On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator LEWIS. Mr. President, the amendment would only make one change in the bill as it is now before us in its currently amended form, and that is to delete the provision which would mandate the merger of the Crime Victim's Compensation Board with the PCCD, the Pennsylvania Commission on Crime and Delinquency. This is a matter that has entailed some debate, some difference of opinion among various observers, members of the Committee on Judiciary. I offer the amendment to strike the obligatory merger because it seems to me that there are two main issues here which become confused if the bill remains in its current form.

Most importantly, one of the functions of the PCCD is to support, work with crime victims advocacy groups all over this Commonwealth and they have been doing an excellent job with respect to that function. However, the Crime Victim's Compensation Board is an adjudicatory board. It has a different charter and a different mission as established by this General Assembly, namely to determine what circumstances are consistent with the law of this Commonwealth and then provide compensation accordingly. I believe, and others who have studied this issue are concerned that a merger of an advocacy role and an adjudicatory role could lead to confusion and an inability for a single agency to do a job in the satisfactory way that both of these agencies are now performing their function. And so, for that as the first reason, I think it is a mistake to merge these two boards.

Secondly, there has been offered as justification for the merger the suggestion that there could well be a cost savings to be experienced if this were to take place. I have been very interested in this subject and have attempted to ascertain the validity of that proposition but must say to my colleagues that I find it to be nothing more than speculation. In fact, it appears to me that the reality of what will happen if these boards are merged is to actually increase the ultimate cost to this Commonwealth rather than to decrease the cost. So from the standpoint of prudent financial management and from the standpoint of trying to continue to do the best job we can for crime victims in Pennsylvania, I would urge the adoption of the amendment and the maintenance of the independent identity of the Crime Victim's Compensation Board.

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, I rise to oppose the amendment. Certainly on this issue I think there is a point for reasonable disagreement, but I think the arguments are in favor of merging these two operations. Seven states have combined all victims services such as Connecticut, Michigan, Oregon, Wisconsin, Iowa, Florida and New York; and three others, New Hampshire, North Carolina and South Carolina, have combined most of their services. I think it is important for us, if we are really going to have a legitimate Sunset review process, that we should have a process in which we should try to improve the agencies that are working under the state government that will save money and that will streamline their operations. I think the proposal as it is now accomplishes both those goals. It will save certainly the board's salaries that are now being paid of well over $150,000 a year once they go out of office. In addition, there are 44 states that have compensation programs, and Pennsylvania is only one of three with a full-time board. New York recently combined compensation programs with the victim services which we are now proposing to do. So it would really only leave New Jersey and Pennsylvania as having a full-time board. The National Association of Victim Compensation Boards has said that the time has come for victim compensation programs and victim witness assistance programs to work together closely. I think it is important for Pennsylvania to join the 44 other states in this nation and to streamline and to save money and to combine both our victim compensation services and victim service agencies into one present agency. I would urge a negative vote on the amendment.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I, too, would urge a negative vote on this amendment. If the Sunset process is to mean anything to this Commonwealth, I believe this is a perfect example where we can save, not a significant amount of money, but at least begin starting to save some money for the taxpayers. We have two agencies with overlapping duties. I believe it is very appropriate to merge the role of the Crime Victim's Compensation Board with the Commission on Crime and Delinquency. The Commission on Crime and Delinquency has for the past decade been involved in victim and witness services programs. This is a clear example where we can save money without any, and I emphasize without any, negative impact to the program that is part of this legislation.

I would urge a negative vote on this amendment and, hopefully, we can proceed forward with the bill and continue to provide the services as we have in a streamlined fashion.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, there are various meetings that are being held in Members' offices right now with Cabinet people who have been appointed and have not yet received their public hearing, and for that reason there are a number of people who I must put on temporary Capitol leave. I request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Afflerbach, Senator Bortner, Senator Fattah, Senator Jones, Senator Lincoln, Senator Lynch and Senator Schwartz.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Mellow requests temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Afflerbach, Senator Bortner, Senator Fattah, Senator Jones, Senator Lincoln, Senator Lynch and Senator Schwartz. The Chair hears no objection. Those leaves will be granted.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I would request a temporary Capitol leave for Senator Loeper.

SENATE RESOLUTIONS

DESIGNATING THE WEEK OF NOVEMBER 18 THROUGH 24, 1991, AS "WOMEN IN MILITARY SERVICE FOR AMERICA WEEK" AND ENCOURAGING PENNSYLVANIANS TO HONOR WOMEN IN THE MILITARY BY CONTRIBUTING TO THE WOMEN IN MILITARY SERVICE FOR AMERICA MEMORIAL FOUNDATION

Senators GREENWOOD, PUNT, JUBELIRER, FISHER, BRIGHTBILL, SHUMAKER, REIBMAN, BELAN, STOUT, TILGHMAN, AFFLERBACH, BELL, CORMAN, SCHWARTZ, PORTERFIELD, STAPLETON, HART, SALVATORE, JONES, FUMO, RHOADES, O'PAKE, ROBBINS, ANDREZESKI and LYNCH offered the following resolution (Senate Resolution No. 115), which was read, considered and adopted:

In the Senate, November 18, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Designating the week of November 18 through 24, 1991, as "Women in Military Service for America Week" and encouraging Pennsylvanians to honor women in the military by contributing to the Women in Military Service for America Memorial Foundation.

WHEREAS, American women have served this nation in its armed forces with courage, strength, ability and adaptability; and

WHEREAS, Women have fought for liberty throughout our nation's history. Women nursed and supported the Continental Army during the Revolutionary War and women, black and white, served as nurses, saboteurs, scouts and couriers during the Civil War; and

WHEREAS, The invaluable service of over 1,500 female nurses during the Spanish-American War led to the creation of the Army Nurse Corps in 1901 and Navy Nurse Corps in 1908; and

WHEREAS, When World War I erupted, 35,000 nurses braved the front lines over and over again, treating the sick and wounded and other women enlisted in the Navy and Marine Corps, or worked as Army switchboard operators; and

WHEREAS, During World War II, due to the urgency of protecting our nation, over 400,000 women took on new military roles, performing a wide range of assignments from nurse, stenographer and translator to pilot and gunner's mate, and were given military rank for the first time; and

WHEREAS, In 1948, the Women's Armed Services Integration Act gave women a permanent place in the armed forces, and since that time, women have served with honor in Korea, Vietnam and Panama as well as in peacetime; and

WHEREAS, 35,000 American women served in the Persian Gulf during Operation Desert Shield and Operation Desert Storm, a conflict in which 15 American women were killed and three were taken prisoner and later released; and

WHEREAS, Today more than 400,000 women are on active duty or are reserve and guard members of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Marine Corps and Coast Guard, and there are 1.2 million living women veterans; and

WHEREAS, In today's armed forces, women are partners with men, constituting over 10% of the total numbers; and

WHEREAS, Both Houses of Congress unanimously adopted legislation authorizing the construction of the Women in Military Service for America Memorial to honor America's grandmothers, mothers, daughters, sisters and friends who served and continue to serve our nation with distinction and valor; and

WHEREAS, The memorial will be built at the unfinished main gateway to Arlington National Cemetery and will fill a major void in that proud city of memorials and monuments because it will tell the story of the contributions of women to the nation; and

WHEREAS, The memorial will house a register and a cultural-education center, including a movie telling the stories of military women's service, sacrifice and achievement, making their contributions a visible part of our history, illustrating women's partnership with men in the defense of our nation and inspiring other women to emulate, follow and surpass them; and

WHEREAS, The Women in Military Service for America Memorial Foundation, Inc. is the nonprofit organization mandated by Congress to raise funds and erect the memorial; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Senate designate the week of November 18 through 24, 1991, as "Women in Military Service for America Week" in Pennsylvania; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the Senate encourage all Pennsylvanians to honor women in the military by contributing to the Women in Military Service for America Memorial Foundation.

HONORING THOMAS F. LAMB

Senators SCANLON, MELLOW, LINCOLN, JUBELIRER, LOEPER, BODACK, O'PAKE, FISHER, WENGER, SALVATORE, FUMO, BELAN, LEWIS, BORTNER, SHUMAKER, WILLIAMS, ANDREZESKI, ROBBINS, BRIGHTBILL, RHOADES, PORTERFIELD, SCHWARTZ, REIBMAN, CORMAN, TILGHMAN, LYNCH, MUSTO, DAWIDA, HOLL, STOUT, PECORA, STAPLETON and HART offered the following resolution (Senate Resolution No. 116), which was read, considered and adopted:

In the Senate, November 18, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Honoring Thomas F. Lamb.

WHEREAS, Thomas F. Lamb, Secretary for Legislative Affairs, will retire from office December 31, 1991, after four years of distinguished service; and

WHEREAS, Tom Lamb has served the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in many capacities. First elected to the House of Representatives in 1958, he served four terms and then in 1966 went on to serve in the Pennsylvania Senate, where he was elected Senate Majority Leader; and

WHEREAS, Senator Lamb, a Lieutenant in the United States Navy from 1942 through 1946, the Director of Governmental Relations for the University of Pittsburgh from 1976 through 1987 and a prominent member of the Pennsylvania legal community, leaves a legacy of distinguished and honorable service to this Commonwealth; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Senate express its appreciation to Secretary Lamb for his many years of dedicated and honorable service to the Commonwealth.

CONGRATULATING ARMSTRONG WORLD INDUSTRIES, INC., ON ITS 100th ANNIVERSARY OF INCORPORATION IN THE COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

Senators ARMSTRONG, WENGER, LaVALLE, CORMAN, HOLL, JUBELIRER, REIBMAN, SHUMAKER, O'PAKE, SCHWARTZ, SALVATORE, PECORA, FISHER, ROBBINS and BAKER offered the following resolution (Senate Resolution No. 117), which was read, considered and adopted:

In the Senate, November 18, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Congratulating Armstrong World Industries, Inc., on its 100th Anniversary of incorporation in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

WHEREAS, The business enterprise that is today known as Armstrong World Industries, Inc., was founded at Pittsburgh in 1860; and

WHEREAS, The company was incorporated on December 30, 1891, and the corporate charter was signed by then Governor Robert E. Pattison; and

WHEREAS, In 1895, the company's name was changed from Armstrong Bro. & Company to Armstrong Cork Company; and

WHEREAS, The international headquarters for the company was moved to Lancaster, Pennsylvania, in 1929; and

WHEREAS, The company made its last name change in 1980 to Armstrong World Industries, Inc.; and

WHEREAS, Some 430,000 business corporations are currently registered in the Commonwealth, and of these, only 35 are as old as Armstrong World Industries, Inc.; and

WHEREAS, Armstrong World Industries, Inc., and its subsidiaries have a significant business presence in the Commonwealth with six plants at Beaver Falls, Beech Creek, Lancaster, Lansdale, Marietta and Quakertown; and

WHEREAS, Armstrong World Industries, Inc., employs 7,000 Pennsylvanians requiring an annual payroll in excess of $200 million; and

WHEREAS, In American business, it is rare for a company to operate under one unbroken thread of ownership and management for a century; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Senate congratulate Armstrong World Industries, Inc., on its 100th Anniversary of incorporation; and be it further RESOLVED, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted to Armstrong World Industries, Inc.

CONGRATULATORY RESOLUTIONS

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I know all of us as Members of the Senate and, of course, the President of the Senate himself as Lieutenant Governor and Governor Casey are justifiably concerned about jobs in Pennsylvania. That has to be the number one issue on our minds. It is the number one issue, I still believe, on the minds of the people of Pennsylvania. There is one job issue that has recently come to my attention which disturbs me greatly and that is the question of a contract which has been awarded by the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce through the Pennsylvania Department of Commerce's lead advertising agency to a Utah firm, and that contract is a contract for servicing the 800 telephone number which is known as 1-800-VISITPA. I would encourage the President or the Minority Leader, if they so wished, to dial that number, 1-800-VISITPA, and you will find that it is a service which is under contract with the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to promulgate advertising material, and upon getting someone at the other end, I would encourage them to ask them where they are situated currently. I suggest that once you get that answer, the answer will be in the State of Utah because, in fact, the telemarketing firm that has been hired by the Commonwealth is a telemarketing firm known as Matrixx Marketing of Ogden, Utah, and currently they have as many as 200 operators who, from time to time, take phone calls on the 1-800-VISITPA line. I think this contract is one which is intolerable under the circumstances which we live in today in this Commonwealth. There are many, many advertising agencies throughout the Commonwealth, some with telemarketing capability, other independent telemarketing outfits that I believe could service this contract. I first became aware of the existence of the contract with this Utah company back in September. At that time I wrote to the Secretary of the Department of Commerce, the Acting Secretary Mr. Greenberg, and asked him for information about that contract. I did, in fact, learn that the contract was entered into in July of 1989 with Matrixx Marketing, and it was a one-year contract. I additionally learned that the contract was entered into as a result of a RFP that was issued some time in 1988. There were certain standards that were set in that contract which apparently, as a result of the setting of those standards, resulted in most Pennsylvania firms being unable to respond appropriately to the bid. As a result, Pennsylvania telemarketing firms have been denied the opportunity to serve in Pennsylvania's tourism industry. Here we have a situation where we have Pennsylvania telemarketing firms who could do just as good a job. The answer from the Secretary of Commerce is that there is no telemarketing firm large enough in Pennsylvania to handle up to 200 calls a day. I just do not believe that makes any sense. If you look and you see what kind of a project has been undertaken by this Utah firm, what you will see is a project that could easily be divided by regions of the country. If, in fact, there are no telemarketing firms in Pennsylvania with 200 operators, I know for certain, and I know this because of the number of calls we have already received as a result of the radio discussions that have been had about this subject back in Pittsburgh, that there are a number of telemarketing firms that can do just as good a job as the Utah firm is attempting to do. Maybe they do not have the capability for 200 operators, but certainly four Pennsylvania firms together with 50 operators could be on call to stand by to do this kind of work. As a result of my letter in September to Acting Secretary Greenberg, he supplied us with some documentation that was requested. We received this documentation, and what I did learn was that perhaps at this stage there is no binding contract with the Matrixx Marketing Company. In fact, the last document that was forwarded to me was for the year July of 1990 through June of 1991. In addition, we were able to find out that the contract price for the past fiscal year was close to three quarters of a million dollars, $750,000. I suspect with what I hope is the growth of marketing and advertising for our state, that perhaps even more calls will be coming in and that contract price during this current fiscal year could mean as much as a million dollars, but, unfortunately, we are paying that million dollars to a Utah company rather than to a Pennsylvania company. Mr. President, I believe this is intolerable, as I said before. If, in fact, there is no binding contract in force today with Matrixx Marketing—and based on the information I have, I am led to believe that perhaps there is no binding contract for this current fiscal year—then, Mr. President, I would call on the Acting Secretary of Commerce to immediately cancel the contract and to phase out the contract with the Utah company and to immediately let that contract to qualified Pennsylvania companies who I am sure can do the job. Let us move 200 jobs back to Pennsylvania. Let us give Pennsylvania telemarketing firms an opportunity to service this product. If, in fact, the size of the firm is not what is needed today, I am sure that by bringing in this kind of business to Pennsylvania—and that is what we are all about—that some successful firm, perhaps, will be able to grow and be able to provide more jobs for our Commonwealth.

Mr. President, I bring this to the attention of my colleagues in the Senate because I think it is a serious matter. I think it is a matter, when we are talking about jobs in Pennsylvania, where we have to examine what jobs there are that we create through state government. It is sad for me to learn that 200 jobs were created through the $7 million of tourism to go to people working in the State of Utah. I am sure it is a fine firm, but they are not in state, and I am just as sure there are many other fine Pennsylvania firms that can do the job better, employ our people and bring these jobs back to our Commonwealth.

Mr. President, I seriously present those remarks in the hope that if, in fact, there is no binding contract, that this contract can be terminated and we can begin putting these people to work right here in our Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Fisher.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Fisher, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator FISHER. I will, Mr. President.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I think I heard Senator Fisher say that on an RFP, a request for proposal, that Pennsylvania firms could not respond. Could he please elaborate on that?

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I believe what I said is that on the RFP, that those Pennsylvania firms who responded apparently did not respond with the capability of providing the number of operators that were provided by the Utah company. However, that does not excuse the fact that, in fact, a number of Pennsylvania firms who responded, and I believe there were eight to ten Pennsylvania firms who responded, could have easily divided up this work and done the work as efficiently, I believe, as a Utah firm has attempted to do over the past two to three years.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, could Senator Fisher tell us if the Pennsylvania firms that did respond, did they respond in accord with the RFP?

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, based on the information that we were provided, I believe that they did respond in conformance with the RFP; however, there were certain standards set as a result of the contract as it was awarded that basically have prohibited Pennsylvania firms to subsequently try to come in to compete as a result of the setting of those standards.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, can Senator Fisher share with us if he has any of the history of this program as to in the past whether Pennsylvania firms were, in fact, doing this particular job?

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, from the information supplied to me by the Acting Secretary of Commerce, I do not have any knowledge as to whether or not there had ever been a Pennsylvania firm doing the job or whether or not there had been a prior contract prior to the one awarded in July 1989 to Matrixx Advertising.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I thank the gentleman.

I believe that Senator Fisher has brought interesting points from the brief knowledge that I have of it. I also understand that there were some firms from Pennsylvania who were doing the job previously but did not have the ability or the capacity to respond to the somewhere between five and seven thousand calls that are made daily when this particular program is in effect. I would share with the gentleman that if there is, in fact, a firm in Pennsylvania that can do the job and can respond appropriately to the RFP and, in fact, is in a position of being able to go ahead and do the job in accordance with that, then obviously we should be doing business with a Pennsylvania firm. But if we find, Mr. President, that in the establishment and in the request of the information from the RFP, that if, in fact, a Pennsylvania corporation cannot do the job and does not have the capacity or the ability to go ahead and to do the job, well, then I think, Mr. President, it is good government, it would be good business if we were dealing with a business interest. It just serves as good government and good business to go to a firm that, in fact, could do the job, regardless whether they were in Pennsylvania or in any of our other surrounding states or if it had to be a state out west, as far west as Utah. I would like to believe, Mr. President, that the fact that this has taken place in the Department of Commerce had all to do with the fact that according to the RFP, a Pennsylvania firm did not respond that could adequately handle between five and seven thousand calls per day when the promotion is taking place.

I think, secondly, Mr. President, it is very important, and I would hope that it was also followed and I feel very comfortable that it was, that the company that did receive the awarding of the RFP or awarding of a contract is a type of company that financially would represent the best interest of the people they are representing by contractual agreement. In this particular case that would be the taxpayer of Pennsylvania. I would like to think that Senator Fisher is not over there talking to us about the fact that although this promotion is being handled out of a telecommunication group in the State of Utah, I do not believe that he would be advocating that at potentially spending additional money, more money than would need be necessary, that we should give it to a company that would be located right here in the state if, in fact, they cannot meet up with the request for proposal that has been requested or had been requested by the Department of Commerce and if, in fact, it would cost the taxpayers of Pennsylvania more money. But I can assure Senator Fisher that since he brought this to the attention on the floor of the Senate, that we will look into the matter further.

ADJOURNMENT

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I move the Senate do now adjourn until Tuesday, November 19, 1991, at 1:00 p.m., Eastern Standard Time.

The motion was agreed to.

The Senate adjourned at 5:17 p.m., Eastern Standard Time.

LEGISLATIVE JOURNAL

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1991

SESSION OF 1991 175TH OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

No. 70

SENATE

TUESDAY, November 19, 1991.

The Senate met at 1:00 p.m., Eastern Standard Time.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant Governor Mark S. Singel) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Monsignor WILLIAM HANDGES, Pastor of Saint Margaret's Roman Catholic Church, Reading, offered the following prayer:

Let us bow our heads and put ourselves into the presence of God.

Almighty Father, You have created everything and everyone in our world. You have shared with us Your gift to rule over and to govern all creation. Bless these men and women, our Senators, to enact legislation and regulations which benefit every man, woman and child in our Commonwealth. Help them always to seek the good of all those people who have elected them to their important and responsible position. Give to each one of them the serenity to accept the things they cannot change, the courage to change the things they can and the wisdom to know the difference, and we ask this through Christ, Our Lord. Amen.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair thanks Monsignor Handges who is the guest today of Senator O'Pake.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present, the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding Session of November 18, 1991.

RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

The PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following Senate Resolutions numbered, entitled and referred as follows, which were read by the Clerk:

November 19, 1991

ESTABLISHING A SPECIAL TASK FORCE TO INVESTIGATE THE PROBLEM OF SEXUAL HARASSMENT IN THE WORKPLACE

Senators ANDREZESKI, BELAN and REIBMAN offered the following resolution (Senate Resolution No. 118), which was read and referred to the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations:

In the Senate, November 19, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Establishing a special task force to investigate the problem of sexual harassment in the workplace.

WHEREAS, Harassment on the basis of sex is a violation of both the United States Civil Rights Act and the Pennsylvania Human Relations Act; and

WHEREAS, On the basis of those acts, the Commonwealth must ensure that employers do not condone or tolerate the harassment of any employee, whether male or female, through unwanted, unwelcome and unsolicited sexual advances as a condition of employment or in the course of performing his or her job; and

WHEREAS, There are questions concerning the effectiveness of remedies provided for by the courts and the Pennsylvania Human Relations Commission to prevent and eliminate the problem of sexual harassment in the workplace; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That a special task force be established to investigate the problem of sexual harassment in the workplace, to assess the adequacy of existing remedies aimed at preventing and eliminating sexual harassment, and to make recommendations to the General Assembly concerning appropriate actions to educate both employers and employees in recognizing and resolving the problem of sexual harassment in the workplace; and be it further

RESOLVED, That this task force be appointed by the President pro tempore of the Senate and be composed of seven members, including two members from the majority party, one member from the minority party, and four at-large members consisting of two representatives of employers and two representatives of employees; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the committee may hold hearings, take testimony and make its investigations at such places as it deems necessary in this Commonwealth. Each member of the committee shall have power to administer oaths and affirmations to witnesses appearing before the committee; and be it further

RESOLVED, That the task force make a full report of its findings and recommendations to the General Assembly no later than 90 days from the adoption of this resolution.

URGING PHARMACEUTICAL MANUFACTURERS TO COMPLY WITH PACE PROGRAM VOLUME DISCOUNTS

Senators O'PAKE, MELLOW, STEWART, DAWIDA, AFFLERBACH, REIBMAN, BELAN, LYNCH and

STAPLETON offered the following resolution (Senate Resolution No. 119), which was read and referred to the Committee on Aging and Youth:

In the Senate, November 19, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Urging pharmaceutical manufacturers to comply with PACE program volume discounts.

WHEREAS, The Pharmaceutical Assistance Contract for the Elderly (PACE) was created by the General Assembly in 1984 to use Lottery Fund proceeds to pay for prescription drugs for eligible, elderly residents of Pennsylvania; and

WHEREAS, The creation of PACE, the largest single purchaser of prescription drugs in this Commonwealth and possibly the nation, resulted in guaranteeing pharmaceutical manufacturers a large market for their products, escalating their sales and enhancing their profit margins; and

WHEREAS, Since 1984, while the national rate of inflation rose 57%, prescription drug prices have risen 152%, and the pharmaceutical industry's annual profit margin of 15.5% has averaged more than three times that of the average Fortune 500 company; and

WHEREAS, The unrelenting increases in prescription drug prices have outpaced the ability of the Lottery Fund to continue to underwrite PACE by paying the full retail price and simultaneously remain solvent; and

WHEREAS, Act 36 of 1991 requires pharmaceutical manufacturers to provide a volume discount to the PACE program in recognition of the market, earnings and profits the industry has enjoyed through participation in PACE; and

WHEREAS, More than 70 pharmaceutical manufacturers have refused to grant a volume discount to the PACE program and have thereby decided on a course of action which will deny vitally needed prescription drugs to this Commonwealth's most medically fragile and financially vulnerable senior citizens; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Senate urge the recalcitrant pharmaceutical manufacturers to reconsider their position and the medical implications their action signifies for the frail elderly and to immediately indicate their intent to continue their relationship with the PACE program by providing the volume discount requested by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

APPOINTMENT BY MAJORITY LEADER

The PRESIDENT. The Chair wishes to announce the Majority Leader has made the following appointment:

Mr. Alan Welder as a member of the Board of the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority.

SPECIAL ORDER OF BUSINESS ANNOUNCEMENTS BY THE SECRETARY

LEGISLATIVE JOURNAL

SESSION OF 1991

175TH OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

No. 71

SENATE

WEDNESDAY, November 20, 1991.

The Senate met at 11:00 a.m., Eastern Standard Time.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore (Robert C. Jubelirer) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The following prayer was offered by the Secretary of the Senate, Hon. MARK R. CORRIGAN:

Almighty God and Father, we gather here again today asking that You come into our presence and guide us with the deliberations and decisions which are placed before us. We recognize that all power on earth is but a reflection of Your own power which in various ways You delegate to us. May our custody and exercise of this authority always be to Your greater glory and that of Your people. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. A quorum of the Senate being present, the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding Session of November 19, 1991.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding Session, when, on motion of Senator FISHER, further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

SPECIAL ORDER OF BUSINESS
ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SECRETARY

The SECRETARY. Consent has been given for the Committee on Appropriations to meet later this afternoon to consider Senate Bills No. 953 and 1440.

RECESS

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, at this time we still have one bill to consider on our agenda today. I understand that there have been a number of amendments that have come forth to that proposal and, therefore, in order that we may familiarize our caucus with those amendments, I would ask for a recess of the Senate for the purpose of a Republican caucus to begin immediately in the first floor caucus room, with an expectation of returning to the floor at approximately 1:30 p.m.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I would request the Members of the Democratic caucus to report immediately to our caucus room.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Loeper and Senator Mellow have requested a recess of the Senate for purposes of Republican and Democratic caucuses in their respective caucus rooms, and for those purposes the Senate will stand in recess.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The time of recess having elapsed, the Senate will be in order.

SB 953 CALLED UP

SB 953 (Pr. No. 1581) — Without objection, the bill, which previously went over in its order temporarily, was called up, from page 2 of the Third Consideration Calendar, by Senator LOEPER.

BILL ON THIRD CONSIDERATION AMENDED AND RECOMMITTED

SB 953 (Pr. No. 1581) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending the act of March 10, 1949 (P. L. 30, No. 14), entitled "Public School Code of 1949," requiring interest to be paid on certain late subsidy payments to school districts.

Considered the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

Senator SALVATORE, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A3014:

Amend Title, page 1, line 5, by inserting after "thereto,"":
 further providing for payments for transportation of pupils;

Amend Title, page 1, line 6, by removing the period after "districts" and inserting: ; and establishing a program to enhance educational opportunities.

Amend Sec. 1, page 1, by inserting between lines 11 and 12:

Section 1310.1. Educational Choice.—(a) The General Assembly finds that many disadvantaged school-age residents of this Commonwealth enjoy comparatively fewer educational opportunities or options than their counterparts of greater economic means. In addition, the General Assembly finds that all students in this Commonwealth, and their parents, would benefit from the lifting of limitations and restrictions on their ability to select the educational settings best suited to their needs. In order to assist in equalizing educational opportunities for its citizens, to better prepare its citizens to compete for employment opportunities and to foster development of a more capable and better-educated work force for Commonwealth employers, the Commonwealth hereby adopts a program to enhance educational choice in this Commonwealth.

(b) The following words and phrases when used in this section shall have the meanings given to them in this subsection:

"Eligible student" shall mean a school-age resident of this Commonwealth who attends or is about to attend a kindergarten or an elementary or secondary school within this Commonwealth on a tuition-paying basis.

"Office" shall mean the Office of Educational Opportunity in the Department of Education.

"Parent" shall mean a resident of this Commonwealth who is a parent of an eligible student or a person standing in loco parentis to such student.

"School" shall mean any public or nonprofit nonpublic elementary or secondary school wherein a resident of this Commonwealth may fulfill the compulsory school attendance requirements of this act and which meets the applicable requirements of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 (Public Law 88-352, 78 Stat. 241). The term also includes a kindergarten program operated by a school.

(c) Any other provision of this act to the contrary notwithstanding, every public school student in this Commonwealth shall be permitted to attend the public school selected by his or her parents or guardians, unless:

(1) the school selected has no additional attendance slots available and the district so notifies the Department of Education and the student within time limitations to be adopted by the Department of Education; or

(2) the student's attendance would place either the receiving school district or the student's district of residence in violation of a valid and binding desegregation order.

(d) No later than April 1 of each year, the parent or parents having legal responsibility for a school-age student attending or about to attend a public school shall designate the public school which that student shall attend during the succeeding school year, together with up to two alternative choices of schools. If no such designation is timely made, or if the designation cannot be honored under subsection (c), the school district in which the student resides shall determine the school to which the student shall be assigned within the district of residence.

(e) There is hereby established within the Department of Education the Office of Educational Opportunity, which shall administer the program of annual educational opportunity grants authorized under subsection (f). The office shall be advised by a board which shall consist of twelve members, no more than seven of whom may be members of the same political party. Two members shall be appointed by the Governor, three shall be appointed by the President pro tempore of the Senate, two shall be appointed by the Minority Leader of the Senate, three shall be appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives and two shall be appointed by the Minority Leader of the House of Representatives. Each board member shall serve for a term of four years from the date of appointment and shall continue to serve thereafter until a successor is duly appointed.

(f) The office shall annually award grants to parents of eligible students according to the following terms and conditions:

(1) Grants shall be made only for use for the payment of tuition at a public or nonprofit nonpublic school within this Commonwealth.

(2) For the school year 1992-1993 and for school years thereafter, the grant shall be the lesser of nine hundred dollars ($900) or an amount equal to ninety per centum (90%) of the actual amount of tuition paid or to be paid by the parent for a program of kindergarten or basic education for an eligible student.

(3) Prior to making any grant, the office shall require a parent of each eligible student to make application therefor and to submit the verified statement of the educational institution or school district which will provide the educational program for which the grant is sought, attesting to the enrollment by the student in the school involved and to the amount of the tuition for that program.

(4) The office shall establish reasonable deadline dates for submission of applications for grants and shall make such grants no later than fifteen (15) days prior to the beginning of the school year for which the grant will be utilized.

(5) Grants shall be made in the form of checks paid to the parents and shall be used solely for the purpose of paying tuition at the educational institution or school district offering the program designated in the grant application.

(6) Within fifteen (15) days after the beginning of the basic kindergarten or education program, the educational institution or school district shall confirm in writing to the office that payment for such program has been received on behalf of the student for whom the grant has been made.

(7) The office may take such steps, including the initiation of litigation, as may be necessary to recapture from the grantee any grant funds not actually expended for educational programs, as authorized by this section.

(g) In addition to the grant awarded to an eligible public school student attending a public school outside of his or her district of residence, an amount equal to the greater of the per pupil equalized subsidy for basic education, as defined in Article XXV, in his or her district of residence or of the receiving district shall be credited toward the tuition charged to that student by the receiving district. Should the grant plus the subsidy credit exceed the receiving district's tuition charge, the grant shall be reduced by the amount in excess of the tuition charge.

(h) The Commonwealth shall pay to each school district which accepts a non-resident student on a tuition basis, an amount equal to the greater of the per pupil equalized subsidy for basic education, as defined in Article XXV, of the student's district of residence or of the receiving district. No student attending a public school outside his or her district of residence shall be included in the average daily membership for purposes of determining the equalized subsidy for basic instruction in either the receiving district or the district of residence.

(i) The State Board of Education, with the approval of the office, shall by regulation prescribe such further procedures as are needed for the determination of the availability of public school attendance slots under this section and for the establishment or operation of the grant program and subsidy credits and payments authorized in this section. In determining the number of attendance slots available, each school district shall make provision for the accommodation of any resident of the district who desires to attend the public schools therein, and, after making provision for the attendance of resident students, shall thereafter give first preference to non-resident students who were in attendance in the district's schools during the school year immediately preceding the school year for which the availability of slots is being determined.

(j) In the event that, in fiscal year beginning July 1, 1992, or in any fiscal year thereafter, the funds appropriated for purposes of the program authorized by this section shall be insufficient to award grants in the total amount for which applications are made, the office shall award such grants in amounts which shall reflect the relative proportions of eligible students and available funds.

(k) No grant awarded under this section shall be considered income to the recipient for State income tax purposes.

Section 2. Section 2509.3 of the act, amended August 5, 1991 (P.L.219, No.25), is amended to read:

Section 2509.3. Payments on Account of Transportation of Nonpublic and Public School Pupils.—Each school district, regardless of classification, shall be paid by the Commonwealth the sum of thirty-five dollars ($35) for each nonpublic school pupil transported in the school year 1978-1979 through the school year 1983-1984, for the school year 1984-1985 through the school year 1990-1991 each school district shall be paid the sum of seventy dollars ($70) for each nonpublic school pupil transported, and for the school year 1991-1992, each school district shall be paid the sum of one hundred twenty-four dollars ($124) for each nonpublic school pupil transported and for the school year 1992-1993 and each school year thereafter, each school district shall be paid the sum of one hundred fifty-nine dollars ($159) for each nonpublic school pupil transported and for each public school pupil transported to a public school outside the district pursuant to section 1310.1.

Section 3. The act is amended by adding a section to read:

Amend Bill, page 1, by inserting between lines 18 and 19:

Section 4. The sum of $300,000 is appropriated from the General Fund, to the Department of Education to establish and operate the Office of Educational Opportunity.

Section 5. The addition of section 1310.1 of the act shall apply to all school years or programs commencing after August 15, 1992.

Amend Sec. 2, page 2, line 1, by striking out "2" and inserting:

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, this is an amendment on educational choice.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

A voice vote having been taken, the question was determined in the affirmative.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration, as amended?

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 953, as amended, be recommitted to the Committee on Appropriations.

The motion was agreed to.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senate Bill No. 953, as amended, will be recommitted to the Committee on Appropriations.

Ordered, To be printed on the Calendar for second consideration.

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I do not remember in the 19 years that I have been in the General Assembly that I have stood in the Chamber that I serve in with a heavier heart than what I have right now over the procedure which was used in the last 24 hours to bring a very important issue first before us, then slide it by us and then hide it behind us, and that was the amendment offered to Senate Bill No. 953 by Senator Salvatore. I am not going to get into any great deal about this today because Monday will be another day and there will be a final passage, and I guarantee you there will be an awful lot of discussion from my part on this particular issue. I really was not even going to rise and say anything about how badly I feel about how this whole thing was handled until someone from my side came in and told me that the Committee on Appropriations does not have a fiscal note ready for this bill but had the audacity to answer the question as to what the cost was and set the figure at $300,000. I have heard ludicrous, ridiculous, outrageous misrepresentations in my life, but for anybody to have the gall to put on a record, even if it was not recorded in that committee meeting, that this particular action taken by Senator Salvatore today would cost only $300,000, then I will tell you what, friends, whoever is doing that, I want them to start calculating something's value for me that I can buy because this bill is so expensive, it has such outrageous ramifications for public education. The costs that are unseen in this bill far outweigh the $350 million—everybody's estimate—and that does not even include the sneaky little way that the nonpublic transportation portion is raised by $35 a student. The outrageous answer of $300,000 to the question of what the costs are on that amendment is a disgrace. It is a greater disgrace than what we saw take place here from 4:00 o'clock yesterday afternoon until 4:00 o'clock today.

Now Monday, I want to say to Senator Salvatore, you be ready, sir, because I have an awful lot of questions which I hope you have the courage to stand at one of these microphones and answer whenever you are asked.

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, in answer to my colleague from Fayette County, I always had the courage to stand up in front of anybody, and I am never going to back down from anybody, but I will submit my remarks for the record only.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, the remarks will be made part of the record.

(The following prepared statement was made a part of the record at the request of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator SALVATORE:)

Mr. President, the amendment I have just offered would give to every child in the State of Pennsylvania that which is rightfully theirs—the opportunity for a good education.

This amendment, Mr. President, provides the mechanism for choice, the opportunity for a child, trapped in a school that fails that child's educational needs, to simply choose a school that meets those needs.

It is argued, Mr. President, that a child in Pennsylvania can do that now. But what isn't said in that argument, Mr. President, that only the rich can afford to do it. That means that all those children whose educational hopes are not being met, whose opportunities are being taken from them before they even get started, will be able to move to a school where those hopes and opportunities will be met.

It is so fundamental, Mr. President, that I have trouble understanding opposition to this very basic concept. We are simply offering every child, not just those whose parents can afford to do otherwise, what is their fundamental right, the opportunity for a good education.

This amendment, Mr. President, would set up the office of educational choice in the Department of Education. It provides for $300,000 in start-up costs. And it provides the funding that would follow a child from the school they would normally attend to a school they might choose because it meets their educational needs.

And there is nothing overwhelming in the funding, Mr. President. Each child would be eligible for a $900 tuition grant to be used at whatever school they choose. The amount of subsidy that would go to the school they would normally attend would follow them to the school they choose. And their parents would be responsible for any school tax difference between their district of residence and the district they choose. There is nothing complex in that, Mr. President.

If a school and its staff are doing what we owe to every child in this state, simply giving them a good education, then there is no reason for that school to fear an exodus of students. To argue that educational choice will cause competition rings hollow, Mr. President. To argue that it will motivate makes sense. To underscore that it will result in curriculums that graduate students equipped to compete in today's job markets also makes sense. But to force a child to attend a school that is not meeting his or her needs, and to deny them an opportunity to do something about it, makes no sense.

Choice makes sense, Mr. President. It is time we make the right choice.

ADJOURNMENT

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I move the Senate do now adjourn until Monday, November 25, 1991, at 2:00 p.m., Eastern Standard Time, unless sooner recalled by the President pro tempore.

The motion was agreed to.

LEGISLATIVE JOURNAL

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 25, 1991

SESSION OF 1991 175TH OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

No. 72

SENATE

MONDAY, November 25, 1991.

The Senate met at 2:00 p.m., Eastern Standard Time.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant Governor Mark S. Singel) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Reverend ROBERT QUINN, Pastor of Saint Columbkil's Roman Catholic Church, Boyertown, offered the following prayer:

Father, Lord of the Universe and Creator of us all, we are Your people and we praise You. You are a God of peace, a God of justice, a God of love and a God of truth. Help all of us, Lord, to see You in the creation that You have given and to see Your creation as good. You have begun creation, but You invite us in our own day to participate in its completion and in its fulfillment.

We place this Senate of our Commonwealth in Your hands. Bless our Senators with wisdom and courage, the wisdom to recognize the needs of the poor and the disadvantaged, and the courage to respond to those needs, the wisdom to know what is truly for the common good and the courage to pursue that good.

As leaders of Your people, Lord, we come with our people this week to celebrate thankfulness to You for Your goodness to us. May we be worthy of Your love and concern. We place all of this before You, Lord, Creator and Father of us all, for You are our God. You are life and You live forever and ever. Amen.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair thanks Father Quinn who is the guest today of Senator O'Pake.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present, the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding Session of November 20, 1991.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding Session, when, on motion of Senator LOEPER, further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

Without objection, the bill, as amended, was passed over in its order at the request of Senator LOEPER.

RECESS

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, at this time I would ask for a brief recess of the Senate for the purpose of a meeting of the Committee on Education to be held immediately in the Rules room at the rear of the Senate Chamber.

The PRESIDENT. For the purpose of a meeting of the Committee on Education to convene in the Rules room at the rear of the Senate Chamber, the Senate will stand in recess. Will the Members of the Committee on Education please report immediately to the Rules room at the rear of the Senate Chamber.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed, the Senate will be in order.

SB 953 CALLED UP OUT OF ORDER

SB 953 (Pr. No. 1730) — Without objection, the bill was called up out of order, from page 2 of the Third Consideration Calendar, by Senator LOEPER, as a Special Order of Business.

BILL ON THIRD CONSIDERATION AMENDED

SB 953 (Pr. No. 1730) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending the act of March 10, 1949 (P. L. 30, No. 14), entitled "Public School Code of 1949," further providing for payments for transportation of pupils; requiring interest to be paid on certain late subsidy payments to school districts; and establishing a program to enhance educational opportunities.

Considered the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

GREENLEAF AMENDMENT

Senator GREENLEAF, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A3131:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1310.1), page 6, by inserting between lines 20 and 21: (1) The student or the student's parents shall pay for any tuition charged by the educational institution or school district attended by the student in excess of the grant or subsidy paid to the school district.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, this is a clarifying amendment. The intent of the bill, I believe, is to provide that once a choice is made to move from a public school to another public school and once the $900, or whatever monies, and the voucher are given and that student then takes their subsidy formula with them, invariably in a public school system there will be a difference, a deficit, in the cost of educating that child. I believe the bill implies that deficit will be paid by the student, not by the receiving school district. But this legislation will clarify it and spell it out in black and white that if there is a deficit, that deficit in educational costs will be paid for by the student and not by the receiving school district.

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I support the amendment. I think it is a good amendment. It has clarifying language and I wholeheartedly support the amendment.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I do not know who I want to ask the questions to first after that explanation because, if anything, what the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore's endorsement of this amendment did was confuse me even further. But, I think that probably if the gentleman who offered the amendment would stand for a brief interrogation, I would appreciate it.

Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Montgomery, Senator Greenleaf.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Montgomery, Senator Greenleaf, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator GREENLEAF. I will, Mr. President.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, if I understood correctly in the remarks just a few minutes ago, he is offering the amendment in an effort to clear up who pays a potential resolving difference, and that difference would have to be that a public school that a public school student would choose to go to from their own public school would have a higher educational cost, and that amendment would say that the person leaving the lower educational cost school going to the higher one would be responsible for paying whatever that difference may be?

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, let me answer that. The question assumes certain things I do not think are correct. I mean that just as an informative point, not as a critical point.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I have no problem with that.

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, let me give you an example in dollars and cents which might clear this up and clarify it. Let us say, for example, in Montgomery County the average cost of educating a high school student in one of my adjacent township school districts is $7,000 a year. A child from outside of that school district A decides that they want to enter that school district and they go from another school district, we will say is B. That child brings with him his voucher, whatever monies that would be, depending on how this bill will be funded. He also brings with him the subsidy formula that he receives and that, of course, depends on whether, not to complicate this, but apparently it depends on which school district has the higher subsidy. But regardless, let us say in some of my areas it is as little as $700 a student. It is not a lot of money. Let us use that as an example as going from a urban district to an suburban district in Philadelphia. I have checked, and it is about $2,500. So that student would receive the $700 or let us say $900. Let us say it was fully funded. That is the money that student would have, but it costs $7,000 to educate that student a year. So the difference between, in this case is $1,600 and $7,000. This amendment is intended to clarify to make sure that it is not going to be the receiving school district that has to pay that difference. I think that is the intent of this bill from my conversations with the sponsor and those people who are advocates of this concept. It has never been the intention that the receiving school district make up the difference. It is the student's responsibility to make up the difference between what it is actually going to cost to educate that child and the monies that they bring with them in either voucher and/or subsidy money.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, in effect, then, what you are saying is that a student leaving school district B transferring to school district A which has the $7,000 a year basic cost for education, would be expected to bring their $900 check plus their subsidy plus whatever the difference was? That family would be responsible for paying that out of their pocket?

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, yes. I think that was the intention of the bill originally and this is clarifying is what the intention has been. I do not want that receiving school district and those taxpayers to be responsible for providing local taxpayers' money for a student coming in from another school district. That is not fair. It is not appropriate, and if it was the intention of the bill, it should not be, and this legislation will clarify it, but I believe that it was never the intention of the legislation.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, do I understand that the amendment would be directed only to public schools, that school B would be a public school and that school A would be a public school and that your amendment would have no effect, impact, or whatever, on any non-public school?

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, looking at the amendment, it does not say that. It just says educational institution or school district. I used the example of the public school system, but, reading the amendment, I do not believe it makes a distinction.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, then your amendment will rather clearly define a protection for school district A, the school district that the student from school district B chose to go to?

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, yes, it will provide a protection for the receiving school district.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, if you have concern for the unfairness of the potential cost to school district A, why would you not have some concern, and if you did, why would it not have been expressed by some language in this amendment that would have protected school district B, which not only lost a student but lost that subsidy that student took with him, and if enough of that happened would see their aid ratio diminish and they would lose more money? What is the concern that would be there for the receiving district when they already have an opportunity to say no to that student?

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, if the gentleman wants me to answer that, I will answer that, but it has nothing to do with the amendment right now. If you want to start debating the bill in its total, I will, but the fact is that it has nothing to do with that or my concern or my unconcern about any other district. The fact is that when that child leaves that school district, they do not have the $7,000 educational cost associated with that child. But the purpose of this amendment is to provide for the protection of the receiving school district.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, do you see that as being a real serious concern that a school district that could afford to spend $7,000 a year to educate a student would need that kind of protection? Are you justifying that with this amendment?

