Forces; and

WHEREAS, These proposed cuts would, if approved by Congress, ultimately result in the loss of fully one-third of the authorized strength of the Pennsylvania Army National Guard, including the loss of one full brigade of the 28th Infantry Division and many units of the 213th Area Support Group; and

WHEREAS, Staggering cuts of this magnitude would result in the loss of over 30 million dollars per year in Federal funding of the National Guard, closure of one-third of our armories and layoffs among the National Guard's full-time support force; and

WHEREAS, The massive proposed troop cuts would seriously reduce the National Guard's ability to aid local governments and our citizenry in times of State emergencies; and

WHEREAS, The proposed steep reductions in the end strength of the National Guard ignore the following facts:

(1) The National Guard represents our nation's best and most cost-effective insurance policy in an era of massive international instability and uncertainty.

(2) Cuts in the active components will force quality-trained personnel from their military careers, but there will be no vacancies for them to preserve their military experience and skills in the National Guard and reserves.

(3) Unlike the active components, National Guard forces lack the ability to expand quickly once units are deactivated and community ties severed; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania memorialize the Congress of the United States to support maintaining the end strength of the National Guard and modernization of the National Guard with equipment displaced by active component reductions; and be it further

RESOLVED, That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the presiding officers of each house of Congress and to each member of Congress from Pennsylvania.

SENATE RESOLUTIONS

CONTINUING EXISTENCE OF THE PUBLIC EMPLOYEE RETIREMENT STUDY COMMISSION SCHEDULED FOR TERMINATION UNDER THE SUNSET ACT

The PRESIDENT pro tempore laid before the Senate the following resolution (Sunset Review Resolution No. 1), which was read as follows:

A RESOLUTION

Continuing existence of the Public Employee Retirement Study Commission scheduled for termination under the Sunset Act.

WHEREAS, Section 8 of the act of December 22, 1981 (P.L.508, No.142), known as the Sunset Act, provides that the Public Employee Retirement Study Commission is subject to the review and termination cycle provided in that act; and

WHEREAS, the Public Employee Retirement Study Commission was created by the act of July 9, 1981 (P.L.208, No.66), and therefore terminates on December 31, 1991; and

WHEREAS, Section 7(b) of the Sunset Act provides that, unless legislation is enacted prior to November 1 reestablishing an agency, the presiding officer of each house shall cause to be placed on their respective calendars for the first legislative day in November, the question, in the form of a resolution, of whether an agency scheduled for termination on December 31 of that year shall be continued; and

WHEREAS, Section 7(b) of the Sunset Act further provides that, if a majority of the members elected to each house approve the resolution prior to the scheduled termination date of December 31, the agency shall be continued until the next review and termination cycle scheduled for the agency; and

WHEREAS, Legislation reestablishing the Public Employee Retirement Study Commission has not been enacted prior to November 1, 1991; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Public Employee Retirement Study Commission continue in existence until the next review and termination cycle scheduled for the agency.

CONTINUING EXISTENCE OF THE MUNICIPAL PENSION ADVISORY COMMITTEE SCHEDULED FOR TERMINATION UNDER THE SUNSET ACT

The PRESIDENT pro tempore laid before the Senate the following resolution (Sunset Review Resolution No. 2), which was read as follows:

A RESOLUTION

Continuing existence of the Municipal Pension Advisory Committee scheduled for termination under the Sunset Act.

WHEREAS, Section 8 of the act of December 22, 1981 (P.L.508, No.142), known as the Sunset Act, provides that the Municipal Pension Advisory Committee is subject to the review and termination cycle provided in that act; and

WHEREAS, The Municipal Pension Advisory Committee was created by the act of July 9, 1981 (P.L.208, No.66), and therefore terminates on December 31, 1991; and

WHEREAS, Section 7(b) of the Sunset Act provides that, unless legislation is enacted prior to November 1 reestablishing an agency, the presiding officer of each house shall cause to be placed on their respective calendars for the first legislative day in November, the question, in the form of a resolution, of whether an agency scheduled for termination on December 31 of that year shall be continued; and

WHEREAS, Section 7(b) of the Sunset Act further provides that, if a majority of the members elected to each house approve the resolution prior to the scheduled termination date of December 31, the agency shall be continued until the next review and termination cycle scheduled for the agency; and

WHEREAS, Legislation reestablishing the Municipal Pension Advisory Committee has not been enacted prior to November 1, 1991; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Municipal Pension Advisory Committee continue in existence until the next review and termination cycle scheduled for the agency.

CONTINUING EXISTENCE OF THE PENNSYLVANIA ADVISORY COUNCIL ON

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 98, CALLED UP

Senator LOEPER, without objection, called up from page 3 of the Calendar, Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 98, entitled:

A Concurrent Resolution memorializing Congress to reject a proposed rule which would prohibit states from using a pooling mechanism for Medicaid funding.

On the question,

Will the Senate adopt the resolution?

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO. 98, ADOPTED

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do adopt Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 98.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Senator O'PAKE. Mr. President, very briefly, this resolution speaks for itself but, basically, what it does is ask Congress to stop the Health Care Finance Agency in Washington from preventing Pennsylvania from using a pooling device to draw down federal funding for our Medicaid programs. As we know, much of the problems created for state governments these days are a result of federal action or inaction. Congress has very generously increased the eligibility for Medicaid programs but has not provided the financing for the states to pay for that care. Several states, including Pennsylvania, have entered into a pooling arrangement whereby hospitals pay to the state a "tax" and then the state has used that to draw down federal funding. Last year an additional $376 million in federal funding for hospital care was brought to Pennsylvania as a result of our pooling law. Now, however, HCFA, the Health Care Finance Agency, is saying that this type of arrangement will not be condoned in Washington and, as a result, we are told by the Department of Public Welfare that our state's $70 million pool for nursing home care, which would create a federal match of $93 million a year from the Medicaid fund to nursing home care, is in jeopardy. We are told that unless HCFA is reversed by Congress, this could cost Pennsylvania about a billion dollars over the next two to three years. Without this pooling, the state may have no choice but to cut some basic health services to the poor in order to balance the books on Medicaid. Those services most vulnerable include outpatient surgery, prescription drugs, medical supplies, dental, podiatric, chiropractic and hospice care, midwife and birthing center services, outpatient psychiatric care and drug and alcohol rehabilitation. What we are doing in adopting this resolution, Mr. President, is asking our congressional delegation to do what is necessary to prevent the Health Care Finance Agency's plan from taking effect. If we are not successful, we are going to face another possible tax increase or a substantial cutback in services available to our needy in Pennsylvania.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The motion was agreed to and the resolution was adopted.

Ordered, That the Secretary of the Senate present the same to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

SENATE CONCURRENT REGULATORY REVIEW RESOLUTION NO. 2, CALLED UP

Senator LOEPER, without objection, called up from page 3 of the Calendar, Senate Concurrent Regulatory Review Resolution No. 2, entitled:

Disapproving Environmental Quality Board regulations controlling volatile organic compound emissions from gasoline dispensing facilities

On the question,

Will the Senate adopt the resolution?

SENATE CONCURRENT REGULATORY REVIEW RESOLUTION NO. 2, ADOPTED

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do adopt Senate Concurrent Regulatory Review Resolution No. 2.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—45

Afflerbach	Fumo	Lincoln	Rhoades

SENATE RESOLUTION

RECOGNIZING THE STATE EMPLOYEES COMBINED APPEAL

Senators BORTNER, SHUMAKER, JONES, JUBELIRER, CORMAN, TILGHMAN, STAPLETON, HELFRICK, SCHWARTZ, REIBMAN, LaVALLE and BELAN offered the following resolution (Senate Resolution No. 112), which was read as follows:

In the Senate, October 22, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Recognizing the State Employees Combined Appeal (SECA).

WHEREAS, The State Employees Combined Appeal (SECA) is an effective and accountable system for State employees to support a variety of human services which improve the quality of life for millions of citizens in need; and

WHEREAS, SECA supports over 2,500 human service programs through the International Service Agencies, National Health Agencies, The United Negro College Fund, The Pennsylvania United Way, Women's Way of Pennsylvania, National United Service Agencies, the American Cancer Society, The Black United Fund of Pennsylvania, Independent Charities of America and The Pennsylvania Coalition Against Domestic Violence; and

WHEREAS, These agencies and programs help communities meet critical health and human care needs such as drug and alcohol abuse, child abuse, disease research, worldwide poverty and education for the needy; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania salute the State Employees Combined Appeal for encouraging State employees to participate in the cooperative mission of caring for others in our communities, our Commonwealth, our nation and our world; and be it further

RESOLVED, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted to SECA, 17 South Market Square, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, 17102.

Senator BORTNER asked and obtained unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of this resolution.

On the question,

Will the Senate adopt the resolution?

SENATE RESOLUTION NO. 112, ADOPTED

Senator BORTNER. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do adopt Senate Resolution No. 112.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Senator BORTNER. Mr. President, my friend and colleague, Senator Shumaker, is joining me along with other Members in offering this resolution on the floor today. SECA has long been recognized by citizens of this Commonwealth as an effective and accountable system for state employees to support over 2,500 human services programs. SECA supports programs through organizations such as the International Service Agency, National Health Agency, the United Negro College Fund, the Pennsylvania United Way, Women's Way of Pennsylvania, National United Service Agency and the American Cancer Society. I am personally most familiar with the work of United Way since I serve as a member of the Board of Directors of the United Way of York County. These programs help communities throughout Pennsylvania in a variety of ways by addressing many human needs such as drug and alcohol abuse, child abuse, disease research, worldwide poverty and education. What is especially appealing in the SECA campaign is the fact that thousands of state employees all across this state have contributed for many years toward this campaign to help their own communities meet critical health and human care needs. I commend our state employees for their past participation in SECA and I urge their continued support, and I would like to particularly urge all Members of the Senate and their staffs to support this effort to help those less fortunate to the best of their ability.

Senator SHUMAKER. Mr. President, I am very pleased to join with my colleague, Senator Bortner, from York County in sponsoring this resolution which recognizes the important efforts of the State Employees Combined Appeal. As a Senator who represents Pennsylvania's capital city, quite a few of my constituents are employed by the Commonwealth. Through the State Employees Combined Appeal, or SECA, state workers show their genuine concern for the less fortunate among us. Through their generosity over the years, state employees have offered a helping hand to those in need all over Pennsylvania. So today we honor and thank those who have contributed to this worthwhile cause in the past, and we express the Senate's encouragement to all who contribute what they can this year. I am proud to represent the state capital, proud of the men and women who work for our Commonwealth and proud of the fine work that the State Employees Combined Appeal does throughout Pennsylvania.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The motion was agreed to and the resolution was adopted.

RECESS

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, at this time I would ask for a brief recess of the Senate for purposes of a meeting of the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations to be followed by a meeting of the Committee on Finance.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Loeper requests a brief recess of the Senate for purposes of a meeting of the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations to be followed by a meeting of the Committee on Finance. Would the Members of the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations report immediately to the Rules room at the rear of the Chamber, and would the Members of the Committee on Finance stand by for a meeting in the same aforementioned cubicle. For those purposes, the Senate will stand in recess.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed, the Senate will be in order.

SENATE RESOLUTION

RECOGNIZING THE MONTH OF OCTOBER AS "BREAST CANCER AWARENESS MONTH"

Senators SCHWARTZ, AFFLERBACH, LaVALLE, REIBMAN, STAPLETON, JONES, O'PAKE, MUSTO, STOUT, LEWIS and PORTERFIELD offered the following resolution (Senate Resolution No. 113), which was read, considered and adopted:

In the Senate, October 22, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Recognizing the month of October as "Breast Cancer Awareness Month."

WHEREAS, The American Cancer Society has designated the month of October as Breast Cancer Awareness Month; and

WHEREAS, Breast cancer is the most common cancer and the second leading cause of cancer deaths in the United States; and

WHEREAS, It is estimated that there will be 10,300 new cases of breast cancer in this Commonwealth in 1991 and 2,600 breast cancer deaths; and

WHEREAS, One of every ten women can expect to develop breast cancer in her lifetime; and

WHEREAS, Early detection of breast cancer is the most effective means to reduce breast cancer mortality; and

WHEREAS, Periodic screening mammography, in conjunction with good health care and monthly self-examination, can reduce a woman's risk of dying from breast cancer by 30%; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Senate acknowledge the month of October as "Breast Cancer Awareness Month" and urge all citizens and health care professionals to participate in community activities to expand public education on the benefit of early detection and treatment of breast cancer and to work to improve availability and access to mammography services.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Senator BELAN. Mr. President, I was prepared to offer today an amendment to Senate Bill No. 221. Unfortunately, the bill was marked over for the day. I did, however, Mr. President, want to take just a moment to explain a little bit about my amendment and ask that strong consideration be given to moving this proposal once we return from the election recess.

Under my proposal, Mr. President, grants would be made by the Department of Commerce to municipalities, municipal or local authorities, nonprofit economic development agencies or similar agencies to assess the degree of hazardous waste contamination at abandoned industrial sites. Creating jobs at abandoned industrial sites is one of the greatest challenges, Mr. President, which we face in the Mon Valley and western Pennsylvania, as you well know. We cannot simply continue looking at undeveloped property as the site for future development. We need to do something to attract businesses back to develop abandoned industrial sites, and we need to find a way to leverage private investment and create opportunities in industrial areas now idle. This is especially a problem in many towns where heavy manufacturing facilities have gone out of business, have left plants vacant, rotting and perhaps contaminated with hazardous waste. The development officials in the Mon Valley have worked with me in developing this proposal because it is a problem which they confront every day in their efforts to bring business and industry into the Mon Valley and western Pennsylvania. They have told me, Mr. President, time and time again, that one of the first questions which developers ask when they are visiting a site is, what is the degree of hazardous waste contamination and what is the cost of the cleanup? In these instances, the developer is not going to front the cost of the assessment and most local development agencies cannot afford to complete the study. A mechanism, Mr. President, is needed to enable local development agencies to find out the level of the contamination and have that information available, especially if a site is waste free and ready for development.

Under my amendment, Mr. President, they would have this tool at their disposal to begin the process of redeveloping the sites and put people back to work. We need to recycle industrial property. We need to bring these facilities back into production. The revitalization program which I am sponsoring would not cost the taxpayers of this Commonwealth one cent. The program would be entirely funded from the proceeds of a ten percent surcharge on the violators of our waste disposal laws. My proposal, Mr. President, would take the responsibility for determining the level of hazardous waste at industrial sites from the backs of the taxpayers of this Commonwealth and put it where it belongs, on the environmental outlaws, the ones who left the problems behind.

I would hope, Mr. President, that in the very near future this Senate would take a hard look at this issue and my proposal to help meet this very apparent need. I stand ready and willing to move forward on this issue so that we can start bringing these sites back into production and get people back to work.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, this topic that now has been opened by Senator Belan for discussion on the floor of the Senate would have been much more appropriately discussed if we had the opportunity either yesterday or today to consider in final passage or at least to consider on the floor of this Senate a vehicle in which we could have offered Senator Belan's amendment to, and that vehicle, Mr. President, in this particular case, would have been Senate Bill No. 221, which is a bill that amends the Administrative Code. Mr. President, there are parts of Senate Bill No. 221 which we feel very strongly about and endorse wholeheartedly, and the only reason why we have had to take the extraneous approach of trying to offer a substantive piece of legislation in amended form into a bill, Mr. President, is because, quite simply stated, any time the Members on this side of the aisle come up with a program such as the one that has been offered and introduced back in April by Senator Belan that establishes an abandoned industrial site environmental assessment program, and any time the Democratic Members come up with a program that is substantive in nature, the committee in which the bill is referred to, that particular proposal will never see the light of day under a Democrat sponsorship. Maybe, Mr. President, we could use or accept the argument that the proposal was introduced by Senator Belan in April and it was referred to the Committee on Community and Economic Development on April 25, 1991, and because of the tremendous amount of work that was done in this Body to bring about a budget and a subsequent revenue raise to pay for that budget, which took a lot of time, and then we recessed for the summer, I guess, perhaps, we could have used that as some reasoning that the bill had not been considered. Then if you will follow it a bit further, Mr. President, and you say, well, on top of all of this was reapportionment, and the Members of the General Assembly are faced with the very difficult task once every ten years with regard to reapportioning the General Assembly based on the shifting of populace patterns in Pennsylvania, I think if that was given to us as a reason why the bill could not be considered in the appropriate committee, I think that also would be understandable. But, Mr. President, the part I cannot understand is this, as we stand here before you today we are just several weeks away from a very important election, and I guess every election in this free democracy of ours is very important, but I think that this particular election this year, Mr. President, is probably as important an election facing the people of Pennsylvania that we have faced in many years because we have the opportunity of electing a member or a resident, a constituent, a citizen, if you will, of Pennsylvania to serve the unexpired term of a man who was considered a legend in Washington and that is to follow the late John Heinz to finish out his term. We all know that currently the gentleman who has been appointed to that position, Harris Wofford, at least in my opinion, has done an excellent job over the several months that he has been there, but we are now going to be confronted with the election. And it would have been fine, Mr. President, not considering this proposal, at least I think in principle it would have been fine for another several weeks, if it had not been brought into the campaign through some campaign advertising. Mr. President, on September 23rd on a news release that is entitled "Thornburgh for the Senate," it was a release that was put out from the Thornburgh for Senate Committee, and the release talks about Thornburgh calls for industrial renaissance initiative to create jobs at abandoned industrial sites. Now to me that is quite ironic that just the week before that a Republican staff member was in to the Democratic Members of the Senate, at least one Member, asking for information with regard to the proposal that was introduced back in April on the abandoned industrial sites by Senator Belan. We were kind of happy about that because we figured that the Senate of Pennsylvania, coming through the committee in which the bill was referred, would consider Senator Belan's proposal. Little did we realize at that time, Mr. President, that we were involved in plagiarism, if you will. And that is the fact that a Republican candidate for the United States Senate saw fit to go into the Pennsylvania State Senate to take a proposal that was introduced by a Democratic Member of the Senate from that great County of Allegheny—it happens to be the same county from which the Republican candidate for the United States Senate is from—and take his proposal, adds a $100 million appropriation from the federal government—and we all know what types of fiscal straits and the types of fiscal problems the federal government has in view of the recession that we are in and the tremendous deficit spending that President Bush has been responsible for in Washington—and to take his proposal and to go ahead and use it as a campaign ad on television. Maybe that in itself, Mr. President, would not be all that bad. After all, it is politics, and after all, after election day on November 5th people tend to forget about what has taken place on television advertising, but, Mr. President, it has been done by the same individual who had the opportunity of serving for eight years as the Governor of Pennsylvania. It has been done by the same individual who had the opportunity of serving for more than three years as the Attorney General of the United States under two Presidents. And if my memory does not fail me, I believe that he was one of those who was responsible for the domestic agenda as advocated by President Bush, or should I say the lack of domestic agenda that has come from the White House in Washington. And, Mr. President, if it were not for the fact that this same individual presided over the demise, if you will, the rusting, if you will, the doing away, if you will, of the steel industry in western Pennsylvania when he was Governor, perhaps I could understand that. But, Mr. President, when I look at the type of advertising that is on television, I see the way the gentleman has now come into the Democratic Senate and has taken our idea, the idea of Senator Belan, the idea that has been languishing in a Republican committee since April, some five months ago, and he has taken that as his own agenda and his own initiative in political campaigns, and I read and I see more of his advertising where he is now and he has taken credit for a PACE Program with the lottery, a program that the gentleman opposed. I see that he talks about the fact that when he left as Governor of Pennsylvania that we had a surplus of somewhere around $300 million, but the thing that he does not tell people is that he raided the Lottery Fund to the tune of some $600 million while he was Governor of Pennsylvania which, basically, would have left us, when he left office, with a deficit of approximately 300 million bucks. I guess, Mr. President, that I can kind of understand the nature of the campaign and the willingness at any extent that the Republican Party has in this country to go ahead and to try to elect a Republican from Pennsylvania to serve the remaining term of Senator John Heinz. So I am not surprised that Senate Bill No. 221 was put over yesterday because we shared with my Republican colleagues that we would be offering this amendment that Senator Belan introduced in bill form some five months ago as an amendment to that proposal so that we could put the 26 Members of the state Senate who have been elected as Republicans in a position to go ahead and to support their candidate for the United States Senate, to support their Governor when he served as Governor of Pennsylvania and to support their Attorney General when he served as Attorney General in the United States. We gave them that opportunity by offering the amendment and they chose not to do that. So we on this side of the aisle, Mr. President, think that it is extremely important that we at least make that public.

We think it is important that we remind people once again that the individual who presided over the demise of the steel industry in his home county of Allegheny County and the surrounding counties in southwestern Pennsylvania, the same individual who has taken credit for a PACE Program that he knows in his own heart that he opposed, and it is just so unfortunate the way the twist of fate is that Jim Lloyd was taken from us at such a young age in life because I can only see if Senator Lloyd was here with us today how he would be absolutely livid about the fact that the candidate for the United States Senate tries to take credit for something that he opposed. So I am not really surprised that the Republican Party in the Senate saw fit, for whatever reason, to not only put the bill over yesterday but to put the bill over today. I can only conclude, Mr. President, that if this was done by a Republican that perhaps the bill would have been reported out of committee prior to this particular time or prior to the September 23rd news release by candidate Dick Thornburgh, and I can only conclude, Mr. President, by the lack of action on the floor of the Senate that the Republican Members of the Senate do not support Dick Thornburgh in his position to try to go ahead and to bring about some industrial renaissance, as he says, to the abandoned industrial sites, the same proposal that has been, as we said, introduced and supported in this Body by Senator Belan. I would hope, Mr. President, that we have seen enough of the political rhetoric and we have heard enough of it on TV. I would hope that the Republican Members of the Senate and the chairman of the committee, Senator Shaffer, would hold a committee meeting as soon as we come back following our election recess and would consider this proposal under his sponsorship, if he wants to. We have no pride of authorship on this side of the aisle because I realize full well over a ten-year period of time that if we had that type of pride of authorship, very few pieces of legislation that we introduced would pass. But I think it is just unfortunate, Mr. President, that a candidate for the United States Senate would have to steal an idea of the Democratic Members of the Senate of Pennsylvania and say that it is his own in his political advertising on television by his paid political hands, and then to go ahead and ask the Republican Members of the Senate, by our people, to consider that proposal on this floor in an amended form, and when they have the opportunity to support their candidate, they choose, Mr. President, instead to put the bill over. I would only have to think of what will happen if, unfortunately, this gentleman is elected to the United States Senate when we deal with such very serious problems in Pennsylvania in dealing with industrial development.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, it was my intent originally to move that the Senate adjourn. However, I think in light of Senator Belan's comments and certainly those of the Minority Leader who is much more interested in political rhetoric than he is in substance, which is tradition, I guess, on that side of the aisle, that once again we see ourselves like two weeks from an election and we are trying to address issues on this Senate floor that the gentleman believes are very important and vital to those in Pennsylvania, which we all agree that they are. I think that the gentleman, when he talks about the timetable this year and how, unfortunately, because of the budget debacle of this summer, the raising of taxes in Pennsylvania and how that has delayed the legislative agenda of the General Assembly, he is absolutely correct because during the Dick Thornburgh years and administrations we never had a debacle like we faced this past summer. We never had the huge budget deficits. We never had the highest tax increase in history that we experienced this year, and that certainly did take some time. When we talk about industry and jobs in Pennsylvania and job creation, I think all we have to do, Mr. President, is to look at the Thornburgh record. Look at the innovative programs such as the Ben Franklin Partnership, programs that created jobs in this state, not lose them, and certainly with the tax package that was passed this past summer, jobs are going to migrate from Pennsylvania, and I think, Mr. President, the people of Pennsylvania will judge who is best suited to represent this state in Washington.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I would just like the record to show also, if memory serves me correctly, that in the early 1980s not only did Dick Thornburgh have a substantial increase in taxes of which he requested, the Senate and the House of Representatives went ahead and we adjourned—we adjourned in April—after a phoney budget that was presented by Dick Thornburgh was passed, and then we had to come back in November after election to go ahead and to increase taxes substantially.

I have seen once again the advertising that talks about how the Democratic Members of the General Assembly and the Democratic Governor here in Harrisburg have increased taxes. I guess, unfortunately, Dick Thornburgh does not recall the fact that he presided not only over the demise and the rusting of the steel industry in western Pennsylvania, but he also presided over a major tax increase in Pennsylvania back in 1983, and it was the Casey Administration that on some 16 different occasions, with 24 reductions in taxes, including the largest reduction in taxes ever for businesses in Pennsylvania, when we went ahead and we paid off the Unemployment Compensation Fund account in Washington and gave business the largest reduction ever. Perhaps Dick Thornburgh does not remember those things, but then again, after watching and listening to the type of campaign that he has been running, after listening to his trying to take credit for a program that he opposed, the PACE program, and the way he went in and the way he raided the Lottery Fund, and now the way he is taking Senator Belan's idea with regard to abandoned industrial sites and has taken his idea and he is using it as his own in TV advertising, I am not surprised, Mr. President, that the Majority Leader of the Senate also would forget those things.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, regrettably, I was not here when this debate started. I was in my office and then started to listen to it, and I felt compelled to come back to the floor to discuss the issue of slick Dick Thornburgh. I do not know why we are all surprised. Dick Thornburgh has always been a liar. He stole money from the Lottery Fund. It was not until he gained control of both the House and the Senate that the first dollar bill came out of the Lottery Fund as a raid to help him balance his budget. Mr. President, anybody can balance the budget by stealing money from the Lottery Fund. That does not require rocket scientists. In fact, it requires just the type of personality that slick Dick has. He will do anything, anything to further his own personal political agenda, the abuses in the Justice Department, be it persecutions, be it lies, anything, so I do not know why we are surprised. It fits his modus operandi. Mr. President, I was appalled when I first saw the ads of slick Dick taking credit for the Lottery Fund back when we first implemented the PACE Program. He added insult to injury. Not only did he fight the PACE Program, not only did he blackmail this General Assembly into placing another $100 million of General Fund money on the Lottery Fund's back in order to get that program for senior citizens, but to add insult to that injury, he had the unmitigated gall to take more money from the senior citizen Lottery Fund to put that smiling boob face of his on television to lie to people and say, aren't I wonderful? I did the PACE program. Mr. President, it is despicable and, regrettably, only in Pennsylvania do we have such sleaze as Governors and candidates. No other state has the audacity to do that kind of nonsense, not even in New Orleans where David Duke, the Republican candidate, has been known for a lot of sleaziness. Dick Thornburgh takes the cake. Mr. President, I watched him on the television debate when he was shocked and horrified that Senator Wofford cleaned his clock. I watched his comments afterwards, that it was obvious that somebody coached him or prepped him. Of course, if you are a U.S. Senator you should be prepared, and if you want to be a U.S. Senator, you should care enough to get prepared yourself. But I watched him lie on that program as well, Mr. President, and I recognize now as a lawyer I take my future into my hands. But I watched him say that every federal judge that his Justice Department recommended was approved by the American Bar Association. Another lie, Mr. President. Do you know which federal judge was never approved because it had to get done "quickly" because there was a crisis in the courts? Jay Waldman. Jay Waldman, his lackey who always stood at his side, who went down and got paid off by a law firm in Philadelphia after clean Jay Waldman and slick Dick gave that firm millions of dollars in legal fees. He went down there to take a cushy job for a year or so until slick Dick had the chance to put his buddy in the judiciary. There was no ABA approval. It just sailed through like a rocket ship. This person who calls himself our Attorney General, who is supposed to be beyond politics, is the sleaziest of all. He let the BCCI scandal fester. We know that. I do not honestly know what the motive was, but I am sure he had a friend somewhere. He made the slogan "You have a friend in Pennsylvania" an abomination because it meant if you have a friend who is a Pennsylvanian and is an Attorney General, you do not have to worry about the law. We will look the other way. Mr. President, I watched him in western Pennsylvania when he started his sleazy career as a U.S. Attorney. I watched him indict a Democratic politician for selling tickets to a dinner and then I watched him wait until the statute of limitations expired on the Republican who did the same thing, only to come out and say, gee, it is a shame we did not get to it in time. He is scum of the earth, Mr. President. It is a disgrace that we are wasting our time talking about his horrendous career here which was a lie from day one. He stole from the senior citizens, walked out the door and claimed a surplus on their backs. He left us with the problems. Yes, and he left my friends in the Majority who had to put up the votes last time to help us solve that problem. It comes from Dick Thornburgh's Administration. We started to pay back the monies that he stole from the Lottery Fund. I said it the day it started when he stole it, but nobody wanted to listen. Mr. President, Dick Thornburgh does not deserve to be a page in the U.S. Senate, let alone disgrace that Body with his presence. I would hope to God that the citizens of Pennsylvania step up to the plate and do the right thing and send slick Dick back to wherever he can rip somebody off for some more money. Maybe he will go back to the law firm which is paying him now. Who knows what other deals he has lurking out there in the wilderness and the depths of the bowels of the Justice Department. Only he and his sleazy friends know for sure, Mr. President. So let us not get bent out of shape. We all know what happens. The Majority Leader knows what happens. He was here. And I recognize he has a partisan duty to defend his candidate, but come on, let us get with it. For him to put that senior citizen on television from Hershey, Pennsylvania, to talk about the things he did for senior citizens, it is a lie, and if there is anything the American public is turned off by more than anything else, it is the dishonesty in politics. We in this Chamber have stood up and given people the bad news—it was not easy when we voted $3 billion in taxes, but we did it. We did not lie about it. We stood up and we did it. Dick Thornburgh is still lying today. God forbid what kind of U.S. Senator he will ever be if he ever got there. One of the biggest problems in America today has been the transference of wealth from the middle class to the upper class. We read it now in the Inquirer, and I want to commend Barlett and Steele for the phenomenal reporting that they have started on Sunday that continues of what happened during the Reagan years. Remember trickle-down economy? Dick Thornburgh bought into that nonsense, trickle-down economy.