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, I would not be offering it if I did not think it was a concern.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I do not mean that in any way other than there is a curiosity about this debate that amazes me, and I just really am concerned that the gentleman feels that strongly that he wants to protect a school district that was going to increase its student population and the gentleman has indicated that is a concern for him in his district.

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, it is a concern for me, and I think it is a concern that should be a concern for all of us that we do not impose those educational costs on the receiving school district, that if we are going to pass this legislation it should be a state responsibility and the state should be funding this as much as possible.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I thank the gentleman.

Mr. President, on the amendment, I believe that half of my concerns have been expressed in this amendment. The other half will probably be coming very apparent in further debate. I could not agree with the gentleman from Montgomery County more that we should be concerned about protecting the school districts that are going to be asked to take other students. I wonder, though, if that concern should not have been directed a little bit more to where the nonpublic schools are concerned, and it does not seem to make any difference, I guess, there. I have no problem with this amendment. I do not believe the amendment does anything to make the bill any better. The only thing it does is take the rich school districts that are going to benefit from this bill and make them a little bit stronger in their ability to decide whether or not they want somebody who can afford their school or somebody who cannot, and I have no idea until you call my name how I am going to vote on this amendment.

Senator WILLIAMS. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Montgomery, Senator Greenleaf.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Montgomery, Senator Greenleaf, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator GREENLEAF. I will, Mr. President.

Senator WILLIAMS. Mr. President, just so I could be clear, we are talking about a situation in this amendment where, one, a student transfers from public school district A to public school district B. Is that correct?

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, the example I used was from B to A, but regardless.

Senator WILLIAMS. Mr. President, either way we are talking from public to public in different districts. We are not talking here from public A to private B?

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, no. I think the amendment would cover that as well. My example was towards the public school system, but I think it can apply to transferring to a private school as well.

Senator WILLIAMS. Mr. President, in that second situation where they transfer to a private school in a different district, is the gentleman saying that the $7,000 service fee would come out of public school district A and go where in B? Would that go to the private school? Would that be $900 plus—

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, I think the bill does not provide that for transfers from public to private. In my understanding of the bill—and I do not pretend to be expert on this bill, that is for sure—when they transfer from public to private, the only thing that goes with that student is the voucher, not the subsidy money.

Senator WILLIAMS. Mr. President, in that situation, the gentleman's amendment does not speak to the subsidy money where it goes to the private school?

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, no subsidy money goes to private institutions under the bill.

Senator WILLIAMS. Mr. President, the subsidy money stays where it is in that situation?

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, I would think that they would lose it, that the school district of residency would lose their subsidy money for that student.

Senator WILLIAMS. Mr. President, does the gentleman's amendment require that that district lose its subsidy money?

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, no.

Senator WILLIAMS. Mr. President, it does not. Is it the gentleman's understanding that the bill he is amending would cause a loss of the subsidy money if it were a transfer to a private school?

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, it does not impact the bill one way or another on that issue. My understanding is that this amendment would not impact that issue. The bill remains the same in regard to the subsidy money. It does not impact that at all.

Senator WILLIAMS. Mr. President, I have one final observation or question. I guess my concern is if there is a real need to move the subsidy money. In any case, I guess it should be accounted for one way or the other in the case of a movement to a private situation. In other words, either the district would lose the money, it would keep the money and the first district would either lose it or keep it, but if it would keep it, then that is a basis to not send it to the other district in the first place. But it seems that $7,000, so to speak, using that figure unaccounted for, and I guess my observation is whether or not the gentleman's bill adjusting that really is a reflection of some inequities, i.e., the preference or choice to move. In this case you have $900 plus $7,000 following someone in the public sector. Why would not that same right follow to a private sector, if you are using common sense, because if it goes to a private sector they are doing that job and so then we are talking about scholarships basically amounting to about $7,900?

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, I think that question probably is mostly directed towards the sponsor of the bill itself because this amendment does not deal with that at all. This amendment does not impact on that at all. What the gentleman is referring to is there are clauses and provisions in the bill as drafted. This amendment—just to make sure we clarify this, I think there is some confusion—has no impact on that at all. Also, I would like to address your question, and also the previous gentleman's question about poor school districts. This would apply to poor school districts because it does not really matter because if you are going from a "more affluent school district to a less affluent school district," usually the total cost to educate the child is going to far exceed the subsidy and voucher that child brings to it. I do not know. You probably would have to get a computer and punch them all up, all the school districts and the millions of variations of one student going to this school district and that school district, but I would be very surprised if there would be any scenario in which the subsidy and the voucher would exceed the actual public school cost of educating any child, wherever that child went. I would think in all cases there is going to be a deficit, and if that is the case in this legislation, it just indicated that, regardless, it is the responsibility of the parents to pay that deficit.

Senator WILLIAMS. Mr. President, I agree with the commentary by the gentleman that the bill is the heart of it, but the amendment we are talking about speaks to the problem or the issue contained in the bill and that is why I brought it up, to say that the need for an amendment like yours really speaks to try to clarify a fundamental inequity in the bill itself.

I would rise to oppose the amendment which seems to be fair, but I think, basically, if you look at it, it really tries to solve a problem which is unsolvable because it is based on a premise of a full and comprehensive look at an unequal opportunity given to a limited number of children, all of whom, if they all left one district, all would go to another district, all that money would flow, if there were room. So I just wanted to say that the amendment really has no need in the legislation because it really speaks to a fundamental problem that cannot be solved because it is inherently contradictory to a system as we have already set up the formula, having set up in the Constitution to have a public school and to also build in private preferences that do not necessarily equate when you put it in the public sector, and so forth and so on. So I think that, basically, the amendment is complex, confusing, contradictory, and all those bad things.

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I do not know how anyone could really oppose this clarifying amendment. It tries to state, and I think it does very well, that the receiving school district's taxpayers ought not have to pay that difference which there will be in the amount of monies that the child coming to that school district will bring with him or her. There will be a difference between what the tuition is that is established by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for that particular school district and how many dollars, both with the voucher and with the equalized subsidy payment that the child brings with them, and there will be a difference in monies. That difference ought not to be made up by the receiving school district, be it a wealthy or be it a poor school district. Otherwise, you know, I would take all the children from my school district and put them into the next school district and those taxpayers would have to support, you know, all of these receiving children and we will stop paying school taxes in our particular school district. There is going to be a difference, and I think this clarifying amendment says, just so you know in advance, there will be a space between the state dollars available and what it will cost you to attend that school district and you the parent will have to pay it. That is what is in the bill and this merely clarifies it so everybody knows in advance what it is they will be facing.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator SALVATORE. I will, Mr. President.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, I think that this amendment may be helpful in clarifying it, but I wanted to get some more information. The bill states on page 2, Section C, starting on line 27, that "...any other provision of this act to the contrary notwithstanding, every public school student in this Commonwealth shall be permitted to attend the public school selected by his or her parents or guardians unless..." and it goes on for one basic exception which is that there is notification and that there are attendance slots. In terms of Senator Greenleaf's amendment which is an issue of costs and the relative cost disparities between school districts, is it clear that the bottom line is that, under this bill, any kid would be able, with his parents, to pick any school anywhere in the Commonwealth at any time as long as they met the provisos in this bill and would it not be, therefore, very difficult to make arrangements, financially, for these kinds of disparities?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, yes, subject to slots.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, that is the only issue, so, for instance, if it were a child who, for some reason, brought with that child extraordinary costs—a special needs child, a child with some special health condition or who happened to be pregnant as a teenager or some other special costs that could accrue to the receiving school district—there is no other provision for the school district that would be receiving a child. For instance, if a kid had a great deal of truancy problems or delinquency problems, there is no other reason why a school district could disallow the admittance of a student from another school district other than the issue of whether or not there were attendance slots available?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, that is right.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Montgomery, Senator Greenleaf.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Montgomery, Senator Greenleaf, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator GREENLEAF. I will, Mr. President.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, the gentleman has very clearly outlined the amendment which I appreciate, and one of the questions I had that I forgot to ask was, would this same breakdown apply to transportation? In other words, if student B, going back to the same example, transferred to school A from school B, we pay right now $70 per student for nonpublic transportation. One, does the gentleman know under current law if a student who goes to a nonpublic school and is transported along the same route, if it is no more than ten miles from the school, are those families at this point in time assessed the difference in the $70 that the school district gets for doing that and what the actual cost of transportation is?

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, I do not believe so at the present time. The amendment does not address the accessory costs such as the books or additional costs that may be associated here. It only addresses the tuition costs. It does not deal with the other costs that the school district may incur.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I think it does. I think the gentleman's amendment very clearly addresses the costs of books and other educational costs because I think they are all included in what he would finally come to in that $7,000 a year figure. My question is more pointed in that does this amendment address what receiving district A would have to absorb in additional costs for transportation?

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, the amendment does not address that issue.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I thank the gentleman.

Mr. President, I think the further we go into one very simple amendment, the more we find how difficult this issue is going to be for us to deal with. I think the comments of the gentleman from Centre, Senator Corman, on this amendment have indicated to me how little he understands what we are dealing with, and I do not say that in a degrading or a negative type of a comment. I think it is important to understand that whenever those students left that Senator Corman feels it is a good idea to protect the school district they are going to, that his property taxes are not only going to be gone, they are going to be so high that it is going to be hard to believe because school district B, the physical structure, is not leaving. The constitutional and statutory mandates that we have in this state for those people who remain in that district do not go away. They still have the obligation of educating the students in that school district. Whenever you have less students, you get less money from the state, but the cost of educating that student does not change. So instead of being the way the gentleman from Centre, Senator Corman, explained his reason for voting for this amendment, it is just the opposite. That is why I think to protect anybody we ought to be worried about protecting school district B more than school district A because school district A has a chance to say no to that student because nothing in this whole mess dictates what the criteria is for picking who gets in school district A and who does not. I believe after listening a little bit longer, hearing the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Williams' debate, that this is not a good amendment, and I would ask for a "no" vote.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

(During the calling of the roll, the following occurred:)

Senator HELFRICK. Mr. President, I would like to change my vote from "no" to "aye."

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman will be so recorded.

The yeas and nays were required by Senator GREENLEAF and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—28

Andrezeski	Greenleaf	Lemmond	Rhoades
Armstrong	Greenwood	Lewis	Robbins
Baker	Hart	Loeper	Salvatore
Bell	Helfrick	Madigan	Shaffer
Brightbill	Holl	Pecora	Shumaker
Corman	Hopper	Peterson	Tilghman
Fisher	Jubelirer	Punt	Wenger

NAYS—22

Afflerbach	Fumo	Musto	Schwartz
Belan	Jones	O'Pake	Stapleton
Bodack	LaValle	Porterfield	Stewart
Bortner	Lincoln	Reibman	Stout
Dawida	Lynch	Scanlon	Williams
Fattah	Mellow

A majority of the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the affirmative.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration, as amended?

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Lynch, Senator Fumo, Senator Jones and Senator Scanlon who was just called from the floor.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Lincoln requests temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Lynch, Senator Fumo, Senator Jones and Senator Scanlon. The Chair hears no objection. Those leaves will be granted.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration, as amended?

RHOADES AMENDMENT

Senator RHOADES, on behalf of himself and Senator MELLOW, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A3129:

Amend Sec. 5, page 7, line 22, by striking out "1992" and inserting: of the first calendar year occurring one year subsequent to the approval by the citizens of this Commonwealth of amendments affecting sections 15 and 29 of the Constitution of Pennsylvania

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I oppose the amendment.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I believe if we are not going to be so kind and gentle in this world and not accept this wonderful amendment, I think the prime sponsor should maybe explain just a little bit of it.

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, what the amendment does is it is what we want to refer to as the link or the trigger. Let me just read it. We would strike out "1992" and insert, "of the first calendar year occurring one year subsequent to the approval by the citizens of this Commonwealth of amendments affecting sections 15 and 29 of the Constitution of Pennsylvania." We brought out of committee today a joint resolution which would place before the citizens of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania their opportunity to tell us whether they support the essence of the meaning of what has been amended into Senate Bill No. 953.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator RHOADES. I will, Mr. President.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, in the gentleman's remarks two seconds ago, he made reference to the fact that the Committee on Education, of which he is the Majority Chairman, reported out a joint resolution that would have to be passed before this bill with Senator Salvatore's amendment in it would actually start into effect for the $900 vouchers. What happens if that is four years from now?

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, then it would be implemented four years from now. Let me put it this way. I think to my recollection of looking at this, this would be about the quickest way we could get to the bottom line. With the legislation, I think you all saw on the paper ACLU threatened to take this legislation automatically to court. If we were to pass the amendment which, hopefully, would be before us tomorrow or when we come back, pass that and then pass it in the next Session, it could be on the ballot in the Spring of 1993. Meanwhile, it could also be in the courts for the next four, five, ten years, or whatever the case may be, or the courts may rule that it is unconstitutional. Then we would have to come back and do this again. I am cutting out, hopefully, what I consider to be all the roadblocks and baloney to get down to the bottom line.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, does the gentleman have some question in his mind about the constitutionality of the Salvatore amendment?

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, well, I think the best way I can define it for the gentleman would be in the bill, as amended, on page 4, line 2, sub-section (f) "The office"—meaning the Educational Opportunity Grant Office—"shall annually award grants to parents of eligible students..." and then if you go down to line 25, under sub-section 5 it says, "Grants shall be made in the form of checks paid to the parents and shall be used solely for the purpose of paying tuition at the educational institution or school district offering the program designated in the grant application." When you get into the Constitution, under Article III Section 15 and Section 29 which reads as such: "No money raised for the support of the public schools of the Commonwealth shall be appropriated to or used for the support of any sectarian school." And, too, I think this is most appropriate: "No appropriation shall be made for charitable, educational or benevolent purposes to any person or community nor to any denominational and sectarian institution, corporation or association." I think, based on that interpretation, there is definitely a constitutional question.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, regarding the resolution that the committee reported maybe 15 minutes ago, can the chairman very briefly explain to me once again the process that we would go through and then I have one further question on that issue.

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, I think, to the best of my recollection, if it passed here, it would have to be approved by the House. Then it would have to come back in the next Session of the Legislature and be passed by both Chambers again and then be placed upon the ballot for the citizens of the Commonwealth to act upon.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, when he says the next Session, does he mean not the second year of this Session but the first year of the 1993-94 Session of the General Assembly, and it would have to go through the process of being approved both by the House and the Senate in exactly the same form that it is in right now and then it would go on the ballot? At that point, whether it be the Primary or the General Election in 1993, what happens if more people in Pennsylvania say no to that change than yes?

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, then democracy, I guess, functions the way it is supposed to.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, and this bill would never trigger in?

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, yes, that would be correct.

Senator BELL. Mr. President, I thought the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania had seven members, justices, and that the American Civil Liberties Union did not determine the constitutionality of laws. If we are to stop, stand still in our tracks every time the American Civil Liberties Union says something is wrong, I do not know if we will get much done. But I see this trigger, as it is called, if it passes, as a message to the Supreme Court that this Senate feels this method is unconstitutional, the method we are following, the same method that PHEAA uses in giving grants for students to attend Catholic colleges.

Senator WILLIAMS. Mr. President, I rise to support the amendment. I think the gentleman who offers the amendment brings us square face to face with reality. I do not think the American Civil Liberties Union is the issue, and I do not think we ought to divert it as such. Personally, I think it is unconstitutional as well. I think that many, if not most, highly respected minds would think it would be unconstitutional, but that is not the issue. Common sense would tell us that for all these years and all these decades we have clearly operated under a system of order which, basically, was public schools, and respected that procedure and always denied the fact that we could do preferential, private offshoots of that. So our conduct as a state and as a Legislature has consistently for many, many, many years functioned in a public, not a private voucher segment, and the Constitution has spoken directly, as the gentleman says, to the issues at hand. It is almost patently clear and obvious to anyone who would look. At the least we have a very serious constitutional question, if not a question that is already resolved. In those circumstances, is that not right if we are going to change the fundamental way to deliver probably the most important service to children, education, that we would not give those people in our state the opportunity to speak on this constitutional question by a constitutional amendment. I think the gentleman has the only candid and objective approach to what is a serious political problem, a practical financial problem to a lot of non-public school systems which are doing a great job, especially in urban areas, and to see whether or not the people, after discussing this, are willing to take on this particular obligation. As has happened so often, and as the gentleman has spoken, we can point to a series of political laws in this very area that came back that were unconstitutional, cost a lot of money and went on to the next question. The gentleman says, not again, not again. It is kind of easy, I guess, to fool the public going on to another issue, but there comes a point in time where we as Legislators have to deliberate and to look at what is obviously before us, and there is nothing more precious to our system than what we have laid out for education. It says, do not touch it. It says, good, bad or indifferent today, but there is an obligation to educate children. The proposals before us speak on dislodging that. I have had promises that it will work okay, but it is obviously a threat to poorer children, to a lot of people. It is obviously a threat to the system we set up. It is a threat of dislodgement, and we cannot handle that in a political way strictly. We cannot handle that in a surface way strictly, and so I think the gentleman's amendment is the most sober approach to this question. Let us put it in the open. Are we ready for fundamental change? And if we are ready for fundamental change, let our public participate in that. Anyone who even suggests that there is not a serious constitutional question in this matter just is bereft of reason and common sense and does not know the facts.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, I just wanted to make a brief comment. One, the gentleman from Chester raised the issue of the PHEAA grants, and as a member of the PHEAA board, I would not want there to be any constitutional cloud over our activities. I would point again to Article III of the Constitution and Section 29 thereof, which was read by the Majority Chairman of the Senate Committee on Education. It provides for exceptions to that for the purposes specifically of higher education grants, but it does hold that no appropriations for charitable or educational purposes should be provided for any person for educational purposes except for that exception. I would also remind the Members of this Chamber that the federal courts have handled the issue of support for Catholic higher education on a number of occasions, and the court has come to the determination, through many a precedent, that Catholic higher education, which is an education that in our country has not participated in discrimination, has upheld academic freedom, is deserving and it is fully within our constitutional abilities to provide support for those higher education institutions. The court has also found that adult students are much more able to delineate their own religious preferences and not fall victim to a religious indoctrination than elementary and secondary children, so they are two separate issues, and I think we should be very clear today not to muddle the waters here and to deal with the subject before us. We have all taken an oath to uphold the Pennsylvania Constitution. The Constitution is not vague on the subject of whether or not we can provide educational grants for religious or sectarian schools. It is very specific in a prohibition against that, and that is the issue that is raised here. I think that all of us, whether we are pro or con on this issue, should recognize it and should support this constitutional amendment, and, therefore, I rise to support the Rhoades amendment.

Senator BELL. Mr. President, I agree with the gentleman from Philadelphia. I have since checked the Constitution, but I think he also agrees that we should not take the constitutional law as that being interpreted by the American Civil Liberties Union.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, I would say that even though many of us have had cause to be concerned about the ACLU's activities when they support the Klan's right to march, and so on, we would have to also recognize this is an organization that on many occasions has fought for the right of Americans as expressed in our Constitution, notwithstanding our disagreements as individuals from time to time on the various sides of issues that they take.

Senator HART. Mr. President, I rise and ask for a negative vote on the amendment. The supporters of this constitutional amendment want us to focus solely on the plain language of Article III, Section 29 of the Pennsylvania Constitution, and if in deciding on whether the choice legislation is constitutional, if that was all we could go on, I would have to agree with them. But you cannot read the Constitution in a vacuum. The rhetoric of the amendment's supporters proves that if you torture the language of the Constitution enough, you can get it to say what you want it to say, but to do that in this instance you would have to ignore pages and pages of solid case law, legislative intent and reams of legislation that has been previously passed by this Body. It is true that as Pennsylvania Senators we cannot vote for legislation that we know to be unconstitutional and still abide by our oath of office, but I can say in good conscience that the statute before us is not unconstitutional. It is constitutional. There is no reason in law to support amending the Constitution in this fashion. For more than half a century opinions of the State Attorney General and of our state courts have found that Article III, Section 29 is not to be read in the narrow, tortured fashion that supporters of this amendment claim is appropriate. His opinions are crystal clear. The Constitution contains no blanket prohibition against such appropriations, but prohibits only those appropriations that lack any public benefit or serve no legitimate governmental function. The last thing I want to do is allow this debate to get bogged down in legal minutiae. However, there have been a number of legal claims traded on both sides of this issue, but we have been provided with one brief that sums up the issue in clear and insightful fashion. In my mind it leaves no doubt on this question. The language in one case sums up these findings. Take, for instance, the case of Basehore vs. Hampden Industrial Development Authority, which was decided in 1968 by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, in which they said, "If the legislative program is reasonably designed to combat a problem within the competence of the Legislature and if the public will benefit from the project, then the project is sufficiently public in nature to withstand constitutional challenge."

Another example is an Attorney General's opinion from 1963, which took its cue from an earlier Pennsylvania Supreme Court case. The issue at hand was support given for the health of children in parochial schools. The opinion said, "The protection and preservation of the health of school children is clearly a proper governmental function in the nature of public welfare legislation, whether the children attend public, private or parochial schools and the use of tax funds for this purpose cannot be successfully attacked on constitutional grounds." Certainly, even the most ardent supporters of this amendment would not claim that creating new opportunities in education would be totally lacking in public benefit. Not only is education a governmental duty, I would argue that it is a paramount governmental duty and strongly supporting our educational system, as the choice proposal does, benefits the public and furthers the legitimate governmental aim of providing a solid education to Pennsylvania's children.

But even if you were totally convinced, despite all the language of the courts to the contrary, that a constitutional amendment is needed to enact schools of choice, then you must be consistent. You must call into question dozens of payments, programs and services that this Commonwealth provides to individuals every day. The list is very long. It includes unemployment compensation. It includes medical assistance, foster care, payments for nursing home care, tuition for blind and visually handicapped students, care of neglected children, and the list goes on. Supporters of the constitutional amendment must, if they are to be legally consistent, call into question this Legislature's support for these and many other programs. But as the courts have said, these payments are constitutional because they further a legitimate constitutional function, and the choice statute is no different. We as a legislative Body should not and must not look to constitutional amendments and their attendant guarantee of a referendum as shields for every controversial or complex issue which we face. If this debate today is allowed to set a precedent, then we will be paralyzed as a deliberative Body. We have been sent here to make the laws, not to create needless roadblocks in the face of meaningful reform. There is simply no reason in law to adopt this constitutional amendment, none. Given the clarity of court opinions and given the fact that this Legislature has in the past authorized similar payments to individuals in support for what are on their face charitable, benevolent or educational purposes, why are we seeking to plow new constitutional ground here today? Because the bill, if this needless amendment is defeated, challenges the educational status quo. It breaks new ground and it offers a bold new chance for improving education.

Passage of this amendment will delay these educational reforms for at least 18 or more months. While the wheels of our amendment process grind on, this needless delay means that we push off the chance for students and families to have a choice of picking the schools that they want. It means we again delay the chance for educational progress. It seems to me that the supporters of this needless amendment have taken the name "America 2000" too literally because, if they have their way, Pennsylvania may not see school choice until the year 2000, if at all.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, I think the previous speaker has missed the forest for the trees, and that is to say that it is obvious when we provide unemployment compensation, we do not do so because of anyone's religious beliefs, and we do not provide aid to families with dependent children or any of the other supports that we provide for the general welfare of the citizens of this Commonwealth having anything to do with their religious preferences. In fact, in spite of their religious preferences, we provide those types of support and relief, and that the distinction made here between one of the highly touted choice programs in our country, the Milwaukee Program, where in Milwaukee they exempted religious institutions in schools and said there could be choice between public and private institutions, they did not include in that proposal religious schools that mandate sectarian-based education. So there is a distinction, and that is why the constitutional prohibition is very, very relevant today as we debate this issue.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I am going to be a little more harsh than the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fattah, was on the good Senator from Allegheny County. If she would have read the Constitution rather than just read something that her staff put together for her, she would see that everything that was listed in those remarks are exceptions in the Constitution. They are all covered. Every one of those things that she was concerned about us questioning the constitutionality of is covered in the Constitution as an exception. Plus, I believe that her training and background is legal, and I think that she should know that for her to presume that this will be a public benefit because it is her perspective and her point of view is about as narrow as I have ever seen an attorney take on any position in all the years I have been involved in this business. For one thing and for real, the public good in this issue has to be determined at some point in time, not only by the courts but by the people that we represent, because if she believes that the 17 percent to 20 percent of the people may be affected in a positive manner by this particular amendment to this bill offered by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore, then wait until she starts to hear from the 80 percent who are going to see the public good damaged because of the damage that is going to be done to Valley High School and North Allegheny High School, all of those public schools that we have the responsibility for taking care of. But none of the argument that was given against the constitutional question being raised in the amendment offered by the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades, makes any sense if you read the Constitution, and I think that Senator Rhoades was actually speaking in favor of individuals who have the point of view and are going to vote in the manner that the lady from Allegheny, Senator Hart, indicates she is going to do, and that is that this will shortcut the constitutional question because, even though the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Bell, has done what the Republican Party seems to do all the time when they throw things up in the air to deflect, the ACLU, Mr. President, is not the only group in this country, in this state, in this Legislature concerned about the constitutionality of this issue. I will give you a list of educational associations, school boards. Everybody involved in public education is concerned about this issue, and if it is not the ACLU, it will be someone, whether or not we pass this amendment, that is going to go to the Supreme Court and challenge the constitutionality of the Salvatore amendment. But, believe me, none of the other arguments used against this issue such as child welfare, AFDC payments, those things are exempted specifically in the Constitution, and, please, if you are going to stand and talk about it, read it.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the lady from Allegheny, Senator Hart.

The PRESIDENT. Will the lady from Allegheny, Senator Hart, permit herself to be interrogated?

Senator HART. I will, Mr. President.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, does the Senator have a copy of the Pennsylvania Constitution with her?

Senator HART. Mr. President, I do.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, would the lady look at Section 15 of Article III, please. Would the lady indicate whether or not Section 15, Article III would permit any money raised for public schools to be appropriated or used for any parochial school?

Senator HART. Mr. President, yes, it does.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, you say it does permit that?

Senator HART. Mr. President, monies are not permitted to be appropriated directly to a parochial school.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, Is that the lady's position?

Senator HART. Mr. President, on its face, I would say that is what that section does say.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, I would ask the lady then to look at Section 29 of Article III. As I read Section 29 there are exceptions but the beginning of Section 29 reads that no appropriation shall be made for educational purposes to any person with exceptions. Is that the lady's reading of Section 29?

Senator HART. Mr. President, again, on its face, I say that is what the words so say, however, my argument is not only with the Constitution on its face, my argument deals with the way this Constitution has been interpreted by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, is there any exception provided in the actual words of the Constitution which would encompass the provisions of Senate Bill No. 953?

Senator HART. Mr. President, again, to belabor the point, there is nothing specifically on its face which permits many appropriations such as unemployment compensation, welfare payments directly to individuals, in fact it specifically excludes individuals. However, case law interpreting this Constitution has permitted those.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, is it true that Senate Bill No. 953 makes an appropriation of $900 per person or per parent?

Senator HART. Mr. President, yes, that is correct.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, I thank the lady.

Mr. President, there is another provision of the Pennsylvania Constitution which is Section 30, and I am not going to make the point of order now but it will come, and Section 30 provides that no appropriation shall be made to any educational institution not under the absolute control of the Commonwealth except by a vote of two-thirds of all Members elected to each House. So, we are going to have the issue as to whether or not there is a two-thirds vote required to make this appropriation, and that is going to be a real issue in the future. I would direct the Members' attention to the debate at this point in time, because what the parties here have done is they have written a bill, Senate Bill No. 953, that attempts to have it both ways and you cannot have it both ways.

Number one, in an attempt to avoid Section 30, they have written this bill to provide that grants shall be made in the form of checks paid to the parents and that is an attempt to avoid Section 30. However, they then find themselves in a dilemma where Section 29 of Article III provides very simply that no appropriation shall be made for educational purposes to any person. Mr. President, it is crystal clear that one way or the other, one reading or the other is absolutely correct under this Constitution. Does the other side agree that it takes a two-thirds vote? Are they going to stand up here when I make my motion and say, hey, we are willing to agree to a two-thirds vote, or are they going to try to have it both ways. My position, Mr. President, is that Section 29 is absolutely a problem. The fact that someone has a legal brief or a legal memorandum written by some lawyer someplace does not absolve the problem. I am sure arguments can be made on both sides, but the clear, crystal reading of the provisions of the Constitution would indicate very simply we are here to make an appropriation for an educational purpose to a person.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair would hasten to remind all Members that we are dealing with the Rhoades amendment, and we would appreciate it if the Senate would refrain from debating the bill in its entirety. Let us deal with the amendment.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I rise in opposition to the Rhoades amendment. I think the debate we have had here this evening on the Rhoades amendment typifies the fact that this bill has contained within it at least one provision on which even among the lawyers who have taken a very close look at this, and I have seen two opinions so far and perhaps there are a couple more out there. At least I have had the opportunity to read both sides. I have one opinion from a firm that I know has been involved in Pennsylvania constitutional law extensively. But those lawyers differ, particularly on the constitutional question dealing with the voucher, the $900 that would go to the parents of private school and parochial school students. But that issue, I submit to my colleagues, is an issue that, ultimately, in this Commonwealth is not going to be decided by us. It is going to be decided by the Pennsylvania Supreme Court. That is the way our Constitution is set up. Most certainly, passage of this legislation and its acceptance by the Governor is going to result in some litigation. I submit that litigation is going to take this case to the Pennsylvania Supreme Court. Perhaps, depending on what that decision is, it is going to take the case to the United States Supreme Court. That is how significant this issue is. But for us to try to predetermine really what the decision of this court is, I do not believe we are capable of doing that. I think the constitutional debate which we sometimes engage in, it is good, it is healthy, but it really is not definitive. It is not that kind of debate which is going to come out with a decision which is binding on the people of this Commonwealth. Our debate, however, on final passage on this or any other bill, of course, is binding. It leads to the passage of legislation if signed by the Governor. I have been involved in constitutional debates for many years on both the floor of the Senate and the floor of the House of Representatives. I can remember Bill Hutchinson, who was one of the leading Members in those debates, rose with frequency. Of course, his opinions have changed. The force of his opinions have changed since he moved on, not only to our Supreme Court, but now to the Third Circuit Court of Appeals. But the issue that we have before us, the Rhoades amendment, in tying this bill into the passage of a constitutional amendment really begs the question of whether or not the issue before us is, in fact, constitutional. I think, unfortunately, regardless of what side you are on in this debate, whether you are for this bill or whether you are opposed to this bill, I believe the proper way is to wait for the courts to decide, and if, in fact, the courts decide in the negative, those who are proponents of this legislation may, in fact, have to start anew with the procedure that has been recommended by the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades. But I do not believe that based on the system we are governed under in this Commonwealth, we really should be starting on two tracks, one track saying here is what the law is going to be, and the other track saying we need a constitutional amendment to do it. That is the wrong way to go, trying to couple these two things together, which really is what the amendment before us tries to do, is the wrong thing to do. I would recommend that we reject the amendment and move forward with our debate and our vote on the bill, whatever your respective position is.

Senator WILLIAMS. Mr. President, the last speaker's comments were so nice and modulated and sounded so reasonable, let us just move on. I think he avoids the fundamental question. Of course, we have had these debates for years and we were wrong a lot of times. It is very costly to the citizens of the Commonwealth. Much of those failures were in this area. We are saying alert, alert, alert. Not many more times can we afford to just pass it along this way. It is clearly obvious from all the speakers who had the book, the Constitution, out that few, if any, no one would dispute the clear reading of the Constitution. No one has refuted that. We have heard, well, let us go by interpretation. I do not want to get into that, but any time you have a clear reading which says you cannot do this, you have a history of a lot of years of doing it another way, you are talking about a fundamental question. What issue deserves to go before a referendum? I mean, if you are going to have an issue at all, what would deserve that? No, the amendment by the Senator, I repeat, is a very reasonable, straight up meeting of this issue. I do not remember in all my years here ever seeing an issue that begged participation by the constituents, and each and every speaker who has spoken concerning concern for the Constitution has been an irrefutable statement of, here we are. So I just wanted to say finally that we cannot just say, well, let us just move it on in some smooth way as the gentleman suggests. It is about time that we counted the monumental, costly failures of failing to recognize that there is a time when we must face a constitutional question here.

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I am not going to speak on the constitutionality. I think it has been covered, and if we had more lawyers in here we could probably be here all night talking about laws and interpretations of laws. What we are concerned with with this amendment is that this amendment will kill the bill for a lot of reasons. But most important, it affects the quality of education of our children, and we cannot wait three or four more years because if the constitutional amendment goes in after this trigger, then we are talking about a possible 1994 before we can act on this constitutional question. It might be on the ballot in 1994 when a lot of people are running for office. I do not think a lot of people would like to see that. But, more importantly, even after that is settled, and say that we vote that it is constitutional, then it still will be challenged in court. What we are doing, Mr. President, is delaying this thing four or five years out, possibly six years, when we can do it in three years. We can ill afford to have this happen to the educational system of our state.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Fisher.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Fisher, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator FISHER. I will, Mr. President.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, as a Member of this Chamber, I, like you, took an oath of office, and as part of that oath, as I recall, it was to uphold the Constitution. Would the gentleman's recollection be the same?

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, yes.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, so the gentleman just suggested in his remarks on the floor that we should essentially, as far as I could follow, ignore the written word in the Constitution and just do what we think because the courts would determine what was constitutional or not. Can the gentleman reconcile those two things to uphold the Constitution in his statement on the floor just a few minutes ago?

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I indicated that at this stage of the proceedings, which as I understand it is a vote on Senator Rhoades' amendment, to tie this bill into another bill which is a constitutional amendment, and at this stage of the proceedings an affirmative vote for that bill would be a determination by us that, in fact, some part of the legislation was, in fact, not constitutional.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, is the gentleman saying that his statements earlier, that is the essence of all it is that he was saying? Let me attempt to get to the heart of my question. Mr. President, the gentleman is not suggesting to this Chamber that we should ignore the Constitution as we frame legislation for purposes of promoting the general welfare to citizens of the Commonwealth, is he?

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I am not suggesting that. I am saying, however, that by voting on this amendment a vote on this amendment would, in fact, if it is an affirmative vote, if the amendment carried, would, in fact, be de facto, a decision that at least some part of the bill which is before us was unconstitutional and that you needed to amend the Constitution to pass that or at least to get it into law.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, I recall his statements on the floor of the Senate and perhaps we can have them reread to us that he was suggesting that we should not worry about interpreting the Constitution because the courts would do so. The purposes of our Rules that allow constitutional questions to be raised on the floor and the purposes of our ability given to us in the Constitution to amend the Constitution is obviously there for us to look at, first of all, as something that is constitutional. Secondly, when we find that it may not be, to create a circumstance in law for us to change the Constitution, and that is why for the history of the Pennsylvania Legislature we have used the process of constitutional amendments to bring before the voters of the Commonwealth changes as we saw fit in the Constitution through that mechanism. So, he does believe, Mr. President, that we have a responsibility to uphold the Constitution as it is written?

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I would answer that question in the affirmative. However, I do not believe that what we have before us is a properly raised constitutional question on this bill but rather an amendment which would seek to couple or trigger this bill into a separate constitutional question, and I argued that, in fact, that is an inappropriate way to handle this matter and, in fact, is an inappropriate way. I have not heard, except for, I think, Senator Brightbill, anybody specifically debate the constitutional parameters of the issues that are in front of us.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, I thought that Senator Brightbill's comments were fairly cogent on that subject.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I said except for Senator Brightbill.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, I think Senator Rhoades also raised on the floor two separate sections of the Constitution that gave rise to his amendment which would create the appropriate constitutional climate for the educational opportunities program to go forward. And so, Mr. President, I will end my interrogation, but I would also caution all of the Members of this Chamber that we did take an oath of office, that we do have a responsibility, notwithstanding our whims at the moment, to fully within our responsibilities here in the Senate to uphold this Constitution, and there are several sections that have been raised today that I think would give rise to any reasonable person that the proposal before us does deserve some constitutional scrutiny.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, very briefly, I think after listening to the debate, it is very clear to me that there is a question about the constitutionality of the Salvatore amendment. I think that everyone who has spoken on this anticipates that some form of constitutional challenge will be raised in the courts. I think we have narrowed it down now to where the supporters of the Salvatore amendment, as it is incorporated in Senate Bill No. 953, are very clear that they do not want anything to go before the people of this Commonwealth for any determination. That is, if you vote "no" on this amendment, you are saying that we are willing to take our chances and allow this to go to court and let the seven Supreme Court justices here, and potentially the nine Supreme Court justices on the national level, determine the issue. Although the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore, talked about that being quicker, my experience with it is that it could be a very long process and much longer than the constitutional amendment process. I also believe that if you vote "yes" on this amendment that you are saying that we really ought to give the people of this Commonwealth the opportunity, after full debate and after having the issue put before the General Assembly on two different occasions and then on the ballot for some period of time in excess of 90 days, there would be a debate on this across this Commonwealth. That determination then would be made, I think, and give clear determination to this issue as to whether the people of the Commonwealth truly support educational choice or not. That is why I believe we should very clearly and very strongly support the amendment of the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades, so that the people of this Commonwealth would have the opportunity to say whether they believe this is a way they want the Constitution of this Commonwealth to read and not leave that solely up to seven justices to determine that somewhere in a court that very few people will be aware of.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVE CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT. Senator Fumo is back from leave and will be recorded as such.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I rise to oppose the amendment, and I cannot believe what I am hearing on the floor tonight about constitutionality. I have been here when we have passed some of the most horrendous bills known to man, and the only basis of constitutionality was a ruling from the Chair. Now we waste an hour of discussion on whether or not this should be a constitutional amendment as opposed to a statute, and I fully suspect that the people advocating the constitutional amendment really just want to kill the bill. Mr. President, we are not going to be able to kill this bill. We know it. We all know it. Let us get on with the business of the Senate. Let us pass the bill, forget this amendment. Ultimately it will be tested. If the Supreme Court rules it is unconstitutional, I have no doubt that the proponents of this cause will be back again then asking for a constitutional amendment. Mr. President, the people who want this type of legislation surely have thought about it and are surely willing to run the risk of a Supreme Court challenge. Mr. President, let us move forward. Let us vote down this amendment and let us get to the crux of the issue as to whether or not we want this program in Pennsylvania or not.

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, it is not the intent to kill this bill. It is trying to get something done deliberately, directly and to the point. Consider these three things as you cast your vote on this.

Number one, what you are studying or proposing or reacting to was a philosophical difference of such magnitude that it requires a change in the Constitution.

Secondly, what is its effect on education, not only at the public sector, but at the private sector? No one has any confirmed results of saying this is good, this is bad. Initial results have not spelled anything out.

The third thing, because we got accused of stonewalling this in the committee, it came in April 29th, does somebody remember something about a budget in here through the spring and the summer and the fall? Does somebody remember about tax votes and about $2.8 billion in taxes? The bottom line on this is $309,600,000 right now without any transfers between public to public. So you have a choice. You can either raise it or else you can take it off your local districts and let them raise their taxes there. Look beyond your nose. Know what you are doing, and if you want something this philosophically profound, fine. Then give the people who through the Constitution have enfranchised us the opportunity to determine the course to go.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, my dear friend from Philadelphia spoke to this issue, and I am not sure if he could have possibly been listening to this whole debate because I have been part of it now for quite some time and at no time did I indicate my desire to see this issue killed by this amendment. In fact, to be quite honest with you, I am going to vote for the amendment, and I think it is a fair way to handle it. But I really hope the amendment fails because I personally believe that the courts will take a much longer time to determine this issue, and I believe the courts will probably, based on what the Constitution says, come back and say to us that it is unconstitutional, on which there has been no debate whatsoever. I have heard no one stand up to the microphone and say what we have done in the Salvatore amendment is constitutional. It has been clearly determined, even with us in this Body, some of us being non-attorneys, that there is no question that the Salvatore amendment is unconstitutional. How you determine that, I do not really care. I do not care if the Supreme Court does it or if we do it by referendum, but I think Senator Rhoades in the beginning of his debate said he was really trying to shortcut the process. I, personally, do not care how long it takes because I am not going to vote for this on final passage. If there is only one negative vote, and if I get my calls from the Cardinal and Bishop and everybody else that has been doing their lobbying in this issue, I do not care who calls me. It is a bad piece of legislation. I do not care if God says it is good.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I have not been called by the Cardinal. I suspect it is because I am pro-choice on abortion, but, with regard to the amendment, I think those people who are advocating this as a way to get around a constitutional case before our Supreme Court are very naive. I remember in this General Assembly when we passed, I believe it was, Senate Bill No. 1 which dealt with the Constitution, it dealt with the manner in which the courts have to take care of themselves, and the courts struck it down. I also remember, Mr. President, having had a conversation one time with the Chief Justice who was not worried about constitutional amendments because the Supreme Court, according to him—and I fully suspect he speaks for his brethren—is the last determination as to whether or not a constitutional amendment is, in fact, constitutional. Mr. President, if anyone thinks by making this into a constitutional amendment they are going to ward off a court challenge in this state, they are crazy. This Supreme Court has the power to determine whether or not even a constitutional amendment is constitutional. It has the power to determine what the amendment says, and by the very virtue of that power, anything this controversial will be challenged. So, let us short circuit the process and get on with it, Mr. President. Let us live in the real world. As to the budget, Mr. President, and as to the cost of the bill, I fully intend to vote for any taxes necessary to pay for it. I would hope that others who support this concept as vigorously would also not be afraid to put up their tax votes when it comes time to pay for the bill.

POINT OF ORDER

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Delaware, Senator Loeper, will state it.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, we have been debating extensively an amendment before this Body. I have noticed there have been several speakers that have spoken more than one or two times on the issue, and I would just remind the Chair as to what his ruling may be as far as how many times a Member may speak on an amendment before this Body.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair would remind all Members that the general rule is to allow each Member to speak twice on an issue and then for a third time only without objection from the Body. However, it is also the Chair's practice to allow leeway until the situation reaches a level of tedium. Now, whether we are at that point or not is a matter of conjecture.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Williams, if there is no objection.

Senator BELL. Mr. President, I object.

The PRESIDENT. Your comments would be out of order.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, I will be brief. Regarding the comment of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, about the need for taxes and the willingness to vote for the taxes necessary to pay for this bill, I would only say, Amen, brother.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

The yeas and nays were required by Senator RHOADES and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—21

Afflerbach	Greenwood	Lincoln	Reibman
Baker	Jones	Madigan	Rhoades
Brightbill	LaValle	Mellow	Schwartz
Corman	Lemmond	Porterfield	Stout
Fattah	Lewis	Punt	Williams
Greenleaf

NAYS—29

Andrezeski	Fumo	Lynch	Scanlon
Armstrong	Hart	Musto	Shaffer
Belan	Helfrick	O'Pake	Shumaker
Bell	Holl	Pecora	Stapleton
Bodack	Hopper	Peterson	Stewart
Bortner	Jubelirer	Robbins	Tilghman
Dawida	Loeper	Salvatore	Wenger
Fisher

Less than a majority of the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the negative.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration, as amended?

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I rise to a point of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, will state it.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Loeper, on the schedule.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Loeper, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator LOEPER. I will, Mr. President.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, there are a number of amendments yet to be offered to this bill. Is it the gentleman's plan to take the amendments and then have the bill printed with the one amendment that I believe is in it at this point and any further amendments that may be accepted and then vote this tonight or tomorrow, or when?

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, it is my intent that we will continue the amendment process this evening, dispose with all amendments that would be offered to the bill. Overnight, the bill would be reprinted. We would reconvene at 11:00 o'clock tomorrow morning in regular Session and vote the bill on final passage at that time as amended by way of any action taken this evening.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, does the gentleman plan on dealing with Senate Bill No. 953 in its amended version immediately on taking up Session at 11:00 o'clock in the morning?

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, the gentleman is correct.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, there will be no further caucuses?

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, that is my intent.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration, as amended?

REIBMAN AMENDMENT I

Senator REIBMAN, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A3100:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1310.1), page 2, line 26, by inserting after "SCHOOL.": The term does not include any public or nonprofit nonpublic elementary or secondary school that does not agree to make available to the Auditor General and to the Secretary of Education an annual audit prepared by an independent auditor in accordance with accepted accounting procedures or that does not agree to permit the Auditor General to conduct an audit, as now required of the public schools of this Commonwealth.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, this amendment excludes from the definition of school any public or nonprofit nonpublic elementary or secondary school which will not agree to make available to the Auditor General or to the Secretary of Education an annual audit prepared by an independent auditor in accordance with accepted accounting procedures or that will not agree to permit the Auditor General to conduct an audit as now required of public schools in the Commonwealth. Mr. President, I ask support for this amendment because we will be asking, if this bill should pass, the people of Pennsylvania to submit to a tax increase that in the initial cost will be over $305 million, perhaps rising to $1.6 billion. The least we can do, if there are public funds being used for school purposes, then the voters of Pennsylvania, the taxpayers of Pennsylvania, are entitled to an audit similar to those provided for the public school system. I ask for support for this amendment.