We see today the effects of trickle-down economy. A country that is in the deepest recession it has known, in fact, it is probably in a depression. More bankruptcies since the depression, people out of work not understanding what is going on. And granted, Mr. President, in today's times it is no different than it was in the days of Thomas Jefferson, when he said for a democracy to work it requires an educated electorate. The problem is, Mr. President, that the economic issues of today are too complicated and the public has been conned by Ronald Reagan's let me cut your taxes and I will still spend money on B1 bombers and whatever else you want. We will go and invade Grenada for kicks. We will show what tough guys we are. We will go to Kuwait. We are a tough country. Mr. President, the fact of the economics is that fully one fourth of every dollar America pays in taxes goes to pay off the interest on the national debt. How is this country ever to get ahead? I will be the first to say, Mr. President, that my colleagues in the U.S. Senate and the House who are Democrats ran away too. They are just as guilty for buying into the Reagan nonsense because it looked good. But there was one candidate who had the courage to say what has to be done. He got beaten badly at the polls. Walter Mondale came up and talked about a tax increase and they stoned him. So what did we do. We did it the easy way, we allowed the deficit to continue and continue and continue. And who suffers? Our states suffer. Our local government suffers. Our internal policy of America suffers. And when we speak about internal policy, Dick Thornburgh takes credit for being the top guy of the President's Internal Advisory Council or whatever bureaucracy they call it down there. It is the man in charge of the agenda. I do not have to ask who did what, because we can go back and forth and say that, but what I ask the people of Pennsylvania is the same old question that Ronald Reagan used to ask—Are you better off today than you were four years ago? Are you better off today than you were twelve years ago? It is a Republican Administration that made you the way you are, and Dick Thornburgh now had the audacity to come back to this Commonwealth and ask the good people of this state to send him back to Washington so he can continue to be part of the problem. Mr. President, it was not my intent to make a strictly partisan speech today, but I will get into some politics. Harris Wofford at least had the courage—because he is truly an outsider—to stand up to his own colleagues, Democrat or Republican alike, and say no more health benefits for us until we enact the same things for the general populace. No other Senator did that, Democrat or Republican. And maybe, Mr. President, it is time for a party of the outside because our institutions in Washington have failed us. We here in this General Assembly, I think, have been somewhat responsive to our people, but in Congress they go on and on and on on their own. This is not the time to send back slick Dick, who is part of the problem, back to perpetuate the problem for generations to come. It is time for a change. I would hope the people of Pennsylvania would forget the promises, just see through the integrity issue of who is the liar, who is the one not only lying, but lying about things that he never did for poor people, for senior citizens, trying to come back and con those people who are the least in society to be able to take care of themselves. That is unbelievably unconscionable, and only one person who I know of would have the guts to do a bold faced lie like that—slick Dick Thornburgh. God help us if he wins this election.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, obviously the party on the other side of the aisle must feel some desperation when we draw the second half of the dynamic duo from his office to get on the floor to make a purely partisan speech. It is very obvious there is desperation on the other side as November 5th looms. I think, Mr. President, that when the gentleman from Philadelphia referred to the Democratic candidate as an outsider, I guess that one could interpret that, particularly when the Governor of this state went all the way to Detroit to try and recruit a candidate to fill that vacancy and finally ended up with this gentleman as his appointment, but, yet, in debate—and I think the gentleman referred to the debate—the incumbent called Pennsylvania the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, so I guess you could interpret that maybe, in fact, he was an outsider. I think also, Mr. President, we have heard from the two previous speakers about the raid on the Lottery Fund. You know we have heard that kind of debate on this floor many times before, and I think that maybe once before even I entered into the record—and I intend to do so again today—just some information to set the record straight. I think, Mr. President, if we look back to 1983, we saw that during the deliberations in 1983 on the budget and supplemental budget that there was a $100 million transfer for long-term care and also a $100 million appropriation from the Lottery Fund set aside for a program of paid prescriptions and medically related reimbursements. It is interesting, Mr. President, to listen to the previous speakers because on July 19th of that year, 1983, the Senate voted by a vote of 38-12 to make those transfers. I think it is very interesting to note that among those who are still here that voted for that transfer of money from the Lottery Fund includes Senator Fumo, Senator Mellow and also now Lieutenant Governor, Senator Singel who voted for those transfers of Lottery Fund money. I think, Mr. President, finally, that November 5th is approaching, the people of Pennsylvania are going to have to make the decision as to who they want as their Senator. I think that also when we take a look at the credibility of the people of Pennsylvania, the question is going to be, which Governor of Pennsylvania lied to the people, and I think that decision will be made clear, quite frankly, by the people on November 5th.

Just as a footnote, Mr. President, because I see the gentleman from Philadelphia getting up to speak at his mike, when we said that the gentleman who spoke about the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, that was Fred Friendly who talked about the Commonwealth of Massachusetts and not the incumbent, Harris Wofford.

The PRESIDENT. Prior to recognizing further speakers, even though there is a great deal of latitude in Petitions and Remonstrances, it is somewhat unseemly to use terms like "liars" and things like that. The Chair would simply urge all Members of the Senate to observe the usual standards of decorum in this exchange.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, Senator Loeper started out by using the word "desperation," and he said that we are desperate as November 5th approaches. I am not right and real certain that that is the proper word, Mr. President. I think maybe the word is "frustration" as opposed to "desperation," and I think it is frustration because of the truth, and the truth, pure and simply, is not being stated. It was not stated when Senator Loeper said that—and he then corrected himself—the incumbent, appointed United States Senator Harris Wofford, referred to Pennsylvania as the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. Senator Loeper then correctly made the proper notification that it was Fred Friendly who did that, the moderator of the debate. But Senator Loeper, either out of desperation, frustration or something else—and I would never say that Senator Loeper would try to mislead us purposely because I do not believe at the time he was a Member of the Republican leadership. I know he was not the Republican leader at the time, if memory would serve us correctly, and I do not think that Senator Loeper or any of his Republican colleagues could deny this—is that we were forced into a deal, if you will, and, of course, politicians, by many standards, are not supposed to deal, but politics is the art of compromise, and if you want to use the word "deal" and/or "compromise," I guess possibly you could, but with Dick Thornburgh then it was a deal and the deal was this: that you either approve my transfer of money from the lottery to the General Fund or I will not go along with you and approve a program that I have scuttled for the past year and a half, or today better known as the PACE Program. And what used to offend me, as it was stated by Senator Fumo, Mr. President, is when I would see tricky Dick, as I like to call him, standing in a pharmacy and it was not done as a paid political ad. It was done in another way, paid for by the Department of Commerce, when he would state, isn't it nice. He would have his senior citizens stating, isn't that Dick Thornburgh who gave us the PACE Program? How intellectually dishonest can you be to the people of Pennsylvania? So, no, Senator, it is not desperation because of the election because I think people can see right through this election. There is no question in my mind that the momentum has changed. In fact, I do not think Dick Thornburgh ever had the momentum of the people in Pennsylvania, and I think if your caucus could be polled privately, he would not have been your first, second or third choice to be your candidate for the United States Senate because most of your people privately complain like the dickens about Dick Thornburgh, the guy who they really do not care for. So, Mr. President, I really think we are dealing with some frustration here, frustration because we cannot get our legislative agenda considered by the Republican dominated committees here in the state Senate, frustration because the former governor of Pennsylvania, the former United States Attorney General for this great country of ours, has been trying to badly mislead the public with regard to the lottery program and with regard to the financial condition of Pennsylvania when he was governor, because not once has he mentioned that he was responsible for a major tax increase in Pennsylvania. Not once, Mr. President, has he mentioned the fact that he was not supportive of the PACE Program as we know it today. Not once did he mention, Mr. President, the fact that he raided the lottery on not one occasion but a number of occasions to go ahead and to balance his budget. Now he wants the people of Pennsylvania to say to him, Governor Thornburgh, Attorney General Thornburgh or maybe just Mr. Thornburgh, we support you for the office of the United States Senate. I really, Mr. President, do not believe that is going to happen. I very strongly feel that after having watched a tape of the debate, Dick Thornburgh got his clock cleaned last Friday, and he is going to get his clock cleaned again on November 5th.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I recognize the extremely heavy burden that the Majority Leader was having to defend slick Dick but, Mr. President, I say clearly in my remarks that, yes, we voted for the $100 million extra deal because it was extorted from us. I said clearly in my remarks that we were blackmailed. I do not know of a nicer word for that. We were blackmailed by their administration. Senator Jim Lloyd who was one of our chief negotiators, along with the now Lieutenant Governor, came back to our caucus and was told that unless we allowed slick Dick to move another $100 million over to the Lottery Fund in General Fund expenses, that we could not pass the PACE Program. At the time, Mr. President, the PACE Program cost $100 million, so slick Dick thought it was a fair exchange. I will give you $100 million for senior citizens. You give me $100 million so I can run around the state and say I am a responsible manager and lie some more. I said that in my remarks. I did not hide from the fact that I voted for that. Does that mean if I am walking down the street and a guy puts a gun to my head and says give me all the money in your pocket that I gave it to him willingly? It was outright extortion and blackmail. Slick Dick knows it and everybody here knows it. I wish to God we had a felony prosecution in this state for blatant lies in political advertising. Then we could put slick Dick in the can. He would love it. We can laugh and laugh and laugh, but the fact is that everyone takes certain liberties with their campaigns, but no one has ever, in the history of the Commonwealth to date and since, taken the blatant, not liberties, but has made the blatant misstatements of fact that slick Dick has. I would say they were lies, Mr. President, but I do not want to be admonished.

Mr. President, we would like to see maybe some additional debates, but slick Dick runs away from that. And as far as Fred Friendly, that friendly guy who slick Dick was calling Fred, Fred, Fred until he got caught and then called him Mr. Friendly, and slick Dick got admonished for that. As far as he is concerned, that was not the agenda that we wanted. The Democrats wanted a full and open debate. It was slick Dick who ran away like a little coward from a debate and decided to set up this little discussion and now that he got his clock cleaned on that, he does not even want to discuss any more. I do not blame him. If I were going to be exposed as the prevaricator—that is a better word than liar—that he is, I do not think I would want to debate either, Mr. President. And as far as people making remarks, it was one of slick Dick's stooges who said Pennsylvania was a sorry-assed state. It was not anybody else but slick Dick's people who said that Pennsylvania was a sorry-assed state. I would hope that that prevaricator of prevaricators would at least have the human decency not to refer to his own state or have his staff refer to his own state as a sorry-assed state. I am proud of this state, as I think we all are. Slick Dick ought to just go back down on the Potomac and stay where he belongs, as a lobbyist probably. I am sure that the oil company that he cut the deal on in Alaska will give him a fat fee. I am sure BCCI will put him on their payroll, or maybe some of the other creeps that he has let go will find a deal for him. Maybe the law firm that is paying him now for doing no work will find a nice contract for him. I am sure he can go see his friend George Bush and cut a few tax deals for some friends. That is what he belongs doing, hanging out with the sleazes of the world. It is time for slick Dick to get lost. As far as desperation, Mr. President, I am desperate for the truth, that is true. I do not think the Wofford campaign is desperate because look at the polls. If anybody is desperate, it is slick Dick and the rest of the clowns around him. If he were not desperate he would say, let us debate, but not him. He is going to go hide somewhere, shake down some people and put on some more untruths on television. He does not want to come out in public and I do not blame him. If he came out in our area he probably would get stoned by the senior citizens. I will now invite him to come to South Philadelphia to the Marconi Senior Citizens at Broad and Oregon and let him go tell them what he did for them. If he has the guts to do it, I will gladly walk in the door with him, but he will not do that. He does not want to go anywhere where someone is going to discuss an issue with him that he might not like. He has lived in an ivory tower all of his life, good old slick Dick, and he has the audacity to put his credentials before the people of Pennsylvania to ask to be United States Senator and go down and defile that body. He should go down to New Orleans and campaign with David Duke. That is where he belongs, with the other standard bearer of the Republican Party.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, this time I, hopefully, will be very brief. I just think it is important that the record is clear on what Senator Fumo stated and who made the comment. The comment was made in September, obviously of this year, to an Associated Press reporter, and it was done by former Governor Thornburgh's campaign manager, Michele Davis, and her quote was, "Dick Thornburgh is the salvation of this sorry-assed state," just so there is not any question about what Dick Thornburgh's campaign manager thinks about the state that the individual whose campaign she is running served as governor, and I think it is important that the record clearly states that.

HOUSE MESSAGE

HOUSE CONCURS IN SENATE AMENDMENTS TO HOUSE BILL

The Clerk of the House of Representatives informed the Senate that the House has concurred in amendments made by the Senate to HB 1541.

BILL SIGNED

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant Governor Mark S. Singel) in the presence of the Senate signed the following bill:

HB 1541.

ADJOURNMENT

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, before I make the motion to adjourn today, I would just respectfully suggest that maybe to alleviate some burden to the taxpayers of the Commonwealth, it might be well for the printing of this Journal and the expense associated therewith be sent to the Wofford for Senate campaign committee.

Mr. President, on that note I would move that the Senate do now adjourn until November 12, 1991, at 2:00 p.m., Eastern Standard Time.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The PRESIDENT. If the Majority Leader does not mind, I have a suspicion that the Wofford campaign will see a copy of this Journal sooner rather than later.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, may I ask the gentleman to withdraw his motion just for a very brief moment so I might comment on his comment? Briefly, I promise.

The PRESIDENT. The Majority Leader does not seem adverse to one or two or a few more brief comments.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I am sure that the Wofford—

Senator LOEPER. One, Mr. President.

Senator FUMO. I am sure, Mr. President, that the Wofford campaign committee would pay for this. I would help supplement it if they did not have the money provided Dick Thornburgh pays Philadelphia for the $400,000 he cost us in cops when he came and people protested his presence along with the President. So, if they give us the $400,000 for Philadelphia, which is broke, we will gladly pay for transcribing this record.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The motion was agreed to.

The Senate adjourned at 2:45 p.m., Eastern Daylight Saving Time.

LEGISLATIVE JOURNAL

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1991

SESSION OF 1991

175TH OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

No. 67

SENATE

TUESDAY, November 12, 1991.

The Senate met at 2:00 p.m., Eastern Standard Time.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant Governor Mark S. Singel) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The following prayer was offered by the Secretary of the Senate, Hon. MARK R. CORRIGAN:

Almighty God, we pause this afternoon to express our gratitude for Your gift of this, another day. We ask that Your guiding spirit be with these Members of the Senate as they gather here. Fortify them with courage and bless them with wisdom that they may successfully address the issues before them. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present, the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding Session of October 22, 1991.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding Session, when, on motion of Senator LOEPER, further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

OFFICE OF CONSUMER ADVOCATE BUDGET REQUEST FOR FISCAL YEAR 1992-1993

The PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following communication, which was read by the Clerk as follows:

OFFICE OF CONSUMER ADVOCATE
COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA
1425 Strawberry Square
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania 17120

October 29, 1991

Hon. Robert P. Casey
Governor of Pennsylvania
Commonwealth of Pennsylvania

Room 225, Main Capitol Bldg.
Harrisburg, PA 17120

Hon. Robert C. Jubelirer
President Pro Tempore
Senate of Pennsylvania
Room 292, Main Capitol Bldg.
Harrisburg, PA 17120

Hon. Robert W. O'Donnell
Speaker
House of Representatives
Room 139, Main Capitol Bldg.
Harrisburg, PA 17120

Gentlemen:

Enclosed with this letter is the Budget Request of the Office of Consumer Advocate (OCA) for the Fiscal Year 1992-1993. The OCA's requested budget for Fiscal Year 1992-93 is $3,443,000. This amount represents an increase of $172,000, or 5.3%, over our approved 1991-92 budget of $3,271,000.

The present budget request is submitted pursuant to Act No. 25 of July 20, 1983. Under this Act, which amended the OCA budget-setting mechanism, this budget request must be submitted simultaneously to the Governor and General Assembly. The OCA budget is not derived from the General Fund, but is funded through a direct assessment on the public utilities which are regulated by the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission (PUC).

It should be noted that, by law, the OCA budget may never exceed five one hundredths of one percent (0.05%) of the prior calendar year's total intrastate gross revenues of the public utilities subject to the jurisdiction of the PUC. According to the present PUC estimate of 1991 public utility revenues, the OCA's budget "cap" for Fiscal Year 1992-93 would be approximately $8,254,872. The OCA's proposed budget thus represents approximately 42% of its cap.

If you have any questions about the OCA's budget request or about the Office of Consumer Advocate, I would be pleased to meet with you or members of your staff at your convenience.

Sincerely,
IRWIN A. POPOWSKY
Consumer Advocate

The PRESIDENT. This report will be filed in the Library.

REPORT OF THE TREASURER OF TEMPLE UNIVERSITY
FISCAL YEAR 1990-1991

The PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following communication, which was read by the Clerk as follows:

TEMPLE UNIVERSITY
Office of Financial Affairs
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania 19122

October 31, 1991

The Honorable Mark R. Corrigan
Secretary of the Senate
462 Main Capitol Building
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania 17120

Dear Secretary Corrigan:

In compliance with Act 15A of July 4, 1990, I submit to you herewith the report of the Treasurer of Temple University - of the Commonwealth System of Higher Education for the fiscal year 1990-91 which contains the audited financial statements of the University for that year.

Sincerely,
TIMOTHY C. O'ROURKE
Associate Vice President and Controller

The PRESIDENT. This report will be filed in the Library.

OFFICE OF SMALL BUSINESS ADVOCATE BUDGET REQUEST FOR FISCAL YEAR 1992-1993

The PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following communication, which was read by the Clerk as follows:

OFFICE OF SMALL BUSINESS ADVOCATE
COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA
City Towers Building, Suite 500B
301 Chestnut Street
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania 17101

October 31, 1991

Hon. Robert P. Casey
Governor of Pennsylvania
Room 225, Main Capitol Bldg.
Harrisburg, PA 17120

Hon. Robert C. Jubelirer
President Pro Tempore
Senate of Pennsylvania
Room 292, Main Capitol Bldg.
Harrisburg, PA 17120

Hon. Robert W. O'Donnell
Speaker of the House
House of Representatives
Room 139, Main Capitol Bldg.
Harrisburg, PA 17120

Dear Governor Casey, Senator Jubelirer and Representative O'Donnell:

In accordance with the requirements of Section 6 of Act 181 of 1988, 73 P.S. §391.46 et seq., I am submitting the enclosed Budget Request of the Office of Small Business Advocate for Fiscal Year 1992-1993. Copies are also being delivered today to the Secretary for Budget and to the Acting Secretary of Commerce within whose Department this Office has been established.

The enclosed Budget Request represents an increase of $171,000 above the Office's budget for the current fiscal year. An expected increase in the volume of major litigation in which this Office participates before the Public Utility Commission, with attendant increases in the expenses we incur for the expert witnesses we must retain for those cases, and my request for a fourth attorney for our staff account for the increase in this Budget Request compared to last year's request. The total amount sought for the next fiscal year, however, is only 39% of the maximum amount allowed by law for the expenses of the Office of Small Business Advocate. I would also note that the funds for operating this Office come from assessments that are made against the utilities, not from the general funds of the Commonwealth.

Please let me know if you or members of your staffs have any questions or would like to meet with me to discuss this Budget Request.

Sincerely,
BERNARD A. RYAN, JR.,
Small Business Advocate

The PRESIDENT. This report will be filed in the Library.

LISTS OF LOBBYISTS AND ORGANIZATIONS

The PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following communication, which was read by the Clerk as follows:

SPECIAL ORDER OF BUSINESS*GUESTS OF SENATOR DAVID J. BRIGHTBILL PRESENTED TO SENATE

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, we are pleased to have two Senate guests in the gallery today. First, with us today is Judge Jack Tylwalk who recently was elected to be the third judge of the Court of Common Pleas of the 52nd Judicial District, which is Lebanon County, and I would appreciate if we could give Judge Tylwalk our traditional warm welcome.

The PRESIDENT. Would the judge please rise so that we could welcome you to the Chamber of the Senate of Pennsylvania.

(Applause.)

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, we also have in the gallery today the class from Harrisburg Area Community College, I believe it is the Lebanon Branch, called Politics in Cities and States, and I think their Professor, Peter Zug, is with them today. So I would appreciate if we could also welcome the Politics in Cities and States class from the Harrisburg Area Community College.

The PRESIDENT. Would the guests of Senator Brightbill please rise so that we could welcome you to the Senate of Pennsylvania.

(Applause.)

GUEST OF SENATOR MICHAEL E. BORTNER PRESENTED TO SENATE

Senator BORTNER. Mr. President, I would also like to introduce a guest who is visiting with me today. He is Steve Gierasch from York. He is a freshman at Bucknell University. Also, I might point out, he does the placekicking for Bucknell's football team. Steve is in Harrisburg visiting today because he is doing a research project as a freshman on reapportionment and has been down here today meeting various members of the commission and others involved with reapportionment as part of his research for that project, and I would like to ask that the Senate give him its usual warm welcome.

The PRESIDENT. Will the guest of Senator Bortner please rise so that we can welcome you to the Senate of Pennsylvania.

(Applause.)

GUEST OF SENATOR EARL M. BAKER PRESENTED TO SENATE

Senator BAKER. Mr. President, I am honored to have today a visiting teacher from my district, Ms. Winnie Anderson, who is on a sabbatical and as part of her sabbatical she is studying the Senate of Pennsylvania. I would like to introduce her at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Would the guest of Senator Baker please rise so that we can welcome you to the Senate of Pennsylvania.

(Applause.)

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Senator BRIGHTBILL asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, late as usual, my class from HACC is just now showing up and they will not realize that we have already given them a warm welcome, so could we repeat that, please.

The PRESIDENT. We are certainly delighted to have the guests of Senator Brightbill with us and we have already afforded you a Senate greeting, but we will do it again. Welcome to the Chamber of the Senate of Pennsylvania.

(Applause.)

RECESS

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, at this time I would ask for a recess of the Senate for the purpose of a Republican caucus to begin immediately in the first floor caucus room, with an expectation of returning to the floor at approximately 3:45 p.m.

Senator STAPLETON. Mr. President, I would ask the Democrats to report to their caucus room immediately.

The PRESIDENT. For purposes of Republican and Democratic caucuses to begin immediately, the Senate will stand in recess.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed, the Senate will be in order.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I would request temporary Capitol leave for Senator Loeper.

Senator STAPLETON. Mr. President, I request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Afflerbach, Senator Andrezeski, Senator Lynch, Senator Stewart and Senator Williams.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Fisher requests temporary Capitol leave for Senator Loeper. Senator Stapleton asks temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Afflerbach, Senator Andrezeski, Senator Lynch, Senator Stewart and Senator Williams. Those leaves, without objection, will all be granted.

CALENDAR

FINAL PASSAGE CALENDAR

BILL OVER IN ORDER TEMPORARILY

SB 953 — Without objection, the bill was passed over in its order temporarily at the request of Senator FISHER.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVE CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT. The Chair recognizes the presence on the floor of Senator Porterfield. His temporary Capitol leave will be cancelled.

RECESS

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I would ask for a short recess of the Senate for purposes of a meeting of the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations in the Rules Committee room to be followed by a meeting of the Committee on Judiciary in the Rules Committee room.

The PRESIDENT. For purposes of a meeting of the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations to be held in the Rules room at the rear of the Senate Chamber, followed by a meeting of the Committee on Judiciary, followed by another meeting of the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations—for the Members' information, the sequence of events is a meeting of the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations, a meeting of the Committee on Judiciary, a meeting of the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, prior to going into a recess, perhaps there might be a problem. We may have to wait with Members coming to the floor because from the box in my office I did not hear the call for Session, although the box is turned on. I heard the five minute call, but I never heard us going into Session, and perhaps that is the reason why some Members are not on the floor.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair advises the gentleman that we have checked the electronics and, in fact, the information is being piped into the various offices. Would the Members please find their way to the meeting of the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations which is now beginning in the Rules room at the rear of the Senate Chamber, and to the floor. We will be reconvening shortly after the committee hearings. For purposes of the aforementioned meetings, the Senate will stand in recess.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed, the Senate will be in order.

SB 953 CALLED UP

SB 953 (Pr. No. 1581) — Without objection, the bill, which previously went over in its order temporarily, was called up, from page 1 of the Final Passage Calendar, by Senator FISHER.

BILL OVER IN ORDER ON THIRD CONSIDERATION

SB 953 (Pr. No. 1581) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending the act of March 10, 1949 (P. L. 30, No. 14), entitled "Public School Code of 1949," requiring interest to be paid on certain late subsidy payments to school districts.

Considered the third time and agreed to,
And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,
Shall the bill pass finally?

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, Senate Bill No. 953 was a bill that was considered by the Members of the Senate prior to our recessing for the election break, and on that particular day the Members of the Senate decided in their wisdom to defeat this proposal, I believe along party lines, Mr. President, and I am certain that the reason why it is being reconsidered today is because one of the Republican Members who was on personal leave on that particular day is here today, I would assume, to cast a vote in the affirmative. Mr. President, I think we should look at what the bill actually does. Senate Bill No. 953 amends the Public School Code. What it does, Mr. President, is it provides that the Department of Education must pay interest on the Equalized Subsidy for Basic Education, or what we refer to as ESBE payments, if the payments are made after the due date. The interest would have to be paid based on the United States Treasury note rate for one year. On the surface, Mr. President, this might seem like it is a good proposal, but if we are going to go ahead and if we are late in a reimbursement to a school district and we are going to make an interest payment to that school district, then what should we do if we are late on a payment to a judiciary, to a local common pleas court? What should we do, Mr. President, if we are late on the payments we owe hospitals for a reimbursement for medical care given to the poor or to the indigent or to people who are in need of medical assistance as provided for by the state? What do we do, Mr. President, if we are late on our reimbursement to pharmacies in Pennsylvania because of not having sufficient money in the Lottery Fund to go ahead and to reimburse pharmacies on PACE? What do we do, Mr. President, if we go ahead and we find that we have not been able to reimburse our mental health and mental retardation groups the type of money they have coming because of some problem at that particular point in time with state money? I have a difficult time, Mr. President, when we go ahead and we only identify the school payments that are going to be made to school districts for the reimbursement of ESBE for a payment that might be late, and because of this and the reasons that I have just mentioned, I would ask for a negative vote, as we did in the past, and vote this down. I think it would be important once again, Mr. President, that we cast a negative vote on Senate Bill No. 953.

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, I had initially intended to amend Senate Bill No. 953. As the Members of this Chamber will remember, back on October 15th we had quite a lengthy discussion of a bill, Senate Bill No. 727. The prime sponsor was the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood. That bill had attached to it, during the course of the debate on October 15th, an amendment by the gentleman from Cambria, Senator Stewart, to outlaw the so-called selective strikes. At that time I rose in this Chamber and said that it pained me very much to vote against Senator Stewart's position because, while I think it is an appropriate one in most cases, at that time, on October 15th, I felt that a possibly historic agreement had been reached with the school union organizations and the School Boards Association and the Pennsylvania Department of Education whereby we might actually decrease the number of horrendous strikes that has made Pennsylvania so infamous in the last almost 30 years. At that time I rose and told the Members of this Chamber and others that I was going to vote against Senator Stewart and his selective strike measure.

Since that time there have been a number of other selective strikes that have been proposed in the Commonwealth, and I have been, I cannot say inundated, but I have been requested on a number of occasions to continue the effort to outlaw what I have heretofore said, in my judgment, was a truly vicious anti-education tool and that is the selective strike. With that in mind I prepared an amendment that I was going to offer today to Senate Bill No. 953 which, of course, amends the Public School Code and makes it illegal, first of all, for any bargaining unit, any public employee school unit, to strike unless at least 50 percent of all eligible employees, that is to say eligible in the bargaining unit, have voted in favor of a strike and that that strike would be by secret ballot. Interestingly enough, Mr. President, even though teachers' strikes, teachers' work stoppages cause, by everyone's admission, terrible turmoil, regardless of whether you believe in the right to strike or not, I think everybody agrees that the decimation to a community is overwhelming and that perhaps, just perhaps there ought to be a little order, a few guidelines before a bargaining unit actually took the ultimate work stoppage, ultimately took the right to strike. Today, Mr. President, there is very little organization, and the votes to strike can be held with as few as a handful of the bargaining members present. It can be a voice vote. It can be a ballot vote. There is no organization. There is no procedure whatsoever whereby we legitimize this enormous and economic and education tool. I believe, Mr. President, we should, at a minimum, require a secret ballot and, at a minimum, require that at least 50 percent plus one of the people who are eligible to vote actually do vote. Additionally, my amendment was going to prohibit the so-called selective strike, and that is, in very brief fashion, the strike whereby a school building or a particular school time or a particular school grade or a particular day of the week is targeted. It is not a so-called full-blown strike. It is frequently referred to as the hit-and-run strike where the parents, where the families, where the students do not know from day one to day two to day three whether or not their educational process is going to be disrupted. If you have ever been through one, Mr. President, I think you and any Member of this Chamber will agree they are not a pretty sight, and they do great damage to the educational process and, in my judgment, deserve to be outlawed from this Commonwealth.

The vote on the Stewart amendment which would have done just that, most Republicans voted against the outlawing, including myself, although I know there are a number of people, including myself, on this side of the Chamber who believe fervently in outlawing selective strikes, but the Democrats voted in favor of outlawing it and I would hope that would continue—

POINT OF ORDER

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Lackawanna, Senator Mellow, will state it.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, Senate Bill No. 953 deals with school subsidies and the payment of interest on school subsidies. It does not deal with selective strikes or school strikes or any other types of strikes, and unless the gentleman has an amendment that he is going to offer and then speak on the amendment, I think that you have given him tremendous latitude to deliver some remarks that certainly have nothing to do with the bill that is before us. Perhaps his remarks should be given under Petitions and Remonstrances after Session is concluded, unless the gentleman has an amendment that he would like to present to the full Body.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair thanks the gentleman from Lackawanna and finds his point to be very well taken. The gentleman's remarks refer to provisions that really have little or no bearing to Senate Bill No. 953. Perhaps there is some misunderstanding.

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, I am in the process of conclusion. The Chair's remarks are well taken. Thank you very much.

The point is, Mr. President, and perhaps I am far afield, this is an issue of great importance to this Chamber, to this Commonwealth and to myself as well. I have agreed, reluctantly, to pull back and not offer the amendment about which I just spoke, but I did want to highlight the particulars of that amendment so that perhaps the press and those within the sound of our voices who are worried about selective strikes will know that the issue has not faded from the minds of Members of this Chamber, and I would only conclude—

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, either the gentleman should offer the amendment or his remarks should be concluded immediately. They have absolutely no bearing on the issue and, if I remember correctly, the last time this issue came before us he voted against it.

The PRESIDENT. Again, the gentleman from Fayette echoes the point made by the gentleman from Lackawanna and the Chair is forced to find the gentleman's remarks out of order. The Chair would also remind the gentleman if, in fact, he is moving in the direction of an amendment, the amendment to a bill on final passage is out of order. Therefore, for all of us—

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, in that case if that is the procedure which the gentlemen prefer, I do rise and ask unanimous consent to offer the following amendment to Senate Bill No 953.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair respectively but forcefully must decline the opportunity to offer the amendment inasmuch as it is out of order. The bill is on final passage at the moment and amendments are not in order at this time.

RECONSIDERATION OF SB 953

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the bill passed on third consideration.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Fisher, moves that the vote by which Senate Bill No. 953 received third consideration be reconsidered.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, will state it.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, would it not just have been as simple to move to suspend the Rules?