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I oppose the amendment. I just feel we have enough bureaucracy, and we do not need the bureaucracy of bureaucrats auditing our nonpublic schools and the private schools.

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, we are not creating any new bureaucracy. We already have in place an Auditor General. We also have in place an auditing provision, and it would seem to me that when we are dealing with public money, the public has a right to know whether their money is being spent for educational purposes or not.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

(During the calling of the roll, the following occurred:)

Senator STEWART. Mr. President, I would like to change my vote from "no" to "aye."

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman will be so recorded.

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, I would like to change my vote from "aye" to "no."

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman will be so recorded.

The yeas and nays were required by Senator REIBMAN and were as follows, viz:

REIBMAN AMENDMENT II

Senator REIBMAN, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A3094:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1310.1), page 2, line 26, by inserting after "SCHOOL.": The term does not include any public or nonprofit nonpublic elementary or secondary school which does not agree to provide for due process procedures, no less than those procedures constitutionally required of the public schools, for pupils before expulsion of pupils from the school.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, I am amending the bill, Section 1, Page 2, line 26, by inserting after "school," "The term does not include any public or nonprofit nonpublic elementary or secondary school which does not agree to provide for due process procedures, no less than those procedures constitutionally required of the public schools, for pupils before expulsion of pupils from the school." This amendment would guarantee due process for the students, constitutionally required, as required in the public school system to all children. The Constitution's doors do not close upon children. I ask for your support of this amendment.

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman.

The PRESIDENT. Will the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, permit herself to be interrogated?

Senator REIBMAN. I will, Mr. President.

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, would the lady explain what due process procedures are for students?

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, due process means a hearing, an opportunity for parents to be heard as to why their student or why their youngster might be expelled, whether all of the constitutional guarantees are permitted. That is what due process is.

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I ask for a "no" vote on the amendment.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I think this issue requires more than just a request for a "no" vote. I happen to disagree with the gentle lady because I think that constitutionally people always have their civil rights and their constitutional guarantees whether they are in a public school or a nonpublic school. What this amendment is attempting to do is to go further than the constitutional guarantees and impose on these institutions other guarantees that we have decided to do in the public schools. Mr. President, I am shocked that the last amendment passed because I think that there, too, we are missing the point. Mr. President, this is aid to the families. This is not a direct contribution to the institution. I am shocked that we want to go in and audit the books of institutions that receive monies from the citizens just because it came from the Commonwealth. I wonder, too, if we would be able to go in and audit a used car company, for example, if a citizen bought a car with a check from a tax refund. Mr. President, this is going too far afield. What we are talking about here is aid to parents. These children in these schools will not be impaired. Their civil rights will not be denied. The door is not shut on constitutional guarantees, but what the door may be shut on, Mr. President, is some of the stuff that we tell our public schools to do that maybe we ought to reassess. Mr. President, I taught in the Catholic school system for five years and one of the biggest advantages that I saw in that system was discipline. Mr. President, as a Catholic school teacher, I worked for almost half the salary that public school teachers worked for and I was very happy to see them compensated the way they were because they deserved it because of the aggravation they had to put up with.

Mr. President, what we are attempting to do here, possibly, and through the series of amendments that were spoken about earlier, in caucus anyway, is to try and make all the private schools in Pennsylvania be saddled with all the problems of the public schools in Pennsylvania so that maybe we can equalize education across the lines and make it all lousy. Part of the reason why parents send their children to these schools is not because of a religious belief, but because of a desire to have those children receive a good education. Mr. President, the facts speak for themselves. Education in this country is a disgrace, not just in Pennsylvania. We are not educating kids for the jobs of the next century. Business is complaining like crazy because it has to teach new people and new employees remedial reading.

POINT OF ORDER

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, will state it.

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, I think that the previous speaker has gone far afield. It seems to me that the remarks he wants to make with respect to the quality of education are more properly reserved for another time because we can answer a lot of the arguments that he is raising with respect to the quality of education. What this amendment does is to protect youngsters from not having a hearing within the school administration, that they can willy-nilly be expelled from a school if they are disruptive or if they look crooked at the teacher, and that is the purpose of this amendment.

The PRESIDENT. If the lady will yield for just a second, the Chair understands and the Chair also understands that her point has been made and finds the point to be in order and would simply suggest to the gentleman that he would confine his remarks to the amendment.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I will. I submit if we are really worried about the rights of children, we should be worried about the right to make a living. We should be worried about their right to learn to read and write in America. Mr. President, I know of no private institution that does not have a handbook clearly setting forth its guidelines and clearly setting forth its appeal processes when a child is subject to expulsion. If the gentle lady can tell me of such an institution that has no guidelines, but just willy-nilly, as she says, expels children at whim and that that has been sustained in our court system, I would be more than happy to entertain this amendment, but she cannot point to one example. Mr. President, there is no need for this amendment and it seems we are hiding behind and trying to hide behind the Constitution and worried about the rights of students and children. Mr. President, the rights of the children in these institutions are clearly protected by the Civil Rights Act on the federal level and also by our civil rights statutes on the local level as well as our Constitution. A child does not lose his or her constitutional rights the day they enter a private institution of learning. They do not lose that right, Mr. President. This amendment is therefore frivolous and I regret that my colleague has to use the argument that this is necessary to protect their constitutional rights. It is not, Mr. President. This is another attempt to water down the bill, to stall the bill, to stop the bill, to try to make the bill so obnoxious that it does not go anywhere.

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, to follow up on what my colleague from Philadelphia has just said, we do not audit transportation for nonpublic schools. We do not audit the books and supplies, auxiliary services and equipment. There are functions now that we do not audit. Now all of a sudden we are going to audit everything. It just seems like this is another attempt to defeat this bill and, more than that, it defeats education again in the State of Pennsylvania.

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, with respect to the last speaker, this amendment has nothing whatsoever to do with auditing. We have already voted for that amendment to provide safety for the taxpayer's money to see how it is being spent. This amendment guarantees due process procedure so that a child is guaranteed the constitutional due process privileges and rights, which my colleague, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, has mentioned is already there. If it is already there, then what is the harm in making sure that it is a guarantee in this amendment? I do not see any harm whatsoever in using this amendment to underscore the fact that students have rights, that they cannot be expelled for disciplinary purposes, or for whatever reason, unless the parents are provided a hearing, and there is a time for the hearing so that these guarantees, which my colleague, Senator Fumo, has said are already there, are certainly implemented and followed. I am in support for the amendment.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, this amendment goes further than constitutional guarantees. That is the argument. These students already have their constitutional guarantees. This amendment is not redundant. This amendment, rather, takes those guarantees and so-called rights and extends them into an area that is not currently guaranteed by the private school children. It is in public schools because that is what we adopted to do. Mr. President, there are a thousand rules in public schools that most people would say do not work. I remember standing here once when the gentleman from Lancaster, Senator Armstrong, wanted to do away with prevailing wages for school construction, something that made sense all over the place except for the labor unions that build the schools that do not want it. Now in the public domain you can do that.

POINT OF ORDER

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, will state it.

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, I do not see anything remotely resembling wages in this amendment.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair understands. The gentle lady's point is well taken. The gentleman has completed his remarks.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, the amendment, I think, addresses not just the issue of due process for students in public or nonpublic schools, but I think the amendment addresses the issue of what is wrong with the Salvatore amendment as it has been put in Senate Bill No. 953, and that is that it is completely and blatantly unfair to stand and compare an educational system that has no rules and no guidelines—did not even have an auditing procedure until ten minutes ago—and that is the argument and that is why the amendment is offered, not just so that we can make this bill something that cannot pass. I do not believe that anybody in this room would want to put into our educational system something that does not work. I cannot stand here and debate all night long, but I am willing to try that on the fact that our educational system is not quite as bad as some of the naysayers are going to stand up here and say, and if they do, I can assure you that we could go into the committee of the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades, and find a hell of a lot of bills and legislation that would take away from our public school systems a lot of the silly stupidity that the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, wants to allude to in debating against this amendment. This amendment does nothing but give the nonpublic schools that we are going to give taxpayers' dollars to the right to have the same type of education, nothing more, nothing less.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

The yeas and nays were required by Senator REIBMAN and were as follows, viz:

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration, as amended?

REIBMAN AMENDMENT III

Senator REIBMAN, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A3104:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1310.1), page 4, line 13, by inserting after "STUDENT.": However, no grant may be made to any parents of eligible students who would not be eligible for grants from the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency under the act of August 7, 1963 (P.L.549, No.290), referred to as the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency Act.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, this amendment would insert after "student" that no grant could be made to any parent of eligible students who would not be eligible for grants under the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency. Under Senate Bill No. 953, over $305,000,000 at the outset will be going in the form of $900 vouchers to people of very high income. This amendment would assure that the money would be used for those poor students from poor families who, perhaps, we are not serving as well as we should in our public school system. If Senate Bill No. 953 should pass, then they should have the opportunity to have the vouchers applied to them, to the poor, lower-income students, rather than to those rich students who are already enrolled in nonpublic schools whose families are already paying the tuition in accordance with their choice and right to do so under our system. I would ask for support for this. It is a reasonable amendment. It will assure that the money will go to those poor people, poor students from poor families who you think would benefit from a nonpublic school.

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I cannot believe that the Senator from Northampton is going to offer this amendment. You know, we are supposed to be the party of the rich, and here we are going to deprive the middle class, the people who pay the taxes in Pennsylvania, the people who are concerned about an education, we are going to deprive them of a tuition of $900 or a voucher. The people who we are trying to help most, the people who never get anything. They cannot get student assistance. They cannot get any grants because they make over $25,000 or $30,000 a year. If you call $35,000, $40,000, $45,000, $50,000, $55,000 or $60,000 or $65,000 or $70,000 rich, they are not rich. Two people working to make ends meet, making $60,000 to $65,000 and by the time they are through paying their bills, they cannot afford to pay any tuitions, and we are going to say to these people, you are not allowed again, but you pay your taxes. You keep paying your taxes middle America, but we are not going to give you any breaks. We are going to tell you that you have to have your kids go to school and provide all the monies and we have in place already for the poor in the inner cities the nonpublic schools in Philadelphia. The parochial school system in Philadelphia provides education for the inner city kids right now, and they are trying to help the inner city kids and the poor at no expense to them. Do you know why? Do you know why the kids attend there? Because they are getting an education, and I guess the quote would be, "A miseducated child is a child lost," and that was stated by one of the great presidents, John F. Kennedy.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, first, I think we ought to clarify a little bit what that PHEAA eligibility means. It is not $9,000 a year, and I have not seen the computation recently, but memory serves me that the adjusted gross income of a family would be somewhere in the neighborhood of $37,000 a year and you would still be eligible for a grant. So we are not talking about the people who live in my district where the average salary, the mean salary, is $13,000 a year. I am not lucky enough to represent a district like the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore, where they have $50,000, $60,000 and $70,000 a year average incomes. If that is the case, I cannot understand why he is bleeding so much for this bill. I mean, I could see me standing here with the very low income families who I represent arguing for a $900 grant, but the trouble is, none of that money, the $900 grants, is going to go to families who really need it throughout Pennsylvania. Eighty percent of it is going to go to Philadelphia, Delaware and Montgomery Counties, down in the southeast. Everybody in this room who is voting for all of these wonderful things that Senator Salvatore is talking about is voting to give 80 percent of their $307 million of taxpayers' dollars to one area, but they would not be excluded. In fact, many of those $40,000 and $50,000 a year, after they have adjusted it down, income families in Senator Salvatore's district would be eligible because the one thing, if you have noticed, the amendment does not say a PHEAA grant for how much. You can get as little as $50 or $100 in a PHEAA grant, and you can get as high as $1,300 or $1,400, or whatever our maximum is. That amendment covers a multitude of ranges of income, and if you vote against this amendment, then you are very clearly and very arrogantly saying to the taxpayers of this Commonwealth, we really do not care about fairness. We really do not care about education. We really do not care about any of those things that this Commonwealth has been founded on. We are interested in only helping a very narrow, narrow, narrow group of people who have lobbied, lobbied, lobbied very hard for this piece of legislation. That is what this vote on this amendment is all about.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, for purposes of clarifying, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore, indicated that the parochial schools and private schools in that city are providing an education to poor inner-city kids at no cost to those children. That is not the case and I think that he obviously misspoke, but there is no such occurrence taking place in the City of Philadelphia. All of those families who do benefit through education in private and parochial schools pay a tuition which I think is the subject of why we are involved in this debate. But, nonetheless, let me move to the heart of this issue. If we are going to provide a $900 stipend to families, some of which make over $200,000 and $300,000 a year and provide the same $900 stipend for families, unfortunately, too many of whom are below the poverty line in this state, that does not seem to be an appropriate, equitable way to try to provide enhanced opportunities to those families. I think the amendment of the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, which attempts to provide a means test for purposes of this $900 stipend so as to not overburden taxpayers who are going to have to meet this $300 million bill coming very soon to their doorsteps, will provide at least some equitable distribution so the taxpayers know that we are focusing this effort on families who really need this help.

Senator TILGHMAN. Mr. President, I am not going to bring up the question of germaneness, but I do not think this amendment has anything to do with this bill. As I understand and I know the lady knows, the PHEAA program is for higher education and so stated in the Constitution. The whole PHEAA program and the computer formula, or whatever is in the computers, is towards the cost of college education. It is based on the cost of the college at the University of California or Indiana, or wherever they are going, of the Pennsylvania residents going to college. It has nothing to do with the cost of basic or elementary schools, and how you can put that formula in place for basic or elementary education, I have not the foggiest idea. I think it is unbelievable that it is even being considered or discussed.

Senator HART. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman.

The PRESIDENT. Will the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, permit herself to be interrogated?

Senator REIBMAN. I will, Mr. President.

Senator HART. Mr. President, does the lady have any statistics as to the income level for a family of four that would allow someone to get a grant of this fashion?

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, I do not, but there are statistics and we certainly can provide them to the lady from Allegheny with respect to statistics for a family of four and poverty level people. Mr. President, for the lady's edification, all this amendment does is to assure that taxpayers' money is not going to affluent people who might be sending their children to the nonpublic schools that are so expensive in tuition.

Senator HART. Mr. President, I would like to ask the lady for a definition of what would be considered affluent under this?

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, I think there is a general recognition that affluent are incomes around $100,000, perhaps between $75,000 and $100,000, depending upon the number of people in the family.

Senator HART. Mr. President, I would also like to ask the lady if this amendment is not much more limiting than to refuse a grant to those who make $100,000 a year?

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, what this amendment does is to use the income level that is used by the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency. If they fall within a certain income level, then they do not receive a PHEAA grant, and what we are saying under this amendment is that if they fall within that same income level, they would not be eligible for the tuition of $900. It is a fair amendment. It is based really on an ability to spend or an ability to pay is what it is.

Senator HART. Mr. President, the distinction made, I would caution the lady, it appears to be much more limiting, especially in view that we are considering a grant to parents of younger students and those who do not even have the ability to get a job and raise the money for tuition for themselves as a PHEAA grantee would be able to do. Therefore, I think this amendment is somewhat limiting.

Senator SHAFFER. I desire to interrogate the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman.

The PRESIDENT. Will the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, permit herself to be interrogated?

Senator REIBMAN. I will, Mr. President.

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, I would like to continue that line of reasoning. I certainly do not want to be recorded as supporting the use of taxpayers' dollars for what otherwise would be wealthy individuals, whatever that means, and I do not think anyone else in this Chamber does either, but I really do not understand from the remarks I have heard so far from the maker of the amendment as to just by income, who are the people who will be included or excluded by this amendment. Can the lady tell me, did she specifically intend to use the word grant instead of loan?

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, yes. We give grants under the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency as well as loans, and this is a grant. A tuition voucher is a grant.

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, it is my understanding then, is this correct, that even individuals who under the PHEAA program might be eligible for PHEAA loans would be excluded from participation under the lady's amendment?

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, if their income is such that they do not qualify for grants under the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency, then they can get loans, and we have that program for people in middle income and higher income levels.

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, it is my recollection that virtually no middle-class Pennsylvanian qualifies for a grant under the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Act. They do qualify, it is my recollection, in many cases for loans. Therefore, I am trying to assure myself that the lady's amendment would not seriously limit this program to only destitute individuals, and I need some assurance from the lady that this program, her amendment, would allow what I will variously refer to as middle-class working families to participate. I need some assurance that her amendment would not exclude middle class working parents from this bill.

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, I do not think that we should use taxpayers' money to help them pay high tuitions.

For example, one of my sons went to Mercersburg Academy in the last two years of his high school for various reasons, because they had small classes, ten students to a teacher. The tuition at that time was $3,000 a year. I do not believe that the general taxpayer should have helped me pay for the tuition of my son to go to Mercersburg Academy when the public schools were there, open for everyone of every income level, a common ground for every diversity, cultural diversity, every religion, every creed, every color to meet on a common ground, which is the democratic way. No way should I have asked or expected the general taxpayer to help me pay that tuition, and that is what this amendment is all about.

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, I had some initial interest in this amendment that was proposed by Senator Reibman in that, as I stated before, nobody has much interest here, if any interest, in helping rich people with hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of income send their kids to Fox Chapel or Mercyhurst, or any other private schools. Nobody has that intent for this legislation. However, it appears to me, Mr. President, that by limiting the scope of this legislation to those people who would qualify for PHEAA grants, what the lady is attempting to do, or at least by omission or commission she is insuring that no middle class will be able to participate in this program. The only people who qualify for grants, g-r-a-n-t-s, that are not paid back, are the very, very poorest among us. Most families, Mr. President, are included in the PHEAA loan program. Let the Members understand that even though you may qualify for a loan under PHEAA, as many middle-class parents do, under the lady's amendment you would receive nothing under this new legislation. I think this amendment is very anti-middle class. It is extremely deleterious to the working men and women of Pennsylvania who may want to send their kids to private schools, and I think it is a very thinly disguised attempt to scuttle this legislation.

POINT OF ORDER

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, will state it.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I object. I do not believe that anyone on this floor has a right to impugn the integrity of another Member by putting forth on the record what they think they are offering an amendment for. I think that those remarks are out of line, and I move that they be expunged from the record.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair would first acknowledge that the gentleman from Fayette is correct. It is not within the right of any Senator to impugn the motive of another. However, the suggestion of expungement seems to the Chair to be somewhat extreme.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I will abide by your decision.

Mr. President, it is very apparent that Members of this Body have less information and less knowledge of the most important program that they have in their districts, the PHEAA program, than they do about the amendment that Senator Salvatore put in this bill last Wednesday. I urge Senator Shaffer to call the PHEAA board tomorrow morning and give them all of the ZIP Codes from his district, and I guarantee that he is going to be amazed at how many of those middle-class people whom he represents are getting grants, because the program is established with some degree of fairness. Over the 15 years that I belonged to the PHEAA board, there has been a continual upgrading and movement up of what is called the level that you need to meet to get a grant. I am not going to argue with you that not everyone eligible for a grant gets the full grant, but the amendment does not say you have to get the full grant. If you get $50, you are eligible, and I guarantee you that you have constituents who have an income of anywhere from $35,000 to $50,000 a year who have students attending Pennsylvania's colleges who get grants. The only thing I urge you to do is to check that. This is a very fair way of doing it because the formula they use adjusts for many factors involved in what it takes to be a middle-class wage earner, taxpayer, parent in this Commonwealth. If this amendment is not fair in assessing how we take $900, I guarantee you that is not the average grant. Very few people who have students in college get grants higher than $900 from PHEAA. But, yet, you are willing to say that we can take $900 and give that to any family, absent any means test, to take and send their kids in elementary purposes to school anywhere they want. I do not understand that. I do not understand if that is the case, why we do not take away the total means test under the PHEAA program completely, because, if it is fair within the limits of what we have to spend for higher education, surely it has to be fair if you are taking $900, which is a great deal more in percentage of what it costs that parent to pay tuition, and the only thing we want to do is base that on the same means and needs test as you would meet on income guidelines for PHEAA. That is as black and white as you could make it. It is bottom line, and it is an issue that if you tell me that you do not believe me, check with PHEAA, because PHEAA will tell you basically the same thing I am telling you.

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, I noticed that the speakers from the opposite side do everything but give us information. They have told us that I should call PHEAA, that we should do this and what the record will show. Interestingly, I have not heard one iota of data, not one income guideline, not one specific PHEAA rule or reg be mentioned here. We are being asked to take this amendment on the so-called faith that families of $75,000 to $100,000 are not included. That could possibly be fine with me and maybe with many others, but before I vote to exclude what I have a sneaking suspicion is the very middle-class working families that I am intending to help, before I do that, I need more data, more documentation, certainly more than the zero amount that has been furnished to this Body here tonight.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, to some degree I echo the sentiments of the gentleman from Butler, Senator Shaffer. I, too, am not as adept at the PHEAA formulas as the gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, who is a member of that board, and I certainly commend him for his intelligence and his expertise in that area. I, too, am suspicious about cutting out working class families. Mr. President, I had a law school professor a long time ago, and I think I have said this before, tell me that the history of civilization has been the upper class finding ways to make the middle class pay for the lower class. I suspect this may be another one of those ways that we want to exclude and stick it to the middle class. If there is a need for income guidelines, then let us have an amendment that clearly says that anyone with an income in excess of $100,000 a year or $75,000 a year, if that is the number you want, will not be eligible for the program. But, when we start hiding behind guidelines of other institutions and other programs, I, too, get confused. Mr. President, perhaps it would be a good idea to do what Senator Lincoln said, remove all guidelines on PHEAA for higher education and perhaps, if we get to revisit PHEAA, we might have a debate on that issue. But what we are concerned about here today, Mr. President, is sustaining the middle class and allowing them to let their children get an education.

Mr. President, my two children both went to private schools, and I agree with the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, that I would not have thought it appropriate for the Commonwealth to assist me in sending them to those schools, because I do, in fact, make enough money to do that, and I have a young daughter, now two years old, who will probably also go to private school, maybe even starting next year, and I assure you we will not accept this or apply for it. That is up to everyone's conscience to do that. I am also a little bit concerned about the remarks of my colleague Senator Reibman, when she started out and said, perhaps the school systems do not treat the poor properly and perhaps the poor are not properly served. Mr. President, if the poor are not served, why is the middle class then served by that same system? What is so unique to poor people that the middle class does not share the same problems when it comes to education? I do not know the answer to those questions, Mr. President, but I do think that the middle class is entitled to this type of a program. Mr. President, I also say this for another reason. One of the things I do know something about is the budget, and, Mr. President, I fully agree with some of the other speakers that this is going to be an expensive program. I have heard estimates thrown around during this debate of $300 million, and I think that is probably about correct. And what I said earlier was that I would be the first to vote for a tax increase to pay for this program, because if I did not say that I would be hypocritical. But, Mr. President, let me also say if the private schools were to close tomorrow, and I will speak for Philadelphia because that is where I come from and that is the area I know best, if the private schools in Philadelphia, and in particular the Catholic schools because they are the ones who educate the poor and the middle class in Philadelphia, nonpublic schools, the truly private schools—yes, many of the people who go there are wealthy, but let us talk about that narrow area, the Catholic school system in Philadelphia, which does educate poor and middle-class children—if that system were to close tomorrow, Philadelphia taxpayers would not be able to absorb the increases in taxes necessary to run that system. Also, Mr. President, I submit to you if that happens statewide, we here would not be prepared to step up to the plate and pay for the increase in costs that ESBE would require. Mr. President, this is a cost-effective way, albeit to some distasteful, but it is a cost-effective way to maintain education in Pennsylvania. If we think this is expensive, wait until you see what it will cost if those institutions close. Mr. President, I was advised recently that in Philadelphia, just this year, 15,000 new students enrolled in the public school system because they could not afford the tuitions any longer in the Catholic school system. Mr. President, that is going to create an additional burden in Philadelphia. Real estate taxes are going to have to be raised in Philadelphia to sustain the school system, and that is just with 15,000 new students. Mr. President, we all know what it costs to educate a kid. We all know what we pay in our ESBE formula for a student, not counting the local matches. It is a lot more than $900 per student, Mr. President. And, yes, I have become a fiscal conservative in my years as the Minority Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations since I have a Governor who is leaning that way, and I think if we are fiscally conservative and if we are worried about saving a buck and getting a bang for a buck, we had better look at the numbers. It is a lot cheaper at $900 a student than it is at the multi-thousands that we put in for a student. I, therefore, urge a “no” vote on this amendment so that we can help the middle class avail themselves of an education that they see fit to get.

Senator SCHWARTZ. Mr. President, I rise to add my comments on this amendment and must admit the previous speaker seems to, as have others, forgotten that, in fact, we already pay for a system of education that is supposed to serve children of all incomes, and it is called the public school system. We just seem to have forgotten that. We are talking about how could we possibly provide education for middle income, wealthy and poor children. Well, the way we do that is the public education system. The rhetoric around this bill, which I do not think relates very much to the substance of the bill, is that this bill is intended for people who cannot afford to send their children to private and parochial schools which must mean they do not have enough money to do so. Those who already have a lot of money have that option available to them. I am not at all convinced that this is truly what this bill does, but assuming for the moment that the rhetoric is, in fact, what the bill does, this amendment is the only language we have seen so far that would speak to the financial need on the part of parents who want this option and do not now have it. I would disagree vehemently with the speaker before me, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, who talked about the fact that he wants to encourage people to opt out as a cost-effective method. I do not think that is what we want to do. I think we want to, in fact, invest in quality public education, but I will reserve those remarks for later on when we are discussing the entire Salvatore amendment and not this one. But let me just remind people that this is the only language we have that will limit this. PHEAA grants, as I understand them, or the PHEAA formula is adjustable, and I am very pleased that my colleagues on the other side of the aisle have discovered middle and working folks in this state and are anxious to help them with financial loans and grants. Certainly we Democrats have for a long time recognized the importance of government assisting all Americans and that they do not want to just assist the wealthy. But this bill would provide financial assistance to the wealthiest among us. The language in the amendment of the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, is the only language we have that would somehow set a means test to this bill and I would encourage my colleagues to take a look at that. If you truly mean you want to expand options, then help those who do not have the option to choose other schools. I would also ask that you remember that public education is really what we as government should be assuring is high enough quality so that no one has to be driven from the public school system to private school systems, and $900, as we know, is not enough in case they are.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, I am going to attempt to be brief. But let me just say first that if every time a politician rose and used the word middle class, it is a buzz word. We are going to protect the middle class from that. That is when people should really start to grab their pocketbooks and their wallets, because it is that kind of notion to try to, through smoke and mirrors, pass a bill like this and avoid an amendment like this in which people who do have very high incomes will not do, as the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, says, well, we will not apply for it. They will apply for it, and families who make hundreds of thousands of dollars will be collecting $900 in order to send their kids to some of the most expensive schools offered in this state. The reason that 15,000 students enrolled in the Philadelphia public school system this year is not because their parents could not afford parochial schools. They enrolled because of some of the excellent programs offered, like our School for International Affairs, our music magnet schools, our engineering high school and some of the other programs that have attracted middle-class families back to the Philadelphia public school system. So, we should not stand on the floor here and use these buzz words in a way to do what, in essence, this bill is about. It is to bail out the Catholic school system, which has done a tremendous service in terms of providing an education to many, many families, and maybe there is some way that we can find to help, but this way is not the way. It is unconstitutional, and also, we should not, in our attempt to bail out a very worthy school system in the City of Philadelphia, provide a loophole for the very rich.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, one thing I would like to make clear on this before I vote is that I agree with the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, on middle class and who we are trying to help, but I also want to know who is middle class. In Philadelphia, maybe, that is the middle-class people you are trying to help with this whole effort through the Salvatore amendment. I can tell you that it is not going to help the middle class in almost every other Senate district in this state. Less than ten percent of the Senators in this room are going to see some benefit to the middle class who they represent. In fact, in most cases the benefit to the ten percent is going to be at the expense of the other 90 percent. So, those of us who live in the rural areas also represent middle-class people, and they are not being helped, not one drop, by this. They would be if this amendment was put in place because it would control somewhat where the money was going to be spent only by lessening the amount that we would need to fund this particular piece of legislation.

The most important thing I want to say in rebuttal to Senator Fumo is that if every nonpublic school in this state closed, aside from Philadelphia, aside from some schools in Delaware County, aside from other very unique places in Pennsylvania, out of the 500 school districts, I would have to say to you that 450 at a minimum would benefit, because then when those students went into the school districts, the aid ratio and the daily average membership would go up and those school districts would get a considerable larger amount of money from the state, and, as we all know, school student population has decreased over a period of years where most school districts, if not all, have buildings that could be used if the student population grew and came back to what it was, say, in the mid '70s. So, it is whose middle class are we really hurting? Whose middle class are we helping? I can tell you that in most districts, if the extreme came where you would see nonpublic schools go out of existence, which I do not want to see, I am not advocating that and I am not asking for that to happen, but if that were the extreme thing that came about, I would believe that you would see most school districts be able to assimilate those students into their districts with very, very little problem.

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, one last word to my colleague, the gentleman from Butler, Senator Shaffer, who is so willing to help the middle class, I think we all are, but I think he ought to look to see that out of this $307 million, which is calculated to be spent the first year on this bill, that in Butler County the amount of money which would go to his district is 0.5 percent. I do not know how many middle class people are included in 0.5 percent of that money.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Williams, Senator Musto, Senator Stout and Senator Bodack.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Lincoln asks temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Williams, Senator Musto, Senator Stout and Senator Bodack. The Chair hears no objection. Those leaves will be granted.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

The yeas and nays were required by Senator REIBMAN and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—12

Afflerbach	Jones	Mellow	Schwartz
Bortner	LaValle	Porterfield	Stout
Fattah	Lincoln	Reibman	Williams

NAYS—38

Andrezeski	Fumo	Loeper	Robbins
Armstrong	Greenleaf	Lynch	Salvatore
Baker	Greenwood	Madigan	Scanlon
Belan	Hart	Musto	Shaffer
Bell	Helfrick	O'Pake	Shumaker
Bodack	Holl	Pecora	Stapleton
Brightbill	Hopper	Peterson	Stewart
Corman	Jubelirer	Punt	Tilghman
Dawida	Lemmond	Rhoades	Wenger
Fisher	Lewis

Less than a majority of the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the negative.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration, as amended?

FATTAH AMENDMENT I

Senator FATTAH, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A3098:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1310.1), page 2, line 26, by inserting after "SCHOOL.": The term does not include a school which does not agree to be subject to all the health and safety requirements of this act.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, this amendment simply would require that any school, public or private, that would receive students and grants under this bill would meet the health and safety requirements of this act, in the acts relative to public schools now in the Commonwealth, and I would ask for its adoption.

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I think we will accept the amendment. I think it is already in Act 178 of 1986, so I do not see anything wrong with it.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration, as amended?

FATTAH AMENDMENT II

Senator FATTAH, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A3061:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1310.1), page 6, by inserting between lines 20 and 21: (1) All teachers in a school under this section shall be subject to the certification provisions of Article XII of this act.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, this would require that all teachers in any of these schools, so situated, would have to be certified under state law.

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I urge a "no" vote on this. I think that is an amendment that is not needed.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I think the argument has to be expanded just a little bit. I think we have a concept in this country that allows parents to determine what the destiny of their children will be except when, in fact, they determine a destiny adverse to their health and safety. We allow children under limited circumstances to be educated at home, and those people are not certified. We have a number of schools that have produced a number of successful citizens in our society that went to schools without certified teachers. We have a number of successful citizens who were educated in schools that had teachers who were not certified. I even went to schools where the teachers were not certified. Regrettably, teacher certification has become, in some instances, a way in which unions limit the number of people who can teach and raise the cost of those salaries. I do not know if teaching one and one is two to a first grade student we need someone with a Ph.D. But I am very sure if we allow PHEAA and the AFT unions in Philadelphia to have their way that certainly would be a requirement. I do not know if that child would be taught any better, but I certainly know it would cost us a lot more money. I think it is up to the parents to decide if they want to send a student to a school that does not have certified teachers, provided that school meets the requirements and becomes licensed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to graduate students into our society. I do not think teacher certification is the necessary thing that my colleague, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fattah, seems to think it is, because I know we are all worried about these students and no one is worried about anything else. Mr. President, I respectfully disagree with him. I do not think we need certified teachers everywhere and certainly, as experience has taught us, we can exist in society without them.

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, I would only point out here that under the current so-called teacher certification, the test scores of students in this state have continued to decline. So, anyone who puts value in Pennsylvania's teacher certification is misplacing their confidence by and large. Under teachers certification in Pennsylvania today, I would remind my colleagues that James Michener could not teach English in our high schools. Lee Iacocca could not teach a business course in a Pennsylvania high school. I rest my case, Mr. President.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, as the final word on this subject, I would just remind both previous speakers that without this, David Duke could teach at the David Duke academy, and we could provide them a $900 stipend also.

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, when I objected to this amendment, I felt that this amendment was not needed in this legislation. If you are talking about certification of teachers and certify them, then we ought to look at home schooling where they do a better job. We look at what they are doing now as far as education in the nonpublic schools where we have in a public school system, at one of my high schools, only one person who had SATs over 1,000, those teachers are all certified. Fifty percent of the people who go to high school do not finish high school in Philadelphia. That is a lot of dropouts.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I just do not believe what I heard the gentleman from Butler, Senator Shaffer, and the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore, say. They finally agreed that there are problems in our public education system, and what they are going to do is they are going to allow noncertified teachers to take my $900 from my kids and my classes in Fayette County and go and do whatever they want to do with it. They do not want to be audited. They do not want health care. They do not want asbestos removal. They do not want any of that stuff. Just give me my 900 bucks and let me go to school where I want to go. That is wonderful. That is a wonderful set of circumstances that we responsible lawmakers have put ourselves in here this evening. I want to tell Senator Shaffer that what he is saying about teachers, that those teachers have the responsibility of taking every student who belongs to some family, some citizen of this Commonwealth, not an elite special group that you screen 1,000 applications and take 250 kids. You take the special ed, you take the kids who come from broken families, you take the kids from AFDC families, you take the kids who have this and this and this and this. Teachers are not miracle makers. We have created a society that is impossible to teach in, and what are we going to do? We are going to make it a hell of a lot better place by taking $350 million out of state coffers and put it in a private school system. That really is going to help Butler High School. That is going to help Knouck High School, or all the other high schools, or whatever else you have up there. That is really going to help them. The worst part of it is that we are arguing over teacher certification, and the two people who I have heard argue against this amendment, other than Senator Shaffer, do not have a noncertified teacher in their city. We are not talking about the parochial school system, the nonpublic, the Catholic school system in Philadelphia, because I venture to say to you that they probably have a strict certification rule where they would not have a teacher come into that school system. But in this Commonwealth there are a number of other kinds of schools springing up all over, and they are the ones that have resisted considerably, with some considerable muscle. The ones who are making the phone calls to the rural people are not from the Catholic schools, they are from the Christian academies and the other academies that have sprung up over the last eight or ten years. They are the ones who do not want a curriculum. They are the ones who do not want certified teachers. It is not in the City of Philadelphia. Your nonpublic education system in the City of Philadelphia probably has as good teachers as those who are certified and are specifically directed to teach the class that they are certified in as probably anyplace in this Commonwealth. But what is going to happen with this bill? If you think that $900 is only going to go to that school, I guarantee you that five years from now there are going to be little schools all over the place where somebody is going to start one to make a couple of bucks. That is what we are talking about here. We are going to foster a whole brand new kind of teaching. We are going to have teaching for money, only for money, because the 900 bucks is going to come in when you get a student, and we are going to do more damage to what we already have in the public school system which has done fairly well in spite of all the criticism. Everything that goes wrong in this society is blamed on school teachers. Well, I want to tell you, Mr. President, I grew up with a lot of people who became teachers and they became damn good teachers, and there are a lot of good teachers out there, and for every bad one you show me, I will show you a hundred or a thousand good ones, people who are just as dedicated in the public school system as anybody in a nonpublic school. I will tell you something. I am sick and tired of hearing people stand up and talk about SAT scores. Hell, you do not have kids reading. How can you teach? I will bet you half the homes in this Commonwealth do not get a newspaper. They do not get magazines. That is what is wrong with our SATs, not the teachers, and I am damn sick and tired of hearing that.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I do not think anyone is here assailing teachers, but, Mr. President, I think that what is happening here is that there are those people who question what is going on in education today. I do not know that it is the teachers' fault, but I also have some trouble in listening to the gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, tell me that we have created a society that has made it impossible to teach. I do not know what we did to do that, Mr. President. We have been in the forefront of giving money to education, funding ESBE last year so much we got criticized for it. I do not know what we did to make it impossible to teach kids. When Senator Lincoln says they do not want all that stuff, all parents do not want all that stuff. What parents want is an education for their child and what they perceive to be a good education for that child. Mr. President, I know of no requirement in state law that mandates that in the Catholic schools in Philadelphia or anywhere else or any of these private schools that there must, in fact, be certified teachers unless something has changed radically recently. I taught for five years and was not certified, and I know a lot of other people who did it. I know of people even in the grade schools who taught at a high school and at a college and they were not certified. That is not my concern, whether or not "Christian academies" in the rural areas will get some benefit from this. Mr. President, I have a lot of trouble worrying about people who are going to "start schools to make a few dollars." It is the parents of those students whose God-given responsibility it is to worry about those students. Those parents will decide whether or not they want to send their students to one of these so-called "Christian schools" or one that would open up just to make a few bucks. Who else are we supposed to trust with this decision? Part of the problem with government in America today is that we want to do everything for everybody, and we want to make everybody think they have no responsibilities in this life. Now we even want parents to think they do not have the responsibility of looking into the education of their children. Mr. President, that is what life is about. That is how it started on earth. Who are we to say that a parent cannot decide where to send their kids? We do not even prohibit the fact that that parent can educate that child. We have a right to demand some sort of standard in the end. We have a right to demand that if you are going to get a recognized diploma that the institution be licensed to meet some minimal guidelines, and if someone wants to start an institution of learning to make a couple of bucks and it complies with the state laws that are governing this area, what is wrong with free enterprise? Mr. President, I have seen on the media lately, national news shows, where they are showing people doing this for money and turning out good students. What is more American than the free enterprise system? Education is the responsibility of society, no question about that, but maybe part of what is wrong today is that we who sit in this Chamber and our colleagues in the other Chamber, not knowing much about the realities of some of these issues, sit here and pontificate on what is wonderful for everyone and what people should do. We often make laws that do not apply to us, and we think that is right. Mr. President, there is no need for certified teachers because we have already proven that people can be educated without them. It is not our business to try and protect some parent from sending their child to some school that might open up because somebody wants to make money in educating kids. That is not our role, and I would hope to God it never becomes our role. Mr. President, if we have a problem with certification or some of the standards that some schools meet, then let us address that in a School Code bill. Let us say that this school is so horrendous that no child should be allowed to go to it, or if they do, they will not get a diploma. But we do not have the courage to do that. No. All of a sudden we are worried about these other institutions that exist, and even those that could exist in the future, and we do not care what they do as long as they do not take this $900. I do not see any amendments on this floor to amend the whole School Code, to mandate that every school in Pennsylvania have certified teachers. No, no. What I see is if you want the $900, you have to do that. But if you do not want the $900, you can send your kid to the worst school in the state, that is taught by the dumbest people who do not even teach, and if you meet some guidelines we will still give him a diploma under the State Licensure Act. Mr. President, what could be more hypocritical than this argument? If people are truly concerned about having certified teachers in education because that is the only way to learn, then let us see an amendment pop up, because this is an appropriate vehicle to do it to, mandating that all schools licensed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania have certified teachers. Now that one I might vote for because that is parity across the board. That is not hypocrisy. But I am not going to sit here and say that if you want this $900 and you are a middle-class person trying to make a living to send your kids to a school, that all of a sudden you have some new requirements.

The PRESIDENT. Would the gentleman yield for just a second. The Chair just simply wanted him to catch his breath. The Chair would also ask the gentleman, please, to rein in his comments and address the amendment so that we can proceed.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I thought I was doing that. I think the issue here is whether or not a person receiving this $900, if they want to use that to send their child to a school, that that school now has to have certified teachers.

The PRESIDENT. That is correct.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, my argument is that that is an unnecessary requirement. It is a requirement we do not make to that very same institution if we want the child to get a diploma. Why, then, should we make it a requirement if they are going to receive this $900? It makes no logical sense whatsoever. With all due respect to my colleagues on both sides of the aisle, that is not the way to attack this problem. If we truly believe certified teachers are necessary in order for children to learn, then we should amend the School Code to require it at all licensed schools, but you cannot discriminate and just say that they should only have certified teachers if some parent gets money and decides to participate in this program.

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, I will be brief. I am delighted, though, to have a second chance to speak on this bill because, by doing so, I give the gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, the opportunity not to respond to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, and if my means for being in this process is to provide the foil so that the gentleman from Lackawanna, Senator Mellow, can respond to my comments but not the concurring comments of Senator Fumo, well, I guess, maybe, I have done some justice.

Mr. President, what I said was—and I would like to repeat it since the gentleman, Senator Lincoln, has a great affinity for taking things out of context and hyperbolating on them—that this amendment deals with certification of nonpublic teachers in this process. What I said was, and I would continue to stand by that, we do have certification for the public school system, and by looking at the test results, by looking at any empirical data anyone wants to look at, it has not in and of itself ensured quality education in this Commonwealth. That I think is an established fact. I did not say that the teachers are responsible for all of the decline in the educational process. I never said that. I did not say that teachers, and teachers alone, are responsible for the education of our children. Indeed, they are not, and when we have a society where both parents are working, where we have latchkey children, we have children who cannot even get a decent breakfast and we have to be responsible in the government for feeding those children, where we have kids who watch hours and hours of television, they are subjected to all kinds of murder and mayhem by the thousands of hours, I do not envy any teacher, public or private, in trying to mold that young person's mind by the time they are 5 or 6 years old. It is a difficult process, and to those teachers who toil in the field and who are giving it their maximum effort, we owe them every allegiance.

I also said, Mr. President, just as I said that teacher certification does not guarantee great education, that our certification process currently is so run amuck that an individual of the stature of Lee Iacocca could not teach a business course in our schools. That is a fact, Mr. President, and the gentleman can dispute it if he wants and take it out of context, but it is a tragic shame and speaks unfavorably for teacher certification in that James Michener could not teach a course in English in our public schools in Pennsylvania today.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, do I have to stand every time the gentleman from Butler, Senator Shaffer, speaks to make sure that he more fully explains that he just did not say teacher certification, low SAT scores, very poor grades, and sit down, and not have us believe that had to have some implication on teacher certification. And then we say low SAT scores and low grades, they have nothing to do with one another. I am so very pleased that Senator Shaffer got up and explained he really does not think teachers are the whole problem in our society. Plus, I am not so sure that I would want Lee Iacocca or James Michener teaching one of my kids simply because one can write a book and one can make a few bucks building cars does not necessarily mean they could be very good teachers. Some of the worst people in the world, I believe, would be teachers if you followed that analogy, and that does not make any sense. Most of the good teachers I had in my life were people that dedicated themselves to that proposition from the very beginning of their lives in most cases. Sometimes it did not work in my case, but they worked hard at it.

The real purpose for me standing was I cannot believe the debate of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo. The one thing that I have never said is that you should not have a choice. That has never been the question. You have a choice right now without the amendment of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore. You have the choice to send your kid anywhere you want to. What you want me to do now is to pay for it. You want me and everybody else in this state to pay for the choice you made. You want to send your kid to a nonpublic school. You made that choice, pay for it yourself. That is my choice, and I do not want to pay for it and I do not want to pay for it at the expense of my own students. I do not care how often you choose.

The PRESIDENT. The issue is rather simple. The issue relates to teacher certification. There is an amendment before us. The Chair would appreciate it if we could focus in on the amendment and deal with it. The Chair is hoping that the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fattah, the author of the amendment, is about to have the final word.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, while we are optimistic on that point, let me just say in conclusion on this debate that we are involved in a process of discussing whether or not teachers will be certified who will teach kids in which taxpayers' money will support them. We live in an environment in which we license and certify electricians and plumbers. The least that we could do is to provide for parents the comfort level that would be provided through the certification of teachers. The question is not whether Lee Iacocca or James Michener can teach in our schools. The question is the people who taught them so they could accomplish what they have accomplished in this life, who were teachers who were certified, that our young people would have the same benefit. Let me just use this analogy in my conclusion. What is being suggested here is because there are some problems in public education that we should set up and support private education and nonpublic education. It is as if saying that crime is still a problem in our society, let us do away with our police departments or at least start to fund private police officers, but let us not regulate their activity. Let us not have them certified in the handling of firearms. Let them arrest and batter or assault anybody they would at will. What we are saying is just let us set up a system because the problem still exists, but let us not create any of the safeguards that provide the public a comfort level that we now have. I think that is foolish and is foolhardy for us to be involved in this process, and I would ask for people to support this amendment.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, Senator Bell has been called from the floor to his office and I would request a temporary Capitol leave on his behalf.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I request temporary Capitol leave for Senator Fumo.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Loeper requests temporary Capitol leave for Senator Bell. Senator Lincoln requests temporary Capitol leave for Senator Fumo. The Chair hears no objection. The leaves will be granted.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, I will try to be as brief as I can. You know, it is amazing to me. I stand here as the Chairman of the Senate Committee on Education where we spend 48 percent of our multibillion dollar budget in education and then we are going to say you do not have to be certified to teach. If I am going to hold that true for the private, then, please God, hold it true over here. So right now I will say to everybody, no one has to be certified anywhere in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania because it is not important, it is not significant. That is, in essence, what you are saying.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

The yeas and nays were required by Senator FATTAH and were as follows, viz:

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration, as amended?