The PRESIDENT. There is a slight difference. The move to suspend the Rules requires a constitutional majority and the move to reconsider requires a voice vote majority of the Senators present and voting.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I do not know why all the hassle. There are probably going to be 48 votes for his amendment. Get it in position as quickly as you can. I want to see what they are going to do on this vote.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair thanks the gentleman. There is a motion before the Body to reconsider the vote by which Senate Bill No. 953 passed on third consideration.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

A voice vote having been taken, the question was determined in the affirmative.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

AMENDMENT OFFERED

Senator SHAFFER, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A2802:

Amend Title, page 1, line 5, by inserting after "thereto,"": regulating strikes by employees of school entities; and

Amend Sec. 1, page 1, lines 10 and 11, by striking out "a section" and inserting: sections

Amend Sec. 1, page 1, by inserting between lines 11 and 12:

Section 112. Minimum Participation in Strike Vote.—(a) It shall be illegal for any bargaining unit representing employees of a school entity to strike unless more than fifty per centum of all eligible employees shall have voted in favor of the strike. All votes shall be conducted by secret ballot.

(b) The Pennsylvania Labor Relations Board shall promulgate regulations, within six (6) months of the effective date of this section, to establish and oversee procedures for a strike vote. The costs for the election shall be paid equally by the Commonwealth, the school district and the employee organization.

(c) In lieu of the procedures established in subsection (b), the employee organization and the board of directors of the school entity may employ a person to oversee the strike vote to determine whether it was conducted in a fair and impartial manner. A determination by this person regarding the fairness and impartiality of the strike vote shall be binding on both parties. The costs of employing this person shall be shared equally between the employee organization and the school entity.

(d) The strike vote shall specify the date the strike shall begin. A strike by the employee organization shall be against the entire school entity. Selective strikes against certain facilities, grade levels, or for portions of a school day are hereby prohibited. If the employee organization does not strike on the specified date, the previous authorizing vote shall be null and void. The employee organization shall be required to schedule another vote to engage in each subsequent strike or other work stoppage. Subsequent votes to authorize a strike shall follow the requirements set forth in this section.

(e) (1) Any school employee who participates in a strike in violation of this section is subject to immediate dismissal by the board.

(2) The board of directors of the school entity shall notify the Department of Education of any professional employee who participates in a strike in violation of this section, in which event the department shall initiate proceedings under the act of December 12, 1973 (P.L.397, No.141), referred to as the "Teacher Certification Law," to revoke the certification of the employee for a period of up to five (5) years.

(f) Strikes by employees of a school entity as authorized by the act of July 23, 1970 (P.L.563, No.195), known as the "Public Employee Relations Act," shall only be permitted after the bargaining unit has given written notice by certified mail of the strike to the president of the board of directors of the school entity, to two (2) newspapers of general circulation within that school entity, two (2) radio stations broadcasting within that school entity and two (2) television stations broadcasting within that school entity. All such notices shall be received at least forty-eight (48) hours prior to the announced date of the strike. In lieu of the required notice to newspapers of general circulation, in a school entity where no such newspaper is published, a notice shall be posted in at least five (5) public places. If a school entity does not conduct classes on the date that it was notified that a strike is scheduled to occur, that entity shall not have committed an unfair practice as defined in Article XII of the "Public Employee Relations Act," or a lockout for the purpose of the unemployment compensation law or any other law.

(g) Any parent or guardian of a pupil enrolled in a school entity which is the subject of a strike conducted in violation of this section, who suffers any pecuniary loss due to such unlawful strike, may bring a civil action for damages in the court of common pleas against the employee organization and school employees participating in the unlawful strike and, in addition to other relief, shall be entitled to recover reasonable attorney fees and all court costs. The action may be certified as a class action and if it is so certified, the award of attorney fees shall be limited to legal fees incurred in representing the prevailing plaintiff in the class. The school entity shall not indemnify the employee organization or any school employee or otherwise make any payment of any judgment or settlement on the suit authorized by this subsection.

(h) No strike shall be valid except as it is in compliance with the requirements of this section.

(i) When used in this section the following words and phrases shall have the following meanings:

(1) "Eligible employee" shall mean the members of the employee organization which is the exclusive representative and employees paying a fair share fee to the exclusive representation as required under section 2215 of the act of April 9, 1929 (P.L.177, No.175), known as "The Administrative Code of 1929."

(2) "School entity" shall mean a school district, intermediate unit, or area vocational-technical school.

(3) "Strike" shall mean a concerted action in failing to report for duty, the wilful absence from one's position, the stoppage of work, slowdown, or the abstinence in whole or in part from the full, faithful and proper performance of the duties of employment for the purpose of inducing, influencing or coercing a change in the conditions or compensation or the rights, privileges or obligations of employment.

Amend Bill, page 2, line 1, by striking out all of said line and inserting:

Section 2. The act of July 23, 1970 (P.L. 563, No. 195), known as the Public Employee Relations Act, is repealed insofar as it is inconsistent with this act.

Section 3. This act shall take effect as follows:

(1) The addition of section 112(a), (c), (d), (e), (f), (g), (h) and (i) of the act shall take effect in six months.

(2) The remainder of this act shall take effect immediately.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, I am a bit mystified as to why the necessity for the previous folderol on my part. We spend a lot of time in this Chamber talking about less important things than selective strikes, and if I may be going on for an extra five or ten or fifteen minutes on an education issue which transcends 50 percent, if not 70 percent, of the things we do here, I am mystified as to why the gentleman from Lackawanna and Senator Lincoln would try as best they can to shortchange this argument. This is an important topic. The children of your districts as well as the children of my district deserve to have this topic heard. It is a topic of which I happen to have deep legislative interest and I resent very much—

The PRESIDENT. If the gentleman will yield for just a moment, the Chair takes some of the responsibility for the confusion on the floor. At the risk of complicating the matter even further, the Chair would simply point out that the objection was not to the substance of the gentleman's comments, but to the congruence of the subject matter with the issue at hand.

Senator SHAFFER. In that case, Mr. President, I thank the gentleman and I am certainly pleased for the opportunity to having rectified the methodology by which we are here at this point now.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I object to the tenor and the manner in which the gentleman is conducting himself. First off, the Rules of the Senate are what we have to go by, and the Rules are what he was not going by. If he would have offered the amendment without that 25 minute speech he gave before it, we would not have been in the position we are in right now. So, do not blame it on me. It is the Rules of the Senate. Change the Rules if you do not like the Rules, where you can get up and say or do anything you want, anytime you want.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair thanks the gentleman, and with respect to all the Members of the Senate, I think that was what I was attempting to point out previously. We are now in the position of dealing with the amendment of the gentleman from Butler, and the gentleman is in order for his remarks supporting his amendment.

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, previously, although I was apparently out of order in the view of some individuals, I have made the point that those individuals around this state who are still calling my office, and I am sure making inquiry into other Senators' offices as well, as to why we allow an atrocious process called selective strikes to hamstring the educational process, I want those folks to know that even though we have not done it yet, there is plenty of interest in the Senate of Pennsylvania for outlawing selective strikes. The message I would like to send, if I might, Mr. President, by way of this dialogue to the House Education Committee is that I would hope that in short fashion the previous legislation prime sponsored by the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, I think it was Senate Bill No. 727, will be dealt with in a timely fashion, and I would call on the PSEA and any other teachers organizations that counts on selective strikes, that so long as people like myself are willing to hold back the process of dealing with selective strikes, that they as well should hold back selective strikes as a bargaining tactic in the field. That is my plea, Mr. President. I hope the House deals with this legislation soon. There is nothing trampling upon the reputation of Pennsylvania in the United States any more than our reputation as a strike-plagued capital of the United States. It is a disgrace to us all.

AMENDMENT WITHDRAWN

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, I withdraw the amendment.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Shaffer withdraws his amendment.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I would like to have the amendment so that I can offer it to give the gentleman the opportunity to put his courage exactly where it belongs in a "yes" vote, because I remember not too long ago when we passed Senate Bill No. 727, that he got to vote "no" on selective strikes. He stood right where he is right now and said "no" when they called his name to this outrageous, atrocious plague on Pennsylvania. No, he said, no, no, no, and it failed. In the bill that is before the House Education Committee that he so righteously talks about getting quick action on, his vote meant that it did not have selective strikes taken out of the law in Pennsylvania. So I would like to offer the amendment so the gentleman from Butler, Senator Shaffer, will have an opportunity to prove how courageous he is and how he wants to speak to the Pennsylvania education community and he wants to speak to the people of this nation. Let us put the bill before us. Run the amendment. Let us all see what we have.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair thanks the gentleman for his comments and would point out, first, that it is within the prerogative of the Senator to withdraw his amendment, as Senator Shaffer has done. That is certainly within the Rules. Secondly, if the gentleman wishes to offer an amendment, it is necessary to present the amendment at this time. Does the gentleman wish to offer an amendment? The Chair finds himself in a position of not having an amendment to consider.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, may we be at ease for a moment.

The PRESIDENT. The Senate will be at ease.

(The Senate was at ease.)

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I would request that Senate Bill No. 953 go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Fisher asks that Senate Bill No. 953 go over in its order on third consideration. The Chair hears no objection. The bill will go over in its order.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT. The Chair recognizes the presence on the floor of Senator Stewart and will hereby cancel his temporary Capitol leave. Also, as to Senator Loeper and Senator Andrezeski, their temporary Capitol leaves will be cancelled. Senator Scanlon is with us as well.

SB 1359 CALLED UP

SB 1359 (Pr. No. 1634) — Without objection, the bill, which previously went over in its order temporarily, was called up, from page 1 of the Third Consideration Calendar, by Senator FISHER.

Amend Sec. 3 (Sec. 3.2), page 10, line 4, by striking out "and" and inserting a comma

Amend Sec. 3 (Sec. 3.2), page 10, line 5, by inserting after "victims": and adolescents

Amend Sec. 5 (Sec. 4.2), page 16, line 8, by inserting after "problems.": Statistics shall include, but not be limited to, the unmet need of and services provided to addicted women, pregnant addicted women, addicted women with children, and adolescents.

Amend Sec. 5 (Sec. 4.4), page 18, line 15, by striking out "and" and inserting a comma

Amend Sec. 5 (Sec. 4.4), page 18, line 16, by inserting after "children": , and adolescents

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration, as amended?

Senator PETERSON, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A2771:

Amend Sec. 5 (Sec. 4.1), page 10, line 16, by striking out "by" and inserting: in conjunction with

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

Without objection, the bill, as amended, was passed over in its order at the request of Senator PETERSON.

BILLS ON FIRST CONSIDERATION

Senator MUSTO. Mr. President, I move the Senate do now proceed to consideration of all bills reported from committees for the first time at today's Session.

The motion was agreed to.

The bills were as follows:

SB 900, 1060, 1209, 1243 and 1296.

And said bills having been considered for the first time,

Ordered, To be printed on the Calendar for second consideration.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, right before we took a recess for the election we had a spirited discussion on this floor about a former Governor who I like to call slick Dick, who I must honestly admit gave one of the finest performances of his career when he did his concession speech on election night. Mr. President, I want to take to the floor tonight and thank all of those Republicans, particularly in those traditional Republican strongholds like Delaware County and Montgomery County, who came through and saw the light and repudiated our former Governor. Mr. President, we predicted it. Nobody wanted to listen, but I think today the Commonwealth is a much better place to live because in Washington we will be represented by Harris Wofford. A number of things occurred on election day, not only in our state but also in our neighboring State of New Jersey. In that state Republicans were very successful in creating for themselves a veto-proof legislature and, Mr. President, they did that on the very specific campaign promise of repealing the increase in the sales tax they had just enacted in New Jersey. But lo and behold, Mr. President, I find in the Sunday Inquirer the following remarks and I will quote: "After hammering the Democrats $2.8 billion tax package to tap a well of voter anger so deep that even Republicans were surprised, the GOP now says that cutting all those taxes would be irresponsible. Rhetoric has run into reality." Mr. President, I think it is important to note that not only the Republicans in New Jersey but also some Republicans in Pennsylvania want to go around and say, let us cut taxes. Everybody wants to be a hero, Mr. President, until it comes time to pay the piper. We will look with great interest when the New Jersey Legislature convenes to see whether the Republicans in that Chamber will keep their promise to their constituents and in fact reduce those taxes in light of a billion dollar deficit that has already been projected. We will see how honest those demagogues will be in that state.

Mr. President, there was another interesting article in the Inquirer in which they quoted the standard bearer of the Republican Party, George Bush. Mr. President, his remarks are an outrage, and I will read to you his quote. "I have got my ideas out there and this concerns the tax cut. I have got my ideas out there and the Congress for various political reasons want to do it their way. When you do not control either House of the Congress, you have to deal with their ideas." Mr. President, how arrogant could one get? We would hope that George Bush, after seeing the results of that last arrogant slick Dick in Pennsylvania, would have learned a little bit of humility. Mr. President, where does he get off saying his ideas are God-given, not political, but those of the Congress are political by definition. Mr. President, I submit to you that his ideas are just as political, if not more so, than those in the Congress. But even more important, Mr. President, is the arrogance when he says when you do not control either House of the Congress you have to deal with their ideas, as if there is something wrong with that. Mr. President, in this country we do not elect a dictator. We elect a President and a Congress. We elected that Congress and they have a right to their ideas. Where does Mr. Bush get off at with his imperial presidency? Does he think he is Ferdinand Marcos? Does he think he is some of the dictators of the past who have already been thrown over? Does he think he is Saddam Hussein? Mr. President, it is about time that this Republican President learns that he lives in a democracy. It is about time he learns to respect not only the views of the Congress but the views of the people of America. Mr. President, there is a reason why Senator Wofford did as well as he did on election day. There was a great outcry here in Pennsylvania that is indicative of the frustration and the anger throughout the middle class of this country. The people of the middle class are saying, give me a break. Mr. President, I always used to wonder why those people who are basically blue-collar, hardworking people, why for so many years were they registered Democratic and voting Republican. I could not exactly figure it out. But then we finally realized that the Democratic Party took the poor, the immigrants of this country and made life so good for them that they were no longer poor. They became upper middle class, and when they became upper middle class, Mr. President, they started to vote that way. They started to vote Republican. We did such a good job in our party of making poor people wealthy that they turned on us and found new values. What happened on election day was that we have now seen the process come full circle. We have now watched the Republicans turn those upper middle-class people who used to be good Democrats, who became Republicans, we watched those Republicans take those people and drive them right back into poverty and now they are back with us.

Mr. President, we are not happy about the economy, but we are so very happy that so many people are coming home to where they belong, their Democratic roots. So we were not necessarily surprised on election day in Philadelphia, for example, where Dick Thornburgh even ran behind Joe Egan. We were not particularly surprised about that because people knew who slick Dick was, and they also are sick and tired and fed up with a national Republican agenda that is killing our economy here at home.

Mr. President, we watched the President of the United States change his latest travel junket plans and snub Japan because he was afraid to go away, so at least he got some kind of message that charity begins at home, that the American people and the people of Pennsylvania have a right to demand from their President that he start to devote some time to Pennsylvania's economy and America's economy. We do not care about the war in the Gulf anymore, Mr. President. I personally thought that George Bush would be able to milk that with coming-home parades for the next year or so, but apparently the people have forgotten. Maybe, Mr. President, the people came back to reality and started to ask themselves, why did we go there and why did we lose American lives? But, whatever, wrapping himself in the flag is no longer going to help George Bush, and we are very happy about that, not in a partisan fashion, but we are very happy as Americans because maybe the Republican Party will get the message that there is a huge middle class out there that has to be taken care of, that they have to abandon their extremely wealthy friends for a little while to get the economy back on track. Maybe, Mr. President, we need an income tax on those people who make over a million dollars a year. When the Democrats proposed it the last time there was outrage in Washington that they would even think of such a thing. Maybe, Mr. President, we do not need a capital gains tax for the wealthy. Maybe what we just need are some more jobs for the poor. This country is in deep, deep trouble, and when we look at our economy, I will grant to you that some of that Washington establishment is Democratic and they have been part of the problem, but we can no longer continue to exist in the manner in which we are going. We can no longer continue to increase the national debt to a point that 30 percent of all federal revenue goes into paying just the interest on the debt. Mr. President, we would not have the problems in our cities that we have. We would not have the problems in state economies that we have if we were able to take that 30 percent of our national GNP and turn it back home where it belongs. It is the President of the United States who sets that agenda, and, yes, he may have coconspirators in the end in the Democratic Congress, but it was Ronald Reagan who told us all about the trickle-down economy, how it was going to work, how rich people were going to make a lot of money, but then they were going to let it trickle down to the poor. Well, we watched that for eight years and we did not get any trickle down. Then we watched George Bush come in with absolutely no plan, so it just drifts along. We watched the national deficit go in ten years further than it has ever gone in the entire history of the rest of this country combined. Mr. President, it is about time for people to have courage. It is about time for our President to stand up to the plate and tell America the truth. It is about time for our President to stand before the media and give us a plan for this economy that will work, not more lies, not another income tax adjustment act that is supposed to solve the deficit but does not. Mr. President, it is time for us to forget about Willie Horton. It is time to forget about pledge allegiance to the flag. It is time to worry about problems, the real problems of the unemployed and, more particularly, the underemployed.

Mr. President, this country is in bad shape, and it has been led by the Republican Party for a long time. I am glad that we in Pennsylvania have been the first state to send that message to George Bush that he had better wake up. Slick Dick was a sure thing when he came in. He thought he was going to be canonized because he used to be the Governor and he cut taxes—after he raised them—and he was a tough Attorney General, even though he did not prosecute his friends. Mr. President, Pennsylvania gave slick Dick a message and it depressed the President, in his words, and we are very happy about that. We just hope that he comes out of his depression. Maybe he has to take some Prozac or something, but we want him to come out of that depression with some ideas and some jobs for America and for Pennsylvania. Mr. President, we did a tough thing here last year by raising taxes. Nobody liked it, but we did it because we had to do it. We now look at our own economy right on the edge. We are worried about a Christmas season that if it does not produce the retail sales that we expect, we are going to be in trouble in Pennsylvania. I do not know how we can control people. I do not know how we can get people to buy more things for their kids for Christmas when they do not have money, and it is not just Pennsylvania's problem. We cannot control our economy. It is a national problem being dictated by a Republican President. It is about time we got off of the rhetoric, the 30 second commercials, and started to worry about the real problems of this state, and I call upon our illustrious President, imperial though he may want to be, to come back home to the people of this country and listen to them and not worry about the other people in the world as much. Worry about us so that we might begin to put our economy back together.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, when we adjourned the Senate several weeks ago, we had the opportunity on a Tuesday afternoon to have some lively debate about the up and coming election. I can only reflect as to some of the discussion that took place here on the floor earlier this evening and what we had the opportunity to witness. I guess you could probably talk about it as being the height of hypocrisy, to go ahead and to talk about something, yet, when you are in a position to effect a change you do nothing. I guess you can talk about having a lot of unmitigated gall when you go ahead and you make some statements on the floor of the Senate, basically, that borderline being true. I guess, Mr. President, you can say that it is intellectually dishonest to try to have people believe one thing publicly and, yet, you do something entirely different privately.

Mr. President, we had the opportunity of dealing with Senate Bill No. 953 some 15 or 20 minutes ago. The point of Senate Bill No. 953 that was discussed in detail was a point that really does not even exist in Senate Bill No. 953 as of yet and that is, Mr. President, selective strikes within school districts, which is appalling to each and every one of us. Yet the Member of the Senate who took to the floor to talk about an amendment that would have gone ahead and I suppose would have banned selective strikes, which we would like to do, had his opportunity to reflect that vote on the floor of this Senate back on October 15th, and for some particular reason he decided not to do that. I would assume that was to support his caucus, which I understand does not fully support going ahead and doing away with selective strikes. Then he talked about the fact, Mr. President, that during the period of time since October 15th, and I believe the quote was, "Since then there have been more selective strikes." Well, if there had been, the opportunity existed on the floor of this Senate to go ahead and to take a long step forward to do away with selective strikes, but, unfortunately, that did not happen. I can only wonder and reflect that maybe if what took place last Tuesday, a week ago today, did not take place, maybe we would not be dealing with that particular proposal on the floor of the Senate today. Mr. President, I think it is important that as the Democratic leader of the Senate I congratulate Senator Lincoln, because I think Senator Lincoln assumed a very difficult job to serve as the State Chairman of his party just a few brief weeks ago and under his direction, with the cooperation of a lot of people, of a coalition that was put together, he was able to preside over a party that, for the first time since 1962, some 29 years ago, was able to elect a Democrat to the office of United States Senator, representing the great State of Pennsylvania. Mr. President, just last week the very distinguished Majority Leader of the Senate said—and I am going to read his comments—"Obviously, the party on the other side of the aisle must feel some desperation when we draw the second half of the dynamic duo from his office to get on the floor to make a purely partisan speech. It is very obvious there is desperation on the other side as November 5th looms." Well, Mr. President, I wonder as we stand before you today just exactly where that desperation is. I wonder about the pundits and the pollsters who took the poll that was revealed on national television this morning that showed that not only is President Bush's popularity dropping rapidly, but that if he would run against a yet unknown Democrat, and if that election were held today, President Bush would not be reelected against an unknown Democrat. In fact, the TV station that I watched said that President Bush would receive 41 percent and the unknown Democrat would receive 43 percent of the vote. Now, Mr. President, there has to be some desperation on the part of the Bush White House as to why, in fact, that is taking place. His hand-selected, his hand-picked candidate for the United States Senate in Pennsylvania, something that was viewed as a lock in August by a 45 percent lead on the part of Mr. Thornburgh, turned into a tremendous defeat of Mr. Thornburgh at the hands of the voters last Tuesday. Mr. President, maybe we should look at why that is taking place. Maybe we should look right here in the state Senate as to why some of those things have taken place and the fact that the thing that our people are interested in, a domestic agenda to help the people of Pennsylvania, Mr. President, is, in fact, not forthcoming.

Several weeks ago when we talked about Senate Bill No. 221, which is a bill on the floor of the Senate that would amend the Administrative Code because we cannot get bills that are sponsored by Democrats that are substantial in nature, that are substantive, Mr. President, in theory and in principle, we cannot get those bills reported from the Republican controlled committee so, therefore, what we must do is take to the floor of the Senate and try to offer those bills in amended form, which we tried to do two weeks ago on a bill that was introduced by the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Bud Belan. His bill would go ahead and establish a program for abandoned industrial sites that had environmental problems. It would establish an assessment fund that would go ahead and resolve and straighten out the environmental problems. It is the same program that, if you recall, the Republican candidate for the United States Senate took and plagiarized a Member of the Democrat state Senate and used it as his program. Unfortunately, the people of Pennsylvania did not buy it. But we cannot get that bill considered on the floor of this Senate. We cannot get a child care program considered on the floor of this Senate. Mr. President, for the last two legislative Sessions I along with a number of other Members on the Democrat side, with some Majority sponsorship, have introduced a complete and comprehensive day care package, and where is that day care package, Mr. President? In the committees where it was referred to because the Republican controlled committees in this Senate will not consider those proposals. And where, may I ask you, Mr. Republican Party in the State of Pennsylvania, is your program for family leave? Do you think now we have come to the point in time where it is important that we talk about family, we talk about the restructuring of child care and day care? Do you think maybe we should be delivering services, Mr. President, to people who are so badly in need of these services? Do you think we should start talking on the floor of this Senate about alcohol treatment and drug abuse, especially the lack of alcohol treatment for pregnant women? Do you think, Mr. President, that a thing called Workmen's Compensation reform, that we have introduced under the sponsorship of the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Scanlon, that has been put into two committees in the Senate of Pennsylvania should be considered before the rating bureau goes ahead and increases the rates to Pennsylvania employers for Workmen's Compensation by in excess of 50 percent? We have taken action, Mr. President, on the part of a program that has been developed by the administration. We think it is important that action take place right here on the floor of the Senate the same way that it is very important that action take place in the halls of Congress to start to establish a domestic program, a domestic agenda, if you will. Maybe there should be some lessons learned about what people think about national health care because it is out there. Perhaps the Congress of the United States should once again give the President the opportunity of vetoing the extension of unemployment compensation, because he probably has never had the opportunity of standing in an unemployment line to go ahead and to sign up to collect the check, to go ahead to tell those people who have exhausted their benefits, where in Pennsylvania there are 170,000 of those people who are either underemployed or unemployed, that the President of the United States does not think it is important for these people to sign an extension of unemployment compensation. Perhaps the President should realize that particular case.

Perhaps the President should realize that there is a problem with civil rights in this great country of ours, that all people are not treated equally, regardless of the fact that we are guaranteed equal treatment by the Constitution of the United States.

Perhaps, Mr. President, he should understand that right here in this great country of ours, the greatest free country in the world, that we do not have an energy policy, a policy where we can go ahead and say it is working for the people of this great country of ours and indeed in Pennsylvania.

Perhaps, Mr. President, he should also realize that when Jimmy Carter ran for reelection for President of the United States in 1980, Ronald Reagan developed a misery index. The misery index dealt with unemployment and with inflation. He added the two together and he told the people about the misery index in this great country of ours. He also talked about in that campaign that the federal deficit was approaching $60 billion and he would do whatever he could do once he was elected President to go ahead and to eliminate the deficit so we could go along with our business in this great country of ours. Mr. President, today under three terms of Republican Presidents, President Reagan in 1980 and then again in 1984, President Bush in 1988, we no longer have a deficit in this country that is approaching $60 billion. We have the largest deficit ever in the world of any government, of $268 billion. Our cumulative debt, Mr. President, is approaching $4 trillion. In fact, Mr. President, within the federal government we are paying more money right now for debt service in this great country of ours than we have as a deficit. Our debt service right now is approaching $300 billion. Perhaps that is the reason why there was a loud and clear message given to the President of the United States. Perhaps, Mr. President, that the shifting of the burden of funding from federal government to state governments to take care of state and federal programs that have been mandated by the federal government and they have abandoned the states, maybe that is the message that is going back to President Bush in the federal government. Perhaps, Mr. President, they are trying to tell him that President Bush, when it was first identified that there was a problem with the savings and loans in this country of ours and that the problem might cost somewhere around $20 billion, which is almost the total budget of Pennsylvania, you neglected it and you said nothing is wrong and that we can resolve the problem. Well, today we understand that to resolve the problem, if in fact we can do that, is going to cost the taxpayers of this country $500 billion with no return whatsoever to the taxpayer. Maybe we should look at what has happened in the banking industry. Maybe we should look at what has happened with BCCI and the fact that the former Attorney General did nothing to go ahead and to resolve the problem. Maybe, Mr. President, we should look at the exportation of jobs to Mexico and to other countries and the importation of automobiles and other things that are depriving Americans of jobs. Perhaps, Mr. President, we should become a Shiite or a Kurd. Perhaps we should live in the Persian Gulf because then we could get the proper type of aid our people right here in this great country of ours need. Perhaps the people living in the Philadelphia area, the Philadelphians, or the Scrantonians or those who live in Allegheny County or Johnstown or Allentown or Erie, or any of our other great cities or towns in this Commonwealth, perhaps they should identify themselves as individuals who are from a foreign market and then perhaps the President of the United States will see fit to go ahead and to give them some type of foreign aid. I was appalled at the headlines that appeared in one of my local newspapers on Election Day. The headline read—and I wish I had it here with me because I will have to paraphrase—that the President of the United States wanted to give $1 billion to the Soviet Union to help out their economy. Well, what is wrong with the economy of Pennsylvania? What is wrong with the economy of this great country of ours? The President of the United States is elected to take care of the problems domestically first of the 50 states in the United States, not to go ahead and to establish such a foreign agenda that he has totally forgotten the people of this great country of ours. I think that is the message that was delivered loud and clear on November 5th and that is the message that we, I feel, must deliver loud and clear on the floor of this Senate, and it should happen in the other 49 states in the United States until there is a sympathetic ear in Washington and one that is prepared to listen about those programs of such great concern.