FATTAH AMENDMENT III

Senator FATTAH, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A3107:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1310.1), page 2, line 25, by inserting after "241)": and complies with all Federal and State requirements regarding racial discrimination and equal opportunity to which public schools are subject

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1310.1), page 2, line 26, by inserting after "SCHOOL.": The term does not include any public or nonprofit nonpublic elementary or secondary school which does not agree to provide full access to all children, regardless of race.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1310.1), page 6, by inserting between lines 20 and 21: (l) In the event that admission for eligible students to a school must be restricted because of space limitations, the selection of candidates for admission shall be accomplished by lottery.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, this is my last amendment. This is an amendment that I assume can be agreed to. It is an anti-discrimination amendment.

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I oppose the amendment because, first of all, we already do not discriminate. Schools are already more stratified by race, income and ability than ever before. It is hard to imagine how any new system comes to make it harder for those that are left behind. The reason we have this problem in the first place is because we presently have a choice system that is limited to the financially well off. Those of financial means already exercise choice either by an expensive home in the best public school district or by sending their children to private schools. Neither of these options apply to the poor and working class children who are currently stuck in inferior schools. The choice bill attempts to eliminate some unfairness by expanding or utilizing the choice that already exists. Many parochial schools, particularly the city Catholic schools—

POINT OF ORDER

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, will state it.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I apologize to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore, but I really have no idea what—did I miss something? I thought the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fattah, offered an amendment that said that you could not discriminate, and I am not sure what the argument is that Senator Salvatore is using. It sounds to me like it is completely away from the issue.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair thanks the gentleman and finds his point to be well taken. The gentleman could reserve his remarks on the bill for the passage tomorrow.

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, the point I was trying to make was that we do not discriminate now in the Catholic school system and nonpublic school systems. We accept children of all denominations, of all races and creeds, so we do not discriminate. The second part of the amendment is a redundant one of the first one. Then in the third part of this amendment we are going to resort to a lottery. That is an attempt to kill the bill. When we say that, "In the event that admission for eligible students to a school must be restricted because of space limitations, the selection of candidates for admission shall be accomplished by lottery," that is sad. That is sad to say that we are going to do that by a lottery, and that is why I oppose the three parts of this one amendment.

Senator DAWIDA. Mr. President, I have been very solidly against many of these amendments because I thought they really had only one attempt and that is to eliminate the opportunity for, I think, an innovation whose time has come. However, this particular amendment, I think, is meritorious because schools should not practice discrimination in any way, shape or form. It is un-American and, I think, in fact, that most of the nonpublic schools in my area are quite meritorious in their willingness to accept students of all types, and they do not find this at all a threat. This is something they practice, quite frankly, a lot more in nonpublic schools in my area than many of the public schools in some of the communities in the outskirts of Pittsburgh. So I would urge a "yes" vote on this particular amendment.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I request legislative leaves for Senator Afflerbach and Senator Belan.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Lincoln requests legislative leaves for Senator Afflerbach and Senator Belan. The Chair hears no objection. The leaves will be granted.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

(During the calling of the roll, the following occurred:)

Senator LEWIS. Mr. President, I would like to change my vote from "no" to "aye."

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman will be so recorded.

Senator ANDREZESKI. Mr. President, I would like to change my vote from "no" to "aye."

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman will be so recorded.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I would like to change my vote from "no" to "aye."

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman will be so recorded.

Senator HART. Mr. President, I would like to change my vote from "no" to "aye."

The PRESIDENT. The lady will be so recorded.

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I would like to change my vote from "no" to "aye."

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman will be so recorded.

Senator BAKER. Mr. President, I would like to change my vote from "no" to "aye."

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman will be so recorded.

Senator LEMMOND. Mr. President, I would like to change my vote from "no" to "aye."

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman will be so recorded.

Senator ROBBINS. Mr. President, I would like to change my vote from "no" to "aye."

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman will be so recorded.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore (Robert C. Jubelirer) in the Chair.

The yeas and nays were required by Senator FATTAH and were as follows, viz:

RECONSIDERATION OF FATTAH AMENDMENT A3107

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I would move that we reconsider the vote by which Amendment A3107 passed, and I would move for a division of the question.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Loeper, first, moves that the vote by which the previous amendment was adopted be reconsidered.

The motion was agreed to.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

MOTION TO DIVIDE QUESTION

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Loeper moves a division of the question. Would the gentleman be specific.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I would move that the question be divided, that the first two paragraphs in the amendment dealing with, "...Federal and State requirements regarding racial discrimination and equal opportunity to which public schools are subject," and "The term does not include any public or nonprofit nonpublic elementary or secondary school which does not agree to provide full access to all children, regardless of race," that those two be taken as one issue, and the second issue to be voted on would be the language relating to lottery.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair rules that that is divisible.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the first part of the amendment?

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, will state it.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, when would be the proper time to interrogate or debate on this issue?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Which one? The first part or the second part?

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, either one.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. We are ready to vote on the first part, which is the first two paragraphs. If you wish to interrogate the Majority Leader, or whoever, now would be the time, Senator.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I will wait until the second part.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the first part of amendment A3107?

A voice vote having been taken, the question was determined in the affirmative.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the second part of amendment A3107?

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, would whoever, I mean either the maker of the motion or the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore, stand for interrogation? I have no one in particular that I would care to direct this to, but just somebody who can answer the question.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Salvatore seems prepared to be interrogated.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator SALVATORE. I will, Mr. President.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, this part of this amendment, I think, is almost impossible to separate from the first two parts, because if I read Senator Salvatore's amendment correctly, there is absolutely no provision whatsoever in that amendment dealing with how do you determine who gets into where. I would ask Senator Salvatore then, that if there were 200 spots in a school and 200 people who fit the definition of the first two paragraphs applied, does that mean that all 200 would be accepted, and if you did not accept all 200, would that mean that you were being discriminatory, and at that point in time, if you were discriminating, what happens?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I think that the local school boards should have local option in determining if they have any openings rather than be determined by a lottery system, and it is a first-come, first-served basis.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, then passing the first two parts of this amendment means nothing. The intention is to put it into law but it does not make any difference. If you are one of the first 200 people in school A where you want to go, you are going to be accepted. Are there going to be criteria as to when the deadline is when you actually start the applications? Is there anything in this act that says we are going to take applications on August the 1st for a class that starts on September 15th, or is it April or March or February?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, this piece of legislation is not intended to discriminate against anyone. This piece of legislation is intended to educate all children of all races, colors and creeds.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, but the gentleman resists leaving in a section that says that if there is discrimination, then we are going to say to your school board, absent any other rules which I do not see any anywhere, you have to do it by a lottery which is fair. What is the purpose in removing this lottery section from this amendment? Is it going to lessen the education process by bringing in one of 150 or 200 eligible, qualified applicants for those positions?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, if they have room for them, then they will accept 150 to 200.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, but if they do not, if they only have room for ten and there are 200, how do you determine who those ten are?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, it is hypothetical, and also I would say that the lack of school choice has been one of the major reasons for the urban flight, whether it be white, black or Hispanic, and middle-class blacks and Hispanics are likely to leave cities today just as much as whites are. So all you are saying is that you want to create a lottery system, and I am saying that the local school board should have the option to determine how many openings they have and who they are going to accept.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, why would the gentleman oppose that section of this and support the first two sections which are absolutely meaningless without the third portion?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, because we do not discriminate and we are not going to discriminate, and the lottery system is wrong. I do not think that we should have a lottery system. You can disagree with me and you can ask me all night the same question, and I am going to give you the same answer.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I am not going to persist in asking the question because it is very obvious that your scope of what a good education is narrowly defined to certain people, and my question does not even go to the discrimination part of this amendment. I would like to know if you have a 100 white middle-class female-male mix for 15 positions, how are you going to determine who they get? How do you determine out of that group of 200 how 15 people get in? First come, first served, I know.

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, the local school board will establish the criteria.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, under what guise, what guidelines, what rules? What section of Senate Bill No. 953 says that?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, again, I repeat, the local school boards will exercise their option as taking first come, first served.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I will not even think of continuing this any further. I will say to the gentleman that this probably is just another very clear example of how bad that amendment that Senator Salvatore put in was. It does not have any rules. It does not have any guidelines. It does not have any rules. Tomorrow in debate I am going to talk about how that is going to be a $300,000 appropriation to the Education Department to hire five people to set up the guidelines for 2,000,000 students. That is how silly, that is how ridiculous, that is how narrow, that is how incredible what we are all about tonight is, that there are no guidelines. If you think you have a hassle now, you wait until 200 of those middle-class kids that you are worried about cannot get in because there is no way to expand most of the nonpublic schools. I have a Catholic high school in my hometown that can probably take 120 new kids in their freshman class each year, and whenever I have everybody in my area who has a $900 check to take with them, I defy—Principal Tommy Daugherty, the diocesan head of the nonpublic education for the Greensburg Diocese—them to stand before those parents that they are not going to let in and tell them, we do not have any guidelines. We are going to let it up to the boards. We do not have a board. There are no school boards. You have diocesan people who are elected from the different parishes. I cannot wait until Senator Salvatore goes out in the 58th Ward and 16 people every day run into him and say, what the hell is going on? I cannot get my kid into that nonpublic school down there. There are only 200 spaces. How did you determine who gets to go there? Right here you had an opportunity. Do it by a lottery because that makes as much sense as anything else we debated here tonight.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, I know the hour is getting late. However, I think it is very, very important to all of us in this Chamber that we watch what has occurred. I offered an amendment to prohibit discrimination in any of these schools, and as part of that amendment there was a process to ensure that kids were not discriminated against. You may have noted the slow pace at which the Senate finally came to a majority to determine that we would not create a circumstance where schools could discriminate on the basis of race, and then we saw an effort to reconsider and we have separated now that question from the guarantee of no discrimination. Now we use lotteries to give out summer jobs to kids through government sponsored programs. We use lotteries to determine who is eligible for low-income mortgages that we provide to the public because a lottery guarantees a way in which nobody gets discriminated against. But now, all of a sudden, we are saying that schools can use whatever other criteria they want to decide who gets in. If it is a space restriction, what is a better way to respond to who gets in and who does not get in, all other things being equal, than a lottery? I would tell you that you will see the vote on this amendment closely follow the vote that was just taken on the question of discrimination, and I would ask the members of the media and everyone else in the Chamber and in the gallery to watch very carefully because this is the same vote. This is a vote on whether or not we are prepared to allow these schools to discriminate or not, and that is the attempt that is being put in a more, as the gentleman from Butler, Senator Shaffer, says, sneakier way, that is now before the Chamber.

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, during our hearings, this is one of the points that was brought up. From a standpoint of, if this is to speak to educational improvement, a better process getting us better results, then why do we not take the economically deprived and academically deprived child first to put them in this better educational system so they are better? If we are going to discriminate against them, then where is this improvement and how are we making the system better? The lottery is fair, it is fair to everyone, but I think we missed the point of saying if we are improving education, take care of the kid who needs it most of all, not some special interest.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the second part of the amendment?

LINCOLN AMENDMENT

Senator LINCOLN, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A3095:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1310.1), page 2, line 25, by inserting after "241)": and complies with all Federal and State requirements regarding children with disabilities to which the public schools are subject

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1310.1), page 2, line 26, by inserting after "SCHOOL.": The term does not include any public or nonprofit nonpublic elementary or secondary school which does not agree to provide full access to and programs for children with disabilities.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I had several amendments that I was going to offer. I know this will not make everybody happy because they want to stay here the rest of the night, but this is the only amendment I am going to offer. I think we have seen a number of very difficult issues dealt with in other amendments, but I really believe that this could be the litmus test as to how concerned you really are about your own personal school districts, the one that we have in our public education system, because I have heard the whole range of debate on this issue from the initial reaction of the gentleman from Butler, Senator Shaffer, to certification and all the ills of the world being piled on that lack of some accomplishment because of having certified people, but this one is special education. This one says that if you accept the $900 from that parent who comes into your school, if one of your constituents takes the $900 and goes to a private, nonpublic school, that school then has to provide a special education program and has to be willing to accept every student who applies with learning disabilities and with other educational disabilities, because, let me tell you, one of the reasons we have people who get up and go on about how difficult and how incredibly bad our education is is because they do not take into consideration that we take every student who goes to the public school and we find a program for them. We have individual education programs for them. Every student is given some type of test to see whether they have a learning disability, some type of a test to see where they would fit in. We take every child severely handicapped, mildly handicapped, and we have a program in our public education system that avails itself of trying to teach that student something. There are times that I know special ed teachers have a great feeling because they are able to go in and show the rest of the world that you can take someone who has never had an opportunity for an education, give them an opportunity to go out and lead a productive life. That is what public education is all about. We fund that, and we fought over that for several years here, and we finally, this past summer, in a very bipartisan manner, came to a conclusion on how to change that funding process, how to make it better and how to guarantee that even the poorest student in this Commonwealth with a learning disability, with a handicap, had the opportunity to go to their school district and get educated. The only thing that this amendment I am offering right now does is give that same opportunity to a parent of a child with a learning disability, with some type of hearing impairment, speech impairment, born with some type of a handicap, relative to these nonpublic schools everyone here is attesting to the fact that they are doing such a tremendous job in educating. I believe they ought to have the opportunity to put those same skills and the same results to educating those students who want to go there that have some kind of a handicap. If you can say no to that, then I do not know what you are looking for other than the $900. If you are going to say no to that because you feel that is going to handicap your education system in the nonpublic areas, then I think it is very clear that the only thing we are interested in here tonight is providing money to help fund nonpublic education. No ifs, ands or buts, we do not care what that education system does. As we said, they do not have to have certified teachers. We can say that they can discriminate because if they do not have enough room they do not have to let you in. I do not believe that the public school system ought to be the total and complete depository of every student who cannot afford to go to the nonpublics, or cannot because there are no programs available under the handicapped sections under the federal law that says you have to do it, because, let me tell you what you are doing. If you are going to exclude the nonpublics from having to take care of the handicapped student, then over a period of time the only thing that you are going to see in a lot of our public schools are the very poor, those who cannot afford to get into a nonpublic situation and those who do not have a program offered to them, which are the handicapped, in whatever degree of handicap they might have. I think that is an atrocious, outrageous, almost a David Duke approach to what we are all about in this country—just forget about them—because that is what the Nazis did. They got rid of those who could not read and write because they were disabled. I do not want any parts of that, and I believe that a lot of the students who are of average intelligence and those who are even above average in a public school system are handicapped in their learning process because we have an obligation to see that everybody gets an education. We have handicapped students who are mainstreamed into the regular education program, who are there with students who have no disabilities, and there is no question that a teacher who has to teach a class that is mixed, handicapped and nonhandicapped, has a problem in making sure that those nonhandicapped students get the proper education. But that is what we are all about. We cannot walk away from those among us who are not as capable or those among us who do not have the financial means, but that is what we are doing with this piece of legislation. If this amendment is opposed and the people who are supporting this choice legislation say to me in my amendment and say to the rest of the Commonwealth by their vote that we do not believe in special ed, only in your school—and that is basically and primarily what this is all about—we want a separate nonpublic education system that does not have to deal with those problems. We want to take kids that you give us $900 for and we want to take them and give them a really good education, but we do not want to slow down that process by having special classrooms, special needs, special students. That is all I say. This amendment only says that you have to give the handicapped an education, an opportunity to get into your nonpublic school with their 900 bucks. Now I want to tell you something. What you are talking about is the difference in education costs between a normal student and a handicapped student. It is tremendous, but that is why we have such a very expensive public education system, because we do take into consideration that there are students that have special needs. If you want to exclude that completely, if you want only an elitist type of a situation where you do not have to deal with special ed, you do not have to deal with handicaps, you do not have to deal with any of that stuff, then you vote “no” on this issue. That is exactly what I expect to happen, and I tell you it is a sad day and it is a disgrace in this General Assembly, and particularly here in the Senate when that does happen.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator LINCOLN. I will, Mr. President.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I know that the gentleman is intimately familiar with special education and special education funding. In proposing this amendment, is the gentleman also proposing that if a nonpublic school educates and provides the special education needs that those additional monies that are currently provided to the public school system for special education would then flow to the nonpublic school?

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I would be very happy to do that and we probably eventually will when the amendment that the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore, placed in this bill says that each year that $900 figure will increase as we increase the subsidies to other public schools, and I would have no quarrel whatsoever with that particular system that we have in our public school system now applying to the nonpublics, if they accept the students.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I believe the gentleman indicated and I know certainly is aware of the fact that there is certainly a huge disparity in costs associated for educating someone with special needs over someone with the basic needs. Are you not aware there is absolutely no question it could be as high as four times as high?

Mr. President, I believe under the law which we just adopted a few months ago there is a special formula that was established that provides a certain grant for the mildly retarded and an even higher grant for the severely handicapped throughout the state. Would you agree that that kind of money should flow then to the nonpublic schools that agree to educate the children pursuant to this amendment, if the amendment is adopted?

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I have already indicated that I think the nonpublics should have the ability to avail themselves of those funds. The only thing I question in this argument is that in no place in this amendment that Senator Salvatore offered is there any talk of accepting the subsidies that the gentleman from Montgomery, Senator Greenleaf, guaranteed that transaction would take place between school B and school A in the public system. I do not see any concern on the part of Senator Salvatore for the other part of the subsidy to go from the public school to the nonpublic whenever a student leaves the public to go to the non-public with the 900 bucks. But I have no problem with that. I think if we are going to do this, we ought to do it right.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, would the gentleman agree, however, that his amendment does not contain any language in it that would guarantee that the additional money for special education would flow to the nonpublic school which accepted the special needs children?

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I think this amendment probably is exactly the way the rest of the amendment is to Senate Bill No. 953. I do not think it contains any guarantees. I do not think it contains any rules. I do not think it contains any regulations. So if we are going to play in fairy tale land, you know, why do we not just do it the whole way. I agree, there is nothing in this amendment that says anything other than you have to accept the students. There is nothing in the amendment of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore, that says how you are going to accept them. All it says is 900 bucks is coming with them.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, would the maker of the amendment temporarily withdraw the amendment to allow me to get an amendment to your amendment to provide for that language to guarantee the payment?

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I have no problem with doing that as long as it is done tonight and as long as the opportunity to offer further amendments to whatever you put together may be there. I believe that the opportunity to do something to ensure that nonpublic schools provide special education as the public schools do is worth any effort you want to make. I just do not particularly care to withdraw this amendment and never have an opportunity to vote on it, which sometimes in the legislative process, because of the shortness of time, happens. I would prefer to have this amendment voted on because I think it matches the bill as it is written, and if you want to bring something before us that has a more complete listing of how we are going to do this, I would be very supportive of that effort too.

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I resent some of the remarks when the gentleman likened me to the Nazis. I am not like the Nazis, and I care about the mentally retarded and the disabled. I resent that statement. I think that all children who need special education have to be cared for. They are special people. I have been involved with the Association for Retarded Citizens for many years, and I know what they are, and we do provide funding in our public school systems for the retarded, especially the severe and profound. We mainstream a lot of them into the public school system, and I have no qualms with this amendment as long as the legislative intent by the gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, is there, that the funding will be there if the nonpublic schools have to provide the service, as long as there is legislative intent and it is in the record by Senator Lincoln that the funding will be provided. I think it would be a shame though in some instances to disrupt a special education child and change his attitudes or change the school where he is going unless that child wants to go there. That would be a darn shame to do that to a child who is mentally retarded, but I have no qualms with the amendment. All I am saying is, will Senator Lincoln, by legislative intent, say that the funding will be there?

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I think that out of the $300,000 that I saw in the fiscal note for this bill, we have magically been able to find $340 million, because when you multiply 900 bucks for every student who is going to be going, it comes out to a heck of a lot more than $300,000. If you can do that out of $300,000, I do not have any objections to whatever you do with the rest of that $300,000 that is left. I will also say to the gentleman we are talking about choice, and that is what I thought this whole debate this evening was about. I do not see anything in this amendment I have offered that forces any student to go to any school. It is now still the same choice. The choice of a parent of a handicapped student will have the same opportunity as a parent of a nonhandicapped student to make a choice to go to a nonpublic school. Now there is nothing anywhere in this bill that says the $900 that goes with a normal student has any obligation on the part of the Senate, the House, the Governor's Office, the Department of Education, anybody to fund more than the 900 bucks. I do not understand why the concern would be there so dramatically in the case of a handicapped student other than it points out very clearly the nonpublic schools are not equipped to do that. I am saying that is discrimination, as I argued on the last amendment, that discrimination goes deeper than just the color of your skin. That particular effort and this amendment offered by Senator Salvatore is going to be discriminatory against many different kinds of people whenever it finally goes into operation. It is going to discriminate against those who do not get there soon enough. It is going to discriminate against the handicapped. It is going to discriminate against the blind. It is going to discriminate against whatever, and that is the argument I have been making all evening. This is just not a good idea. I have no objections. I have been in the forefront of funding, and what is really disturbing to me is the position I have had to take on this particular piece of legislation that is going to destroy 19 years of very hard work on my part to put in this year, in this budget, $165 million to fund nonpublic education. I was here when the decision was made that you could not fund directly, and we have worked very diligently over the years to get money for books, for nonpublic transportation, for health care services. I have been a very vital part of that, and there is not going to be one of my constituents who have written me letters in every form, pleading, demanding, threatening that they get their $900, who is going to understand the position that I have taken here this evening and the position I am going to take tomorrow when I debate very strenuously against the final passage of this bill. If you want me to put on the record that I will support and honor and obey whatever we come down to as far as special education in nonpublics, you have a commitment from me to do that. You have a commitment from me as I hear other people standing up talking about this choice bill and the $300 million, or whatever it is going to end up being. I do not hear anyone other than the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, saying that he is willing to vote for the taxes. I have been a stalwart in support of raising revenues for education. I have worked very hard with other Members of this Body and the House to support increasing funding, doing other things that will make our public education system better, and if, in the final analysis, we end up with choice legislation and it includes whatever, if I am here, I am going to be a person, even though I get my brains beaten out on this issue here, on this vote, to be there to support those who are supporting choice, that I know who are not going to have the courage to vote for the funding that it takes to make it necessary. I probably will be dumb enough to be in the forefront of fighting for that financial support too, but I do not believe you can possibly put anything into place that excludes special education as part of that educational system.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I join with the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore, and really thank the gentleman for his comments on this amendment and for his commitment for support. I think it is awfully important that that legislative intent be placed on the record. He is right. The gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, is right. This is a school of choice bill. It is not being changed. A parent with a child with special needs who chose to send that child to a nonpublic school, I believe, should have at that nonpublic school the special needs cared for. Unfortunately, today any nonpublic school student with special needs has to go through the intermediate unit. The intermediate unit provides that service. The nonpublic school does not have the opportunity to avail themselves of those monies to provide those services. I believe this amendment and the support from Senator Lincoln, who I know will stand behind his words here on the floor tonight, will be sufficient to allow the nonpublic schools to serve all of the needs of the students who attend those schools, students who are attending them now or students whose parents will choose to send those children there in the future. So I join with Senator Salvatore in urging adoption of this amendment.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration, as amended?

STEWART AMENDMENT

Senator STEWART, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A3195:

Amend Title, page 1, line 5, by inserting after "thereto,"":
regulating strikes by employees of school entities;

Amend Sec. 1, page 1, lines 12 and 13, by striking out "a section" and inserting: sections

Amend Sec. 1, page 1, by inserting between lines 13 and 14:

Section 112. Regulation of Selective Strikes.—(a) It shall be illegal for any bargaining unit representing employees of a school entity to strike unless more than fifty per centum of all eligible employees shall have voted in favor of the strike.

(b) The strike vote shall specify the date the strike shall begin. A strike by the employee organization shall be against the entire school entity. Selective strikes against certain facilities, grade levels, or for portions of a school day are hereby prohibited. If the employee organization does not strike on the specified date, the previous authorizing vote shall be null and void. The employee organization shall be required to schedule another vote to engage in each subsequent strike or other work stoppage. Subsequent votes to authorize a strike shall follow the requirements set forth in this section.

(c) Strikes by employees of a school entity as authorized by the act of July 23, 1970 (P.L.563, No.195), known as the "Public Employee Relations Act," shall only be permitted after the bargaining unit has given written notice by certified mail of the strike to the president of the board of directors of the school entity, to two (2) newspapers of general circulation within that school entity, two (2) radio stations broadcasting within that school entity and two (2) television stations broadcasting within that school entity. All such notices shall be received at least forty-eight (48) hours prior to the announced date of the strike. In lieu of the required notice to newspapers of general circulation, in a school entity where no such newspaper is published, a notice shall be posted in at least five (5) public places.

(d) No strike shall be valid except as it is in compliance with the requirements of this section.

(e) It shall be unlawful for a school entity or their representatives to hire, employ, recruit or procure an individual to replace a professional employee who is engaged in a strike in compliance with the requirements of this section.

(f) When used in this section the following words and phrases shall have the following meanings:

(1) "Eligible employee" shall mean the members of the employee organization which is the exclusive representative and employees paying a fair share fee to the exclusive representation as required under section 2215 of the act of April 9, 1929 (P.L.177, No.175), known as "The Administrative Code of 1929."

(2) "School entity" shall mean a school district, intermediate unit, or area vocational-technical school.

(3) "Strike" shall mean a concerted action in failing to report for duty, the wilful absence from one's position, the stoppage of work, slowdown, or the abstinence in whole or in part from the full, faithful and proper performance of the duties of employment for the purpose of inducing, influencing or coercing a change in the conditions or compensation or the rights, privileges or obligations of employment.

Amend Bill, page 7, by inserting between lines 22 and 23:

Section 6. The act of July 23, 1970 (P.L.563, No.195), known as the Public Employee Relations Act, is repealed insofar as it is inconsistent with this act.

Amend Sec. 6, page 7, line 23, by striking out "6" and inserting: 7

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator STEWART. Mr. President, the bill as it is before us, as we have learned over the last five or six hours, is a bill designed to provide schools of choice. This amendment does not really address that particular issue, but perhaps it addresses some of the reasons why we are even dealing with that particular issue, because whether it is certified teachers or noncertified teachers, or whether or not public schools have discipline and nonpublic schools do not have discipline, or whether or not books are audited in one school system and not audited in a nonpublic setting, or whether it is low grades or low SAT scores, or a whole myriad of things, what we do know is parents have turned their heads away from and are turning their heads away from the public school system. I am not sure whether any of those reasons that we heard this evening, via the amendment process, are valid or not. I am not sure the majority of us in here are really certain which of those have caused that to happen, but I do know there are two things that are causing parents and students to turn their heads and look away from the public school system, and it is the disruption that occurs because school boards refuse to negotiate in good faith and teachers have employed recently a tactic called selective strikes. That has not turned tens of thousands of parents away from this public school system to head for the nonpublic system, but I am telling the Members that these tactics are certainly starting to make people look that way.

This amendment addresses both of those problems. It bans selective strikes and sets up a procedure for a regular strike to occur and also prevents the school board from hiring replacement workers when teachers do avail themselves of the strike process, and I would urge its adoption.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (D. Michael Fisher) in the Chair.

AMENDMENT DIVIDED

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, I rise and ask for a bifurcation of the issue so that subsection (e), dealing with the replacement workers for striking individuals, be voted on separately from the remainder of the proposal.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Senator Shaffer has requested that subsection (e) be divided out of the amendment and, therefore, be voted on its own. The Chair rules that the amendment is divisible and, therefore, the question before the Senate is the first part of the amendment, which is the amendment with everything other than subsection (e).

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, will state it.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I would like to have some idea as to how the determination was reached that subsection (e) has any ability to stand on its own. I have always been under the impression that to divide something to vote on it, that not only was it divisible in the sense that you could vote on both parts, but there had to be some reasonable, sensible conclusion that the parts, as they were divided, could stand on their own. I have no idea, if we would not vote for the first part and then we would vote for subsection (e), what we would have and how it would stand on its own. I have no idea. I would conclude by my thought processes this is not something that could be divided, and unless there is really some good argument, I would challenge the Chair's decision on that particular issue.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is the gentleman filing an appeal of the ruling of the Chair?

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I had asked a question under Parliamentary Inquiry as to how you conclude that subsection (e) could stand, when divided, on its own.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair ruled that the motion was proper, and the amendment was divisible on the basis that the two sections, the first part and the second part, could both stand on their own because they are separate issues.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, if the first part were to be defeated, could you give me some reasonable explanation as to what it would mean with subsection (e) being put in this bill without the first part?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. It would be the Chair's interpretation that if the first part were defeated and the second part were adopted, that would mean there would be a Section 112 which would contain subsection (e).

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, in other words, you are saying we would have a school of choice bill that dictates how someone goes about choosing a nonpublic school and sending their child there for an education, and somewhere in that bill it would say, "It shall be unlawful for a school entity or their representatives to hire, employ, recruit or procure an individual to replace a professional employee who is engaged in a strike in compliance with the requirements of this section." There is nothing else there. I mean, what does that mean?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Senator, that is correct, and it is the Chair's interpretation that if the entire amendment were adopted into two sections, you would have two separate sections that would be separate and distinct from the main issue of the bill which deals with schools of choice.

RULING OF CHAIR APPEALED

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I, unfortunately, have not been convinced by that argument, and I would appeal the ruling of the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Senator Lincoln has appealed the ruling of the Chair that the question on the amendment offered by Senator Stewart is divisible. An "aye" vote would sustain the appeal and overturn the decision of the Chair. A "no" vote would defeat the appeal and the ruling of the Chair would stand. The question is debatable.

Senator STEWART. Mr. President, if the Members would read subsection (e), it says... "It shall be unlawful for a school entity or their representatives to hire, employ, recruit or procure an individual to replace a professional employee who is engaged in a strike in compliance with the requirements of this section." Now if we do not pass the first division, then there is no section for subsection (e) to refer to, so, in my opinion, again, it cannot stand by itself, and I would ask the Members to vote "yes" on the appeal of the ruling of the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair would restate the question. An "aye" vote sustains the appeal and overturns the ruling of the Chair. A "no" vote denies the appeal and sustains the position of the Chair.

On the question,
Shall the ruling of the Chair be sustained?

LEGISLATIVE LEAVE

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I would request a temporary Capitol leave for Senator Fattah.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Senator Lincoln requests a temporary Capitol leave for Senator Fattah. The Chair sees no objection. The leave will be granted.

And the question recurring,
Shall the ruling of the Chair be sustained?

The yeas and nays were required by Senator LINCOLN and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—24

Afflerbach	Fattah	Lynch	Scanlon
Andrezeski	Fumo	Mellow	Schwartz
Belan	Jones	Musto	Stapleton

Greenleaf	Lemmond

Less than a majority of the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the negative.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The appeal does not carry and the ruling of the Chair is sustained.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the first part of the amendment to A3195, which includes everything except subsection (e)?

Senator STEWART. Mr. President, just for clarification, the first part that we will be voting on is the portion that bans selective strikes and also requires the school teachers association to give 48 hours' notice before they do strike. The second part, which has now been divided for a separate vote, prohibits the school boards from hiring replacement workers for the striking teachers. I would urge an affirmative vote on the first part.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore (Robert C. Jubelirer) in the Chair.

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, I rise to endorse the gentleman's amendment and ask for a concurrence by this Chamber. We have been through selective strikes, the issue, before and I do not think there is substantive disagreement that this is an idea whose time has come and gone. It wreaks havoc with the system. I have been involved in a selective strike in my district and I can assure you that it unnerves and rattles the parents. It frightens the children. They have no idea from one day to the next whether they should do their homework, whether or not they should be prepared to go to school. It knocks the parents' schedules for a loop. It is very, very anti-education. It is something we should by law do away with and I am glad to see the gentleman from Cambria, Senator Stewart, has done so. I indeed have a bill, prime sponsored, which has not gotten to this floor yet, which would accomplish the same item. So, I congratulate the gentleman on this amendment and I urge a "yes" vote.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, a few weeks ago we considered the issue, particularly with respect to 48-hour notification. That issue was at that time defeated in this Body. But, I would now suggest that if, in fact, we are going to consider a bill of this nature whereby we are going to have students traveling to various and sundry schools, it is now time to reconsider and support a 48-hour notification in the event of a school strike. There are private schools in the Commonwealth which do, in fact, have collective bargaining agreements with their teachers just as the public school systems do. As I have indicated, if we are now going to provide a mechanism by which students will be traveling in various and sundry directions from within the districts where they normally reside, the parents have that much more reason to receive 48-hour notification in the event of a school closure through a work stoppage action. Very clearly they must make child care arrangements, particularly for the younger children. Forty-eight hour notification is not out of line with permitting the parents ample time to do that and particularly if we are going to have a kind of system as this bill would envision. I urge the support of a "yes" vote for this amendment.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the first part of amendment A3195, which includes everything except subsection (e)?

The yeas and nays were required by Senator STEWART and were as follows, viz:

NAYS—1

Andrezeski

A majority of the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the affirmative.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the second part of amendment A3195, which is subsection (e)?

Senator STEWART. Mr. President, on subsection (e), to me it is unfortunate that we did divide it because one of the root problems that created the tactic of selective strikes is that schoolteachers are deathly afraid that if they all go out the board will simply hire replacement workers and replacement teachers and fill the school once again and all the existing teachers will be without a job. Hence, they have resorted to a tactic called selective strikes which we all have just, except for one vote, agreed that is not a very good idea. Subsection (e), the second section of this amendment, simply says the school board cannot do that. They cannot hire replacement workers when teachers strike under the provisions of the section we just voted for, and I would urge all of you, all of my colleagues who are in favor of some balance in this collective bargaining process, that you vote for subsection (e).

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair notes the presence on the floor of Senator Belan, Senator Bodack, Senator Musto and Senator Afflerbach and their leaves are cancelled.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the second part of amendment A3195, which is subsection (e)?

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Cambria, Senator Stewart.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Cambria, Senator Stewart, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator STEWART. I will, Mr. President.

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, as I read this amendment, if it said only that it should be unlawful for a school entity to hire or procure an individual to replace a professional employee who is engaged in a strike, I would at least understand the amendment. But, since there is additional language in there that says it is unlawful for them to employ an individual to replace a professional employee, I am wondering, Mr. President, can the gentleman from Cambria tell me whether or not current school employees, to wit, administrators, are included in his prohibition?

Senator STEWART. Mr. President, yes, the wording and the language in that subsection is deliberate. That is so the school board cannot load up the classes or extra curricular activities, or whatever, with school administrators and call them teachers. We all know that school administrators are not teachers. They sometimes do not understand the job of teachers, and that language is deliberate.

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, it is deliberate then, is it not, by the maker of the amendment to ensure that if there is indeed a work stoppage, that no school whatsoever go on within the four walls of the buildings?

Senator STEWART. Mr. President, I will simply respond at 10 till 10:00 this evening, that this language was lifted directly from his amendment that the gentleman was going to offer a couple weeks ago. So, maybe the gentleman can answer his own question.

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, that will not satisfy the gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln. I feel confident. I am advised, since I have no personal knowledge, that indeed this language did not come directly from my amendment. Regardless of whether it did or not, I do think the gentleman did agree to be interrogated and I would like to know whether or not he does intend that school administrators who are currently allowed, if they are so certified, to fill in for classrooms, particularly for seniors, during a work stoppage, whether or not that current procedure would be allowed to continue?

Senator STEWART. Mr. President, I said the wording of that sentence is deliberate. I do not want school administrators taking the place of teachers who are out on strike, nor do I want anyone else taking the place of those teachers while they are out on strike. If you want people to take the place of teachers while they are on strike, vote "no." If you do not want them to take their place, vote "yes."

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, then do I also take as accurate the fact that under this amendment seniors could not receive any instruction whatsoever from any source whatsoever if, indeed, a work stoppage were to occur?

Senator STEWART. Mr. President, juniors, seniors, elementary, all students in a school district that would be struck by their teachers' organization would not receive any instruction until that board and those teachers negotiated and settled a contract.

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, I thank the gentleman.

Mr. President, from the gentleman's remarks I guess it is quite clear we are, if this subsection (e) is adopted, clearly and dramatically changing what is the current practice. For example, Mr. President, under current practice, seniors in particular are frequently taught by administrators who—many Members of the other side will be happy to know—are certified in those particular areas of expertise. Seniors who need to graduate, seniors who need to get on with their lives, seniors who are desperately concerned about what is going to happen to them the next year, they have not another year to make up. They are at the end of the line, seniors who desperately want their high school proms, their high school graduation activities and have worked 11 years to so attain those goals. I think that it would set extremely bad policy and, indeed, would be very bad law for us today, this evening, Mr. President, to agree to subsection (e), which would declare for all time that when a work stoppage occurred, schools would be shut, the doors would be padlocked, no ifs, ands or buts. I hope this portion of the General Assembly is not prepared to take that kind of Draconian step against the education process, Mr. President.

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Cambria, Senator Stewart.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Cambria, Senator Stewart, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator STEWART. I will, Mr. President.

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, are these certified or noncertified teachers?

Senator STEWART. Mr. President, that depends on who you talk to.

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, during a strike, just for a point of clarification, what role does an administrator have if the teachers are on strike and no one can substitute for them? What role does the administrator play?

Senator STEWART. Mr. President, the administrators can remain in their functioning role as administrators. It just says that the board cannot replace a professional employe who is engaged in a strike, which is being interpreted here, during the questioning, as a teacher, but the administrators, under the terms of this paragraph, can still administrate. It is what they are paid to do.

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, does the proposal recognize that as part of logistics, and let me just use a junior high with about 300 or 400 kids who come in on the first day of a strike, no one else comes in, it may just be the principal and 300 or 400 kids in the building where you cannot bring anyone else in to, shall we say, even supervise, if that is going to be the role that the teacher would play?

Senator STEWART. Mr. President, if the school board, I would think, saw a situation like that occurring, they would simply cancel classes and cancel school for that day. Mr. President, I cannot imagine a school board that would see that coming where 300 kids show up at school, the teachers are out on the sidewalk and there is nobody inside but administrators. If the board knows that the teachers are going to be on the sidewalk, I would think that they would just cancel classes for that day.

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, let me ask, within that amendment that we have adopted, what is the sufficient time of notice for when a strike would occur?

Senator STEWART. Mr. President, we just voted on an amendment that gave a 48-hour notice, so the board and the administrators and everyone concerned with the operation of the school will have plenty of notice to anticipate what kinds of scenarios will occur and, therefore, adjust the school day accordingly.

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, one other point, I guess, is from a standpoint of clarification more than anything else, too, is the fact to remember that your administrators were certified as teachers first, before they became certified administrators and, therefore, would still have the ability to instruct and could end up in a large group instruction type of thing. I am thinking about loopholes that you may want to have to deal with.

Senator BAKER. Mr. President, to me this is an example of an increasing practice in the General Assembly which I think is very deleterious to good legislation, namely, intruding extraneous issues into substantive bills. Whatever the merits of the main legislation we are working on here tonight, this is not the place to attempt to inject legislation which has been dealt with before and can be dealt with again and which is not on the point. In fact, it endangers the bill by inserting provisions that are extraneous to its purpose. For example, the living will legislation has been complicated by injecting the abortion issue into it. In this case school strike legislation has been injected into the question of schools of choice. In the first instance, the mover of this bill tried to splice together two basically contradictory provisions. I take it that although he did not answer the query of the gentleman from Butler, Senator Shaffer, that he was basically admitting that, yes, his purpose was to stop instruction in schools by the provisions of this act. I think that it is very unfortunate that he would seek to burden this bill, which is already a rather complex bill with a number of serious questions ranging from constitutionality to administration, and put in this particular provision, which takes a level playing field based on the logic of the strike, which is the withholding of services, and then it attempts to tilt a level playing field of negotiation into an unlevel playing field by writing this particular provision into this legislation. I think it is very unfortunate and should be defeated.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, how could anybody who stood or sat or laid down, or did whatever, in the whole period of time that we have been dealing with Senate Bill No. 953, stand before this Body at ten o'clock at night and say how offended they were that we were doing something extraneous to the legislation? Does the gentleman not remember last Wednesday? We had a bill before us, Senate Bill No. 953, that said that the State Department of Education cannot be late on their payments of subsidies, and at 10:00 o'clock on Monday of the following week, Senate Bill No. 953 says anybody who wants to choose a different school from where they are sending their kid, if they want to send them to a non-public, a private, another public education system, that is what the bill says. We went from not paying our subsidies late to changing our whole education process by an amendment offered to this bill. How much more extraneous could you get than the amendment that the gentleman supported last Wednesday as offered by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore? That is absolutely hard to believe, and after all these words and talking that do not really mean much, I guess, but I really cannot believe somebody could stand before us and say that about a division of something that does not make any sense, and if you want to talk about changing the level playing field, how more dramatically can you do that than to say to a bargaining unit in a school district you have the right to negotiate with that board and if you cannot come to some conclusion that makes you happy and makes the board happy, then you have the right to withhold your services, but we are going to replace you. That is the most incredible change in the law that we have seen since the Reagan Administration got elected in 1980. Replacement workers—it is the scourge of every working man and woman in this country, union and nonunion, because it does not justify the people on strike. If you have somebody that says I do not want to work under those unsafe conditions, I do not want to work in this place because there is no health care, I do not want to do whatever, we will replace you willy-nilly. It does not make any difference whether you do your job properly or not. This is a union busting effort that has come about since Reagan was elected in 1980. It has been used in many instances, not just in school strikes, and it has just become a problem to deal with in the last few years. It is an ugly thing. It pits the middle class that we have been talking about all night, it pits one of those against another to benefit some wealthy person. That is basically what it is. I cannot believe anybody who believes that we ought to have free negotiating processes in any business, in any union, in any company could say, go ahead and negotiate, but if it does not work and you go on strike, we are going to replace you. You talk about tilting the playing field. This issue right here is one of the most important issues to working men and women in this country. It is the thing that has caused our standard of living to start going the other way because it has destroyed unions, as we went from 20 percent union membership down to 16 percent. We have less health care. We have had almost a doubling of people who do not have health care, and if you think you are doing everybody a favor by saying go ahead and replace workers, you are destroying our economic base. This is one of the most important issues to labor, to working men and women and to all of us because as we lose the right to freely negotiate for health care, for benefits and for wages, every person, all those nonunion members who go out and go to work everyday, that have had safe working conditions and better wages over the past 50 or 60 years, are at risk because of replacement worker practices that have come about since the Reagan Administration took over in 1980. That is what this is all about. It is not a level playing field now, and if you continue to allow replacement workers to be brought in, you are going to find the level playing field is going to keep tilting and tilting until we all fall off.

Senator LEWIS. Mr. President, I am wondering if the lateness of the hour might be contributing to some difficulty that we all might be having with what would otherwise be viewed as relatively simple language. I, for one, do not disagree with the proposition made by the gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, about the detriments of any process that would permit replacement workers during the time of a strike. But it also seems to me that the language in subsection (e), as now proposed by the gentleman from Cambria, Senator Stewart, really is nothing more than a restatement of the law and the procedure as we currently find it in this Commonwealth. By that I mean two things. I think the language clearly would forbid the replacement of striking workers but, while doing so, I do not think that the language in any way would inhibit a situation in which administrators who are currently employed by that school district would be allowed to fill in to the extent that they are certified and capable of doing so for an interim period in providing some educational instruction for seniors. It is not permissible today to replace striking workers. Yet we know that the process of providing interim educational opportunities for seniors under very limited circumstances is, in fact, available, and I submit to my colleagues that the language of the Stewart amendment would simply continue the practice and the compliance with the law as it is today. I believe it would prohibit replacement workers, but a replacement worker is something very different from an interim situation in which somebody who was already employed as a professional within that school district would offer an interim instructional opportunity for students who chose to use it. Maybe the lateness of the hour is causing me to view something more simplistically than I ought to, but unless I am in error, I would submit to my colleagues that all of the concerns

I have heard expressed here by the speakers who have preceded me, in fact, are protected and embraced within the Stewart amendment. Unless somebody believes that to be inaccurate, it would seem to me that this ought to be an amendment which we could support unanimously because it does achieve both of the principal objectives which I have heard expressed here in the last half hour.