You know, Mr. President, what made me feel real good was being informed that Fortune Magazine's November 4th issue, in view of everything that has taken place in the State of New Jersey, and the State of California, which went ahead just recently and had the largest single tax increase of any state in the United States and now is facing another substantial deficit, in view of the fact that in this State of Pennsylvania because of a tremendous downturn in the economy of this country that we had to go ahead and we had to have this significant tax increase back in August of this year, that Fortune Magazine rates the City of Pittsburgh as the third best city in America to do business, even after we have had the tax increase of the summer of 1991. That is saying something about a Democratic Administration in Harrisburg. That is saying something about the Casey Administration. That is saying something about the job that is being done by the Democratic mayor in Pittsburgh and the Democratic county commissioner in the County of Allegheny. I only wish, Mr. President, that this would not be viewed as an extreme partisan issue, but, in fact, would be viewed as a people issue because those poor individuals who in just a few short weeks are going to be very cold in the streets of Philadelphia, who are going to be very cold in the streets of Pittsburgh and Wilkes-Barre and Scranton and Erie and Allentown and Johnstown and the other cities and communities in Pennsylvania who are identified as homeless, that forgotten group of people who unfortunately government in Washington has turned their backsides to, that forgotten group of people must be heard. The people of Pennsylvania who need aid from the federal government, Mr. President, must be heard. The elderly population in this great state of ours who rely on governmental programs must be heard. Those people who have no health insurance in this state must be heard. Those people who have no unemployment compensation benefits because of nothing that they have done, they have lost their jobs, Mr. President, they must be heard, and that middle income taxpayer who is in such desperate need of a tax cut because of what took place in the Tax Reform Act of 1986 where the gap between the haves and have nots has never been greater, Mr. President, they must be heard. And if nothing else, we will be a voice in the wilderness, as Senator Fumo talked about today, as our new United States Senator, elected by a tremendous majority of in excess of ten percentage points, will be a voice in Washington like Senator Lincoln was throughout a six-week campaign in which he was deeply involved as a spokesperson for the Democratic Party in Pennsylvania and as the administration was right here in Harrisburg talking about the needs of Pennsylvania. They must be heard, Mr. President, and we will do everything that we possibly can over the next year until the next presidential election has been completed to make sure that those voices out there that are not being heard in Washington will be heard.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, apparently Senator Mellow, trying to hear a lot of voices, did not hear the voice of the campaign manager, Mr. Carville, for the successful candidate to the United States Senate last week when he said that Democrats should not be gloating about the victory, that there should be concern on both sides. As I sit here today this afternoon and listen to the debate in which we have once again debated on the floor of the Senate the past United States Senate race, we seem to have been debating United States Senate races on this floor since early last year, even before the tragic death of Senator Heinz, and I suspect we may hear more United States Senate debate before we get to the next election in 1992. We have also heard debate from Senator Fumo which apparently would have been more germane had it been in Trenton to debate the issues before our sister State of New Jersey, but apparently in having read some of the articles, Senator Fumo did not read the article the day after the election which had the election results, I assume, in the Philadelphia Inquirer about what happened in the State of New Jersey. We have obviously also heard the debate begin today on the presidential election for next year, and I assume that we will hear more of that. But, certainly, the Republican Party was deeply disappointed last Tuesday. We were deeply disappointed at the results of the election for the United States Senate, just as I know that our candidate Dick Thornburgh was deeply disappointed with not only his own results and performance but, obviously, with the outcome of that race. Certainly, in his concession speech and his conciliatory words to Senator Wofford, I believe he echoed, in fact, what did happen in Pennsylvania last week, and it was much more than a race between Dick Thornburgh and Harris Wofford but clearly was a race that took on national implications. Clearly in that race I give Senator Wofford and his people credit. They captured an issue that was very much on the minds of the people of Pennsylvania. They may not have resolved the issue, but they certainly talked about the issue of national health insurance. I know from talking to people in my district, and, by the way, a district which supported by about 53 percent the election of Dick Thornburgh over Harris Wofford, but nevertheless talking to people in that district, those people also have a concern about health care and health care costs, issues that are not of surprise to me because it has been an issue that I have talked about, an issue that we talked about in our districts and in Harrisburg at great length in prior years. But clearly the issue that was defined and the issue that propelled Senator Wofford to win the election was the issue of national health insurance. But one thing I know the people of my district continue to ask and the people of the Commonwealth are continuing to ask today, and I am sure they are going to continue to ask over the next year, is not only where is the plan, because they were patient and apparently willing to say that we are going to elect you, Senator Wofford, to find a plan, but the issue that people were very interested in is how are you going to pay for that plan, and when you look at the bottom line of how you are going to pay for a plan, then you have to go a little bit beyond the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. You have to look at other places where a plan like that is in existence. You do not have to go much farther than our neighboring country of Canada where, in fact, they have national health insurance. But national health insurance there has partially contributed to a 52 percent income tax across Canada. It has also partially contributed to a 15 percent sales tax in Canada, and those are the kinds of prices that the people of this country may have to pay if, in fact, national health insurance should come to our great country. That is a debate that will take place on the floor of the Senate of the United States and the House, and I am sure the Congress, perhaps before the next election, will deal with that issue. But I am also quite sure, just as the people in 1990 overwhelmingly elected the Casey-Singel Administration for another four years as Governor and Lieutenant Governor, that the people, when they realize what the cost of national health insurance will mean to them, may have some second thoughts about the 1991 election. You only have to look to recent statewide surveys to see how quickly the opinions of the people of this Commonwealth change. Yes, we know that in September when those who were asked were asked who they were going to vote for for the United States Senate said by a margin of about 44 points they were going to vote for Dick Thornburgh over the other candidate who, by the way, most people did not know at that time. But when you look at recent polls as that one that was taken last week of their impression of the Governor who they voted for just the year before of what their impression was, favorable or unfavorable, of Governor Casey in this Commonwealth, you find only 29 percent of the people of this Commonwealth have a favorable opinion of the Governor who they voted for just one year before. So I suspect that Senator Wofford as he begins his three-year term, and 1994 comes around quickly, I suspect as he begins that term he realizes, and I think if nobody else does probably Senator Wofford does more than anyone, how fast the mood of the people of this state can change. I suspect when they find out what the price tag is for the proposal that made them decide that Senator Wofford was their choice, that the mood of the people of this Commonwealth will, in fact, change. But last Tuesday was not totally a bleak day for the Republican Party in Pennsylvania. Last Tuesday night and Wednesday morning we woke up with the control of 11 new courthouses across this Commonwealth. The people of Berks, Cambria, Cameron, Carbon, Centre, Clearfield, Crawford, Juniata, Monroe, Warren and York elected Republican commissioners in those counties, whereas they had a Democrat majority before. Yes, I know that nine other counties they, likewise, made a switch in the other direction, but remember that net gain, even though it was just a net gain of two, was, in fact, a net gain, a net gain in the face of a rather lopsided election at the top of the ticket. I think if you examine those numbers and you examine even more local elections such as elections in my district where Republicans won back in Democratic communities local council seats that they had lost the previous two years and recaptured majorities, when you look at the City of Easton and the City of Williamsport which elected Republican mayors, you realize there were, in fact, Republican victories across this Commonwealth last Tuesday, and that the people are, in fact, selective. They are very selective. Although they may have rejected the former Governor and our candidate for United States Senate, they accepted our Republican candidates for many, many offices. For that we are proud. We believe that the people of this Commonwealth are not so narrow-minded and are not so shortsighted to attribute all of the blame, all of the domestic problems which we see here in Pennsylvania to the people in Washington or to the President. Certainly the President got the message. We hope he got the message as well as the Democratic Party hoped he got the message about the concern of attending to the issues domestically, but the people of Pennsylvania are not just blaming the Republican President in Washington.

There is an obligation on all of our parts and there is an obligation on this administration. When Senator Mellow says we have yet to see the President's domestic package for Pennsylvania, we have yet to see the Casey-Singel Administration's domestic package for Pennsylvania. We have yet to see it. I believe that the people of Pennsylvania, when they did see the domestic package, were not very happy with the package they were presented, a $2.8 billion package last August. That is why when the polls were taken last week on the favorability of the Casey-Singel Administration, it came back at 29 percent. So, yes, we are waiting for domestic packages, and the domestic package I think is the most important for the people of Pennsylvania will be the domestic package which we debate here on the floor of the Senate of Pennsylvania over the next year. We obviously have to keep our eyes on what happens in Washington.

Senator Mellow reflected on a poll that he heard today. Well, he must have done the same thing that I did the first time I heard it and switched stations, but the second time I heard it I kept the station on and I realized when the poll was run when it had that blank Democratic opponent that President Bush did not fare as well, but when he ran against the best known and the best named Democratic opponent, the Governor of our neighboring State of New York, he fared one heck of a lot better with a margin of almost 20 points in that poll. But that poll is not the poll that is going to determine. What is going to determine the fate of this country and the fate of this Commonwealth is what is going to happen not only across the country and in the halls of Congress but particularly for our state on the floor of the Senate and the floor of the House of Representatives. We recognize we have a long way to go. This year, the balance of this year and next year we certainly need to focus on the issues that are important to our people. We pledge to do that. We look for cooperation. We hope that we will hear the end of the 1991 Senate debates soon. We anticipate that we will probably hear some more of the 1992 United States Senate debate, but we are willing to hear that. But we stand here saying that Fortune Magazine may have rated the City of Pittsburgh very high in their category, number three, and I am very proud of that coming from that region, but I doubt very seriously if Fortune Magazine, when they did their survey, had the opportunity to take into consideration the negative impact of what happened on August 5th. As one from western Pennsylvania, I hope maybe they did, but I doubt that they did. As I look at the impact on employers in Pennsylvania, as I look at the impact on individuals in Pennsylvania, I see the fact that we went to the well for $2.8 billion without looking at alternatives is something that the people are not very happy about. I recognize there were alternatives. I advanced alternatives. A number of other Members of our caucus advanced alternatives, alternatives that were rejected by every Member of the Democratic Senate and, to my knowledge, every Member of the Democratic House. I say to you as we reexamine and try to develop a domestic package, we had better be looking at some of those alternatives as to whether or not we can reduce some of that tax bite by rolling back the taxes from increased revenues. Then maybe it is high time that we go out and we reach for that $600 million to $700 million that we could get from the State Stores to help reduce the tax burden on the people of Pennsylvania and quit keeping our head in the sand as to whether or not that is an issue that should come to Pennsylvania.

Mr. President, I welcome the opportunity to address these remarks. I am certain we are going to hear more of them, but I think we all have a big enough job to do here and we should recognize the words that Jim Carville gave across the nation, that the Democrats should not be any more comfortable than Republicans as a result of last week's election. No, it rings home no better than in Pennsylvania where I say the Democrats should not be any more comfortable with what happened last week than we are, and we all have a long way to go and we all need to work a lot harder this year to really get to what the people of this state want.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I am happy that Senator Fisher decided on at least two occasions to talk about the words of James Carville, who served as a campaign coordinator for Senator Harris Wofford, and not the words that were shared by Michele Davis, who served as the campaign coordinator of Mr. Thornburgh, because her quote was "Dick Thornburgh is the salvation of this sorry-assed state." I am happy that James Carville has the honor, the demeanor, the class and the professionalism to talk about Pennsylvania and an election for actually what it is. Mr. President, we are not going to go ahead and gloat over the election, as was suggested by the campaign manager, because the problem is much greater than that. The problem is one of presentation. It is one of presentation to the people of Pennsylvania and it is one of presentation to the people of the United States of America. The problem is that the Republicans in Pennsylvania and the Republicans in Washington, D.C. have failed miserably in their addressing of the issues that have confronted our people. Mr. President, any time you have been chosen to do something and you have failed in that task, then you as that individual, whether it be the President of the United States, the county commissioner from the county in which you live, the chairman of the board of supervisors or the president of your borough council, you must be held accountable to the people who have put you there, and I think what Mr. Carville was saying is that we cannot gloat over the election of Harris Wofford for the Democrat Party, but, in fact, we should look at it with a great degree of reluctance because of the failure of the current administration in Washington for the past 11 years and the disasters that have taken place in our states because of that failure. Mr. President, what we witnessed was a repudiation of Ronald Reagan, of Ronald Reagan's economics, of the trickle-down theory and as candidate George Bush said in 1980, that Ronald Reagan's policies were "voodoo economics." It has been the repudiation of the Reagan-Bush era and Administration.

Mr. President, Senator Fisher talked about the Casey Administration, and I am proud to say that Governor Casey is my constituent and proud to say that over the last five years the Casey Administration has done an outstanding job to present and to push forward this great state of ours under your direction also as Lieutenant Governor and Presiding Officer of the Pennsylvania State Senate. I can only feel by the tone of the gentleman's remarks that maybe he is still carrying a torch from 1986 because he talked about the lack of a domestic policy in Pennsylvania. Well, why do we not examine the domestic policy so that Senator Fisher can be certain that he knows we have one. Unfortunately, he has not admitted that we do. But let us look at what has taken place in Pennsylvania with regard to an energy policy and how we have been able to advance that over the last five years. Let us look, Mr. President, at what we have done with education and how Governor Casey will be known as the education Governor. Those of us who have served here for a few years know full well that on at least one occasion, and if memory may serve me correctly two occasions, the Republican Governor of Pennsylvania who preceded Governor Casey, who was just soundly defeated at the polls, did not put in any new money for education in at least two of his budgets after he raided the Lottery Fund. Let us look at what has happened with child welfare and day care and how the Governor has established an office within the Department of Education of day care and of early child intervention, to go ahead and to establish a domestic program and a domestic policy for children, our greatest natural resource. I am kind of surprised because Senator Fisher has been around a long time. I thought he knew these things. Let us look at his environmental program, and that is the one that really shocks me because Senator Fisher served as the Chairman in the Senate of the Committee on Environmental Resources and Energy. And I think he has heard of PENNVEST. I think he knows of that particular program that has put hundreds of millions of dollars back into our municipalities, back into our utilities to redevelop an infrastructure right here in this great state of ours. I am kind of shocked that Senator Fisher does not remember that as part of our domestic agenda. Then we should look at what has happened with economic development, of how we have gone ahead on the floor of this Senate under a Democratic Administration and gave business in Pennsylvania the largest tax reduction ever in the history of Pennsylvania by retiring the Unemployment Compensation Debt Fund owed by Pennsylvania businesses in Washington, created by a Republican Administration in Washington that in the 1980s had unemployment in Pennsylvania as high as 13 percent to 15 percent, and how the Governor at the time presided over the demise and the rusting of the steel industry in Allegheny County. I am surprised that Senator Fisher does not remember what we have done in Pennsylvania with a drug policy. The state Attorney General, who also happens to be one of my constituents, traveled throughout the state with the Governor of Pennsylvania proclaiming what a great drug policy we have right here in Pennsylvania, and maybe I should remind him that the federal drug czar came to Harrisburg and addressed a Joint Session because of the tremendous job that we have done right here in Pennsylvania to address the drug problems here in this great state of ours. And what we have done to try to aid the court system in Pennsylvania by mandating sentencing for various offenses, and, of course, Mr. President, I believe that the expansion of the ports and the kind of money that was put into the ports in Philadelphia and in Erie and in Pittsburgh, something I know that Senator Fisher had a great deal of interest in, was done under the Casey Administration. So I am kind of shocked that he had the fortitude to say that there is no domestic package right here in Pennsylvania. Or why do we not look at tax reform, something that the Republicans of Pennsylvania should be very proud of because they defeated tax reform. And why did they do that? They defeated it through a hired gun who masquerades as a college professor, funded by the Republican Party right here in the Senate of Pennsylvania through their various political action committees, and their staff people run around when he holds news conferences in the Rotunda to make sure that everyone has a copy of his remarks so that he can be projected as an independent college professor but, in fact, is an individual who is deeply involved with the Republican Party in the state Senate. And tax reform, Mr. President, means an equitable distribution on all Pennsylvanians based on your ability to pay taxes. Nothing else. That is all tax reform means. It means that if we had the program, that we could have gone ahead and our dependence upon property taxes would have been eliminated to a certain degree because people would have had to pay based on their ability to earn income. I just have the gut feeling that that might not have set well with some of the constituents who are represented by the 26 Republicans right here in the state Senate. I am sure they are proud of that because I know that a few of them have expressed how happy they are that they were able to defeat tax reform. But in doing so, what did they defeat? They defeated an opportunity for Pennsylvanians to be able to go ahead and to have a more equitable way of being taxed in Pennsylvania.

Mr. President, I am sure that Senator Fisher is totally aware of, in this last budget, what we did with children and youth programs in every county of Pennsylvania because I know that he was part of the budget negotiations, and I am sure that he is well aware of what did take place. Yes, Mr. President, we did pass a budget that reflected a $2.8 billion increase in taxes. Yes, Mr. President, those of us who had the intestinal fortitude to go ahead and to put our votes up to pay for those programs to a certain point have been criticized. Yes, Mr. President, it took a Governor who was prepared to go ahead and to meet the needs of our people of education, of energy, of economy, of the environment, of jobs, of our ports. It took a Governor who was prepared to go ahead and to call it the way it is, to say that the federal government is not doing its job. They pulled back federal revenue sharing on us during the Reagan Administration. They have gone ahead and the educational President has never been able to put his bucks where his talk was during a campaign and, therefore, we have had to do it right here in Pennsylvania. Did we do the job? Yes. Are we in a position, Mr. President, where people right now are looking at Pennsylvania as a bright keystone state in the United States? Yes. When you talk to business people, what will they tell you? They tell you that the thing they like the most about Pennsylvania is that we had a problem, that we predicted what the problem would be and we stabilized it, contrary to what was done in some of the other eastern seaboard states. Mr. President, maybe the guy that I feel sorry for the most is not right here on the east coast but who is a Republican Governor on the west coast, a man who served as a Member of the United States Senate from that great State of California, a man who had to go ahead and had to raise sales tax to, I believe, 8.5 percent, the largest in the United States, and extend it over almost every marketable item that is purchased in the State of California. And, yes, he is a Republican and he followed a Republican. The Governor of Texas, unfortunately, had to follow a Republican to try to clean up the mess. Mr. President, just look at what has happened in that great State of Connecticut where now a Republican turned Independent serves as the Governor of Connecticut. Mr. President, there are a lot of problems in this great country of ours, and if you want to go ahead, Republican Party, and you want to put your head in the sand and not recognize and realize they are there, well, then go ahead and do that. If there is one message that you should have learned from the election of last Tuesday, it is the message of James Carville. I think, perhaps, what you probably would like to do is hire him as your consultant, but I do not think that is possible. I think the one message you should have learned is that the people of this great country of ours are not gloating over what is happening in this great country of ours. The people of the United States and the people of Pennsylvania are very sad for what is taking place right here because the needs of middle-class America, those who have sent both Senator Fisher and Senator Mellow to the Senate of Pennsylvania, are not being met, and the Republican Party nationally has not done their job to address those issues.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I do not think I would have made any comments if I had not heard Senator Mellow almost get close to making that rising star quote which we heard last year, but when I hear him talk about the business people of Pennsylvania being happy with what was delivered to them, I cannot resist at least making just a few brief comments.