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, in response to the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Lewis, perhaps the gentleman was off the floor, but I did question the maker of this amendment as to his intent, vis-a-vis, current school administrators as well as other so-called off-the-street hirees, and he assured this Chamber that he intended a ban on not only what we would typify as true replacement workers, but also intended a ban on current administrative personnel, whether or not they were certified. Mr. President, that is what I understood the gentleman from Cambria, Senator Stewart, to say, and, indeed, that is what the language appears to say. Let me say also to the gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, who always wants to get off on a tangent and talk about the demise of labor since Ronald Reagan, et cetera, let me explain to him that this, as we view it, as I view it, is not really a labor issue per se, it is an education issue. Should the education of the students of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, to what degree should it or should it not be disrupted? To what degree does the Constitution of this Commonwealth, which guarantees a full and free educational system, to what degree does that mean anything? So the information that the gentleman imparts to us about the demise of the working class and about the backsliding of our standard of living may or may not be true, but I submit to the Members of this Chamber, it is not the specific, relevant issue that is before this Chamber tonight. This relevant issue in this amendment is whether or not the education process, the status quo of the education process, is to be maintained. And the status quo is, as I understand it, that while permanent replacement teachers are not allowed, certainly temporary replacement teachers are allowed. I must remind the gentlemen from the other side of the aisle that, indeed, we are arguing an issue which was brought up by them. We have not asked for this amendment. It is that side of the aisle that has raised this issue.

Senator LEWIS. Mr. President, I was on the floor when the colloquy took place between the gentleman from Butler, Senator Shaffer, and the gentleman from Cambria, Senator Stewart, and because I also heard the questions and responses and was confused by them, I have taken the opportunity to discuss it at sidebar with Senator Stewart. I want to share that conversation with my colleagues.

Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Cambria, Senator Stewart.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Cambria, Senator Stewart, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator STEWART. I will, Mr. President.

Senator LEWIS. Mr. President, the comments that I have made about the distinction between replacement on a permanent basis and the opportunity for fill-in for educational purposes, I think, were heard by Senator Stewart and, if so, would he disagree with the statements that I made as to my opinion of the interpretation of that language?

Senator STEWART. Mr. President, let me simply say this to the Senator. There is, in my mind, a clear difference between administratively filling in and keeping the wheels of education going during a strike and permanently replacing a teacher of those children who are being subjected to that situation. I believe that teaching a child in our public school system and educating our children by a teacher is a completely different thing than an administrator sitting in and making sure that they do not tear the building down. But to answer the question, I do not disagree with his interpretation.

Senator LEWIS. Mr. President, just by way of a final point, I was listening again to the comments carefully that were made by Senator Shaffer, and I should point out to him that the language of the bill, which is really that with which we are dealing, says replacement. It is not qualified in any way, shape or form, and the simple English definition of the word "replacement" means to put someone new into a position permanently. For him to try to suggest that what this might mean is temporary replacement is just his own speculation as to something that is not to be found in the bill. I think when the clear language is viewed in its ordinary English usage, one will come to appreciate the fact that replacement is something very different than somebody who is already an employee of that school district temporarily filling in for an educational purpose, and I would submit that that distinction is at the crux of the whole issue as we are debating it here and as I think Senator Stewart has now explained to us his understanding and intent as to what this amendment would do. For those reasons I will support the Stewart amendment and would urge my colleagues to do the same.

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, I, for one, am extremely confused from the last colloquy as to exactly what subsection (e) means. I thought I made a number of fairly direct questions to Senator Stewart, and I thought I got some fairly direct and complete answers. My recollection was, Mr. President, that Senator Stewart said that if there was a strike, he wanted the schools closed down, period. That was my recollection of what he said. Now there seems to be some trepidation with that kind of fiat, Mr. President, and so we have all heard the dialogue with the other gentleman on his side of the aisle, so I am not sure what it does mean. But I am certain, Mr. President, that the intent of the maker of this amendment and the intent of those who are going to vote in the affirmative is to shut down the education process in this state. Their intent is to see that no senior gets any outside professional help during a work stoppage. It is, in my opinion, Mr. President, the intent of those who vote in favor of the adoption of this amendment, when a strike occurs, and when there is no qualified English instructor or teacher on the premises in an administrative capacity, it is the intent of those who vote in favor of this amendment to deny the students in that school the opportunity to a qualified teacher. If this amendment passes, Mr. President, we are proceeding in what is nothing less than a travesty, the most anti-education, anti-student vote that we have taken in this Chamber in many a year.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, on the issue, for an individual who the first two words that he uttered tonight were the only two that I think ever made any sense that I ever heard him say—I am confused—I believe that he came to a very definite conclusion after that confusion cleared up. The issue is not replacement of strikers. The issue is do not allow strikes at all. If that is the intention of the gentleman, that he does not believe there should be any disruption and it always should be the teachers' fault, which it seems to me like, for some reason, he really does not like teachers, I believe that we ought to face the issue squarely. It is not always the teachers' fault that there is a strike. There are board members who refuse to negotiate, and if the process is so bad that all he is worried about is the ultimate goal of education for students, then I do not know why, if he is in the Majority, he cannot seem to get any of his bills on the Calendar. We have to offer amendments to get his ideas out here. Why he does not put some pressure on his caucus to put out an Act 195 bill that does away with the right to strike entirely because, in his opinion, strikes are caused by teachers. Do away with the right to strike. That is absolutely ludicrous, and replacing of strikers who may or may not be the reason there is a strike is absolutely the ultimate of unfair application of any law.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the second part of amendment A3195, subsection (e)?

The yeas and nays were required by Senator STEWART and were as follows, viz:

SPECIAL ORDER OF BUSINESS SUPPLEMENTAL CALENDAR NO. 1

THIRD CONSIDERATION CALENDAR BILLS ON THIRD CONSIDERATION AND FINAL PASSAGE

SB 101 (Pr. No. 1748) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending the act of December 22, 1981 (P. L. 508, No. 142), entitled "Sunset Act," further providing for the termination, evaluation and review of agencies; changing the termination date for the State Board of Optometry; and making a repeal.

Considered the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

ANDREZESKI AMENDMENT I

Senator ANDREZESKI, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A3123:

Amend Title, page 1, line 6, by inserting after "Committee," "": further defining "performance audit"; and

Amend Bill, page 1, lines 10 through 12, by striking out all of said lines and inserting:

Section 1. The definition of "performance audit" in section 2 of the act of December 22, 1981 (P.L.508, No.142), known as the Sunset Act, is amended to read:

Section 2. Definitions.

The following words and phrases when used in this act shall have, unless the context clearly indicates otherwise, the meanings given to them in this section:

***

"Performance audit." A written report by the Legislative Budget and Finance Committee evaluating the management and performance of an agency based on the statistics on its operations and carried out in accordance with the standards for performance and financial compliance auditing developed by the United States General Accounting Office. It shall determine whether the agency:

(1) Is conducting authorized activities or programs in a manner consistent with accomplishing the objectives intended by the General Assembly.

(2) Is conducting programs and activities and expending funds made available in a faithful, efficient, economical and effective manner.

(3) Can save money by instituting the changes recommended by the committee, and what the cost or savings of instituting the recommended changes would be.

This report shall include, but not be limited to, the criteria listed in section 5(d).

Section 2. Section 4 of the act, amended December 16, 1982 (P.L.1355, No.310), is amended to read:

Amend Sec. 2, page 3, line 23, by striking out "2" and inserting: 3

Amend Sec. 3, page 5, line 7, by striking out "3" and inserting: 4

Amend Sec. 4, page 15, line 25, by striking out "4" and inserting: 5

Amend Sec. 5, page 17, line 1, by striking out "5" and inserting: 6

Amend Sec. 6, page 17, line 7, by striking out "6" and inserting: 7

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator ANDREZESKI. Mr. President, the original Sunset Act which we are renewing was established in 1981 and instead of going through all of my remarks, I would like to point out we have spent $3.5 million out of the 79 agencies and entities we have audited. Nine have been terminated. Of these nine, three were later combined under one comprehensive state board, two were essentially defunct by the time Sunset Review was started, one had its functions reestablished with another department and another was replaced by a similar new agency. What I am saying is that after 10 years we have done nothing with Sunset Review. The purpose of this amendment is to help us, when necessary, downsize state government. This amendment will require Sunset audits, the tool that we pay to look at and never do anything with, to carry revenue estimates of how much could be saved by implementing the specific recommendations contained in the performance audit. One of these recommendations would be how much could be saved by the elimination of the agency that was being audited. It would be then up to us in the Legislature to weigh that savings to the taxpayer against that entity's need to exist in order to serve the public health, safety and welfare, and I offer this not just in light of the fact that I spent ten years looking at reports of which nothing was ever done but also in light of this year's fiscal challenges that we have gone through and will continue to go through.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

A voice vote having been taken, the question was determined in the negative.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

ANDREZESKI AMENDMENT II

Senator ANDREZESKI, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A3124:

Amend Title, page 1, lines 1 through 7, by striking out all of said lines and inserting: Repealing the act of December 22, 1981 (P.L.508, No.142), entitled "An act requiring the termination of certain agencies of State Government under certain circumstances, creating a Leadership Committee with certain powers and duties and imposing powers and duties upon the Legislative Budget and Finance Committee."

Amend Bill, page 1, lines 10 through 19; pages 2 through 16, lines 1 through 30; page 17, lines 1 through 7, by striking out all of said lines on said pages and inserting:

Section 1. The act of December 22, 1981 (P.L.508, No.142), known as the Sunset Act, is repealed.

Section 2. This act shall take effect immediately.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator ANDREZESKI. Mr. President, seeing that the previous amendment went down as a reform of the Sunset Review process, this amendment eliminates Sunset Review.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I would ask for a negative vote on the amendment.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

A voice vote having been taken, the question was determined in the negative.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

It was agreed to.

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

LEGISLATIVE JOURNAL

TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1991

SESSION OF 1991 175TH OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

No. 73

SENATE

TUESDAY, November 26, 1991.

The Senate met at 11:00 a.m., Eastern Standard Time.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore (Robert C. Jubelirer) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Reverend STEVE E. BELINSKI, Pastor of Grace Lutheran Church, Reading, offered the following prayer:

This is the week of Thanksgiving. I would like to share first a few verses with you from the Old Testament which speaks to this Thanksgiving offering.

For the Lord, Your God, is bringing you into a good land, a land of brooks, of water, of fountains and springs, flowing forth in valleys and hills; a land of wheat and barley, of vines and trees, a land in which you will eat bread without scarcity and which you will lack nothing, a land whose stones are iron and that of whose hills you can dig copper, and you shall eat and be full, and you shall bless the Lord, Your God, for the good land he has given you.

Let us pray.

O Lord, as we gather together on this Thanksgiving week, we do give thanks to You for the good land You have given us, for this nation, for this Commonwealth and for our communities. We pray that as we gather in bounty, You would fill those who are less fortunate, those who lack food, shelter and whatever need You would have them have.

Bless the Senators this day as they make important decisions in the lives of Your people. May all that is done in this Chamber be for the benefit of not only the people of this Commonwealth, but all of Your people. We pray it in Your holy name. Amen.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair thanks Reverend Belinski who is the guest today of Senator O'Pake.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. A quorum of the Senate being present, the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding Session of November 25, 1991.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding Session, when, on motion of Senator LOEPER, further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

BILL IN PLACE

Senator REIBMAN presented to the Chair a bill.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Senator REIBMAN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, I rise in place and present on behalf of myself and a number of my colleagues a bill which I hope will be left open on the desk for additional sponsors, and if I may have permission to offer a few remarks upon the introduction of that bill.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The lady may proceed.

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, I am offering this bill which would encourage and support distance learning programs, using two-way interactive video and audio technology and data transmission technology which is already available to provide for the sharing of education resources to all schools in our Commonwealth. We have been debating during the last few weeks legislation which would authorize choice in education that is allowing parents and students to choose which school they wish to attend to receive the best education. I believe we should make every school a good school. We should not place parents and students in a situation where they must choose the school they attend in order to receive a quality education. My legislation would authorize the Department of Education and the Board of School Directors of any school district to enter into an agreement with one or more other school districts, intermediate units or institutions of higher education to provide for distance learning programs to share and augment instruction and educational resources.

Mr. President, two-way audio-video conferencing can strengthen education by strengthening the capability of schools as organizations to learn and borrow from each other and other organizations like businesses and other organizations with similar missions and needs. Many of our foreign economic competitors are making financial commitments to an infrastructure that will provide instantaneous movement of voice, video and data. Japan, for example, will spend $250 billion by the year 2000 to link government agencies, educational institutions and businesses for voice, video and data communications in a single national network. Other states such as Kentucky and Mississippi are using distance learning technologies in an effort to bring educational equity to all children in grades K through 12. There are a number of school districts in Pennsylvania that currently have distance learning programs in place. The intent of my legislation is to encourage the Department of Education and school districts to develop distance learning programs statewide. Such programs can extend the reach of teachers and those with special expertise through distance learning technologies. Recent advances in the technology make it possible to extend not only the teacher but the classroom environment itself to reach distant and scattered students in schools. Distance learning technologies can link educational resources in basic education to enhance opportunities for students in grades K to 12, as I said. It can link higher education resources with basic education. It can link businesses with higher education resources. Under this legislation a school district may enter into an agreement with other school districts, intermediate units, educational institutions, including institutions of higher education or businesses or appropriate agencies for the purpose of establishing a distance learning program. The Department of Education is permitted and encouraged to enter into an agreement with such educational entities to encourage and support distance learning pilot projects. Whenever funding is available, the department shall give priority to those distance learning proposals that demonstrate effective and innovative partnerships with business, industry and educational institutions.

I believe that once fully developed, Pennsylvania would have an educational system that would provide opportunities to all students in all schools and offer all students access to excellent teachers, enhanced curriculums and other educational resources that may not be currently available to them. I look upon this legislation as the answer to poor school districts which cannot afford certain programs to be linked up with wealthier school districts that have those programs in place and provide this distance learning so that all children are exposed to the very best that we have both in Pennsylvania and, indeed, across the country.

I would hope that many of my colleagues will avail themselves of additional sponsorship on the bill which is open on the desk.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The remarks of the lady will be spread upon the record.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SECRETARY

The SECRETARY. Consent has been given for the Committee on Banking and Insurance to meet during today's Session in the Rules room to consider Senate Bills No. 1345, 1361, 1436 and House Bill No. 536.

BILL ON THIRD CONSIDERATION AND FINAL PASSAGE

SB 953 (Pr. No. 1751) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending the act of March 10, 1949 (P. L. 30, No. 14), entitled "Public School Code of 1949," regulating strikes by employees of school entities; further providing for payments for transportation of pupils; requiring interest to be paid on certain late subsidy payments to school districts; and establishing a program to enhance educational opportunities.

Considered the third time and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I appreciate the fact that you have asked the Members to at least have some order on the floor, for a short period of time, while we discuss what is probably the most important piece of legislation in dealing with the finances of the Commonwealth on the expenditure side that we could discuss other than a total General Appropriation Budget. I also fully realize that the emotion of this issue being what it is probably will not, under any circumstances, change one vote on the Floor of the Senate. But, I think, Mr. President, it is very, very important that some remarks be put on the record as to the choice of education, as to the feelings of some individuals with regard to the choice of education and, also, Mr. President, exactly where we hope this particular bill will take us. Mr. President, last evening this particular proposal was discussed in detail by amendment form for the better part of some six and one-half hours. There were a lot of amendments that were offered to the proposal. Some of the amendments were accepted. I believe all of the amendments that were offered had a great deal of merit. Mr. President, I am concerned about some things that were not offered as of yesterday. Mr. President, in not discussing as of yet at least the financial aspects of the proposal, I would like to know, since it was never addressed, and perhaps after we speak maybe the maker of the amendment will address some of the issues, what happens if after several weeks into a school year a child who is going to a nonpublic school drops out of school and the family has already received their $900 check? How does the state go about to recapture some of that money either in part or in total? I also, Mr. President, heard nobody yesterday talk about, nor was there an amendment offered, nor could there probably have been an amendment offered yesterday, that would deal with the tax consequences of this particular proposal. Since, to my knowledge, there is no other state in the United States that has this particular form of a rebate directly to the family, then what happens with the tax consequences with regard to the federal taxes, and I would wonder, although I would like to interrogate, if someone might later on be able to address the issue with regard to federal taxes and is a rebate of this nature taxable for the purposes of filing a federal tax return and if it is not taxable, I would wish that someone could point out to us where the Federal Tax Code would show that it is not taxable or, Mr. President, if, in fact, there is a separate ruling from the IRS that would eliminate or would make a proposal such as this not taxable. Also, if this is taxable, we would have to look at the rates that people pay. The maximum rate that you can pay in this country today is 33 percent of your income. If a family would receive the $900 rebate from the state government, is it possible then that 33 percent of that, or $297, would have to be paid to the federal government for the purposes of paying federal income tax? If that be the case, then the poor children from the inner-city school districts that we heard so much about yesterday, in fact, would they get $900 or would their families get $900 or somewhat less than that? Also, Mr. President, there are a number of other concerns that I have. Are there any controls over cost? Is there anything that is written in this proposal that would say that a school district, a non-public school district today that is charging less than $900 tuition, once this particular bill would go into effect and was funded for the 1992-93 school year, that that tuition would not far exceed $900, which would mean that the state would have to make the entire payment? Also, Mr. President, is there any control of cost within the school districts? I realize that yesterday there was a proposal that was put forth to have teachers certified and that was defeated. There will be no certification, mandated certification, of teachers. To me, Mr. President, that does cause a problem because from what I have seen with a lot of the nonpublic schools that do have certified teachers, the certified teachers who are there are only there in a holding pattern until they can find a job, a higher paying position in a public school, and the noncertified teachers that are there, although hopefully properly trained but yet without certification from the Department of Education, are there because they do not have the necessary certifications to get a job in the public schools. Also, Mr. President, yesterday there was an amendment that was offered by the gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, that was accepted and it is on page 4 of the amendment, lines 18 through 20, and it says a public or nonprofit, nonpublic elementary or secondary school which does not agree to provide full access to programs for children with disabilities basically would not get the money. They would not be included which, therefore, means today, with the enactment of the proposal, that any nonpublic school that does not provide programs and access for children with learning disabilities could not qualify. Now once you go ahead, Mr. President, and you add that group in, the figures that I have from the Department of Education would indicate that there are an additional 83,000-plus students today who are not part of the figures that were shown to us yesterday that would qualify for admission into a nonpublic school. Pure and simple mathematics would tell us that if we would take 83,000-plus students and we would multiply that by somewhere in the vicinity of a $900 rebate, we will find that the cost of this proposal increases tremendously. Mr. President, maybe on the surface the choice of education—and that word “choice” seems to be kind of a catch word—might sound pretty good on the surface and it might sound appealing to a lot of people, but why do we not look into it at a little more depth. The lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, offered an amendment dealing with the means test. What does a means test actually mean to us? Does it establish a double standard for those people who are of a certain type of means, that a family of four with an income in excess of $50,000 who might have two children, one child goes to a university in Pennsylvania, or anywhere else in this country, and the other child goes to a nonpublic school? By the means test that would be given under Senator Reibman, you would apply this same criteria for the child who goes to a school of higher education for a grant as you would to a nonpublic school. But the way the bill is drafted, because the means test amendment was not considered, if you have a family that makes $50,000 and they have one child who goes to a private university, they could not qualify for a grant under PHEAA, yet that same family could qualify for a grant under this proposal of up to $900. To me there seems to be something a bit discriminatory about that particular aspect of this proposal.

There was a very strong editorial in today's Philadelphia Inquirer, 11-26-91. For those of you who may not have had an opportunity of reading the editorial, I think you should take the opportunity and read it. It says, "For school choice. Giving vouchers to the well-to-do is wrong, but that's a flaw that can be fixed." We had the opportunity here yesterday, Mr. President, to fix that flaw, and we were denied that opportunity because there were some phone calls from outside sources that were made that asked Members of this Body not to vote for any amendment regardless of how meritorious those amendments may have been. Of course, the means test for vouchers is an amendment with great merit because not only does it take care of those individuals who are poor, but, most importantly, it takes care of those individuals who are the forgotten individuals in this country today, Mr. President, the middle class, because they would have something by which they could participate at a greater level. It was suggested to me today that a professional athlete that might play for a professional team somewhere in Pennsylvania making in excess of $1 million annually—in fact, when you see some of the contracts given to baseball players today and being requested by baseball players today, some of those contracts are in excess of $5 million annually—yet that person would qualify because of no means test. That person would qualify if he would send or she would send their child to a nonpublic school or to the public school of their choice. They would qualify for a $900 rebate the same way that poor family making $10,000 a year and struggling would qualify for that same $900 rebate. To me, Mr. President, that in itself seems to be quite discriminatory as to what we are going to do. Now we talk about a means test. There is no program that I can recall that is a worthwhile program in this state that we do not affix some kind of a means test to it because we have financial responsibilities, and we have not only financial responsibilities to the people of the district to which we are directly elected but we have financial responsibilities to the 12 million people who live in Pennsylvania. What do you think would happen to the Pennsylvania lottery if there was no means test for the PACE program? How do you think we might deal with the property tax rebate if there was no means test that would make people qualify for the lottery? What do you think would happen with a rent rebate if there were, in fact, no means tests on which to justify your income? Or let us talk about public welfare recipients. Suppose there was no means test for public welfare.

What would happen, Mr. President, to the kind of money that the Department of Welfare would have to pay out to every citizen of Pennsylvania because we have no means test for public welfare or medical assistance or the low energy income grants that are given based on a means test? Or let us take the one that has been of great controversy over the last several days because of a story that basically was misquoted or maybe not properly reported, at least not initially, in dealing with a poverty exemption on personal income tax. Suppose there was no means test for a poverty exemption. Then what would we have? Every person in the Commonwealth, regardless of their income, being able to deduct the first $7,000, which is in law today, for a poverty exemption because of there being no means test. I would think that that would be discriminatory, Mr. President, to the other 12 million people who live right here in this great Commonwealth of ours. So, Mr. President, what are we doing? We are looking at the single largest expenditure ever in the history of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The fiscal note that was given to us says that we are going to spend $307 million if we go ahead and pass this proposal. But that does not address, Mr. President, Senator Lincoln's amendment that is going to make eligible an additional 83,500 students, because now those nonpublic schools will have to deal with special education children, which means we will be adding approximately somewhere around $75 million more into the expenditure of this proposal or a bill now that will be somewhere around $400 million. In case we have not been reading the papers recently, this country, for the last 18 months, has been in a recession. It has been in a deep recession. Some people would like to compare the recession to the depression of the 1920s. Hopefully we will never get to that point. How can we in all good conscience, without being intellectually dishonest with the people who we represent, go ahead and say that we can pass a bill on the floor of this Senate that is going to cost $400 million when we, in fact, know that the money to pay this bill is not there, and the only Member who said on the floor of this Senate that he or she was prepared to vote for taxes to pay for this, to his credit, is the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo. I did not hear the maker of the amendment say where the money was going to come from, nor did I hear the maker of the amendment say he would be prepared to vote for taxes to pay for his proposal, and I subject to you, Mr. President, today that it would be a total disenfranchisement of any individual on this floor to go ahead and to vote for a new program to spend $400 million without making the same appropriate vote to put up the money to pay for the program that is so very, very expensive. Mr. President, let us make one additional comparison because I happened to be here at the time and I heard so much rhetoric during the budget debate of 1991, comparing it to 1977, if you will. Well, Mr. President, the expenditure here today of close to $400 million is more than the tax increase of 1977, which means that we worked in Harrisburg throughout the entire summer of 1977 and into the fall to pass a tax increase that does not come up to the increase in the expenditure of this particular proposal. This proposal makes the Milton Shapp tax increase of 1977 not look all that bad, when you think about the kind of money that has to be spent here. Finally, let us get it into the proper perspective with regard to new programs, vis-a-vis taxes. If you are prepared to go ahead today and pass this proposal, spending up to $400 million, then you have to be prepared to go ahead and select a tax to make the appropriation to pay for the expenditure or you are being very dishonest with the people that you represent, those individuals who are out there that expect that come the 1992-93 fiscal year, if I send my child to a nonpublic school, that I will be receiving $900 for that child regardless of my income. You are misleading people if you are not going to vote for the tax. To go ahead and raise the money, you then must be prepared to increase personal income tax by up to three-tenths of one percent because, depending on whose figures you take, the one-tenth of one percent of personal income tax can take in anywhere around $150 million. Maybe during a recessionary period it might even take in less than that. If we go into a period of prosperity it would take in more than that. So to properly fund this budget just for next year you must increase the personal income tax by up to three-tenths of one percent, or if you do not want to increase personal income tax, then you must be prepared to go ahead and to increase some other tax, and let us look at some other taxes. If you go ahead and you increase sales tax in Pennsylvania by one full percentage point, you will take in somewhere around $750 million in good times. So, if you want to raise $400 million, basic mathematics will tell you that you must increase sales tax in Pennsylvania by at least a bare minimum of one-half of one percent to seven tenths of one percent. What that means in Pennsylvania is that we will have a sales tax in Pennsylvania that will be 6.5 percent, and if you have the distinction of living in Philadelphia, your sales tax will not be 6.5 percent but, in fact, will be 7.5 percent. I have heard so much about corporate taxes and what has happened with corporations and how we have not done our job to the corporate community in Pennsylvania, and maybe they are right. We heard a lot during the budget about how we should go ahead and maybe even look at the taxation of some limited partnerships, some of the best corporations, if you will. Mr. President, if we go ahead and pass this proposal, then you have the menu out there. You can increase personal income taxes, you can increase sales tax or you can go ahead and you can take corporate net income tax. Now corporate net income tax, if I can remember from the budget, takes in somewhere in the vicinity of $110 million for one percentage point, once again, depending on how the recession is, and we are in a recession. So if you take a low side of that, maybe it is $100 million. If you want to go ahead and increase CNI tax to pay for this program, then you are looking at an increase in corporate net income tax somewhere in the vicinity of four percent, which would give us the dubious distinction in Pennsylvania of having a CNI tax of 16.5 percent. That is out there for you if you choose to do it. Or, finally, Mr. President, we can introduce a bill and we can increase the Capital Stock and Franchise Tax, which was increased, if I remember, during the budget to 12.25 percent from, I believe, 9.5 percent, and if memory serves me correctly, also, that one percentage point will take in about $80 million. So for us to go ahead and to pay the school of choice only for one year of $400 million, then we must increase on that tax alone, we must go ahead with simple mathematics and say that we have to increase that by five full percentage points, which would put that tax at 17.25 percent in Pennsylvania. Every one of those tax increases are ludicrous, and every Member of this Body, all 50 Members of the Senate who are here, knows that, and with the exception of Senator Fumo, not one person has said that they are prepared to vote for the taxes and the revenues to pay for this proposal. I have heard it said over and over and over to me, oh, do not worry. You will find the money. You will be able to find it. Do not worry about it. It is going to come in. Well, I wish somebody would tell me how, in fact, it is going to come in. What we are doing within the passage of this proposal, perhaps, is we are increasing the revenues to the federal government by allowing a substantial amount of money to be paid to parents that then is taxable for federal tax purposes. So, if one of the objectives here is to try to reduce the federal deficit by having Pennsylvanians paying more federal income tax, then we are certainly going to accomplish that to the tune probably, in this proposal, of many millions of dollars of money that is supposed to go to the poor children from our inner cities who do not have the opportunity to receive a quality education.

Mr. President, I am not opposed to the concept of choice of education. I am not opposed to financing nonpublic schools, but I am opposed to going ahead and spending up to $400 million in a program that circumvented the committee system in this Senate, that bypassed the Chairman, the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades, who I think has done an excellent job in trying to put together public hearings and a program in dealing with the choice of education. I do not quite totally understand the political consequences of why the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore, thought, in his wisdom, it was important to do it this week, why he did not do it during the budget when we could have considered it as a final package, a total package, within our budget so that instead of us having to increase taxes by somewhere in the vicinity of $2.8 billion, we could have gone very easily and we could have said the package is not $2.8 billion, it is $2.8 billion plus $400 million for aid to nonpublic schools or $3.2 billion, and then we could have put up our votes. We could have put our vote where our rhetoric is and made the money available to pay for a program that we are misleading people in saying will be implemented next year, and I do not know any worse deception on the part of public officials, to deceive the constituency which they represent, the constituency which has sent us here to represent their interests and their needs by telling them we will pass this proposal and that this money will be available for them in the 1992-93 fiscal year. Mr. President, not on the merit of what the choice of education is because I think people should be allowed, in certain cases, their right of choice, but based on the fact that we in Pennsylvania cannot afford this proposal today, Mr. President, I would have to ask for a negative vote.

Senator GREENWOOD. Mr. President, I think it is clear that the people of this country and the people of Pennsylvania have some very deep-seated concerns about the quality of education, particularly our public educational system. We see declining SAT scores. We see children who cannot identify the nations of the world on a map. We see children who cannot read. We see kids who do not know anything about history. We see students graduated from our public school systems lacking discipline. We see children graduated from our public schools apparently without values, and we worry about whether this country will be able to continue to compete internationally against the West Germans and the Japanese and the other emerging nations of the world. There is plenty of blame to go around for that. Certainly some of it has to do with declining parental involvement in our children's education. Some of that is because of two wage-earner families, I think. There is MTV and there is Nintendo and there is the rest of the pop culture but, certainly, it is reasonable to suggest that part of the reason for the decline in our public school system has to do with lack of competition, that public schools basically have captive audiences, that there is, beyond the motivation of individual teachers, not a need or an incentive for schools to compete on terms of getting more kids into the better colleges, raising SAT scores. There is no dynamic within our public school system to generate that kind of competition. So I think the idea of schools of choice is a good idea. I think the notion that our public schools ought to get involved in competing against one another, building to building, district to district, public to private, private to private, is a great idea, and it is one that has reemerged and attached itself to an old idea. The old idea is the idea of tuition vouchers, and I think the idea of tuition vouchers has a great deal of merit. I understand because I have met with groups large and small and talked on the phone to my constituents and read their letters that when parents pay tax bills to their schools of $2,000 or $3,000 a year or more and then shell out hundreds and thousands of dollars for parochial and private tuitions, they feel slighted, they feel crunched, they feel under pressure and they want some help, and they make the argument that they are unburdening the taxpayers by not sending their children to public schools and if they, in fact, can have their child educated at least as well, if not better, at less cost to all of us, they ought to have some help. I am very, very sympathetic to that notion and I think it is a notion that needs to be addressed. So I begin this debate very, very open to the concept of schools of choice and really excited about the prospect that maybe we could do something that would accomplish those goals in a real way. I commended the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore, for the introduction of Senate Bill No. 992 to get that process under way, and I was looking forward to the Senate Committee on Education holding hearings. I asked the staff if I could have copies of the audio tapes so I could listen to them in my car, because I am not a member of that committee and I really wanted to become up to speed on all of the issues related to schools of choice. There are concerns. There are problems, impediments to getting to schools of choice. There is the matter of the $300 million to $400 million, where that comes from. There is a legitimate question about the constitutional issues. There is the issue of whether the state should be funding schools that have different standards for our children. There is the question about admissions and are the private schools going to be open to children of all races, creeds and colors and specialties and handicaps. There are legitimate questions about the logistics. How do we get the kids? How do we manage transportation? How do we plan in advance? How do we move the money around from one district to another district so that it is fair to everyone? I had hoped the Senate Committee on Education, which is staffed by some of our better Members, I think, could have wrestled with those issues, could have applied their expertise and the expertise of the members of the citizenry around the state and the country who are interested in this issue to try to hammer out something that would really work, whether it was on a pilot basis or an across-the-board basis or an incremental basis, so that we could move in the direction, finally, of schools of choice. I am disappointed because that committee process was circumvented, because in fact we are not and have not been involved in a thoughtful discussion and debate of these issues so that we can give the people what it is that they are yearning for. I think what we went through last night was a political exercise. We winged it. We did not know what we were doing on those amendments. None of us had given much time to those amendments, at least not most of us. I had not had the opportunity to thoughtfully analyze those amendments. I had to kind of listen to the debate and then flip a coin in some cases and make a choice. I am most disappointed by the fact that what we are doing here is passing something that raises the expectations of an awful lot of people in my district and your districts that, in fact, they are going to get something from what we have done in the last two days, that, in fact, they are going to get $900 a year to help them with those tuition bills, that, in fact, they are going to see schools in Pennsylvania become more competitive and excellent as a result of this and I do not think that is going to happen. This amendment, as I understand it, has $300,000 in it. That is not $900 per year, per student. That is 90 cents per year, per student, and that is no help. It costs more than that for a family to mail the forms back and forth. So I think to pass this bill as amended today is a dereliction of our duty. It is more of the same. It is more of the politicians telling the people they can expect something to happen and raise their expectations and then pull the rug out from under their feet when this bill dies in the House. I am disappointed by that. This is a hard vote, and I think for most of us this is as hard a vote as we have had to cast, at least since the budget, but it may be harder for some of us than that. I have 1,500 or 2,000 letters and calls in favor of this bill. I know people are hoping that I will vote for this, and I have been told that this is a political vote. This is a stone political vote. Do not worry about the merits. Do not worry about what is going to happen to the bill. Count your mail. Count the phone calls. Make the political vote. If you are pro-choice, throw one to the other side. If you are not, do something different. Figure out the politics of that. I am not going to do that. I am going to try to keep the faith of the people who elected me. I am going to try to be honest. I will vote for a schools of choice bill if we get one before us, if the Committee on Education reports out Senate Bill No. 992 and, in fact, deals with the issues that we have mentioned here in a way that I think fulfills the promise that this bill purports to make. My mind is open. I am an advocate of schools of choice. Let us get a bill out here some day that really does something and I will vote for it. But with great reluctance, since that is not what we have experienced in the last 24 hours, I will be casting my vote in the negative.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, sometime ago, about a year ago, I had the opportunity to be the speaker in South Heidelberg Township, Berks County, for their Christmas dinner, and it was a very nice event. The township supervisors were there. They are very concerned individuals who really care about their township. During the course of the evening a question came up, even though it was not a business meeting as such, about a project that was needed in the township and how important it was to the township, and the supervisors looked at their constituents and said something very simple. They said we agree we would like to have that, but we cannot afford it. Those words I have learned in nine years of serving in the Pennsylvania Senate are absolutely foreign to state government—we cannot afford it. It is interesting, Mr. President, because we are looking at a bill that has a fiscal note that says $300,000 as a fiscal impact, but when we look at the bill we see that that $300,000 is not to implement the bill, it is $300,000 to establish the office to implement the bill. When I asked in the Committee on Appropriations what this was going to cost once it was implemented, I was kind of given a flippant answer that you take the number of parochial and nonparochial school students, you multiply it times $900 and you come to a little over $300 million. Of course, there is a transportation cost that goes from $124 per student to $159 per student, and there are other costs. We are not looking at $300 million. We are looking at, maybe, $400 million or $500 million, and we are looking at it on the days after we passed the largest tax increase in the history of this Commonwealth. I hope the Members realize that they should make no mistake. This is a vote for higher taxes. Just in case I did not make myself clear, maybe I ought to repeat it. This is a vote for higher taxes. The gentleman from Lackawanna, Senator Mellow, commended the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, for being man enough to get up and say, I am voting for this and I am voting for the taxes to pay for it. Well, that is his constituency, Philadelphia, and maybe he is representing his constituency well, but I am going to be curious. How many of those outside of Philadelphia are going to get credit for raising taxes another three-tenths of one percent to pay for these schools? I wonder how many of our constituents, when they see the take-home pay on their checks go down again in a couple of years are going to say, I feel good because of schools of choice. Mr. President, we have left our principles behind us. You know why I am up here. We are upset. We are scared. There is an anti-incumbent movement. We do not know what to do. So what do we do? We resort to what worked before. We spend money on a special interest group. It worked in past years and maybe it will work again. You know, I voted for the taxes and I stood here and explained why and I really thought I did the right thing at the time, and my colleagues who voted against those taxes went home and said those of us who voted for the taxes were big spenders and that we should have been cutting spending. That is fine. You made those speeches at home and now you are back again to raise taxes by raising spending by $500 million or $400 million—do you want to argue?—$300 million. Those numbers are just as real as your numbers because nobody knows. We do not even have a fiscal note that attempts to deal with the future cost of this. We are not even honest enough to put on paper what it is going to cost. You know, I have been here for eight years and I was sitting here trying to think, did we have a larger spending program in the eight years that I have been here? I do not remember it. Maybe someone will refresh my recollection. Maybe someone who has been here for 20 years or 30 years will tell me whether or not there has been a larger spending program in the history of this Commonwealth. You know, Mr. President, I have sat in meetings here and we know we do not even have the tax bill that we passed settled yet. The administration and others are talking about the need to run a trailer bill to improve on what we have done, to correct our mistakes. So, we are going to cut the revenue that we generated in the last tax bill. We are cutting revenue and we are told by the people who know how to figure these things out using the econometric models that we are not going to have a surplus in this fiscal year. So, how the hell are we going to pay for this one? Maybe we ought to get those South Heidelberg Township supervisors up here and ask them to run this government because we are not capable of it. You know the lobbying in this has really been incredible. I talked to a Member this morning and he told me he cast a vote on one of the amendments and the people who are lobbying for the amendment called on this phone in this Chamber to tell him that he cast a bad vote. Now, is that not incredible? They do not even wait until you get off the floor.

CONSTITUTIONAL POINT OF ORDER

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, I rise to a constitutional point of order.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The gentleman from Lebanon, Senator Brightbill, will state it.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, I rise to make a constitutional point of order that Senate Bill No. 953 in its present form must be passed by a two-thirds vote of this Body, as expressed in Article III, Section 30 of the Constitution of Pennsylvania that states that "No appropriation shall be made to any charitable or educational institution not under the absolute control of the Commonwealth, other than normal schools established by law for the professional training of teachers for the public schools of the State, except by a vote of two-thirds of all the members elected to each House.”

Mr. President, I understand the motion is debatable and I would like to debate the motion.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The question before the Senate is the constitutional point of order raised by the gentleman from Lebanon County, Senator Brightbill, that in accordance with Article III, Section 30, of the Constitution of Pennsylvania, that Senate Bill No. 953, Printer's No. 1751 must be finally passed by a two-thirds vote of the Senate. The gentleman has already read the Constitution and, therefore, the issue will be put before the Body and it will be the Body who determines whether, indeed, there is a constitutional issue which would require a two-thirds vote. Those who vote “aye” will vote to sustain the point of order and vote with Senator Brightbill, thereby declaring that Senate Bill No. 953 must be passed by a two-thirds vote of the Senate rather than just a constitutional majority. Those voting “no” will vote that the point of order is not well taken and thereby declare that the bill may be passed by a constitutional majority of the Senate and as Senator Brightbill correctly indicates, the question is debatable. The Chair will put before the Body the voting procedure when the Body is ready to vote.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the constitutional point of order?

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, I ask the Members to turn to page 6, line 2 of the bill where it says that “Grants shall be made only for use for the payment of tuition at a public or nonprofit nonpublic school within this Commonwealth.” Then, Mr. President, I ask the Members to turn to line 22 on the same page where it says, “Grants shall be made in the form of checks paid to the parents and shall be used solely for the purpose of paying tuition at the educational institution or school district offering the program designated in the grant application.” You know, Mr. President, someone who was not aware of the contents of the Pennsylvania Constitution might look at this and say, why such a cumbersome method? Why are we sending out checks to thousands and thousands of families to pay school tuition when we could handle this in a very efficient manner by having people who go to another public school or go to a private school sign a voucher and have the check made payable directly to the institution. Well, the answer is, very simply, number one, if they did it that way it would fly in the face of this provision of the Constitution and it would require a two-thirds vote. So, what the drafters very cleverly attempted to do was to circumvent Section 30 of the Pennsylvania Constitution. You know, Mr. President, thinking about this, it made me think of one thing that, perhaps, we are doing wrong here of many in this General Assembly. Maybe we ought to handle all school subsidies this way and send checks to the parents for the ESBE formula and for everything else that we pay for school, and maybe then, when somebody is sending two or three kids to the public school and they get a check for $7,000 or $8,000, they are going to say, hey, I am getting something for my money here. The State of Pennsylvania is paying tuition. You know, if the drafters of that bill had that as a philosophy, I might be pretty excited because, perhaps, that is our problem. We are not doing that. But, no, Mr. President, that was not the intent, to enlighten the public. The intent was to avoid Section 30 of the Pennsylvania Constitution. Number one, the legislation requires that this be used solely for tuition. It is against the law to use that check for $900 for anything other than tuition, but just in case that is not enough, the drafters of this legislation knew if they went to Section 3927 of the Pennsylvania Crimes Code, it would be a crime to use this money for anything other than the payment of tuition. I am not sure if it is a misdemeanor or a felony. I did not check. Maybe someone could check. But I know that someone could go to jail because the offense is defined as follows: “A person who obtains property upon agreement, or subject to a known legal obligation, to make specified payments or other disposition, whether from such property or its proceeds or from his own property to be reserved in equivalent amount, is guilty of theft if he intentionally deals with the property obtained as his own and fails to make the required payment or disposition.” So our Attorney General now will have something else to do. I guess he is not busy enough fighting drugs. We are going to have him checking out all these checks to make sure that these people who receive their $900 tuition checks pay them over directly to the institution. Is this a drafting error? Did someone mistakenly want that to occur? No, they are trying to circumvent the Constitution. Well, I have learned in the practice of law that the courts are not quite so blind, but, more importantly, as one of my elder colleagues instructed me yesterday, it is our duty as a Legislature to determine at first instance the constitutionality of what we do. We had taken an oath when we took this job that we are going to adhere to the provisions of our Constitution, and now is the time and today is the day we are going to find out what that oath means, because, believe me, this is going to be one of the biggest votes of your life. When somebody writes profiles of courage of the Pennsylvania Senate, they are going to look at this day, at this vote, and they are going to look at what we did here today to decide what we are really made of, and tonight when we go home and look in that mirror, we are going to have to say to ourselves, am I the person that I thought I was when I got elected to this place? The ideals that I had when I ran, are they real?

Mr. President, I believe that for this provision to pass it requires a two-thirds vote. I would ask for an “aye” vote.

Senator TILGHMAN. Mr. President, I am wandering a little from the motion before us. Earlier in the remarks of the gentleman from Lebanon, Senator Brightbill, he called me dishonest and he called my staff dishonest. I do not particularly like those remarks. He may have gotten unduly excited. He was talking about the $300,000 fiscal note. I am not dishonest about it. My staff is not dishonest about that, and I would hope the gentleman would lean forward and maybe say to me quietly that he would apologize.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. He did not lean forward, he jumped up.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, I did not mean to imply that anyone was dishonest. I think the Committee on Appropriations and the gentleman from Montgomery, Senator Tilghman, did their job as it is defined in the law. My concern was that we do not require our Committee on Appropriations to go beyond this year in doing a fiscal note. My concern is that those numbers are just as real, and I do apologize to the gentleman.

Senator TILGHMAN. Mr. President, I will accept that as a rather weak apology. Thank you, sir.

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I oppose the motion. The appropriation of $300,000 is going to the Department of Education. There are no other monies in this bill except the $300,000 that is going to the Department of Education. We do this every year, fund monies to the Department of Education. It is no different than anything else. So I would hope that everybody would cast a "no" vote.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, I rose yesterday in interrogating the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Fisher, on a similar matter of constitutional questions about this bill relative to our oath of office, and I agree with the comments of the gentleman from Lebanon, Senator Brightbill, and I agree with his motion. I also think that the prime sponsor of this effort, to suggest to us that the only appropriations that would occur, given the passage of this bill, would be the $300,000 to the Department of Education is inaccurate. I guess that is the best way I could frame that, given the fact that this bill would require, if it were to become law, payments of at least $300 million, as identified by the Minority Chairman of the Senate Committee on Appropriations, for those students already enrolled in private and parochial schools in our state. This is without any other student transferring, changing schools or doing anything else, just for payment of $900 per family. It would be at least, I think the figure was $305 million that would be caused to be spent by the passage of this bill. So I do want to rise to support the constitutional question. I still think there are constitutional questions beyond the issue of whether this is a nonpreferred appropriation or whether they should have a two-thirds vote, but I do at least at a minimum support Senator Brightbill's motion.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I will deal with the constitutional issue and we will talk about numbers, I guess, when we get into the substance of the debate, or, rather, get back to that, but I do have some figures on that.