Clearly, Senator Mellow, I think, is missing the point of my remarks. I have recognized what happened in last week's election. I am not sure that he has because the people of Pennsylvania are not happy. They apparently are not happy with what the Casey Administration has brought them because what has made the people of Pennsylvania send that message is that there are things that are wrong here in this state, and to call this administration the education administration I think you need to go out and take a survey among educators. Just ask. In fact, you do not need to go much farther than this Capitol to ask where the money came from in this year's budget for education. Just compare the Governor's recommendation with what finally came out in the budget. If you also want to know what the people of this Commonwealth are thinking, I will share with you the poll results. Only 29 percent of them last week said they were favorably impressed with our Governor. We cannot place all the blame on the federal government. I am willing to place some of it there. But we have to accept as a state government some of the equal blame, and if the blame lies here, which I say it does, it not only lies in this Chamber, it lies with the administration. To think that the people of Pennsylvania are perfectly satisfied just because some of the things which were done in a bipartisan fashion and have been enumerated by Senator Mellow are enough is to misread last week's election results. We have a long way to go as a country, but we have equally as long a way to go as a state to solve the problems of this Commonwealth.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I just would like one final comment. I would just like Senator Fisher to realize that they are in control of the mechanism of this Senate. They control the committee structure. The people have elected them to control and to run the Senate of Pennsylvania, to advance a program and if, in their wisdom, they feel that the administration has not, then the mechanism is there for them to do that, and if they cannot do that I suggest either they come up with a program to get Pennsylvania on the road to recovery if that is, in fact, what they think, or give us the opportunity and move aside and we will do the job for you.

LEGISLATIVE JOURNAL

WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 1991

SESSION OF 1991

175TH OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

No. 68

SENATE

WEDNESDAY, November 13, 1991.

The Senate met at 11:00 a.m., Eastern Standard Time.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant Governor Mark S. Singel) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Reverend FRANCIS J. TAMBURRO, Pastor of Our Lady of the Blessed Sacrament Church, Harrisburg, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray.

God, our Father, open our eyes to see Your hand at work in the splendor of creation. In the beauty of human life touched by Your hand our world is holy. Help us to cherish the gifts that surround us. May we never forget that it is from Your fullness that we receive. Direct our steps in our everyday efforts. Bless and guide our deliberations. Continue to show us how great is the call to serve our sisters and brothers. May our eagerness to do good for others express our love for You.

For hearing our prayer, for pouring Your blessings and love into our hearts and lives, we praise You and we thank You. Through Jesus Christ, Your son and our Lord, who with the Holy Spirit live forever and ever. Amen.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair thanks Reverend Tamburro who is the guest today of Senator Shumaker.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present, the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding Session of Tuesday, November 12, 1991.

REGULATION REPORTED

THIRD CONSIDERATION CALENDAR RESUMED

BILL REREPORTED FROM COMMITTEE AS AMENDED ON THIRD CONSIDERATION AND FINAL PASSAGE

SB 1359 (Pr. No. 1672) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending the act of April 14, 1972 (P. L. 221, No. 63), entitled, as amended, "Pennsylvania Drug and Alcohol Abuse Control Act," further providing for the membership, powers and duties of the Pennsylvania Advisory Council on Substance Abuse, creating single county authorities; further providing for the powers, duties and responsibilities of the department, local authorities and single county authorities, and reestablishing and continuing the Council as the Pennsylvania Board on Drug and Alcohol Abuse.

Considered the third time and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Senator JONES. Mr. President, it is not every day that we can say that we have before us a bill that really makes a positive difference for Pennsylvanians. Today with Senate Bill No. 1359, we can make a real difference. Many people deserve credit for this bill, but I particularly want to thank the two able-bodied Chairmen of the Committee on Public Health and Welfare, the gentleman from Venango, Senator Peterson, and the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Williams. I commend you and your excellent staff for their hard work and for their caring.

Mr. President, there is one part of this bill that is very important to me and that I really want to highlight today. Senate Bill No. 1359 gives special recognition to the needs of pregnant addicted women and addicted mothers. I cannot tell you how happy I am today that we as a Legislature will really send the message that we finally understand that women have been unrepresented in receiving drug and alcohol service in Pennsylvania. Today I believe we can begin to change that. This change will benefit all of us in the long run, but especially our children, who are our future.

Mr. President, today as we pass Senate Bill No. 1359, we take a real step forward, and I urge all of my colleagues here to please vote in the affirmative.

And the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—49

Afflerbach	Fumo	Loeper	Robbins
Andrezski	Greenleaf	Lynch	Salvatore
Armstrong	Greenwood	Madigan	Scanlon

LEGISLATIVE JOURNAL

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 18, 1991

SESSION OF 1991 175TH OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

No. 69

SENATE

MONDAY, November 18, 1991.

The Senate met at 2:00 p.m., Eastern Standard Time.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant Governor Mark S. Singel) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Reverend JAMES REICHERT, Pastor of Sacred Heart Roman Catholic Church, Reading, offered the following prayer:

God, source of all good and blessings, we thank You for everything You have given us, especially this day, our health, our nation and our state.

Grant to our Governor and all lawful authority the love of truth, honesty and righteousness. Keep them healthy and help them always remember that they are Your servants called to lead and serve the good people of the State of Pennsylvania.

Give to this Senate wisdom to understand and appreciate the needs of all our citizens, especially the poor, whether it be in mind, body or soul. Give us patience so that we may appreciate the different points of view in our pursuit of truth. Give us the love for all, especially our colleagues, that in spite of our political differences, may we always remember that we are brothers and sisters and You are our Father. We ask this in Your name. Amen.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair thanks Father Reichert who is the guest today of Senator O'Pake.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present, the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding Session of November 13, 1991.

HOUSE MESSAGES

HOUSE BILLS FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the House of Representatives presented to the Senate the following bills for concurrence, which were referred to the committees indicated:

November 13, 1991

HB 805 — Committee on State Government.

HB 1621 — Committee on Local Government.

HB 1627 — Committee on Agriculture and Rural Affairs.

November 18, 1991

HB 1981 — Committee on Labor and Industry.

BILL INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

The PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following Senate Bill numbered, entitled and referred as follows, which was read by the Clerk:

November 13, 1991

Senators STEWART, STOUT, ANDREZESKI, AFFLERBACH and HART presented to the Chair SB 1416, entitled:

An Act amending the act of May 28, 1937 (P. L. 955, No. 265), entitled, as amended, "Housing Authorities Law," further providing for powers of an authority.

Which was committed to the Committee on URBAN AFFAIRS AND HOUSING, November 13, 1991.

RESOLUTION INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

The PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following Senate Resolution numbered, entitled and referred as follows, which was read by the Clerk:

November 13, 1991

SENATE RESOLUTION

PROCLAIMING DECEMBER 15 THROUGH
22, 1991, AS "JUROR APPRECIATION
WEEK, 200 YEARS OF THE AMERICAN JURY: JUSTICE BY THE PEOPLE"

Senators GREENLEAF, BELL, AFFLERBACH, WENGER, PORTERFIELD, TILGHMAN, REIBMAN, SALVATORE, BELAN, ANDREZESKI and HELFRICK offered the following resolution (Senate Resolution No. 114), which was read and referred to the Committee on Judiciary:

In the Senate, November 13, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Proclaiming December 15 through 22, 1991, as "Juror Appreciation Week, 200 years of the American Jury: Justice by the People."

WHEREAS, For 200 years Americans have benefited from the protection offered by the right to trial by jury guaranteed through the Bill of Rights; and

WHEREAS, The right to a trial by jury in both criminal and civil cases is guaranteed by the Sixth and Seventh Amendments of the United States Constitution and, separately, by Article I, section 6 of the Constitution of Pennsylvania; and

WHEREAS, Thomas Jefferson emphasized that "trial by jury [is] the only anchor every yet imagined by man, by which a government can be held to the principles of its constitution"; and

WHEREAS, The right to a civil jury trial in America dates back at least as far as 1641, when the Massachusetts "Body of Liberties" was enacted, and thus predates any other right guaranteed by the Bill of Rights; and

WHEREAS, The British denial of the right to trial by jury was one of the principal transgressions that sparked the American Revolution and was one of only two specific violations of fundamental common law rights cited in the Declaration of Independence as justification for the Revolution; and

WHEREAS, The absence of the right to trial by jury in the parent Constitution sparked debate which eventually led to the creation of the Bill of Rights; and

WHEREAS, Then-Justice William Rehnquist once explained, "The founders of our Nation considered the right of trial by jury in civil cases an important bulwark against tyranny and corruption, a safeguard to precious to be left to the whim of the sovereign, or, it might be added, to that of the judiciary... Trial by a jury of laymen rather than by the sovereign's judges was important to the founders because juries represent the laymen's common sense, the 'passional elements in our nature,' and thus keep the administration of law in accord with the wishes and feelings of the community"; and

WHEREAS, Since the Bill of Rights was ratified in December 1791, the jury has acted as an unbiased finder of truth and the most elemental representative body of all citizens and thus has played a pivotal role in balancing the scales of justice, equalizing the rights of the poor and the powerless with the privileges of the rich and powerful, nullifying unjust laws, securing other hallowed rights guaranteed by the Bill of Rights and, most importantly, extending and preserving democracy; and

WHEREAS, During the 1980's there were more than 150,000 civil and criminal jury trials per year in the United States, and more than 5,000,000 people called for jury duty annually; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That in celebration of this cherished privilege of trial by jury, the Senate proclaim the week of December 15 through 22, 1991, as "Juror Appreciation Week, 200 Years of the American Jury: Justice by the People."

GENERAL COMMUNICATION

DEPARTMENT OF ENVIRONMENTAL RESOURCES
ANNUAL REPORT OF THE PENNSYLVANIA CONSERVATION CORPS

The PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following communication, which was read by the Clerk as follows:

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA
Department of Labor and Industry
Harrisburg, PA 17120

October 25, 1991

John J. Zubeck
Chief Clerk
House of Representatives

Mark R. Corrigan
Secretary of the Senate

Gentlemen:

It is with pride and pleasure that I submit the Pennsylvania Conservation Corps Annual Report for 1990-91. Preserving our environment and teaching our youth the values of hard work, citizenship and service are among Pennsylvania's and the nation's highest priorities. The Pennsylvania Conservation Corps does both.

During FY 90-91, nearly 300 corpsmembers served in 64 projects across the Commonwealth. This year also represented a year of transition as Labor and Industry assumed administrative responsibility for the Corps, linking it with our community service efforts through PennSERVE—the Governor's Office of Citizen Service—and the Department's Youth Education and Service Unit.

This linkage has allowed us to substantially increase the number of young people serving in corps. Local corps were launched in Berks and Lycoming Counties and the cities of Bethlehem, Bradford and Erie. These new corps enrolled 65 corpsmembers in more than 20 projects with Pennsylvania Conservation Corps support. The Summer Youth Service Corps enrolled nearly 2,000 youth in 201 projects in rural, suburban and urban areas with technical assistance and a small subsidy from the Pennsylvania Conservation Corps. The bulk of the $2.7 million for the Summer Corps came from federal Job Training Partnership Act funds.

As we look to the future, we are pledged to continue the focus of the Corps on environmental preservation and youth development. We will strengthen the educational program of the Corps and aggressively leverage the Corps' resources through cooperative agreements with other agencies and active outreach for funding through the National and Community Service Act of 1990. Our goal is to operate the finest youth conservation and service corps system in the nation.

Sincerely,

THOMAS P. FOLEY
Secretary

The PRESIDENT. This report will be filed in the Library.

APPOINTMENT BY MAJORITY LEADER

The PRESIDENT. The Chair wishes to announce the Majority Leader has made the following appointment:

Senator Earl M. Baker as a member of the Board of the Southeastern Pennsylvania Transportation Authority.

SPECIAL ORDER OF BUSINESS ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SECRETARY

The SECRETARY. Consent has been given for the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations to meet during today's Session to consider Senate Bill No. 960 and certain nominations.

RESOLUTION IN PLACE

Senator O'PAKE presented to the Chair a resolution.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Senator O'PAKE asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Senator O'PAKE. Mr. President, I rise in place and offer to the Chair a resolution, and I invite cosponsorship. The resolution will be with the Secretary. What the resolution does is urges all pharmaceutical manufacturers to follow the lead of Bristol-Myers Squibb and agree to provide a 12.5 percent volume discount, as we mandated in August, and reenter the PACE Program so that the senior citizens of Pennsylvania will continue to enjoy the $6.00 copay for their prescription drugs under the PACE Program.

The PRESIDENT. Senator O'Pake offers a resolution. The Chair would point out that the resolution will remain at the desk for others to cosponsor.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I would request a temporary Capitol leave for Senator Hopper.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Jones and Senator Porterfield and legislative leave for Senator Williams.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Fisher asks temporary Capitol leave for Senator Hopper. Senator Mellow asks temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Jones and Senator Porterfield and a legislative leave for Senator Williams. The Chair hears no objection. Those leaves will be granted.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION

WEEKLY ADJOURNMENT

Senator LOEPER offered the following resolution, which was read as follows:

In the Senate, November 18, 1991.

RESOLVED, (the House of Representatives concurring), That when the Senate adjourns this week it reconvene on Monday, November 25, 1991, unless sooner recalled by the President Pro Tempore of the Senate; and be it further

RESOLVED, That when the House of Representatives adjourns this week it reconvene on Monday, November 25, 1991, unless sooner recalled by the Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Senator LOEPER asked and obtained unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of this resolution.

On the question,
Will the Senate adopt the resolution?

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION ADOPTED

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do adopt this resolution.

On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the motion?

LEGISLATIVE LEAVE CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT. The Chair recognizes the presence on the floor of Senator Porterfield. His temporary Capitol leave will be cancelled.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Senator LOEPER and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—50

Afflerbach	Fumo	Loeper	Robbins

NAYS—0

A majority of the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Secretary of the Senate present the same to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVE CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT. The Chair recognizes the presence on the floor of Senator Jones. Her temporary Capitol leave will be cancelled.

RECESS

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, at this time, for the information of the Members, I would ask for a Republican caucus to begin immediately in the first floor caucus room, with an expectation of trying to return to the floor by approximately 4:00 o'clock p.m.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I do not believe there is anything at this point in time on the Calendar that would necessitate a caucus of the Democratic Members so, therefore, I do not believe we will need one.

The PRESIDENT. For the purpose of a Republican caucus to begin immediately, the Senate will stand in recess.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having expired, the Senate will come to order.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVE

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I would request a Capitol leave on behalf of Senator Helfrick who has been called to his office.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Loeper requests temporary Capitol leave for Senator Helfrick. The Chair hears no objection. That leave will be granted.