Mr. President, as to the constitutional argument posed by the gentleman from Lebanon, Senator Brightbill, I do not purport to be a legal scholar, and if I were the brightest lawyer in America who ever lived, I could not predict what the Pennsylvania Supreme Court would do on any issue and I think we are all aware of that. We have all been surprised by some of their holdings and some of their dicta. However, I have been in this Chamber long enough to know that many, many times Members have held their noses and voted for things that were not constitutional, but we said they were and they moved through the process. Mr. President, what has been done in this piece of legislation is, yes, there is a methodology involved which, hopefully, complies with Article III, Section 30 of the Constitution negating the need for a two-thirds vote and that is that here payments go directly to the parent and that parent can use that money to send that child either to a nonpublic institution or to a school district. That option is there. A child can transfer from one district to the other. We are already aware of that. Who are we in here to say that people are not going to do that? Certainly I would think the gentleman would agree with me that there would be no question as to constitutionality if the program were just limited to transfers to different school districts. It is up to us to decide the constitutionality of this, Mr. President. That will be done by a 26-vote majority in this Chamber. I submit to the Members herein that this legislation and this amendment does comply with the constitutional provisions set forth. Does that mean that a year, or two, three, four years from now, that this Supreme Court will agree with my position? Who knows. Does it mean it will agree with the gentleman from Lebanon, Senator Brightbill's, position? Who knows. Mr. President, if we had the ability to legislate constitutionality by 26 votes, we would not have a need for the Supreme Court on issues such as this. But, we do not have that ability. All we can do is make our best judgment. In all honesty, Mr. President, I submit to you that his particular amendment in this bill is far more constitutional than some of the cockamamie stuff we have run out of this Chamber over the years since I have been here. If that is the test, Mr. President, we should win this overwhelmingly. I submit there is enough here to comply with the Constitution, and I ask for a negative vote.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I believe that it is very important that we put into the proper perspective what we are dealing with here today. When I hear the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, talk about the number of issues that go before this Body that he termed cockamamie and may be less or more unconstitutional than what we are dealing with here today, I do not think that has any bearing on what we are talking about, and I do not think it has any bearing on the issue as framed by the gentleman from Lebanon, Senator Brightbill. We have before us the most unconstitutional and controversial issue that I have had to deal with in 19 years in the General Assembly. In none of the debate last night did I hear anybody say, yes, this is constitutional, nobody. The lady from Allegheny, Senator Hart, did but she had not read the Constitution, unfortunately. I believe we should say very clearly—

POINT OF ORDER

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The gentleman from Delaware, Senator Loeper, will state it.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, the remarks of the gentleman are out of order and should be stricken from the record. It is the exact same point of order he raised last evening and that was a blatant disregard of a Member's intent.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair agrees with the gentleman.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I did nothing but respond to her waving in her chair that she did read the Constitution, and if she did she ought to learn to read.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair admonishes the speaker that the personal attack on a Member of this Senate is a violation of the Rules and would ask that you confine it to the issue of the debate on whether this is constitutional. The lady from Allegheny, Senator Hart, was not speaking on the record, you were.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, would you define for me what I said that was a personal attack?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The personal attack, I believe, would be in the sense that she did not read the Constitution. I do not believe that is an appropriate—

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, it was very apparent in last night's debate that she had not read the Constitution.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Lincoln, we cannot get far afield here. Senator Hart, whatever she said was off the record over there, was not at the microphone and therefore should not have been responded to as a personal response. I think if you keep your remarks and address them to the Chair and on the issue, we will try to confine the debate to that. Other than that, it is going to get far afield from everybody. We know we are dealing with an emotional issue and the Chair is trying to grant latitude in that, but let us remember that there are deep feelings here on both sides of this issue and respect each Member of the Senate's right to have those feelings and confine it to the issue at hand, and that is Senator Brightbill's question on the constitutional point of order. You may continue.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I have no problem with that as long as I can accept that as an admonishment of not keeping in the decorum on her part of what took place here in this Session.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. That is fine. Let us leave it at that. You may continue.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, if she wants to stand up and wave her arms, let her do that, but she has to think back on what was taken into consideration here.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Lincoln, the Chair has made the ruling. It is over. It is past. Let us continue on the debate.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, what is the ruling? Are my remarks expunged from the record?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. No, your remarks are not expunged from the record. The Chair admonishes you to keep the remarks to the issue of constitutionality. Let us move on.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I find that to be a very strange ruling in the sense that one of the Senators on that side tore the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, to pieces last night on her intent of what she was doing, and I do not remember anybody getting admonished for doing that.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Lincoln, Senator Hart has not even approached the microphone and has not spoken on the record today at all. That is the point. There is just no reason. Confine your remarks to the issue and we will move on.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I thank the President for his very fair assessment of what took place. The issue before us is not as described by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo. This is a very serious—just to take his remarks from two seconds ago—a very emotional issue and one that has a great deal more consequence than most issues that we might deal with in a willy-nilly—

POINT OF ORDER

Senator FUMO. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, will state it.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, perhaps the speaker has failed to hear what I said. I said that we have passed other things that were cockamamie, not this. I did not say that. We have held our nose on some other things and this is far more constitutional than them. That was my remark.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. I do not know that that is a point of order, Senator Fumo. You may respond to him at the appropriate time.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, he is misstating what I said. It is unfair. He is characterizing me in a negative sense.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Fumo, I am sure that that can be responded to and that happens in this Body, unfortunately, too many times and you will have your opportunity to respond, but I do not know if it is a point of order. If we take points of order on everybody who misstates what everybody else says, this whole record will be a point of order. Can we get on with the debate. I am sure, Senator Fumo, I would be happy to recognize you again. If there is some misstatement by Senator Lincoln in the record, you will have the opportunity to clarify that record. The Chair assures you of that.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, normally I would not be concerned about a misstatement, but in this sense it becomes a characterization and it reflects on my integrity and that is why I object to it.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair notes the remarks of the gentleman and—

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I would be happy to suspend operations and we could have the Chair reread what Senator Fumo stated in his debate.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Lincoln, you may proceed. The Chair has already stated its position. Move on.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, what did I do this time?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair has supported you.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the constitutional point of order?

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, the issue at hand is that we are not dealing with a cockamamie issue, that we are dealing with an issue of great importance. It is not something we should hold our noses and vote on. I believe we ought to determine in a clear and a proper fashion whether the motion of the gentleman from Lebanon, Senator Brightbill, is a proper one, and that motion would be, very clearly, that this is something that should take a two-thirds vote, and that is the only issue before us right now. I believe we have the ability, we have the knowledge and we have the experience in this Body to do that in a clear manner. I would urge a "yes" vote on the Brightbill motion.

Senator O'PAKE. Mr. President, I think the reason this does not need a two-thirds vote is that the only appropriation in this bill is the sum of $300,000 on page 9, which is appropriated from the General Fund to the Department of Education. There is nothing in this bill that appropriates any of the money if this voucher system is finally implemented. That will have to be done somehow in the general operating budget or through some funding bill at that time. Therefore, as we have done many, many times and as I think the rule in here is, that if there is a general appropriation to a department, that requires a constitutional majority and not a two-thirds majority. When the time comes, however, when money is to be made available to pay for this, then we should face the question of what kind of a vote that takes. I am reminded, Mr. President, that we are supposed to fund the public educational system at the 50 percent level, and I do not think we have done that for years. Therefore, when the time comes, I do not think that if the money is not there that the full $900 needs to be appropriated. We will face that question when we come to it, when we know what the financial situation is like. All this bill does is appropriate, and it is clearly delineated, $300,000 to the Department of Education, and I think the history of this institution is such that that requires a constitutional majority and not two-thirds.

Senator BELL. Mr. President, I will be very brief. I think everybody in this room has a right to their opinion as to whether this is constitutional or not. I am reminded, if I may take a little bit of time, of when we had a bill called no-fault divorce. I was then, I think, Chairman of the Committee on Judiciary. I made a long speech on why this was not constitutional. Do you know what? Three Supreme Court justices agreed with me and four did not.

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Berks, Senator O'Pake.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Berks, Senator O'Pake, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator O'PAKE. I will, Mr. President.

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I wonder if the gentleman would answer a question for me. If this were fully funded at $300 million, would it then be a constitutional question?

Senator O'PAKE. Mr. President, if this bill attempted to appropriate in this bill $300 million, then is your question would that require a two-thirds vote? I am advised by someone more knowledgeable from our Senate Committee on Appropriations that it would not because the direct appropriation is to the Department of Education which would then be allocating the money. That is not necessarily my opinion, but it is the opinion of the Democratic leader of the Senate Committee on Appropriations. I am told, for further clarification, the same process is used in allocating a lot of money to the Department of Community Affairs for individual grants and awards in communities throughout Pennsylvania, and that does not require a two-thirds vote.

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I thank the gentleman.

Mr. President, it appeared to me that he was making the argument that it is not a constitutional question because we are only funding it to the extent of $300,000 which would obviously be not enough money to fully fund this program. I submit that the gentleman is in error, that the only reason this program would not be fully funded is the fact that we only put $300,000 in it. If we had put the $300 million in it, you know, the monies would be going out to the various students who would request that voucher to allow them to attend whatever school they would choose to attend. The only reason it is not going to be fully activated is we have not fully funded it. But I do not think that changes the constitutional question. I think the constitutional question remains, is this particular piece of legislation constitutional the way we have structured it? I do not believe it is and would encourage a "no" vote.

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Lebanon, Senator Brightbill.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Lebanon, Senator Brightbill, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator BRIGHTBILL. I will, Mr. President.

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, would the gentleman please restate his motion and the reason for it again, very briefly?

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, my motion is that Senate Bill No. 953 in its present form must be passed by a two-thirds vote of the Body, as expressed in Article III, Section 30 of the Constitution, so the issue, as I understand it, is whether or not a two-thirds vote is required to pass this legislation. It is not as to whether or not this legislation is constitutional under some other provision but merely whether we are obliged to pass it by a two-thirds vote.

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, I appreciate that clarification.

PREVIOUS QUESTION MOVED

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, I would like to move the previous question.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Reibman has moved the previous question. Are there four seconds to her motion to cut off debate?

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, I second the motion.

Senator BELL. Mr. President, I second the motion.

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair sees Senator Rhoades, Senator Bell and Senator Brightbill.

The Senate will be at ease.

(The Senate was at ease.)

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, in order to clarify the parliamentary procedure that I just used, what I wanted to do was to vote now on the Brightbill motion. It is not my intention to cut off any debate with respect to Senate Bill No. 953, but there is a motion on the floor and I just think we should get to that motion.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. There is a constitutional point of order on the floor. That is what is on the floor and that is what this debate is about and that is fully debatable under the Rules of the Senate.

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, if you say so.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. That is not I, Senator Reibman, it is the Rules of the Senate, long before I came here.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the constitutional point of order?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, at present we do not require a two-thirds vote to appropriate funds for the IAG programs, higher educational grants, equipment grants. We do not have to refer to a two-thirds vote when we pass these acts or create these programs, and we are not required to do it here either. Again, I ask for a "no" vote.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. We are certainly going to permit wide latitude in the debate, but I would remind the Members that both sides now have indicated to me that they want the two-time rule enforced. So I am going to enforce it. We are keeping a record up here. I am taking that as a mandate from both sides of the aisle to strictly enforce the two-time rule and I just want to remind the Members as they go to the microphone that if it is their second time, not to indulge the Chair any further.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, first of all, in response to my Democratic Whip and Democratic State Chairman, I never, ever intended anyone to get the impression that this particular issue was a cockamamie issue. Perhaps he listened to my words differently than I said them. I am willing to have the record read back, but in the interest of time I will just repudiate what he thinks I said. In case he is misled, I do not think this is a cockamamie issue. I think this is a very important issue, probably one of the most important issues in our state and America today, and that is education for our children so that we can compete in the next decade and in the next century in a world economy, something which is not occurring in a proper fashion today, I submit.

Mr. President, as to the constitutionality issue, we have already set a precedent in our own budget. We give monies by a standard 26-vote majority in the Senate to approved private schools. We give them to YDCs, Glen Mills being a private institution that takes in juvenile delinquents and it is an educational institution. Mr. President, we do this in a lot of different ways, and this is no different than that, and the appropriation here would go to the department which would make the grants. As was said earlier by the gentleman from Berks, Senator O'Pake, that is very similar to the Department of Community Affairs with their process. But exactly on point is Glen Mills School which we fund. Mr. President, also it was said by the gentleman from Centre, Senator Corman, I believe, that this bill does not implement anything, it just sets up the department. That may be true, but I think there is another misconception floating around here, and I was going to save this until later, but because the debate on the constitutionality has gone so far afield, I feel compelled to answer it. I wish people would read the bill, and I will refer now to Senate Bill No. 953, Printer's No. 1751, on page 8, subsection (j), and it says clearly here "In the event that, in fiscal year beginning July 1, 1992, or in any fiscal year thereafter, the funds appropriated for purposes of the program authorized by this section shall be insufficient to award grants in the total amount for which applications are made, the office shall award such grants in amounts which shall reflect the relative proportions of eligible students and available funds." Mr. President, that clearly means that if this General Assembly, in its infinite wisdom, decided to fund this with $300,000, then it would be as I believe the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, said, 90 cents instead of $900. Or if it gave it a dollar, who would know what the infinitesimal small amount would be? Mr. President, this is clearly a constitutional bill under our past precedent and, I believe, under the current laws of the Commonwealth and the decisions of the Supreme Court. Let us get on with it. Let us get the vote on this thing so we can get on with the bill.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, for my second time on this motion, let me just be concise. I think it is obvious to everyone who has paid any attention to this debate that there are serious constitutional questions. The letter of the Constitution seems to be quite clear in Section 30, and I would ask again for favorable consideration of the motion of the gentleman from Lebanon, Senator Brightbill.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I find the reading of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, of subsection (j) on page 8 rather interesting in that we are assuming that this is going to be tested constitutionally. As stranger things have happened in my lifetime, what happens if we pass this bill and no one challenges the constitutionality? Then what happens? Then you have a bill that says that you give $900 to people who fit into the slots. My reading of subsection (j) is that if there is more than the $900 times whatever we have in place right now, that then there would be some question about whether people get into the program or not, not that there would be any lessening of the amount of money paid per student going into a nonpublic. I also find that it is interesting, if you read the bill on page 9, that for some reason the Committee on Appropriations was hell bent and determined to only put in a $300,000 fiscal note although I have not even been able to get one of those. I do not even know whether there is a fiscal note printed or not because I have not seen one that officially says it costs $300,000 for this bill. But I also see in here that in the fiscal year beginning 1992-93, we are raising the per pupil nonpublic transportation student fee from $124 to $159, which is an additional $35 per student, and I know that has to cost more than $300,000 on its face, and that is not a prospective constitutional question, that is in the bill that it says for 1992-93. It is a very huge amount of money and we have, I guess, in the haste to get this in and out of committee that day after the amendment was offered, there really was not anybody maybe on the Committee on Appropriations who either cared to look at this in any depth or did not really care to show us what the cost may be. So I do not believe there is any question about right now, when we pass this, it is going to cost almost $400 million. It is not going to cost $300,000, and until somebody challenges it in court and stops the process of this bill, it is a $400 million problem.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I would just like to state for the record that the previous speaker was in error when he quoted the increase in numbers for nonpublic transportation money, that the figure that he quoted is current law and not proposed. That is what the current law is for that subsidy for nonpublic transportation.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, Senator Bell has been called from the floor and I would request a temporary Capitol leave on his behalf.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Loeper has requested a temporary Capitol leave for Senator Bell. Without objection, that leave will be granted.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Jones and Senator Lewis.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Mellow has requested temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Jones and Senator Lewis. The Chair hears no objection. Those leaves will be granted.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the constitutional point of order?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Let me put the constitutional point of order before the Body again. The point of order raised by the gentleman from Lebanon, Senator Brightbill, is that in accordance with Article III, Section 30, of the Pennsylvania Constitution, Senate Bill No. 953, Printer's No. 1751, must be finally passed by a two-thirds vote of the Senate. Those voting "aye" will vote to sustain the point of order, thereby declaring that Senate Bill No. 953 must be passed by a two-thirds vote of the Senate rather than a constitutional majority. Those voting "no" will vote that the point of order is not well taken and thereby declare that the bill may be passed by a constitutional majority of the Senate.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the constitutional point of order?

The yeas and nays were required by Senator BRIGHTBILL and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—21

Afflerbach	Greenwood	Lincoln	Rhoades
Bortner	Jones	Madigan	Schwartz
Brightbill	LaValle	Mellow	Stewart
Corman	Lemmond	Porterfield	Stout
Fattah	Lewis	Reibman	Williams
Greenleaf

NAYS—29

Andrezeski	Fumo	Lynch	Salvatore
Armstrong	Hart	Musto	Scanlon
Baker	Helfrick	O'Pake	Shaffer
Belan	Holl	Pecora	Shumaker
Bell	Hopper	Peterson	Stapleton
Bodack	Jubelirer	Punt	Tilghman
Dawida	Loeper	Robbins	Wenger
Fisher

Less than a majority of the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the negative.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The constitutional point of order fails, and the Body has determined that a constitutional majority is the correct number to vote on Senate Bill No. 953.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

GUESTS OF SENATOR ALLYSON Y. SCHWARTZ PRESENTED TO SENATE

Senator SCHWARTZ. Mr. President, just as a brief interlude here, we have a group of students, appropriately or inappropriately today, from a parochial school in my district. We have discussed this issue a bit, and they happened to choose today to be here. They are from the Holy Cross Elementary School in East Mount Airy, and with them are the principal and the seventh and eighth grade teachers and two chaperones from the district. I would ask all of the Members on the pro and con side of this discussion to warmly welcome the Holy Cross Elementary School students.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. We are delighted that Senator Schwartz' guests made a choice today to be here, and I think that they picked a good day. We would like to welcome you.

(Applause.)

GUESTS OF SENATOR STEWART J. GREENLEAF PRESENTED TO SENATE

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, I take this opportunity to bring to the attention of the Senate my visitors, Barbara VanPatter and other members of the homeschoolers from Montgomery County.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Certainly we are again delighted to welcome Senator Greenleaf's guests to watch democracy in action. Would those guests of Senator Greenleaf please rise so we may give you our usual warm welcome.

(Applause.)

GUEST OF SENATOR MICHAEL E. BORTNER PRESENTED TO SENATE

Senator BORTNER. Mr. President, here earlier today was Audrey Osborne, a junior at Spring Grove High School. She is actually here visiting with Helen Caffrey, the Executive Director of the Senate Committee on Education, as part of the Future Leaders of York Program. She was visiting with me also in my office. She was in the gallery listening to debate. She may be out to lunch with Helen right now, I am not sure, but I am sure she would appreciate that usual warm Senate response.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Would the guest of Senator Bortner please rise so we may give you a warm welcome.

(Applause.)

And the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator SALVATORE. I will, Mr. President.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, I want to return briefly to an issue that was raised yesterday. If the gentleman could, I want to focus now on public schools separately. On the issue, which is spelled out in his bill, which allows parents to choose which public school their children would attend, and I would want to remind, for purposes of my question, Members of the Senate here that, for instance, in our school district in Philadelphia we have a number of magnet schools and specialized schools for engineering and science, for international affairs, for music programs, which have certain requirements for students to be able to attend. For instance, if it is a music magnet program, it may require that students have had a previous number of years in terms of instrument training, and I am trying to reconcile the admissions requirements in these public schools. For instance, that Central or Girls High or other schools—

POINT OF ORDER

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The gentleman from Lackawanna, Senator Mellow, will state it.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I think the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fattah, is making a very appropriate point that he would like answered and, first of all, there is no order in this Body, Mr. President, and there is no way that people can even hear. I cannot over here hear the question. I do not know how the gentleman he wants to interrogate would have any chance, whatsoever, with the discussion that is in here, of hearing the question. I would hope we could have some kind of order and cut out some of the sidebar conversations on this important issue.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair would ask that all Members please take sidebar conversations off the floor so that Members can hear. Sometimes it is difficult to hear the debate.

And the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, on page 4, subsection (c), the provision says, "Any other provision of this act to the contrary notwithstanding, every public school student in this Commonwealth shall be permitted to attend the public school selected by his or her parents or guardians,...." There are a number of public schools and I refer now to the ones in Philadelphia, but I would assume that it may be the case in other school districts around the state, that have a specialized admissions criteria. Be it Central High or Girls High of Philadelphia which have high academic requirements for admission or the Music Magnet Program at Overbrook High School or other schools such as the school for engineering and science or international affairs or the school for performing arts which are institutions, public institutions, and my question really is that understanding the language in your bill, all that would be required in order to create an admission of a child to one of those schools would be the decision of their parent, that they would be admitted. The question I am asking is, how would that reconcile itself to the rules for admission to those schools as they presently stand?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I do not think it changes at all. I think it has the same conditions. What will be going on then will be going on in the future. There will be no change.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, so his point is that—Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, we are not here to change any specialized programs. This bill does not intend to do that. If they are going to a magnet school and they want to continue to go to it, fine. If a child wants to apply to go to a magnet school, he applies. If he is qualified to go, then they will accept him.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, I am having difficulty reconciling the wording in the act, which says that the only criteria would be the choice of the parent, to the reality that presently, for instance to enter a music magnet program you would need to have performed in certain previous years, in terms of instruments and so on, or to get into the school for performing arts or international affairs or science and engineering, there are certain criteria that would be required. Under your amendment it would seem to wipe away all of those criteria in favor of a parent making a choice and again I am just relating to public schools and I am not talking about a child who is presently in one of those schools deciding to stay. I am saying if a parent, after the enactment of this law, walked over to Girls High or Central High and said, I want my child to be admitted and there is space, that child would have to be admitted under your amendment, as I would understand it. Is that correct, or am I misinterpreting the language?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I think he is misinterpreting the language.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, let me ask one final question on the interrogation here. I really appreciate him standing for interrogation on this matter. What is his impression of what this bill will cost the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania given the $900 stipend that would be returned to each family in succeeding fiscal years?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I have no idea what the General Assembly is going to appropriate. Whatever the General Assembly appropriates in money, that is the money they will get. There is no way of saying they are going to get $900 a person.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, so in no way do you intend at this moment that each family would get $900 per child.

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, there is a ceiling of $900, there is a cap of $900 or 90 percent, but there is no way in this legislation and I have not placed any dollar figures in here. All I have is $300,000 to create the educational office. It would be up to the Legislature in subsequent years. I think the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, clearly stated that earlier in his remarks.

Senator FATTAH. Mr. President, I think that is very helpful because I think many members of the public at least perceive at this moment what this bill would create for them, and I think we might be able to understand why it is that they would perceive it to be so, that they would receive $900. So that is not the intent at this moment. Thank you and I want to make my comments on final passage now.

Mr. President, on the front page of this morning's Washington Post is a story about another legislative body, the United States Congress, which is the lead story above the fold. The essence of the story is that the leadership of the Congress, in commenting on the end of its session, suggested that symbolism had triumphed over substance in that legislative session that they just had completed. I think in many respects that comment about our national lawmaking body holds true here again on this issue, that this is a symbolic gesture that talks about choice. It talks about creating choices for parents in terms of determining which schools their children will attend. Firstly, in terms of private schools, parents do not choose schools. Schools choose the students that they will admit, and there is nothing in this bill that would create a burden on private schools to accept students who are now presently in public schools in our state.

Secondly, Mr. President, it just has been brought out in interrogation over what financial remuneration parents will or will not receive who are now choosing to have their children educated in private and parochial schools. You cannot find any constituent, I think, who has paid any attention to this bill who is not under the impression that upon passage of this bill that they would be eligible for a $900 stipend in order to support the private choice they have made. However, it has been made clear by the prime sponsor of this amendment that there are no appropriations in this bill beyond the $300,000, and there is no burden upon the Legislature to appropriate $900 per student. We have also heard from the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, that it would require additional tax votes, which we know how difficult they are to come by in this Chamber, in order for any funding to be forthcoming because of the passage of this bill. There is a lot of conventional wisdom that has been talked about in terms of education and educational progress in our state, and there is a belief, and it has been articulated a number of times on this floor, that private and parochial schools somehow do a much better job in educating children than public schools.

Well, the Senate Committee on Education held a hearing, and from the testimony that was elicited at that hearing it became clear that there is only one national body that conducts studies. It is an instrument of our federal government under our very capable President and his administration, his Education Department, that looks at the question of performance of school children across public, private and parochial schools in our nation, and the reality of all of the studies that have been done is that there is no significant difference between the performance of children in public or private or parochial schools in our country, except for a very small percentage of students in very elite, very expensive private schools, but that in the main, after 12 years, there is very little difference between the performance of those students. Here we are again, symbolism over substance. There is much that we could do if we wanted to spend $300 million to improve the life and lot of young people in our Commonwealth in children. We could provide health insurance for the tens of thousands of young people in our state who do not presently have health insurance. That would be in keeping with President Bush's and the National Governors Association's agenda on making young people better prepared when they start school. We could increase the opportunities for early childhood education, which, again, is one of the national goals promoted by President Bush and the Governors Association, and which is agreed upon by everyone who has been involved in the field of education that it would make a substantial difference in the performance of young people in school. We could provide, as they have in New York, through the Liberty Scholarship Program a guaranteed access last dollar scholarship to every student in this Commonwealth to go into higher education. There is a lot that we could do if we wanted to spend $300 million to improve education. Today we are offering up a bill, and once it is passed, if it does pass on this floor, will spend at minimum $300 million. If no child anywhere in our 67 counties changes any school, it will still cost us $300 million. I do not know how we reconcile that with being responsible Members of the General Assembly. I can tell you that as a former House Member and a Member of the Senate, someone who served almost a decade on the House and Senate Committees on Education, I have always had a great admiration for the leadership of the Legislature that has allowed the Committees on Education to be, perhaps, one of the most substantive committees in our Body, void of much of the partisan bickering, and really focused on trying to produce effective results in the area of education. We have a national reputation in supporting a wide variety of educational opportunities for young people, including independent religious affiliated colleges and universities and a very substantial investment in public higher education, 501 school districts, and our support for nonpublic schools, over $165 million a year in transportation, is the envy, I think, of many similarly situated schools in other states in our nation. But I believe today is a moment after almost a decade now in working on education issues in Harrisburg that really does refer me to that headline in which today we have sunk very, very low as we consider what is more a symbolic gesture purporting to be some response to the needs to reform education rather than a substantive response to provide, again, as we have done so many times in our past in this state, an effective response, a responsible act in terms of promoting quality education for students in the Commonwealth. So I would ask that on final passage that my colleagues who share my concerns vote "no" on this bill and hope that the Senate Committee on Education can go back to its work of hearing testimony and attempting to find some way to reconcile the desires of many parents to have more choices and our public responsibility to provide a quality, equitable public education as it is called for in our Constitution.

Senator ARMSTRONG. Mr. President, Senate Bill No. 953 is not perfect—we all know that—but I do not think we have passed a perfect bill up here yet. It has problems with it, but I think we can work them out over time. You know people are fed up with business as usual concerning education. Just go out and meet with your people and discuss this problem. I will tell you, they are really fed up with the way things are going. Here in Pennsylvania we are paying $58,500 per teacher for salary and benefits, number one in the nation. Second highest, I believe, is Connecticut with about $51,000 and I believe in Alaska it is $49,500. So we are talking about two other states that have a much higher income, a much higher standard of living, perhaps, and here we are at $58,500, but overall in Pennsylvania we are not getting the results. They say you cannot use SAT scores as a barometer, but you know other states are using it. Why can we not? Well, if you take the SAT scores and use that as a barometer, we are 45 out of 50 in this nation but yet we are paying $58,500 per teacher. Something is wrong. This is a bold initiative and it takes courage. I do not think this is an easy vote. The gentleman from Lebanon, Senator Brightbill, was saying it takes courage. No one is going to win on this vote at all politically. You know you are going to take heat no matter which side you are on, and I believe every Member here is voting what they think is right in their heart. I know all of you and I know how strongly you feel on this, and I think you are voting what you feel is best for your constituents. It is too hot an issue to say, I am doing this because my cards and my letters are running two to one, three to one on behalf of this side. I do not think that is the case. I think we must step outside our comfort zones. It is very comfortable. Business as usual and keep the system the way it is, but that is not what made this nation great. Senator Brightbill was talking about his supervisors. Well, if they cannot afford it they just do not buy it. Well, I do not think we can afford not to have a good or a great educational system.

Our private schools are turning out a good product at half the cost. They must be doing something right. I do not think we can afford not to look at this as an alternative. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, was saying about worldwide we have to compete and we do. The Europeans and the Japanese are beating us, it seems, at almost everything and if we do not do something soon, this nation will be second-rate. I do not think anybody wants this country to be a second-rate nation. So there is an affordability that goes with this bill as far as education goes. Can we afford it? Can we not afford it? As far as what hard dollars it is going to cost, we are talking right now $300,000, but we are talking $300 million, $400 million, but we must make that appropriation. We go through the budget process every year. We must make that appropriation.

The gentleman from Lackawanna, Senator Mellow, was talking about we are in a recession or, perhaps, a depression equal to the 1920s. Yet, this year we have increased the state budget by 13 percent in recessionary times and put in a billion dollars worth of new taxes. Well, I must say the people who voted for that, it took courage to vote for that, there is no doubt about that. That was not an easy vote. I respect the people who voted for that, but I just feel we set our priorities in that budget, and the majority of Members felt that those were their priorities. Education, I think, is a priority in Pennsylvania in the House and in the Senate, and I think we do fund education, but I do not think we are getting our money's worth. We are also placing too many burdens on our educational systems. We are telling them how much to pay for starting teachers' salaries, whether it is in Philadelphia or whether it is in Potter County or whether it is in Lancaster County. We are allowing the teachers tenure. We are allowing selective strikes. We are telling them how to build their schools and how much to pay the construction workers who are building that school. We are not allowing privatization or lease-back programs. We are just not allowing these things that can save substantial amounts of money. The teachers' unions had better start concentrating on education and not disrupting our students through selective strikes.

The private school system is working. During testimony in the Committee on Education there was a lady who came in and really made a lot of sense to me, a lady of lower income in Philadelphia. She was a high school dropout. She had four children. She was not Catholic, but she had two in the Catholic schools. She had two in the public schools. She was discussing the difference between the two. She said you go into one school and they are disciplined. You go into the other school and it is chaos. Her one son had to have $150 pump sneakers to be in with his peer group in the public school, so he would be in this group that would say, he is one of us now. The Catholic schools, as you know, have uniforms. It cost her a good bit of money just to outfit her students so they had the right things to wear to school so they would be part of the school.

The only way out of poverty, I believe, in this state and this nation is through education. Like I said, this is not an easy vote. None of us are going to win politically. You are going to get hammered on this, no matter what you do, next election. They can take parts of this vote either way and use it against us. We all know that and we will probably be doing this and beat each other up on it, but I think you have to vote your conscience. We need to change our public education system. It is not working the way it should. To varying degrees, some areas are working very well, some areas are not. In my own school district I have complete faith in my school district. I think it is doing a good job, but there are other parts of the county, other parts of the state that are not doing as well. However, overall the private system is working better. It is time to step out of mediocrity and give parents a choice, and I urge support of Senate Bill No. 953.

Senator SCHWARTZ. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator SALVATORE. I will, Mr. President.

Senator SCHWARTZ. Mr. President, following up on some of the previous questions, I was wondering if there has been some examination of the amount. I understand the $900 now has been stated as possible because we have not appropriated the $300 million, $400 million or $500 million to fund this across the state. I would ask the question of what amount does the gentleman think would be the amount approximately around $900 and just about how many children would be able to take advantage of this? I am leading to the point that it is possible, given the appropriation that we may or may not make in this Body. The question is, are there parents then who would seek the voucher to go to a private or public school who would not then be able to get it, so the question is about how many people, how many children would be able to take advantage of this and, secondly, does the gentleman think that there would be parents then who would not be able to get a $900 check when their neighbor is able to and how would that determination be made?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I do not believe I understand the lady's questions, but I think if what she is saying is that X amount of children apply, they have a deadline to apply. Now, how much money we are going to appropriate, I do not know. That would be for the Legislature to decide at some future date. So I cannot answer that question. All I know is that we expend over $10 billion a year now in Pennsylvania, and that is not including higher education, federal, state dollars and local monies—$10 billion a year—and if she is talking about a few hypothetical cases she wants to use, that $300 million she is talking about, she is talking about three percent of the $10 billion.

Senator SCHWARTZ. Mr. President, my question is, if the estimate is approximately $300 million and we should choose, for example, to appropriate $150 million, there are then parents who are already in need of this voucher, who already have their children in parochial school who will not be able to get a voucher potentially. Is that correct?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, no, that is not true. I do not know how many children are going to be left in a nonpublic school system. Because of the tuitions, because of the economy, because of the disposable incomes, because of the higher taxes that were imposed upon them, a lot of them were forced to send their children to public schools. We are losing about 4,000 to 5,000 children a year in Philadelphia who cannot afford the tuitions. Now, across the state there are approximately 300,000 people, or a little better than 300,000, as I understand, who are now attending nonpublic or private schools.

Senator SCHWARTZ. Mr. President, the question that I have, is the gentleman saying that he would prioritize those who are new to wanting to come into the system rather than those who already now have children in parochial schools, so that what he would do then if we did not appropriate enough money for all those currently in parochial school and private school and for new people to come into the parochial school, he would prioritize those newly coming in out of the public school into parochial school and not those who currently have children in the parochial school?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. In order to have correct procedure, I would appreciate it if both the person who is interrogating and the person responding would address their questions and answers through the Chair as required by the Rules of the Senate.

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, you are absolutely correct. I apologize, but I am trying to do it for the sake of expediency because I know a lot of people have been here all last night and today a lot of people want to go home because of the holiday, so I am trying to be as brief as possible. I think on page 6, Section 4, it says: "The office shall establish reasonable deadline dates for submission of applications for grants and shall make such grants no later than fifteen (15) days prior to the beginning of the school year for which the grant will be utilized." So I think that answers the lady's question.

Senator SCHWARTZ. Mr. President, leaving that question, let me ask then, I believe the public perception is that the checks are almost in the mail, or at least that is the way constituents of mine have approached me. I am wondering particularly whether we could get some estimation of how long it will take for actual checks to get in the mail once we not only vote on this, but obviously once it is passed generally. I mean, is there an estimation of the sponsor of this legislation as to how long it will take for those who will get these checks to actually have them? Are we talking two, three, four years, really some estimation given the major constitutional questions, the obviously elaborate structure that needs to be set up in every school district in this state? The complicating fact is that we have tried to address some through amendment and some not. Is there any estimation of how many years this would take for actually some of the citizens of Pennsylvania to see this money in their hands?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I guess I could clarify an answer with Section 4 again, but maybe I ought to say that it depends on how many lawsuits you are going to file. If you intend to file a lot of lawsuits, it is going to take longer, so it depends on how many lawsuits are filed.

Senator SCHWARTZ. Mr. President, as a point of information, I send both of my children to public school in Philadelphia and am quite pleased with their education and do not plan to attempt to send them either to a parochial school or to a private school. So it will not be something that I will be seeking under this bill if it should go through. Let me ask just one final question, if I may, and that is, given that we rejected the motion last night of any kind of financial means test, I am curious as to whether there is an estimation of the number of people who would, as the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, suggested yesterday, voluntarily choose to not take funds from this because they personally feel they do not need to. Is there some estimation of that? Are there any other kinds of concerns, given the rejection of the notion of financial means, of how many people might voluntarily choose not to take this $900 check for a parochial or private school?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, as Senator Fumo stated quite correctly, a lot of people who make a lot of money probably will not take it. But when you say a means test, we have property rent and rebate checks that we already give out to people and we raise the limits and then we always have people who say, I do not qualify. So, they say, if you would just raise it another $2000 I would qualify, and when you get up to $20,000, then another group would say, well, I do not qualify because I am up above that means figure. So it is always whatever economic position you are in, I would say to you if there was a reason. A police sergeant and a regular patrolman in Philadelphia making approximately $75,000 or $70,000 a year, do you think that they are rich? I do not think they are rich, and I think if they have two or three children going to schools, they have problems, whether it be public schools or nonpublic schools, they have problems. So, for me to tell you what an accurate means test is, I cannot give you the answer.

Senator SCHWARTZ. Mr. President, I would like to add my comments on this so-called school choice legislation which, as we already know, has raised very high hopes for many people across the state and I believe is really a sham. The amendment proposed by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore, is an example of, at best, good intentions gone astray and, at worst, intentionally misleading abuse of the public trust. The legislation has been mislabeled intentionally to mislead the public. Let us be clear, this legislation will not improve families' options and education and will not improve the quality of education in the state. What it is, Mr. President, is bad public policy. What it does is offer a quick fix by giving a cash grant to private and parochial schools for students already there and will wreak havoc on the public educational system. I sympathize with the rising costs of private school education and with the serious financial burden the payment of private and parochial school tuition puts on working families. I am also keenly aware of the concerns about the failure of too many of our public schools to provide the quality we, as parents, have every right to expect from the public school system. In Philadelphia parents are concerned not only about the quality of education in the public schools, but too often also concerned about the public safety of their children in a public school environment. As a parent of children who are going to the public school system in Philadelphia, I have faced some of these concerns and questions myself. Poor education in our public schools, whether in Philadelphia, the surrounding counties or rural communities, is unacceptable. We, as state Legislators, have the obligation to work with local school districts to assure that the funding, the standards and the structure exist to assure quality education for all of our Commonwealth children. Education must be a priority. Improvements are critically needed. It may be that dramatic change is needed to improve the quality of education in Pennsylvania. In fact, I support the enhancement of school choice within public school systems, within districts as an important element in improving quality. Incentives such as smaller classes, specialized learning situations, creativity and flexibility are all important. I support greater local autonomy and active parent and community involvement in education. Public private ventures, schools within schools and magnet schools add tremendously to the success of our school systems. Senator Salvatore's amendment will not improve education in this state. It will instead, Mr. President, create chaos in the urban, suburban and rural school districts in the state. There are so many questions and clearly so many problems with the legislation that even those who propose the legislation plan for years of court battles. Mr. President, I will refer to just a few of the most significant issues and problems. Will this bill really increase options for parents not now able to send their children to private schools? Private school tuition and public school costs are between $5,000 and $11,000. Parochial school tuition costs are often more than $1,000. Nine hundred dollars is not enough to send the poorest child to private schools or public schools in another district. If we are not aiding families in financial need, who now do not have the options, why are we using public dollars to subsidize families who do not have financial needs? How will this legislation improve the public school system? How will this legislation help public schools compete when there are no additional incentives for assistance in the public system? How will public school systems accommodate children from other districts? Given the wide disparity and the local property taxes which fund education, how will residents react to educating children from other districts? If parents are to actually pay the difference, which was determined yesterday, how have we enhanced their options? Are the citizens of Pennsylvania prepared to pay substantially higher taxes to pay for the estimated $350 million state allocation? Who will pay for the additional transportation costs and the additional local administrative costs? If we are truly trying to reach out to those who are not now able to send their children to private and parochial schools, how does this legislation assist those families least able to seek out the best options for their children within the new maze, and a very complicated maze at that, of all public and private schools in the state? Given that this Body just yesterday rejected assurances that public dollars under this voucher program would be used for education, which is not discriminatory and which meets certain standards of quality, what have we done to improve education for our children who are sent to private and religious schools which are totally outside the system of public accountability? Mr. President, where in this legislation is there any educational reform? Are there smaller classes? Are there special programs to enhance math or science learning? Are there incentives for creative teaching? Are there early education programs to assure school readiness? Are there means to assure safety in a sense of community where there is now only fear and isolation? Mr. President, how does this do more than subsidize the parochial school system which we know is heavily in debt and struggling? In the 1991 budget this Legislature made an additional and significantly increased commitment to public education and at the same time increased the public subsidy for private education. The state now pays $92 million in subsidies for transportation, books and supplies in private schools and parochial schools. This is no small commitment to the families who choose to send their children outside the public system. I believe that the commitment we must make to the families and children of this Commonwealth is to assure that no one makes the choice to use private and parochial schools because the quality of public education is so poor that we cannot in good conscience send our children to those public schools. There will always be parents who choose to opt out of the public system for religious reasons or because of family traditions or because the style of education in a particular private school is preferable, in their opinion, or because they prefer a more controlled or selective student population for their child. This we accept. What we should not be willing to accept is overturning the basic American right to education which meets certain standards and public assurances and is accessible to all. One of the few assurances we have as Americans is the guarantee of public education for our children. Education should not be a free market enterprise. Public education cannot discriminate. It must serve all of our children regardless of religion, ethnic group, race, handicap or special educational problems. Public education is a right for all of our children. Is that system universally educating our children as well as it should be? No. Is this legislation the answer? No.

Mr. President, I will vote against this legislation. I will continue to seek the right answers to improve education, and I will ask my colleagues to join me in determining the meaningful, long-term answers to assure quality education for all of our children. This legislation, Mr. President, is not the answer.

REQUEST TO DIVIDE QUESTION

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, I would ask that we divide the question. I would note that the bill has two separate subjects: Section 112, which deals with the regulation of selective strikes, and Section 1310.1, which deals with educational choice. I would like to vote for Section 112, but do not choose to vote for Section 1310.1. Therefore, I would ask to divide the question, referring the Chair to the Senate Journals of November 14, 1977 and also of April 18, 1977, which indicate that to be divisible a question must have more than one subject and include points so distinct and separate that one of them being taken away, the other will stand as a complete proposition. It is my position that is exactly what we have here in Senate Bill No. 953.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair would rule that the question is not divisible on final passage, as has been the precedent of the Senate, which has been sustained as recently as April 18, 1977, for the reasons that it would certainly change the way things are done around here. However, recognizing Senator Brightbill's motion, the Chair must make a ruling and the Chair rules, indeed, that the motion to divide on final passage is not in order.

RULING OF CHAIR APPEALED

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, I would like to appeal the ruling of the Chair.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Brightbill has appealed the ruling of the Chair.

On the question,

Shall the ruling of the Chair be sustained?

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I would just ask for a negative vote in order to sustain the ruling of the Chair.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVE

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, before we go any further, I would like to have the opportunity to put Senator Scanlon on temporary Capitol leave.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Lincoln has requested a temporary Capitol leave for Senator Scanlon. The Chair hears no objection. That leave will be granted.

And the question recurring,

Shall the ruling of the Chair be sustained?

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, I would just like to state to the Members that this does not in any way affect the passage of the choice portion of this, so that this does not have any effect of killing the bill. It merely permits Members to deal with these two very important subjects separately as the bill goes through on final passage, and I would ask for an "aye" vote which I understand sustains my position.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, I would merely observe that this Body had the opportunity to deal with both of these issues separately last evening when we, in fact, decided to place into Senate Bill No. 953 the language regarding school strikes, 48-hour notification, and so forth. We chose at that time that we wished to deal with both issues in the same bill, and I think it should remain that way, and I ask that we sustain the Chair's ruling in this matter.

And the question recurring,

Shall the ruling of the Chair be sustained?

The yeas and nays were required by Senator BRIGHTBILL and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—8

Bortner	Fattah	Porterfield	Reibman
Brightbill	Greenleaf	Punt	Rhoades

NAYS—42

Afflerbach	Greenwood	Loeper	Scanlon
Andrezski	Hart	Lynch	Schwartz
Armstrong	Helfrick	Madigan	Shaffer
Baker	Holl	Mellow	Shumaker
Belan	Hopper	Musto	Stapleton

Bell	Jones	O'Pake	Stewart
Bodack	Jubelirer	Pecora	Stout
Corman	LaValle	Peterson	Tilghman
Dawida	Lemmond	Robbins	Wenger
Fisher	Lewis	Salvatore	Williams
Fumo	Lincoln

Less than a majority of the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the negative.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The ruling of the Chair is sustained.

And the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I have two grandchildren who are attending a local private Catholic school. I have one grandchild who is attending the public schools in Centre County, and I think the quality of education they are each receiving from their respective schools is good. However, the idea of schools of choice and competing for students, I think, is a real good idea, and it would help our children, I suspect, become better educated, at least provide the opportunity for them to become better educated. I think the idea of providing competition so that the kids have a better opportunity to compete in this world society is certainly a good one. How could any of us in this room object to that kind of thinking? I hoped that when this issue reached the floor of the Senate that schools of choice would be something that I could accept, a concept that is here and would be in place and we would all be embracing it, or at least the majority of us. When I look at the proposal that is in front of us today, I do not really believe it is a schools of choice. It is really a funding of the private sector over the public sector. When I look at Centre County and what would take place there, I look at maybe the State College School System that some may say is the best public school system in Centre County. Some may challenge that, but let us say, for example, that it happens to be the best. Let us take me back to when I was a young parent. At one time I was a young parent with five children, and I decided that I wanted to have my children have the very best so that they would be able to compete, and that the schools of choice is a very good idea and I want to see how it works so I can send my children to State College where the education quality is the best. I examine the issue and find that tuition in State College, as established by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, is $5,700 a year. I find that the equalized subsidy from Bellefonte School where my family lives gets $1,845. I add that to the $900 voucher, and I find that I have $2,745 to apply to that $5,700 tuition, or it is going to cost me nearly $3,000 a child to send my children to State College. My goodness, now, I have five children. How could I have afforded that when they were of school age? How could I afford it today? This is truly not a program that is for the middle class or for the poor people. It is a program that is for the well-off, and it is funded to the detriment of the public school system. To the detriment, Mr. President, because we are putting $300 million plus into a program to fund the private schools while we continue to underfund the monies that are going to the public schools. Someone mentioned in this Chamber that many years ago we decided that 50 percent was what we were going to try to achieve as funding for the basic instructional subsidy, and, Mr. President, I believe we are currently at about 39 percent. So what we are saying is rather than trying to get closer to our commitment to the public schools, we are going to take away over $300 million to fund, in fact, the private schools. Think about it, Mr. President. You know, just three months ago back in August we passed the largest tax increase, as it has been said by many in here today, that we have ever passed in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. That is only three months ago, and now here in November we want to add on top of it another $300 million plus for the taxpayers of Pennsylvania. I am glad I am not running next year, Mr. President. I am glad it is not my year, because I think the Members who will be out there campaigning and asking for votes are going to find a very angry society, one that is not going to be appreciative of another $300 million tax bill on top of what we have already asked them to pay.

Just a week ago, I believe it was, Mr. President, we passed a piece of legislation in the Senate that said we will not pass any more mandates that are unfunded to local governments and local schools. If we are going to pass any more mandates, we must fund them, and if we do not fund them, it is not a mandate. Here, about one week later, we are passing a mandate on to us under the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and we are not going to fund it. You know, we are not saying the same thing. We are saying this time we are only going to put $300,000 in it. We will fund it tomorrow, that today we can go to the public and say to them we have given you a choice in education. We are not going to charge you yet for it, that will be on tomorrow's tax bill. Well, I do not think the people are going to be faked out by that, Mr. President, and I think they are not going to be happy.

This is called schools of choice, but really I do not see anything in it that helps the public schools compete. Let us assume that school A—and I will not identify any school for this example—is determined by everyone who is involved in making that kind of determination as being the worst school in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. They are really bad news. Let us assume that 50 percent of the students or the parents who have students in that school decide that they are going to send their children to some other school, and they do. Now the superintendent of schools is faced with a dilemma. He has too many teachers. What is he going to do? Well, you would think, well, fine, you have too many teachers. You are the worst school system in the state. You can eliminate all those bad teachers and you will be able to compete. That cannot happen, Mr. President. The rules and regulations that we mandate on the public schools say that, you know, you have a union, you have Act 195 and the last in is going to be the first out. So after this superintendent reduces his teacher level, he or she finds they still have the same cross section of teachers that they had before. There is nothing in this legislation, Mr. President, that helps the public schools become competitive. There is nothing that changes any of the rules for them. The only place there is an advantage is in the private schools. Mr. President, I would like to share some comments that I had read in a newspaper article recently of November 10th, and these were by Mr. Russell Dennis who is an Assistant Professor of Education at Bucknell University in Lewisburg. I do not happen to know Mr. Russell Dennis, but I know Bucknell University is a quality place and I suspect that he is a quality educator at that institution. He says this issue needs more study, and he is speaking of the issue of schools of choice. He says, "There are real reasons for dissatisfaction (with public education), but we must be careful that we don't rush to do something without considering all of the consequences. I don't believe in quick fixes for anything. We need to be careful we are not seduced by an idea. It is not a panacea at all."

Mr. President, I echo his comments. I think we ought not to rush to pass what is called schools of choice when it is really just funding private education. I think we need to send this issue back to the Committee on Education for further study so it can come up with something that we can all accept as truly a schools of choice principle.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (D. Michael Fisher) in the Chair.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVE CANCELLED

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Chair notes the presence of Senator Bell on the floor and his temporary Capitol leave will be cancelled.

And the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?

Senator PORTERFIELD. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator SALVATORE. I will, Mr. President.

Senator PORTERFIELD. Mr. President, I would ask if the purpose of this amendment is to fund private schools or to provide better education?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, yes.

Senator PORTERFIELD. Mr. President, on both parts?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, it is not to fund private schools.

Senator PORTERFIELD. Mr. President, then I would conclude from that statement that the purpose of the amendment, the whole purpose of our being here today is to come up with a way to provide better education. Would the maker of the amendment wish to discuss what part of the bill determines how we are going to provide better education in the private school system and/or the public school system?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, what we are trying to do here is let the parents make a choice in where they are going to send their children.

Senator PORTERFIELD. Mr. President, is the method in which we are going to do that, the methodology, spelled out in the bill?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, yes.

Senator PORTERFIELD. Mr. President, with the funding that is proposed here to the private school systems of $900 to the individual parent of a student of a private school, we are going to assure that the level of education achieved by both the public and the private school system is going to be elevated?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, there is no funding for the private schools.

Senator PORTERFIELD. Mr. President, would the gentleman please repeat that?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I said there is no funding for the private schools.

Senator PORTERFIELD. Mr. President, I thank the gentleman.

What we are doing here is we are subsidizing the private schools, which is either constitutional or unconstitutional, depending how one interprets the Constitution which we took an oath to abide by. Mr. President, I find it very difficult to support an issue where I am going to, with a vote of "yes" today, hand $900 to any particular individual throughout this state to send their children to a private school without considering other needs, the needs of which we are elected to support, the needs of all residents of Pennsylvania. I can see where individuals who send their children to private schools definitely could utilize that $900, because that is $900 they will not have to take from their pocket in the mainstream of their livelihood for their family, and I could see that is very important to them. With that $900 they are going to keep, virtually, what are they going to do with that? Let us say they use it to the optimum. They purchase clothing for their children or they give them monies for lunches or they buy them additional textbooks or they buy them encyclopedias to help their education process along. Let us hope that they do that with those funds. But if we as elected officials are to do our job in treating all individuals equally in the State of Pennsylvania, and I have heard many people here say today inadvertently that they are not concerned about the $300 million, $400 million or $500 million price tag that goes with this particular piece of legislation coming down the road, then, indeed, if we are not concerned with that, there are a lot of middle-class and low-income families out there today who could sure use another $900 as well. They are not going to have the luxury of sending their children to a school of their choice. They are going to keep them in the public school that they are in now. Let us give each and every student across this state of the Commonwealth $900, because I can assure you right now there are people out there struggling, families who have children in school, families who have mine workers who have been laid off and steelworkers and individuals in the foundries who have lost their jobs who could well use that $900 for school clothes, winter coats for their kids to go to school and lunch monies for their children to eat properly. Mr. President, I state to you that I will stand here on the floor of this Senate and support legislation in which I treat everybody in this state equally and this bill does not, and I would propose a negative vote on the amendment.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, earlier today I received a copy of a document, an article entitled "A superintendent's case for choice," and stapled to that article is a card indicating that it was forwarded to me by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore, for my information. The article was written by William J. Moloney who is Superintendent of the School District in Easton. Although that district is properly in the territory of the lady from Northampton, Senator Reibman, I presume that Senator Salvatore forwarded that information to me because Superintendent Moloney writes in favor of consideration of a choice system, but he also says as follows in this article, and I quote: "So, what is to be done to break the impasse on choice? I would suggest two things.

"First, now is the time for moderates to fashion a centrist compromise that will allow choice a fair chance without inflicting needless collateral damage on public schools.

"The original Pennsylvania legislation has serious flaws that need to be corrected before it becomes law. It gives too much money to those who don't need it, and too little to those who do. A means test would be a just solution.

"Second, give public schools a fair chance for choice programs of their own. Many superintendents have said they would be happy to compete if only they had a 'level playing field'. This could be done through an amendment giving public schools the same freedom from regulation that we routinely grant the private schools."

I agree with Superintendent Moloney. The legislation before us, indeed, has serious flaws that need to be corrected, and I thank the gentleman from Philadelphia for providing me with information which of itself would be sufficient reason for me to vote against his proposal.

Yesterday when we considered various amendments, Senator Salvatore also referred to a statement made by a President whom he termed a great President, John F. Kennedy. I am reminded also of another statement made by that President as he looked out upon the audience and, through the magic of television, in his Inaugural Address in 1961 and said—and we all have heard this many times and read it many times—"Ask not what your country can do for you, but, rather, ask what you can do for your country." I ask you to consider that today and to contrast it with a statement made 19 years later by a then aspiring candidate for President who would go on to become President, when he too looked out through the magic of television into the households of Americans and said, "Ask yourself if you are better off today than you were four years ago." I suggest to the Members of this Chamber that there is a significant difference which occurred in public philosophy during that period of 19 years from 1961 to 1980, and I further suggest to you that probably not one of us, including myself, thought that simple statement, "Ask yourself if you are better off today than you were four years ago," would usher us into a decade of personal greed over and above any that we have seen in modern history. I suggest to you that this so-called school choice bill is but one more manifestation of the continuation of that personal greed. It is one more manifestation of the now reversed question which says, what can the government do for me and how can I get my hands on the public treasury? I suggest to you that the idea of school choice as proposed in Senate Bill No. 953 is nothing more than an extension of the give me, give me, give me attitude of the decade of the 1980s.

We are being asked to promote with our tax dollars an essentially deregulated scheme of education and place that scheme into competition with our highly regulated and strictly regulated system of public education. The same free marketeers who are telling us that we should do this are promising us that we will improve education if we do it. And I ask you to look at what else the free marketeers have given us over the past 15 years. They deregulated the airline industry. Have you tried to get a flight from western Pennsylvania to eastern Pennsylvania lately? Have you tried to arrange a flight from the Lehigh Valley to Erie or vice versa? Even on international flights we have seen what deregulation of the airline industry has given us, or the trucking industry or the telecommunications industry. Can we truly say today that we have replaced the monopolistic system of AT&T with a better system of choice and free enterprise in the free market? Europe has looked at us and could not believe that we would dismantle the most efficient telecommunications industry in the world, but we did, and now we are being asked to place that same mantle of free marketeering upon our educational system. We can look at the health care industry where the free marketeers have taken over control of the hospitals and the institutions and the clinics, and we have seen what has happened there. The price of health care is beyond the reach of most Americans, and particularly those who do not have a third party paying their particular health care needs.

I would suggest, ladies and gentlemen, that if we tip over the melting pot of our public education system, permitting it to flow in all directions, encouraging the formation of a widely fragmented socially and economically segregated educational system, we will be destroying one of the quintessential elements of our democracy. We will be destroying one of the mechanisms of community strength, Commonwealth strength and national strength. I do not believe and I do not think you believe that we can build strong communities or a strong Commonwealth or an enduring nation if we are willing to destroy, under the banner of individual choice, one of our greatest assimilating forces, and I do not believe that any government in a society that does that can long endure either. I do not believe that society or the government can flourish if we are going to entrust the education of our young primarily to the disruptive nature of market forces. Continuity in the educational process is as important as any other element of that process. All we need do is to observe the performance of children from transient families to understand how important continuity is, and yet we are being asked to put at risk the continuity of the greatest educational system in the world. The most egalitarian system that we have been able to devise throughout history exists in this nation and in this Commonwealth, and we are being asked to place something into position to systematically fragment and dismantle it.

Ladies and gentlemen, we do not even entrust people to make a decision as to what health care they shall receive for a sprained ankle unless they go through a very regulated process of one of only five part of entry health care providers. If they do not do that, they cannot choose to receive treatment for a sprained ankle from any of the ancillary health care providers. And yet, we now somehow magically believe that these same people, whom we cannot trust to seek medical care for a sprained ankle, can somehow magically make the appropriate choice to shape the minds of their children by sending them to schools that we have said do not need to have certified teachers, do not need to have any sort of regulations similar to the public school system. It boggles the mind. It boggles my mind when we insist that we are going to place this kind of a system into being.

This Commonwealth is known throughout the country as not leading the way in social progress. Indeed, if we look at just the living will example, we will be the 49th or 50th state, among all 50, to enact a living will bill, and yet we are willing to take the lead as the first state and the only state to initiate a system of education that will place at risk our public school system, a system that has been untried anywhere else, a system which has no track record, and we are doing it under the banner of choice and individual responsibility.

Ladies and gentlemen, it has been stated, and I will repeat it one more time, this bill is not choice. This bill portends to promote an educational system that will somehow improve in quality, but the bottom line is that it is nothing more than a bailout for financially troubled private schools, the great number of which are in the southeastern part of Pennsylvania. Now, if that is what we want to do, then let us find a way to assist these private schools that is constitutional and, most importantly, does not place the public education system and the children of this Commonwealth at risk and, even more importantly, does not fragment the greatest assimilating mechanism we have as a society to bring together, to learn about one another all segments of our society, the economic segments, the racial segments, the ethnic segments, the theological segments. That is what the public school system does. That is what makes us a strong nation and, in my opinion, this bill places at risk our ability to continue as a strong nation. I ask for a negative vote on the bill.

Senator O'PAKE. Mr. President, the debate today has been very emotional. Basically, those parents who, in many cases, are making a substantial sacrifice to send their children to nonpublic schools are for this bill. Those who have a vested interest in the educational establishment as it now exists are opposed to it. I had the benefit of being educated in both the public and the nonpublic school systems. I am grateful for the good teachers I had in my first six years at the public Glenside School near the housing project where I grew up. I am also grateful for the dedication and sacrifice made by the teachers who taught me, at much less salary, in the nonpublic schools, from seventh to twelfth grades. By the way, the cost then was $40 a year for books, and it was a bargain then as it is a bargain for the money it costs today, many times $40 a year.

By almost any objective testing criteria you can use today, nonpublic school students do quite well. My reason for supporting this bill is my desire to stimulate change and improvement in the quality of education. Some people are content with the status quo, but all of us have received complaints from parents, employers and business leaders who are frustrated by the inability of too many of today's high school graduates to read, write and function in the real world. I am told that approximately 1,500,000 young people who graduate from high school today are functionally illiterate. They are the ones who do not drop out. In 20 years, that is 30 million people who will never reach their potential unless we do something differently. While some would argue that the way to improve the quality of education is to continue pouring more money into the public system, I think we must do more if we really want reform. Reform did not come from within after the report A Nation at Risk was published in 1983. I am told that a recent Carnegie Foundation survey revealed that only 18 percent of public school teachers today now think that reform will happen in their schools compared with 31 percent who thought it would in 1987. In fairness to those parents who make substantial sacrifices because they see something more and better in nonpublic education, this bill is a tax break. Is it not time that we provide some tax relief for thousands of forgotten middle-income working class parents?

On the subject of cost, I think we are missing a very important point. According to the public education coalition to oppose tuition vouchers, there are about 6,500 students in Berks County who now attend nonpublic schools. If all of these students were to attend a public school, it would cost about $2,900 per student, or almost $20 million. That is more than three times the cost of the $900 voucher system, and that is Berks County alone. Statewide, if the 341,000 nonpublic school students were to attend public school at an average cost of $2,900 per student, which is conservative, that would total over one billion dollars in additional public school costs. Who is prepared to vote for the taxes needed to pay that cost? On the issues of fairness, long-term costs and the possibility of improving the quality of education in Pennsylvania, I think this concept of choice, much like the old G.I. bill, deserves a chance. If there are flaws in this bill, they can be corrected in the House of Representatives.

Senator BAKER. Mr. President, I wish to discuss the issues involved, as my colleagues have done, in the schools of choice question and, in particular, Senate Bill No. 953. However, I believe that because issues of utmost importance are raised, unfortunately, a number of issues have been injected into the discussion that are not as significant and yet they are the ones that have come to the fore. I would like to discuss what I think the significant issues are and those that may have become issues but should not be. In the first place, this issue does not revolve around public schools versus private schools or, specifically, parochial or sectarian schools. Much of our debate today has revolved around this. Unfortunately, those on both sides of the issue, whether it be the Roman Catholic hierarchy on the one side and the Protestant denominations on the other side who engage in overt active lobbying, I think make the public rightfully uneasy about the injection of religious issues into our public discourse, nor has the lobbying of public school groups who are raising issues in the more recent past, contributing to the discussion by trying to make this an issue of public versus private. There are certainly considerations to be made involving the differences between public and private schools, between the differences in their constituencies, the differences in their costs, the difference in their basis and their fundamental difference in their educational philosophy, but those are not the subject of this bill, and if they have become that, they should not be.

What does schools of choice mean? All too often this debate has quickly resolved itself into an argument over finances, an argument over public versus private, and yet we need to go back and think about what schools of choice means. What is the concept of schools of choice? It is a philosophy. It is a concept. It is an approach, and there is no one specific way to carry it out. In fact, this bill does not go very far down the path toward those things that constitute schools of choice. What are its components? In my opinion, Mr. President, they are deregulation, localization, a focus on diversity and specialization within schools, accountability, competitiveness, freedom of choice and efficiency. Mr. President, those are American values and if, in this debate, we are looking at a concept that may move us in the direction of those desirable goals, then, in my opinion, we are making the proper choice. What about another argument that this is not a raid on the Treasury? People have come to my office within the past week who normally are only in my office to ask for more money for education. They are institutional groups, and they have their constituents who either make their living from education or who have interest in the state's money available for education, and their attitude is traditionally, how much more money can you give us? Suddenly, they have discovered that there might be some money spent down the road, more than now, for education that does not go through them and they are suddenly cost conscious. Well, I am glad to find that some of these groups, Mr. President, have discovered the taxpayers' money. I welcome their interest in saving it. But when we think of the billions upon billions that we spend right now for education, do we conclude that all of those dollars, every last one is being spent most efficiently? It does not take much investigation on our part to know that is not the case. Yes, I think we should be concerned about costs. We should be concerned about the costs we already have and what is being delivered to us for it. I also think that this is an argument about school reform and school quality. There is a better way, and whether you would look at reforms such as lengthening the school day, having a year-round school system, and one could go on and on with the educational reform ideas, they must be looked at, they must be studied and we must be willing to innovate and try something new. The issue is also change. Mr. President, I believe that people want change in our educational system. They do not want our educational system insulated from parent involvement, from student involvement, from legislative involvement, from community involvement, and, yet, that is what the educational establishment has been able to do for the past two generations, to more and more insulate itself from accountability. It is time to change that. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fattah, told us that this was only a symbol, as if symbols are not important. There is a time, Mr. President, to symbolize the fact that we are ready to look at a new way of doing things. Senator Fattah himself has a concept of privatizing insurance in the City of Philadelphia. I quote back his critics to him and remind him how much he sounds like them. The gentleman from Centre, Senator Corman, wants privatization in transportation. I just quoted back to him the arguments of his opponents who quoted the same arguments that he quoted today by saying he did not want to apply the same kind of concept of a more market oriented approach in education. The gentleman from Lehigh, Senator Afflerbach, his attacks on the free markets remind me that around the world in Russia and China people want to emulate our free market system. They want capitalism. They want democracy, and, yet, he is opposing the market here in Pennsylvania. Mr. President, I find that anomalous. This bill does not threaten public schools. My district has excellent public schools. It has excellent private schools. In fact, I have schools in my district that have received the Presidential Award of Excellence, both public and private, twice, not just once, and I am very proud of that, but let us look around the state and ask about our public school system. Mr. President, I was told by Senator Rocks that in Philadelphia of those who start out in the ninth grade and those who eventually make it through to graduation, along the way 59 percent do not make it. Only 41 percent of those who start public school in Philadelphia make it to graduation through a four-year high school curriculum. That, to me, ladies and gentlemen, is a statistic that is worth noting and asking, is there a way to change that? Perhaps this bill is not the total answer to that. I am sure it is not, but obviously something needs to be corrected. Now my mail and phone calls have overwhelmingly favored schools of choice, about 72 percent, but I do not consider that to be by itself decisive. I think it does indicate that there are ways of support and ways of opposition, most recently opposition, but the total still was three to one in favor of schools of choice, but that to me is not the reason to make up my mind. I want to introduce something new into this discussion by talking about something that most of us have overlooked in our dialogue on this issue and that is the question of not further regulating private schools such as was tried at great length by many colleagues yesterday who wanted to add edict after edict and mandate after mandate to the private schools. Let us turn that on its head and let us deregulate the public schools. That would help bring about a more efficient system, and to me schools of choice is aimed at exactly that concept of deregulating public schools, giving them the ability to compete, whether it be on cost or on specialization, with private schools. I am not saying to make the two systems totally analogous, and, yet, if there is one thing that is wrong with our system today, it is the overburden of educational administrative requirements that are part of this insulation I talked about previously, and we as Senators and General Assembly Members have added to it, unfortunately, by continuously trying to substitute our judgment for that of parents and of teachers and of the local administration in the school districts themselves.

Teachers should have the ability to teach in the classroom. Local school boards should have more decision-making power, and if the statistics I am quoting are incorrect, I hope somebody will correct me. I have heard these figures. I do not guarantee their authenticity. I can only say that they have been quoted to me, and I invite anybody to give me the exact specifics. I have been told in the school district of Philadelphia that it takes 3,000 administrators—these are nonteachers—to administer the public school system, and it takes the archdiocesan schools in Philadelphia 30 administrators to administer their school system. Now I am willing to grant that there is a difference in size and there is a difference in requirements and for all the reasons and the mandates that I just talked about. Nonetheless, to me, that is a striking symbol of what the problem is that we face in education, and I am not saying this bill is important because it is a bailout for Catholic schools. In fact, if I thought that were the only reason for it, I would be opposed to it, but I think to make the argument about schools of choice and to a narrow one about sectarian schools and bailouts of Philadelphia Catholic school systems, et cetera, is to mistake a movement that is sweeping across this nation for a particular part of that particular issue. I thought it was very interesting today to find in the Philadelphia Inquirer a long, strong editorial in favor of schools of choice. To me this is a major signal that the conventional wisdom is being questioned, even by those who are the normal perpetrators of conventional wisdom. I do take issue with one part of that editorial. A means test always means that someone is going to be right above the means test line, and normally that means the middle class. To me that is a criticism of this bill that needs to be made and it needs to be discussed. But it seems to me, if there is any message that the current prevailing winds in politics are telling us, it is that the middle class is tired of being told that it does not count and that somehow it does not quite make it into the category of those who are going to be helped by government action. It would be meaningless to cast a “yes” vote for this bill and not to do it because of a commitment to the schools of choice philosophy. If it is being done by those who wish to make a financial assistance to certain types of schools, then I think it is totally missing the point, but that is not a reason to vote against the bill. To me we are in a new paradigm, Mr. President. We have entered a new period of politics where people are more willing to ask if their dollars are being spent wisely or they can demand that they have more choice in the way that those dollars are spent. Are there constitutional problems? Perhaps. Do we need more study? Of course. Do we need more answers to specific questions about how this will work? Yes, we do. Are there going to be rough spots? Yes, there are. Are there going to be narrow-minded people who try to take advantage of this for their own ends? Yes. Are those reasons for voting against this bill? In my opinion, they are not. We should start down the course of reform in education, and I think that this bill offers at least a small step in that direction.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore (Robert C. Jubelirer) in the Chair.

Senator PUNT. Mr. President, it is rare that I stand on the floor and speak, as it is normally not my way. Normally, I will speak with Members, one on one, to discuss the issue or the details, and so forth. But there are some things that have been said and some things that have not been said on this issue that I think must be said. The issue of choice, this is not to me choice, but it is voucher. Every parent has the opportunity to place their child in a school, whatever they want within their financial means. You can place your child in any school. There is no law that says you cannot. We already have the choice. At issue is the funding and how to pay for it. Specifically, in this legislation, it is a voucher, whether it be a $900 grant, $200 grant or $5,000 grant. Throughout the debate last night and today a number of speakers have said that what if the private schools would close and the public school system would have to bear that increased cost. Indeed, we would, some of it to some degree but not in total. But not last night nor today have I heard what the Commonwealth is doing for our nonpublic schools. In the fiscal year 1991-92 budget that was approved we are giving $53,996,000 to nonpublic schools for services. We are giving $10,397,000 to nonpublic schools for textbooks. We are giving $6,128,000 for student supplies for our nonpublic schools, and we are giving $22,458,000 for transportation for the children in our nonpublic schools—$92,979,000 that we have put of public tax dollars into one form or another of private schools, of nonpublic schools. Pennsylvania has made a commitment and we have indeed, I believe, satisfied much of that commitment. Now, when we look at the fiscal impact of a $900 grant, you know, the cost I have heard anywhere from $307 million to as high as $550 million, where are we going to come up with additional monies should that come about? Do we take it off the ESBE? Do we, as the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, said, increase state taxes to pay for it? Somebody has got to pay for it at some point in time, whether those funds come from the state level or whether those funds come from the local level. Somebody has to pay for it. I contacted several of my school districts just using the $900 grant, and if that comes off the ESBE monies and those ESBE monies are reduced, Chambersburg School District would realize a 7.2 mill increase. My own hometown school district would realize a 10 mill increase. We have to look at this. Someone is going to have to pay for it. We are not talking today about let us do the program and sometime later how we are going to pay for it. So when we cast our vote, keep that in mind. We have to come up with the dollars to pay for this program. You know, much has been said about, again, choice, and in particular, about lack of quality education in our public school system. Many of us in this room, in this Chamber, are products of the public school system. Many of our parents completed in a public school system their basic education. Was that so bad? Are our parents so ignorant, dumb? They came through. They graduated. They feel they received a good education. We feel we received a good education. Our public school system today is the same basic system that was proposed and begun over 200 years ago, and that system overall, on the whole, I believe has worked quite well up until the past 15 years or 20 years. Unfortunately, as time passed and changes were made, changes were not made in our public school systems to deal with those changes that resulted through the passage of time. We can correct those needs and satisfy those needs within our public school system and not by condemning our public school system. We have quality teachers out there. We have quality administrators. We have quality children in both public and private educational institutions, and we are, indeed, fortunate in having both public and private, and for those who have the financial means indeed are fortunate they have the choice of attending a private versus public. Many times, I am sure I am not unlike many of you, I have had parents complain about our school system. I heard someone say just a moment ago, how can we see someone graduate and not be able to read or write? You know, I saw something last year that I was appalled to see, and it was difficult to believe, but the teacher recommended to fail a child, to hold a child back for another year. Who passed that child? Not the teacher, the parent. The parent went in and raised holy commotion. Do not dare to flunk my child, because they did not want the stigma attached that the child flunked. We cannot legislate parental involvement. The parents must be involved with the basic education of their children, whether they be public or nonpublic schools. The problems that we face today in a public school system are much unlike the problems we were confronted with when I was in high school 28 years ago. Back then we did not have drugs. We did not have a lot of these things that children today have. Try and talk about sex education or teaching about AIDS in our public school system and see the outcry from the parents. Do not dare talk about those things to my children. That belongs in the home. How many times will those children receive those discussions from the parent at home? Rarely.

I would like to close my remarks by simply saying that in the next 48 hours we are going to be celebrating, once again, Thanksgiving. And ladies and gentlemen of the Senate, we do have much to be thankful for, and in this specific issue we can indeed be thankful that we have nonpublic schools as well as a solid public school system. But in the process of giving thanks, let us not be too overzealous that we will destroy and take away from that very, very basic choice. Mr. President, I thank you and the Members of the Senate for the indulgence, and I would ask for a "no" vote.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, this is not an easy vote, as has been said already, and also, as with all change and growth, there is transition, and that is always difficult and painful. But without that, there is no gain. The status quo clearly is not working in America, and I am not here to blame the teachers for that. I am not here to blame the administrators. I am not here to blame anyone for that. The fact of the matter just continues to exist that in this country we are not doing the best that we can in educating our children. We are seeing that day in and day out. We find employers complaining about the fact that they must teach employees remedial skills—reading—just to get them to do the small jobs that they have. What do we do for the next century? What do we do when computer technology will be ruling the field of manufacturing? Where will we find the people to run the systems? Mr. President, we are charting new waters here today, and it is not going to be a perfect bill, as was said. It will not be. We are incapable of doing anything perfect, and I think our experience indicates that many, many times we make mistakes, but that does not mean that you do not go forward and try. Mr. President, we made mistakes when we originally did special education, and it took us years and years and years until finally just this year we think we solved the problem, and I say think because we have not even experienced our cure yet. We enacted sales taxes last year on services and now find that in some areas we made mistakes there too, and, hopefully, we will straighten those out.

Mr. President, I have heard the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fattah, say that statistics on education indicate there is really no difference between private and public education. That is like the President telling us that there is no recession. There are, in fact, differences, and we have an obligation to try and create the most intelligent and brightest next generation that we can. I, too, differ with the process here today. I wish we could have had a rational discussion on this through the Committee on Education because the Members of that committee have far more experience in this area than I. But that is not what happened, and that is not unique. This is not the first time that we have seen an issue addressed in this fashion. Mr. President, regrettably, I differ deeply with the lady from Philadelphia, Senator Schwartz, who says we are misleading the public and that this is bad public policy and a quick fix, because in the same breath she says that she sympathizes with the problems of the middle class and also that the average public schools are not doing the job and that there are problems with not only education but safety. Mr. President, this is not a quick fix. This is a beginning of a journey down a long road which, hopefully, will continue in this direction, but may at times take different directions as we have more experience with the concept. I do not know if this will create chaos or not in the schools. On the one hand I am told that it is not going to do anything to change education. Therefore, we should not do it. But on the other hand, in the same breath, from the same speaker, I hear it will create chaos. Well, either it will or it will not. I suspect that it might cause some consternation, that it might cause some alarm and some concern among the educational establishment, and I also submit to you that that is not necessarily a bad thing. Mr. President, I listened to the gentleman from Centre, Senator Corman, when he talked about the problems with this legislation. But I was also here in the summer, as was said before, when Senator Corman was a big advocate of privatization in transportation issues, but now in educational issues he is not, and I listened to Senator Corman say that we are supposed to be funding education to 50 percent and that we underfunded it this year, but I also remember this summer when Senator Corman did not say that on this floor when we passed the education bill and the General Appropriations Act. I also remember that he was not here for us when we had to raise the taxes to fund that bill. So I did not hear him say in that debate that he was willing to vote for more taxes then if we put it into education. I did not hear that. Today I find, though, that we have this obligation. Well, perhaps we will remember that next year when we do the budget again, and perhaps he will remember his words. Mr. President, I heard him address the issue of mandates. Yes, we did finally pass a bill that prohibits us from mandating local governments to do programs that we do not pay for, but we never said we were going to exempt ourselves from our own mandates. That is what this is about. That leads me, Mr. President, into probably the most important area of all, at least from my expertise, and that is the cost of this bill. As has already been said in debate and as I have said yesterday, I am fully prepared to vote for a tax increase to fund this program when it is needed, and I will today keep the roll call of everyone who votes in favor of this bill, and I will be the first to remind them when this triggers that there was a bill that they incurred a while ago that they must now pay for. I do not see any problem with that, Mr. President. I do not see any inconsistency with that. In fact, I see a lack of hypocrisy with that, but let me tell you, Mr. President, why I am so easily swayed to vote for new taxes to pay for this, and this was alluded to by the gentleman from Berks, Senator O'Pake. Mr. President, sometimes in life you are stuck with reality and that reality is bad news, and what you attempt to do is minimize that bad news. Mr. President, as was stated before, if all of the nonpublic schools in Pennsylvania closed, it would cost us in excess of a billion dollars to take in those students into the public school system. Mr. President, although we talked a lot about a means test, we do not have a means test when it comes time to send kids to public schools. Affluent and wealthy parents get the same free education that the destitute get. I do not know why we have to have a means test for this, but I would be willing to listen to one, Mr. President, if it were reasonable, but I did not hear one. The only one I heard was that we should buy into the PHEAA guidelines, which no one understood what they were, except the gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln. I will accept the fact that he knows what they are, because I do not know enough to ask him questions to find out if he knows enough about it. Mr. President, last year we spent $5.2 billion on basic education in this Commonwealth, $5.2 billion, fully 27 percent of our operating budget, went into basic education, and you have to ask yourself, as I think the gentleman from Lehigh, Senator Afflerbach, asked, are we better off now with the students we are getting out of public education than we were years ago when maybe we were only spending $4 billion? I think not. Mr. President, there is a time for change, and, perhaps, this is it. In Philadelphia alone, and I admit I will be parochial about this because they are the facts and figures which I have closest at hand in Philadelphia, I was advised recently by a very high official in the school district that almost 15,000 new children enrolled in the public school system this year because they could no longer afford the Catholic education they were receiving, 15,000 new students. In Philadelphia that translates out to $64.5 million in new monies that are going to be necessary to educate those children just in that county and just that small number. Of that number, $26.25 million will be necessary to be gotten from the citizens of Philadelphia in increased taxes there, and $37.5 million will come from the Commonwealth just for those 15,000 new children. Mr. President, if we were to add in—and someone, I believe it is the coalition who is against this bill and I will use their statistics—the 81,000 plus students that they estimate are currently in nonpublic elementary and secondary schools, it would cost us in Philadelphia County alone $350 million in new money, $142 million of which would have to come from the citizens and taxpayers of Philadelphia and $208 million which would have to come from the Commonwealth. Mr. President, they are real numbers, and they go across the Commonwealth in almost the same proportions, although in some areas there are fewer students. I would submit to you when you factor that into their populations you will find out that in many cases they are close to the same percentages. Mr. President, what is wrong with taking $300 million, not taking it away from basic education, but taking it in new money in an attempt to stave off that mass exodus from nonpublic schools to public schools? As was said earlier, I believe—and the statistic was thrown about by the gentleman from Chester, Senator Baker, and it could in fact be true because I once taught in the Catholic system—there are 3,000 administrators in the Philadelphia District and 30 at the Archdiocesan district, and they handle the same number of students, Mr. President, because although there are not as many in Philadelphia per se, vis-a-vis the Philadelphia school system, the Archdiocese in Philadelphia encompasses a five-county area. There is something to be said for that. Either we did it here through some mandates and programs that we told them we had to do or they did it on their own, but something is out of control. In America today we have to learn what business is learning and that is that the key to our survival is productivity. We can no longer afford to be the bureaucracy that we were in the last decade, and that is going to come very painfully true to so many special interests that they are not going to like it over the next decade. The challenge and the courage will be for us at the state level and more so for our elected officials at the federal level to be able to respond to those special interests. America needs a re-education of the way in which we do business, both in government and in business. We can no longer rely on trade barriers, on tariffs for import, and we can no longer accept inefficiency in government. We can no longer accept the national debt that eats up roughly 30 percent of our revenue every year just to pay the interest on it. As was said, and I just watched this the other day, by H. Ross Perot, we are already a second-class nation, but no one wants to tell the public that because it would be political suicide. Mr. President, we are rapidly approaching a third-class nation, and the more we attempt to protect the bureaucracies both in the public and the private sectors, we will destroy our future. We will not have to worry about educating our children unless we do something right now because there will be no reason to educate them. Mr. President, we watch in amazement as we are about to come up to the 50th anniversary of the bombing of Pearl Harbor, that now the Japanese have bought the island with the money we sent them for the cars and the TVs. They have not had to drop a single bomb, and now they own the real estate. That is not an accident, Mr. President. That is what is happening and it is happening all over us. We have to open up our eyes and change our ways. I remember, and I think I said this here before, that I watched as Russia fell apart, and they got together and started this new concept in which the republics would get together in some kind of loose federation and give to the central government only some limited powers and then keep the rest. My wife said to me, gee, how do you think that will work? I had to remind her that is what we did in Philadelphia in 1776, but in the last two years we have switched paths. America is going the route of bureaucracy of the protection of the special interests and, believe me, those special interests are now becoming the majority of the country, while those countries that have dealt with that for the last 50 years have found out it does not work and they are willing to come back to where we started in 1776. Hopefully, Mr. President, at some point in time, in the next decade, America will wake up and we will realize the mistakes of the past and take the radical new approaches that are needed, and, believe me, Mr. President, they have to be nonpartisan approaches because as long as one side gets up and castigates the other for its courage, we will go nowhere in our society. Hopefully, we will wake up soon and realize our status in the world and go forth and try and become the first-class nation that we once were. Mr. President, this is a step in that direction. Albeit, it is irregular and it is new and it is scary, but we can no longer accept the status quo. We do not need debate here to see that. Walk among your constituents. Walk among the people who are unemployed. Look at the economy. Look at some of the kids we are turning out of public schools, and, again, I do not mean to castigate them, but the system is not working. I do not say tear it apart, but what is wrong with trying, on a limited basis, another one that might work. If it does not, we will correct it, and if it does, maybe we will do more, and I think that is the fear of the special interests.

Mr. President, as to the cost of this bill. A lot of numbers have been thrown around, and I am perfectly comfortable with the fact that it will cost us $300 million. I will tell you that is based upon the fact that no student from a public school decides to take advantage of this, but only those students currently enrolled in nonpublic schools do decide to take advantage of it, and we, in fact, agree that we want to fund to the maximum—and I repeat maximum—of $900 or 90 percent, as Senator Salvatore said, which appears on page 6 of the bill, written in plain English. If we do all of that, given today's numbers it will be $300 million. It starts July 1, 1992, as I read the bill.

Mr. President, on July 1, 1992, we also roll back the income tax from 3.1 percent to 2.8 percent, something that the House wanted because it made them feel better when they voted for the tax bill, something which I predict, having gone through this before during the Thornburgh years, we will be besieged with phone calls from constituents and say, where is the money I was supposed to get? I thought I got a tax rebate, because nobody will see it. Mr. President, if that is the route that has to be taken at that point in time, I say again, I will be the first to say, do not roll it back because there could be no greater agenda in our state today than the education of our children. If people want to put more money into it, let us do even more, and not just into this. If we want more programs in the public schools, let us vote for that too, but fully being aware of the fact that it costs money. As I said before, I will save the roll call from today. I hope I do not have to read that roll call as a sort of roll call of disgrace at some point in time in the future, when, perhaps, some of the people who vote today do not want to vote for the funding to pay for it. That is an obligation that we assume today. I say I will vote for those taxes, and I tell each and every one of you today who is prepared to join with me in voting "yes" on this bill that you automatically incur the liability. I cannot remember a previous time in my 14 years here when the issue has been so crystal clear. Yes, today you can either vote or not vote to spend approximately $300 million, and let us stop the silliness of it is only $300,000, and everything else. Let us get real for a change. Let us get away from our ceremonial procedures and all the ifs, ands and buts in Mason's Manual. It is $300 million. It could be more or it could be less. Today when you vote to spend that money in fiscal '92, remember that you also have the moral, legal and constitutional obligation to vote to get the money in so it can be spent. I do not think there is anything wrong with that and I would hope we would not hear hypocrisy here, that people are going to say, no problem, we will find the money somewhere in the budget, because I assure you it is not there. We all know that whether we want to take this floor and say it or not. I will say it. Revenues this year are tight. We are all concerned about the Christmas season. We are worried that the taxes we put in place last year may or may not generate enough money. Optimistically, I can predict that this time, I think, we will end up with a zero balance and not a deficit. But, if it is a deficit, what will we do about this $300 million. That is when we will really separate the men from the boys, as they say. You have to put your money where your mouth is. You want to play you have to pay. I think there could be no finer tax vote than that one, because I think it helps all the children of Pennsylvania in getting them an education so that this state can compete. I heard a lot about business complaining about business taxes, taking away their unfair competition, taking away their advantage. Other states have lower taxes, therefore, they can produce products cheaper. I heard all about that. But the one thing that business needs more than low taxes is an educated work force, and this is the way to get it. I urge an affirmative vote, Mr. President.

Senator RHOADES. Mr. President, as Chairman of the Committee on Education, whose committee was circumvented to consider choice, we were holding hearings on Tuesday and Wednesday, and Wednesday this was amended into the bill. I think we tried philosophically to resolve this issue very quickly and, therefore, I will give you some non-intelligent, nonarticulate, nonlogical and nonreasonable reasons why you should vote for this. Educational choice has a purpose and it has merit. There are no ifs, ands or buts about that. I think we should address it. President Bush has it as part of his America 2000. There are some other states that have adopted it, although their results have not proven beyond any level of confidence that it is working or not working. As a matter of fact, Milwaukee put it in for their academically disadvantaged kids and the first year shows that there are not any gains in it. East Harlem has a very successful program. Other states have adopted it. Minnesota put it in and they said why did they do this? They figured parents would be involved. They ended up locating in schools that were close to where their parents worked, where there was a day care, where there was a child care center, because they had a good athletic program, because they had good cocurricular programs. It came down that about 20 percent of the decisions were made based on academics. That is not the way it is supposed to work. Educational choice has a purpose and has merit. Unfortunately, that will not be addressed here in the Senate. Since the Senate does not want the committee to address it, I only hope the House will correct the errors that exist in the bill. The minority will have its say, the majority will have its way and numbers will dictate. My numbers are very simply three to one, that my constituents are asking for it. It does not necessarily make it right or the best thing to do but it does tell me something. I would also like to get it out of here for one very other important reason, then we could get on with educational reform. Everybody has been sitting and standing here harping about educational reform, let us do, let us do. Folks, put your working clothes on, because in January when you come back you will have your opportunity. You better be able to match up what you did yesterday and today in January and February, because it will be here. The bill simply allocates $300,000 to an office of economic grants and authorizes $900 in a voucher, that is the appropriation. Put it this way, and I have this on the record, I will not support a tax nor will I take it out of school subsidy money and you can say I am a hypocrite. Choke on it, that is how much it bothers me. Lastly, I have heard a lot of rhetoric and demagoguery about the public education system. Take a look at the Phi Delta Kappan, October 1991 issue. You know, they say about business spending $210 billion because they have to retrain people. Thirty-four percent of our work force is unskilled, yet all we spent is 15 percent of $210 billion. Thirty-six percent are in skilled positions, yet all we spent is 20 percent of the $210 billion. Thirty percent of our work force are college graduates, yet business spends 60 percent of their $210 billion on college graduates. So if there is a great need for retraining, why do they not put their money where their mouth is? We will give them that opportunity with the business education partnerships. SAT scores, based on a 1941 established media, and at that time those going to prestigious colleges and the Ivy Leagues had the scores. Today we have more people taking college boards than we have at any other particular time. End result is, yeah, while results are saying we are holding about even, but minorities are on the rise and they have now come into our school systems, they are being educated, they are advancing. We have more graduates than we have had at any other particular time. Maybe not with their class, but they are coming back and getting GEDs, because they know it is significant and important. We do have more engineers, more physicists and more math graduates than we had ten years ago. Something has to be working in the system. I guess this is my last recommendation, and I have said it before and I will say it again. We do not come back here until December the 9th and the 10th. We come back January 7th, then we come back January 21st. That will give each and every one of you plenty of time to get a brown bag, a schedule and go into a school not as a Senator, drop your title, but as a Mr., a Miss or Ms. Get a schedule. Get a homeroom. Get five or six classes to teach a day. Get study halls. Get cafeteria duty. Get bus duty. Mark the papers. Grade the papers. Do the rest, and deal with the kids who are abused, who have drug problems, alcohol problems, who have been out all night long, who have been goofing off doing a lot of other things, then come back and tell me what it is all about. But until you can do that, until you have walked in someone else's shoes, I do not think you have entree to say anything.

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Salvatore, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator SALVATORE. I will, Mr. President.

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, is it the gentleman's intention, according to the way that I read this bill under the Office of Educational Opportunity under this proposal, that the $900 or any portion thereof would be the sole financial responsibility of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and not the local school district?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, that is correct.

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, in addition, there are a number of clauses, one which indicates that there will be up to $900 and/or 90 percent of the tuition paid—I think that is Section 2, subsection (f)—for the 1992-93 school year, but then in subsection (j) it indicates that if there are insufficient funds to award the grants in the total amount for which applications are made, then they will be proportional to the funds available. How do you interpret those two clauses? Do you feel there is a legal obligation for this Legislature to ultimately fund enough money for a $900 voucher? Is that your interpretation or is it when monies are available? If someone brought a lawsuit—

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Gentlemen, if I may interrupt, this is an interrogation and I am going to admonish you again. Please let the questioner finish the question, the responder finish his response, and address all responses through the Chair.

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, to follow up on that, if, let us say a parent of a school-aged child brought a lawsuit, let us say, into Commonwealth Court indicating that this bill entitles them to $900 from the Commonwealth, would you feel that lawsuit would be successful and that we would be required to fund that full amount?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, you did not give me a chance to respond to any of the questions.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. That is the idea, Senator.

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, okay, the first question the gentleman asked, I think, was about the $900 or 90 percent of it. That is what the bill says, if it is available. That is the cap. Then if you go to subsection (j), it is whatever funds are appropriated by this General Assembly. If this General Assembly only appropriates $100 million, then it is $100 million that is divided up by how many children apply for the grant. So it could be any figure. I do not have any magic ball to say what appropriation is going to be forthcoming. So there is no way that anyone can file a lawsuit and say, well, I am entitled to $900, because it says in subsection (j) "In the event that, in fiscal year beginning July 1, 1992, or in any fiscal year thereafter, the funds appropriated for purposes of the program authorized by this section shall be insufficient to award grants in the total amount for which applications are made, the office shall award such grants in amounts which shall reflect the relative proportions of eligible students and available funds."

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, so it is the gentleman's intent as the sponsor of this amendment to this bill that the Legislature in the future would have the discretion to determine what amounts it would appropriate for the funding of this legislation from $300,000, as we are doing now, or any figure in between this figure and $300 million?

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, yes.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I have listened very intently to this debate. In fact, I have not left the floor for any great period of time, which is unusual for me, as fidgety as I am, but I really had a great deal of interest in what was being said. I think if we listened to the gentleman from Chester, Senator Baker, and the gentleman from Lancaster, Senator Armstrong, the gentleman from Centre, Senator Corman and the gentleman from Franklin, Senator Punt, I think if you listened to those four individuals and their remarks in debate, you would have really gotten a clear picture of what this is all about today. I say that, and I do not want to offend anybody, and I hope that I do not misinterpret what they have said, but as I understand their debate, Senator Corman and particularly Senator Punt I thought put forth the case almost perfectly for not voting for this bill. Senator Baker and Senator Armstrong, in their uncertainty about why they were voting for this particular piece of legislation, I think more firmly reenforced Senator Punt's very good opposition and the very strong arguments against not only this legislation philosophically but factually and I think pointed out very clearly how very weak this particular bill is written. Senator Armstrong started his remarks with, not perfect. Senator Baker started his remarks with not perfect, and both of them went through a litany of reasons that I thought both of them were going to be against the bill until they got into a few more paragraphs of their comments, and both of them came to the conclusion that those things that were wrong with this legislation did not make it sufficiently deficient to vote against it. I think, probably to take that to the amendment of the gentleman from Montgomery, Senator Greenleaf, that was offered yesterday, very clearly puts this bill out of reach for most families in Pennsylvania. It does not now, in my estimation, deserve the right to be called a choice bill because you cannot afford to do that if you have your children in a public school and you want them to go to another public school because of what you may perceive as a better education opportunity than the other public school. You cannot do that, particularly if the school that you have chosen to send your children to has a very high tuition, which is basically where the good schools are—the high tuition schools, in a sense. That is not my judgment. That would be in the judgment prospectively of people who would make that choice. So we have taken away from the people of Pennsylvania who do not live in Philadelphia particularly, or the southeastern part of the state, the opportunity to choose to go to another school because, as you see, in the public education coalition's numbers, 55 percent of all the funds that are going to be prospectively appropriated to this legislation come from Philadelphia, Montgomery, Delaware, Bucks, Lancaster and Chester Counties, and 11 percent more come from Allegheny County, so in eight counties you have 67 percent of the funding out of this money. What is even more frightening is how far we have taken that choice away from most Pennsylvanians. We have 67 counties in the state and 57 counties added together just equal what Philadelphia is going to get out of this bill. If you add all the percentages up for 57 counties, starting from the bottom and coming towards the top on the chart provided to us, it takes 57 counties to equal Philadelphia's $73 million or 23.8 percent of the population of the nonpublics that are affected by this bill. Now, I stand before you as someone who has a very long record of supporting education and education funding for Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. Even though I come from a rural area, I had the opportunity early in my career in the House to visit the Philadelphia schools, and I found out that they have particular problems that do not exist anywhere else in this state. I have always been a supporter of helping the public school system in Philadelphia. We talk about the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, being the only person here today who has committed himself to a tax vote for whatever this may cost us, whether we camouflage it in just $300,000, or whatever it ends up being, because I do not think it makes any difference right now. But I put my vote up back in August for a tax increase for public education, but I also put my vote up for a 24 percent increase in nonpublics, and I have been part of increasing over the last ten years the appropriations to nonpublic schools in Pennsylvania by 80 percent. I can say that I participated in that because I did, and I think they were worthy efforts on my part and other Members of the General Assembly. What have we done when we talk about those 57 counties that equal one county and what this bill means to them? Well, according to a research unit at the University of Pittsburgh, we are, in effect, doing this by taking $73 million and placing it in the nonpublic schools in Philadelphia. We are, in effect, saying to the public schools there, so what. So what if you are having problems. So what if out of 24 elementary schools in Pennsylvania that have been identified to have 80 percent of their fifth graders who cannot read, guess where all 24 of those schools are? Eighty percent of fifth graders in 24 elementary schools in Pennsylvania have been identified as not being able to read. All 24 of those schools are in the Philadelphia public school system. Why do we not take that $73 million and put it into the public school system with special reading classes, because I guarantee you that none of the students in those 24 elementary schools in Philadelphia's public school system are going to be able to go to the nonpublics. The $900 is not going to make the difference there. The $900 is going to perpetuate the current population and the current category of income that has the ability to make that choice now. So what does that mean when I hear the arguments here today of everyone lamenting about how bad we are in our public school system, and that this bill, at least, will give some opportunity to bring about some change? Well, in the one place where the marketplace has shown to be is competition because 30 percent of the kids in Philadelphia go to nonpublics, it is not working. It is not working in helping the public school system, and that is what part of this argument is about here today. By doing this and giving people a choice we are going to bring some improvement in the school system? That just is not so. That is not so because we have already determined by the Greenleaf amendment that people who want to stay in the public school system are going to be excluded from this ability to make a choice on economic basis only. They cannot afford to spend $3,000 or $4,000, and I thought Senator Corman pointed that out extremely well.

I also have heard in the effort to make our public school system look bad, not just here but throughout this country, the references to Japan. I want to tell you over the last 50 years, particularly maybe the last 45 years because the war did not end until 1945, Japan has not had to spend one cent on defending their own butts. We spent billions and billions and billions and billions of dollars to defend both Germany and Japan who are both used as examples as to what you can do with education. Tell me what we could do with all those billions of dollars that we would have spent on infrastructure, education, highways, clean water. This country could have been as close to being a perfect society as you could possibly get, but, no, we spent our money making ships and planes and bullets and sending people all over this world protecting Japan and Germany when they did not have to spend a cent. It makes a big difference. It makes a very big difference, and it has taken its toll on this country and it has destroyed a lot of our cities. It has caused us to be fighting among ourselves for a buck, and that is unfortunate and it is unfair, but that is part of what we are talking about. If you bring in the example of the Japanese education system, I think I can bring that into this debate and show you why they have been able to develop where we have not.

I have heard different Members stand up and say, well, my mail came in 72 to 28 and 13 to 10 and 16 to 14, or whatever the case may be. I believe it is important to note that there are other people, besides that narrow constituency that has been lobbied and lobbied and lobbied to get in touch with us, who are opposed to this piece of legislation. It is interesting to note that there is one coalition that ranges from the AFL/CIO to the League of Women Voters, the American Jewish Congress, Pennsylvania Association of School Administrators, Pennsylvania Congress of Parents and Teachers, Pennsylvania School Boards Association and the Pennsylvania Education Association. A very diverse group of people have put into writing their opposition to this particular effort to change very radically how we do our education process here in Pennsylvania. I think the reason why is that the American Association of University Women, in their letter to every Member of the General Assembly, says there is no evidence to prove that tuition vouchers will improve failing schools. The superintendent of the Northern Cambria School District gives an example of what it will mean in his district if he loses 40 students, because not only does this piece of legislation take money and give it to the nonpublics, if, in fact, there are a very large number of public school students who choose, on a very limited basis because in most counties the choice is not going to be there, but if they do choose to do that, the school district that they leave will lose its subsidy for that student, and it will impact on their aid ratio by making that district look richer and drop their aid ratio and they will get less money in the long run, which will reflect itself in local property taxes throughout most of rural Pennsylvania. The most difficult areas of trying to educate students in Pennsylvania today are the inner cities and the rural school districts, and they are nothing alike. They have the same basic problems in trying to educate the young people in those areas. I think it is interesting that the Pennsylvania Council of Churches has taken a very, very strong position against this particular legislation, and I would like to read just some of what they are saying. They say that nonpublic schools are legitimate in a democratic and pluralistic society as are the claims of parents of nonpublic school children to services provided for health and welfare of those students. We do that, and I agree with that. Nevertheless, we continue to oppose outright public subsidization of nonpublic schools. We insist that all nonpublic schools—private, religious and home schools—be held for the same educational standards as public schools. In this bill, that does not happen. Last night the supporters of this particular bill voted over and over and over again to exclude such frivolous things such as certification of teachers, health and safety, I mean little things like asbestos. There was an acceptance of an amendment that would say that schools receiving this $900 from the parents would have to comply with federal and state regulations and laws pertaining to handicapped children. To me, it is impossible for these schools to do that. That one amendment to me makes this bill absolutely impossible and cannot work. For the nonpublic schools in this country, or in this state, to develop a special education system, it would destroy them. It would cause their costs to go out of line so high, and it also would make their education process much different. I am amazed at how easily that amendment became part of this particular effort, and today I am still amazed at how easily that became part of this effort. The political clout of the individuals lobbying for this bill evidently does not reach the political clout of the Retarded Citizens Association and all the groups of people who have specially gifted children and handicapped children. That is the only conclusion I can come to other than I do not know how you could explain that you could possibly have a system of education that was going to accept public dollars and you would say to the handicapped children in this society that we live in, you do not have a chance to come here. We do not want you. So I am not sure yet why that took place, but that amendment makes this almost an impossible situation for it to work, and if it does not, then I guarantee you that the costs that have been quoted here today for nonpublic schools will dramatically increase the next time we have a debate of this type, after we have had some experience with nonpublic schools providing special education courses, classes, special treatment for hearing impairment and all the gamut of things that we provide in the nonpublic sector.

Going further into the letter from the Pennsylvania Council of Churches, "The subsidization of nonpublic schools with public funds would increase the disparity in resources among school districts, a current pressing problem in Pennsylvania, and we also see vouchers working against the vast majority of rural school districts in Pennsylvania." On that point, I want to make sure that everybody who has been standing up saying, oh, this is not going to affect anything, and even though we have $900 in this bill, it really does not mean $900. Well, let me tell you something. If Senate Bill No. 953 passes with $900 per student in it, that is what the law is, and if you do not think the people are taking those types of things seriously, take a look at the court case that has been filed against the State of Pennsylvania on not funding adequately and to the law in rural school districts. That particular court case, if it is decided in favor of the school districts that have filed it, we have a big problem here in the General Assembly because we are going to have to appropriate that money to the level that the courts would say that we have made a commitment to in law. One of the things that prompted us in this past budget to make such dramatic increases in funding to basic education was that court case, and we went a long way in this past budget to satisfy the legal questions that have been brought up in that court case. But I guarantee you, that as sure as I am that somebody will go to court to question the constitution-ality of Senate Bill No. 953, I am positive that if the courts rule it is constitutional and we are then directed to pay whatever the law says, that the very first payment we make less than $900 per student, there will be a challenge in court because the law says $900. It is not going to be any less, and, in fact, if I were able to stand here with some assurances that ten years from now that $900 will still be $900, I would feel a lot better, and I think the public sector of education in this Commonwealth would also feel a lot better, but I can tell you that is not going to happen. Once this dramatic change is made, and this very clear and definite change in the course of funding for public education and nonpublic education is made, there is nothing and nowhere to go but in the direction of increasing that funding, because if you think the stampede through these halls has been difficult to deal with to get a "yes" vote on this particular issue, that stampede will grow and grow and grow because, according to people who have supported this effort, the number of students in that better nonpublic system will grow and grow and grow. We cannot afford to fund one public school system to an adequate level, and I guarantee you that we cannot afford to fund two school systems, nonpublic and public, and all we are going to end up with is two very bad school systems. I do not care whether you dodge the bullet by saying, no, I do not want to put certified teachers in, I do not want health care, I do not want any of the regulations. Absent those factors, you are still going to see a dramatic increase in the cost of educating individual students in these private and nonpublic schools. There is no other direction for them to go but up. Unfortunately, that will not be reflected in a decrease in the cost of education in the publics because those costs are fixed, and if you lose 50 students out of 500 in a school district, that does not alter how many classrooms you need, how many school buses you need. It just does not happen. If they all moved in a block, if you had 250 of those 500 leave, you might be able to make some changes in your system in your own public school system. All this is going to do is cause poor school districts to become even poorer. Education that is not adequate now because of funding levels will get worse. Teachers who are hard-pressed now in school districts with 35 students and 38 students in a class are going to find that to become a more unbearable circumstance. There is just nothing you can do to change that. I have not heard one word here today that says anything different. All I hear is, it is going to be better, but the better part is going to be the nonpublic, and people who have stood up and spoke in favor of this and have decried and have criticized our education system are leading the charge in making it worse, not better. There has not been one effort made to do anything in this legislation that would improve the public school system. The basic premise for which this vote is going to be taken, and I would say this is in most cases, if not all, is an effort to make public dollars available to nonpublic schools. I personally believe that the courts, when asked to do this, are going to say that it is not constitutional. I think it is unfortunate that I am going to have to go home and explain to those people on both sides of this issue that until such time as the courts do decide that issue, no one gets anything. Those of you who are content with the $300,000 fiscal note, you know, I could probably argue many different ways on that, but I think the easiest way to argue at how silly that $300,000 fiscal note is, which I have never seen, it is a phantom fiscal note, but if you read what that $300,000 is supposedly going to be spent for and you would look at the responsibility that is being heaped upon that new, whatever it is going to be in the Department of Education, and I cannot seem to find it to let you know what it really is—"There is hereby established within the Department of Education the Office of Educational Opportunity, which shall administer the program of annual educational opportunity grants authorized under subsection (f)." With $300,000 probably you could hire eight people, nine people. Nine people, and guess who those people are going to be directed by? "Two members shall be appointed by the Governor, three shall be appointed by the President pro tempore of the Senate, two shall be appointed by the Minority Leader of the Senate, three shall be appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives and two shall be appointed by the Minority Leader of the House of Representatives. Each board member shall serve for a term of four years from the date of appointment and shall continue to serve thereafter until a successor is duly appointed." I shudder to think about some of the other boards and commissions that we have seen appointed under this same direction. I shudder to think how many people are going to be appointed to this because they are a partisan Republican or a partisan Democrat. There are no qualifications in here for anybody serving on that board or commission, and that board or commission has the responsibility of operating on a $300,000 budget with eight employees determining when those grants will be paid, determining how they are going to be sent out. They also have the ability to say to every public school in this state, you do not have any spots available. That is absolutely hard to believe. We are talking about one of the major changes in all of government in my 20 years in the General Assembly, and we are going to allow a $300,000 department that will be directed by appointees of the General Assembly leadership to operate a nonpublic school system, and that is basically what that is, because I do not see anything in here which says that they cannot go and make rules and regulations. There is nothing in here that says that, and maybe by the time the courts have decided this issue that board will have plenty of rules and regulations into effect and they will know how to keep people from going here, how to keep people from going there, and I just absolutely cannot believe that of all the things we talked about today, nobody mentioned that. We talked about the $300,000, but if you read what we are putting into law by this vote and who is going to operate that, and it does not say with the Secretary of Education, and it does not say with the Board of Education. It does not say with local school boards. It does not say with the Diocese of Philadelphia. It does not say with the Council of Churches. It does not say anything. It says eight people hired with $300,000. I do not even know whether they will be housed in the Department of Education or not, and there will be appointees, political appointees, made to operate that particular eight-person department—eight people. I will tell you one thing, if we can do this successfully, if we can run this whole program with eight people, I think then it ought to be interesting that we could come back and we could talk about changing everything in government to that point. I do not believe that is possible. I do not believe it will work. I do not believe this will do anything but destroy what we have worked for many, many years in trying to put together, and that is a good public education system, and I believe that Senator Punt put that in the proper perspective when he talked about the number of people who have come through that public education system in this country, in this state, who have done a pretty good job of going on and on in life and accomplishing an awful lot. I do not know that I want to tamper with that system by doing nothing for it and directing an awful lot of money in a very dangerous manner in supporting a nonpublic private system in which we will have no voter input whatsoever, and I say that with a great deal of regret. I really wish that I could support something of this manner. I cannot. I never will, and I have no qualms about the political fallout. I really do not care, to be honest with you. I think it is important that we put those things behind us when we are dealing with these kinds of issues. I do not believe you should do this for political gain, which I believe is part of what this issue is all about, and I do not think you should vote any way on this issue in fear of what that consequence may be. That is what we see here today. I have heard it repeated over and over again, and the only thing I ask you is I appeal to you at the last moment. Use your own best judgment on this. Look at what we are doing and make a good determination and vote "no" on this piece of legislation.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVE CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair notes the presence on the floor of Senator Scanlon and his temporary Capitol leave is cancelled.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Senator BELL. Mr. President, I know now why the House has rules restricting the time for speeches. I do not think there has been any vote changed today by these lengthy speeches. I am sitting back here wondering what the speeches are made for, and I suddenly realized these are preliminary skirmishes to the court battles, the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania and the United States Supreme Court. I think we should close some of the gaps. I heard the remarks by several Senators that one can only get quality education if the teachers are certified. I am amazed at this because public schools after 12 years of certified instruction dare turn their best products over to colleges and universities where the teachers are not certified. I know of no teachers who were certified in the colleges and graduate schools I attended. I do not think they are required in any colleges or universities in the Commonwealth.

Number two. I think it is Article III, two-thirds vote. I wonder how the lambs are—Oh, I am told to keep quiet on that—but I do not know that they dare go through with a two-thirds vote. I cannot even find what departments or agencies most of them are located in. I know that the $150,000 I get for drug control in Chester did not get any two-thirds vote. Oh, yeah, I put in for drug control. There are some real weirdos, from what I have read in the paper. As to what a lamb is, for those who do not know what a lamb is, that is a legislative initiative.

Next, I learned that 50 percent of the money under this bill goes to five or six counties, and I did a rough estimate and that is about where 45 percent of the people live. Next,—I am sorry the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, is not here—you know I have been around a long time. When my party has the Governor, I get blackjacked to vote for taxes. It is going to take about four years, I hear, for this $300 million, $400 million, $200 million appropriation to come up because it is going to take that long for court cases. Who is going to be the Governor four years from now? Oh, you point to me? I suspect I am going to have to vote for taxes four years from now.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, my remarks today on this issue were intended to be rather brief. However, during the course of last evening sitting here and listening to several hours of debate, I could not help but stand here today because I think there are several misconceptions as far as the issue that stands before us and the decision that we are going to have to make today.

One is, Mr. President, unlike some others in this Chamber, I come from a family of teachers and education. My father was a teacher in the public schools of Pennsylvania for 38 years. I am a fully certified, permanently certified teacher in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, along with my wife who currently is an elementary school teacher and teaches first grade, and I could not help last evening but hear someone make a reference that we cannot even teach one and one is two. Well, I can assure you that in her classroom in the Hillcrest Elementary School the youngsters know how much one and one is at the end of an academic year. I also, Mr. President, was a teacher and an administrator in the public schools in Delaware County prior to my coming to the Senate, for over 12 years, and can tell you that we do have a quality education system in this Commonwealth, particularly the public schools of Delaware County. We have many dedicated teachers, public school teachers, in those schools that put in innumerable hours to provide a tremendous program for our youngsters. But, Mr. President, that is not all that education is all about. I think we also have to recognize that we have a great deal of people in this Commonwealth who attend our nonpublic schools, and, Mr. President, I also had the opportunity of representing my district to talk to a number of the parents, a number of the schools, a number of the teachers, a number of the children who attend those schools in my district. I think, Mr. President, that what this issue is all about is really an issue of choice, one that we do have a good basic public education system in Pennsylvania, but I think a system that also can stand the concept of choice and to integrate both those systems. I see where essentially we find that whether we talk about our nonpublic schools or our public schools we find a partnership in those schools. A partnership between the educators, whether they be in the nonpublic or public schools, the administrators caring for the children and students in those schools, most of all the support of the parents of those youngsters who attend those schools. And really, I think when we look at education across this Commonwealth and talk about quality education, I think we have to realize that quality education in this Commonwealth is a partnership of those teachers and administrators and of those parents, but there is one common denominator and that is our school children and youngsters and that is what we are all interested in, in providing the best opportunity for each and every one of them. My view, Mr. President, is that I am going to support this legislation today because I believe that the choice proposition before us enhances that opportunity.

Senator BORTNER. Mr. President, one of the difficulties of speaking at this time of the day, after last evening and all day today, is that it is very difficult to say something that has not already been said, but I will do my best to be concise and to not be overly redundant. There are a number of points I want to address and I feel that I would be remiss if I did not address because I honestly believe—and I have thought about this—that this will be probably the most important vote on the single most important issue that I have probably cast in the seven years that I served even in the House and just in this last year here in the Senate. I am disturbed somewhat by the course this whole debate and discussion on this issue has taken. It has been terribly divisive. It has sometimes been personal, which I think is too bad, but it is a very emotional issue. I am disappointed in the process because as a Member of the Committee on Education we were having hearings last week, I believe, much to the credit of other Members of the committee and particularly the Chairman, the gentleman from Schuylkill, Senator Rhoades, taking up this issue in a very serious fashion, trying to learn what we can about the issues of choice, things that private schools may be doing that we can learn some things from and maybe use to make our public schools better. I have heard a lot of debate that this bill is not perfect and it can be corrected and, yes, it needs more study. I would just hope that we would in the future allow that committee process to work. It is sort of a departure I saw in the House. When I got to the Senate, I thought there would be less of that. We seem to be following that same pattern. But I am also disturbed about the very substance of the issue, and I am surprised, I guess, as I was sitting here listening that we are actually discussing vouchers. We have spent a whole evening on amendments and a whole afternoon debating a bill that provides for vouchers, and we should not kid ourselves and try and call it anything else. I asked myself, how did we get to this point? I think one of the reasons is that this issue has all the right buzz words—choice, freedom of choice, competition. I think the gentleman from Centre, Senator Corman, said it. Who wants to be against these ideas or these concepts? I think it is appealing if you are looking for a quick fix and if you are looking to get credit for doing something. I think it is appealing in that you have a chance to be counted on something that may be put out as a reform issue. But, unfortunately, we do not get to just vote on concepts. We have to vote on bills. We have to vote on legislation and there are many, many problems with this particular legislation. As I said, the buzz words are appealing, at least it is appealing if you do not stop to consider what we really are doing today, and what we are doing is making a dramatic change in public policy. This is a very serious departure from the tradition that we have established in this country and, actually, in this Commonwealth. It is a tradition that says we have a responsibility to provide a quality education for all children. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, at one point raised the question why he never heard anybody raise the issue of a means test for public education. Well, of course not. That is what public education is all about. The tradition for public education is that every child is provided with an equal opportunity to an education, regardless of his station in life, regardless of his income, and, in fact, I think that tradition is so strong that we have actually ingrained it in our Constitution, and the language has been alluded to here before, that the General Assembly shall—and it is very specific—provide for a thorough and efficient system of public education. We are embarking on a course here today that nobody else has tried. People like to use examples or make comparisons to other systems of choice. Nobody else has done anything like this, and I think there is a good reason for that. I think one reason is that people have recognized that there are constitutional problems, whether we want to support the constitutional amendment or not. There are constitutional issues out there that the courts will resolve, as they should, but also because it is bad public policy. This is disastrous for public education. It will be devastating to public education, in my opinion, and we should make no mistake about it, it will hurt public education. Since most of the children who I represent are in public schools, I have to believe that it is not going to help most of the children who not only live in my district but live in this state.

A lot has been made about this whole question of taxes and funding, and I am not going to speak anymore on that, only to say that—and I think this has been somewhat glossed over—when the figure of $340 million is thrown out there, we are not talking about making one change. We are talking about spending $340 million and not one student would exercise a change or would get to make any kind of a choice. And to put that into perspective, this past budget we spent 200 million new dollars, a seven percent increase, sort of a historic increase, and we are talking about $340 million that will not do anything more than is already taking place in our educational system today. There is no reason to believe that under this bill, I do not think there is any evidence to believe that one child, one family, is going to make another choice. I believe that all this legislation will do is help to preserve the status quo, and I think the last thing that we need in education today is the status quo.

One of the issues that I have heard addressed today and also came up at our hearing—I think the gentleman from Lancaster, Senator Armstrong, alluded to this—was there was a woman who testified who has children in Philadelphia in public school and also in private school, and she testified as to what she thought was good about the private schools. He mentioned one of the them, this idea of dress, that in the public schools her children who go there get caught up in this dress and she has to buy these very expensive shoes. I believe she was very sincere when she said that, but I really wonder if it ever occurred to her that she had some choice in that. I mean, we are going to blame the public schools because we as parents do not do enough to impose discipline on our children as to what they wear. We cannot blame the public schools because their children watch too much TV and play too much Nintendo. I hear the issue raised that public schools do not teach values. Well, I thought it was my job to teach my children values. We want to blame the public for what is wrong in society, and I do not think the public schools can be or should be any more than a reflection of society. If we want to know what is wrong with some of the public schools, I think maybe we just need to look in the mirror. I am not here to defend the status quo. All is not well in public education, but I do not think everything is wrong. If I believed everything was wrong, I would not have my own children in public schools.

One of the bad side effects, I believe, of this debate is there has been a lot of trashing of public schools, and I guess the corollary to that, that the public schools and the superintendents and the school boards need to be jacked up. Maybe they do, but I think we have to be honest about it and we should not be hypocritical when we criticize the public schools for the bureaucracy and for the red tape that they have to go through. We deal with amendments that would impose those same things in private schools, and people say, well, that is what is wrong with the public schools. Those things only got into the School Code because those of us here imposed them on the public schools and made them part of the School Code. My biggest concern, I guess, about this debate is that I hope it does not deter the real efforts that we should be making to reform schools. I wish we were spending this time over the last two days and this effort and all of this attention on what we can do to make public schools better. I hope we do not close the book on reform in public schools. I hope we do not think we have solved the problem because we have not, and I hope that we will maybe renew our efforts after the dust is cleared from the debate in this issue, to work very hard at some real reform in public schools, to talk about smaller classes and smaller schools and more accountability for principals and for teachers, giving teachers more control over their classrooms and more autonomy and getting parents involved in education, which is the one thing that I think the private schools definitely have. They are parents who are very interested in education and very interested in their children's education. I hope after the vote is taken here—and we all know how we are going to vote, I doubt that one vote has been changed today—I hope we will renew our efforts to work to improve the quality of education for all children in Pennsylvania.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, the lady from Philadelphia, Senator Jones, has been on Capitol leave for the good part of the afternoon and she had remarks that she wanted to present. What I would like to do on her behalf is to submit the remarks for the record.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, Senator Mellow will proceed to introduce the remarks of Senator Jones onto the record.

(The following prepared statement was made a part of the record at the request of the lady from Philadelphia, Senator JONES:)

Mr. President, I rise to speak against Senate Bill No. 953. The families of the Third Senatorial District need true educational reform more than the families of any other district in this Commonwealth. But the bill before us has nothing to do with educational reform. This bill does not allow parents to choose a school. This bill does not require any private school to change its admissions policies. The private schools in this Commonwealth will still be able to reject special education students. Private schools will still be allowed to discriminate against students with disabilities. This bill does not even require any private school to accept the $900 as payment in full of the school's tuition. Where are the families in my district going to find the money to make up the difference between the actual tuition at a private school, or even at many out-of-district public schools, and the $900 from this bill? We all know the answer. Most will not be able to. Instead, they will see their local public schools lose money as we give a $300 million bailout to another special interest group.

Where will the $300 million come from, Mr. President? We sit idly by while nearly one million Pennsylvanians are homeless or live in inadequate homes. Many of us have tried for the last several years to get a vote on a bill to authorize a $100 million bond for affordable housing. We have never even taken a vote because we are told that we have no money. If we have no money, where will the $300 million come from?

Over one million Pennsylvanians have no health insurance. We know that many will never have access to adequate health care but we do nothing because we do not have the money. But, like a miracle from the heavens, we are going to find $300 million. Do we really believe that the people of Pennsylvania are so stupid that they think there is no price to pay for this bill. They know that their taxes will go up again and again and again.

Mr. President, how many people with AIDS will go untreated because we give $900 to families without any limit placed on their income? Do families making $100,000 really need this money more than babies born with AIDS?

Mr. President, my community is being attacked by nuisance bars. Our children are faced with these community blights every day. How much money will the supporters of this bill send to my community to help us fight these nuisance bars?

Mr. President, do we really believe that we adequately fund our job training programs? We spend a total of $70 million in state and federal funds on job training. It is not enough. We all know that. But we are told we have no more money. How many of our poor children in our rural counties will continue to be denied Head Start programs because we will bail out private schools? How many senior citizens will not find a nursing home bed? How many public schools will be unable to offer computer training? How many pregnant women will not find prenatal care? Mr. President, there are areas in our state where infant mortality nears third world levels. Are we really going to drain $300 million from the state's budget to give $900 to a Main Line doctor and her lawyer husband?

Mr. President, those who vote yes will do nothing more today than guarantee that private school tuition will rise and even more low and moderate income families will be denied admission to private school. Public schools in this country were established to further the principle of universal access to quality education. It is appropriate for us to fund schools that support that principle. We should never support any school that rejects the concept of quality education for all. This bill is for the few who can already afford private school. It will not help the many who cannot.

Mr. President, for over 20 years I have been with and for those who do not have enough. Today is not a battle between the haves and the have nots. I cannot and do not support this bill.

Finally, Mr. President, I must protest the manner in which we are voting on this bill. This bill should have had more time in the Committee on Education. The amendments to this bill should have been reviewed there and not on the floor. Maybe then, we would have a sensible bill.

Mr. President, my office, like every other office in the Senate, has received hundreds of letters and phone calls about this bill. I have no quarrel with those families that want this money. If someone told me that I was going to get a $900 gift, I would want it too. Unfortunately, no one has bothered to admit to the people of Pennsylvania that this $300 million has to come from somewhere. I received a call from a parent, and when I raised the $300 million question, I was told, "Don't worry, you can always find it somewhere." We are responsible for the budget of Pennsylvania. We know better and we should vote like we know better.

Mr. President, this is the wrong bill, and this is the wrong day if we really care about educating our children.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I would request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Fattah and Senator Stewart.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Mellow requests temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Fattah and Senator Stewart. The Chair hears no objection. The leaves will be granted.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I understand Senator Madigan has been called to his office and I would ask a temporary Capitol leave on his behalf.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Loeper requests a temporary Capitol leave for Senator Madigan. The Chair hears no objection. That leave will be granted.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution and were as follows, viz:

BILL OVER IN ORDER

SB 517 — Without objection, the bill was passed over in its order at the request of Senator LOEPER.

BILL ON THIRD CONSIDERATION AND OVER IN ORDER ON FINAL PASSAGE

HB 520 (Pr. No. 2765) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending the act of June 24, 1931 (P. L. 1206, No. 331), known as "The First Class Township Code," further providing for the time for holding organizational meetings and for compensation of township commissioners.

Considered the third time and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I would just like to point out to the Members about House Bill No. 520, and if I am in error, I would like to be corrected. I believe what that bill would do, it would freeze first-class township supervisors at their current rate of compensation even though the population, as certified by the Census Bureau, in those particular townships may have dropped and, therefore, dropping the salary. If that is the case, I would like to request a "no" vote on House Bill No. 520, and if I am not correct in what House Bill No. 520 actually does, and if that is incorrect, then I would hope someone might be able to explain what House Bill No. 520 does. But, if my understanding is that House Bill No. 520 would perpetuate the same salary, even though the law would read that the salary should drop based on a loss of population, then I think it would be important that we would not support this type of legislation.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, essentially, House Bill No. 520 is a bill dealing solely with first-class township commissioners. I believe there is another bill on the Calendar dealing with supervisors. There has been in some municipalities throughout Pennsylvania, according to census figures, a slight decline, in many cases, in the population of some of those first-class municipalities, and the gentleman is correct. This bill would maintain their salary compensation at the level it previously had been.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I think that only goes ahead and perpetuates the things that the people who do not reside in this Body are opposed to, and that is to protect the turf that has already been established by public officials, and, in this particular case, if the population of the area in which the individuals represent has declined and by law the salary should decline, then we should not be part and parcel to maintaining the salary at an artificial level, based on a reduction in population, and I ask for a negative vote. If the Majority Leader would like, I would entertain a motion to put the bill over so that we might have some further clarification on both House Bill No. 520 and the next bill, Senate Bill No. 537.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, if the gentleman has some questions on the bill, I would be pleased to answer them at this time.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, my only question would be that it is inappropriate. We just spent $300 million of taxpayer money that we do not have, and I do not believe we should further complicate it by maintaining a salary for public officials when, in fact, the law would dictate a lower salary based on a drop in population.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, as I had mentioned earlier, I think if the gentleman would look at the decline in the population figures of the first-class townships that are affected and then look at Section 703 on page 3 of the bill, he could determine the change in salary compensation is not as great as he would possibly portray it. I would also point out to the gentleman that, essentially, the bill also says "...that no township shall be required to reduce the salary of a commissioner as the result of a decrease in population." However, that would still make it a local option if they wish to do so.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, we are going to have to go at ease, because, very honestly, with all the noise in here, I cannot hear what the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Loeper, is saying.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Loeper, would you care to recommet. Senator Mellow did not hear you. I will try to turn up the volume here.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I simply indicated that the last lines 24 and 25 of the bill indicate "...that no township shall be required to reduce the salary of a commissioner as a result of a decrease in population." However, that would leave the local option available to the commission.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, still, with that language in there, I am opposed to the bill, and I would ask for a roll call vote and a negative vote on the bill.

And the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I request that House Bill No. 520 go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, House Bill No. 520 will go over in its order on final passage.

BILLS OVER IN ORDER

SB 537, 773 and 865 — Without objection, the bills were passed over in their order at the request of Senator LOEPER.

BILL ON THIRD CONSIDERATION AND FINAL PASSAGE

SB 960 (Pr. No. 1754) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act establishing the Pennsylvania Heritage Affairs Commission and prescribing its powers and duties; and providing for a director of State folklife programs and the Folklife Advisory Council.

BILLS ON THIRD CONSIDERATION AND FINAL PASSAGE

SB 1271 (Pr. No. 1755) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act creating an incentive for small business employers to offer health insurance to employees.

Considered the third time and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, speaking on this issue, after the previous five, or thereabout, hours of debate on what is admittedly an otherwise very important issue, it makes me feel what it must have been like to be the act that followed the Beatles on The Ed Sullivan Show. Nevertheless, Mr. President, I do think it is important that other matters be addressed by this Chamber, and, indeed, today we have the opportunity not only to address the schools of choice issue, and I think everyone was enlivened by the debate of the last number of hours, but we can also talk about health insurance for Pennsylvanians, another issue which, in the last election, there is no question but that it was raised and is on the high interest level of all Pennsylvanians.

In Pennsylvania, Mr. President, there are almost one million of our citizens who lack any kind of basic health care. That is to say, approximately ten million plus Pennsylvanians do have some form of health care, some of it very good, some of it paid for privately, most of it paid for by employers. Those people at the lower end of the economic scale have the various public assistance programs, and senior citizens have various Medicare and Medicaid programs devoted to their needs. But there are, through all this, about one million Pennsylvanians. Over 700,000 of those one million are working poor. That is to say those are individuals who either have their own jobs, the so-called mom and pop stores, where they frequently just eke out a living or they are individuals who work for the so-called mom and pop stores, those traditionally who have 25 or fewer employees. That is the great gap, Mr. President, in the health care providing in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. I have three bills, two of which are on the Calendar today, that address that need, and while they do not have the high profile of many of the other interests from Legislators here today, I do hope and I do believe that they deserve our attention. They will go a long way, if enacted, to help a very important segment of our Pennsylvania economy, almost 400,000 working poor, to have health care. I am going to speak about both of these bills, Mr. President, in tandem, even though technically before us today is Senate Bill No. 1271 and Senate Bill No. 1272 will follow thereafter. Mr. President, I recently read an article in a Time magazine that said that we can expect to pay 30 percent more for medical care next year in the United States. That means higher insurance rates and most likely fewer employers than ever will be offering health care insurance plans. We must, if we can, provide employers with the means to lower their costs and provide basic health care insurance for employees. The legislation as before us today, Mr. President, would make that possible. It would reduce health care insurance costs for business owners by giving them the option of purchasing a no-frills group health insurance plan, and make it easier for small business owners to purchase insurance as part of a pool. The option of purchasing a no-frills health insurance plan would enable small businesses to purchase coverage that is less expensive than the more comprehensive plans and it would still provide people with access to basic health care.

By removing barriers that currently restrict different businesses from banding together in health insurance pools, my second bill, Senate Bill No. 1272, would enable small firms to take advantage of lower administrative costs and spread their risks out over a larger group. Health insurance should not be a luxury, we all agree, but it is becoming evermore a perk enjoyed by fewer and fewer Americans. I urge today favorable consideration to this legislation that is before us and bring basic health care coverage to people who are now left out in the cold because their income levels are too high for Medicaid but too low to purchase their own insurance. I would remind my colleagues that both the state Chamber of Business and Industry and the National Federation of Independent Business endorse both these bills which would apply only to those companies who (a), do not now currently offer any health care provisions for their employees and (b), for those employers for the next three years. In essence, Mr. President, what this is is a trial, one that we hope will result in health insurance for about 400,000 working poor Pennsylvanians.

Senator SCHWARTZ. Mr. President, I will be brief. It has been a long day and I recognize that. I just would like to speak to these two bills. I do, also, share the concern about lack of health insurance coverage for the almost one million Pennsylvanians, and I am supportive of the notion of small businesses particularly being able to band together to purchase health insurance. I think that is an excellent idea. I am fully supportive of Senate Bill No. 1272. I do have some questions about Senate Bill No. 1271 and I will vote for it and I am prepared to do so, but I think the experience in other states that have done this already is, in fact, that it has not opened up the option to many other small employers, that the small businesses have not in droves gone and offered this particular no-frills package. There is also some concern I would have that some employers might choose this and they might, in fact, have been able to choose a better benefits package and it leaves those employees vulnerable, nonetheless, for services that are not covered. So, I am not sure the direction we should be going in is in reducing benefits packages rather than, in fact, making sure people are covered as fully and comprehensively as they can be in the health coverage they have. However, I am willing to see it be given a try in Pennsylvania, but I would ask that we take a careful look at this and we make sure that we see how it works, we see if, in fact, it makes some sense even if it does expand options for and is taken advantage of by small businesses. If not, I believe there will have to be other kinds of incentives and assistance provided to businesses to provide a more comprehensive package of health insurance to their employees. So just with those comments, I will be supportive of both of these bills but with those hesitations in mind.

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, very briefly, I would like to read into the record, somewhat in response to the remarks of the Senator from Philadelphia and somewhat on my own motion, a paragraph or two from a memo dated November 25, 1991, from the National Federation of Independent Business to the Members of the Pennsylvania State Senate addressing Senate Bill No. 1271 and Senate Bill No. 1272 and the NFIB supporting them. They say, in part, in this memo "As you know the cost of health insurance continues to increase at a rapid pace. An average health insurance plan for employees including dependent coverage can now cost approximately $400 per employee per month. For a small business this high cost makes health insurance unattainable. At the same time, employees need health insurance and small businesses want to provide it. A survey conducted by the NFIB Foundation found that most small businesses feel that they cannot attract the best employees unless they offer health insurance. The clear reason many small businesses do not provide health insurance is they cannot afford it." The NFIB memo goes on, Mr. President.

"Senate Bill 1271 takes a significant step in addressing the affordability problem by allowing insurance companies to offer basic coverage health insurance policies at a reduced cost. Pennsylvania law currently mandates that all health insurance policies provide 21 separate coverages. Our state ranks eighth in the country in the number of coverages mandated by law. It should be noted that these coverages must be provided even if the business or individual purchasing the health insurance does not want such coverage."

Mr. President, as usual, we have, in trying to do good, I hope done some good. I have voted for various mandates throughout my ten years, almost 11 years, here in this General Assembly, and I recall specifically voting in favor of and speaking in favor of alcohol and drug treatment as a mandated state benefit. I have come to realize, however, that due to the inordinate costs of some of these exceptional health benefits such as mandibular jaw disorders, certain psychiatric treatment, cosmetic treatment, the use of nurse practitioners and psychoanalysis, those drive up the cost of insurance by 40 percent. Forty percent of the cost of health insurance is due, according to my information, to six of our mandated benefits. What we are keeping in this benefit package, Mr. President, please remember this is entirely optional. No one need take advantage of this plan if they do not want to or if they think they cannot afford it. Basic health care, basic obstetric care, basic inpatient, dental patient, the same kinds of things that are mandated or that are included in basic health coverage throughout this country are included in this legislation. Here again, Mr. President, please remember this is no mandate. We are not demanding. We are not subsidizing. We are only offering to a small portion of Pennsylvania's citizens who have no health care coverage at least the specter that such coverage may be forthcoming.

Senator DAWIDA. Mr. President, for the record, the act that followed The Ed Sullivan Show when the Beatles were there was Topo Gigo, the Italian mouse, and the performance today of the gentleman from Butler, Senator Shaffer, put me in mind of that day many years ago.

To be serious about a very difficult issue, I think we should all support this particular piece of legislation. I would just ask the Members in the Majority to be prepared for the fact that there are only a couple of things we can do in health care that are going to work. We are either going to raise costs by increasing taxes to pay for health care, or we are going to have to come up with other additional ways to deliver health care cheaper and more affordably. As such I think this is an innovation that deserves its time, but it is only one of about 200 or 300 other innovations we are all going to have to work together to do something about, and I applaud Senator Shaffer for his effort on both these bills.

Senator BELL. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Butler, Senator Shaffer.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Butler, Senator Shaffer, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator SHAFFER. I will, Mr. President.

Senator BELL. Mr. President, in view of the fact that you already talked twice, I am going to get the gentleman through the loophole.

I notice a yellow sheet. The Pennsylvania AFL/CIO opposes both these bills. Do you know why they oppose them?

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, no, I do not. In fact, to my knowledge, I have received no correspondence from the AFL/CIO or any other organization in opposition. In fact, I have not seen that document.

Senator BELL. Mr. President, I thank the gentleman. That ends my interrogation.

Based on the yellow sheet which is dated 11-25-91, they oppose both these bills, and since I have been voting against labor all day, I think I will vote with them.

Senator SCHWARTZ. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Butler, Senator Shaffer.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Butler, Senator Shaffer, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator SHAFFER. I will, Mr. President.

Senator SCHWARTZ. Mr. President, just one question, I just want to be clear. Is it possible for a small employer with under 25 employees to switch from present coverage to this lower benefits package? I do not see something that prohibits that in the language of the bill. I know he referred to it. I just wanted to make sure that was the case.

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, if the Senator can wait a few moments I will get a copy of the bill and look through it. I am assured that that, in fact, is the case. I would not be sponsoring this bill otherwise knowing that it would be extremely controversial and could be deleterious to coverage, that if people were allowed to switch from high coverage down to low coverage, that obviously is going to happen and this bill would go nowhere. I can tell the lady now there is no intention on the part of the prime sponsor for that to occur.

Senator SCHWARTZ. Mr. President, I did want to make sure that that was the intent since I could not find language to specify that and to get that on the record. I also would like to just clarify the remarks that were made by the sponsor of this legislation. He used terms that talked about a benefits package. He meant to be, I hope, clear that this is basic, that is, it is more minimal coverage, it is not a more comprehensive package. It does have some of the very basic things that we would need, but it certainly is narrower than it is broader, and I think that is the intention of this legislation.

And the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?

BILL IN PLACE

Senator HART presented to the Chair a bill.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Senator HART asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Senator HART. Mr. President, in the short time that I have served here in the Senate I have been concerned with the difficulty that this Body seems to have in eliminating programs and agencies which have outlived their purpose or the justification. If we are to limit the growth of state government and address the social problems that face us, we must channel our limited state funding toward those initiatives that promise to yield the greatest results for the people of Pennsylvania. Obviously law enforcement must be high on our list. There is a huge and growing demand to increase our commitment to law enforcement because of the growth of illegal drug use in many of our communities and a concurrent rise in drug-related crime. Many Pennsylvanians no longer feel safe in their own homes and communities. To beat this scourge more money must be earmarked to combat crime and drugs at the local level, for comparatively modest investments in law enforcement activities have yielded substantial dividends in community security. Today I am introducing legislation that will ultimately make more funds available for those local drug task forces. These units have proven to be extremely successful at coordinating the drug enforcement activities of state and local prosecutors. I am proposing to add $700,000 to the coffers of the drug task forces which will result in a stepped-up effort to fight drug related crime in our communities and greater assistance to local law enforcement organizations. Now how would we accomplish this goal? I proposed to abolish the Pennsylvania Crime Commission, a $2.5 million state agency whose time has come and gone. Eliminating the Crime Commission will not harm existing law enforcement activities. The facts are clear the commission prosecutes no criminals. It prevents no crimes. It serves no major law enforcement function. Our current State Attorney General and his predecessor have publicly called for elimination of the Crime Commission. Why? Because the Pennsylvania Crime Commission is an anachronism. It has outlived its public usefulness. At the time it was created in 1968 this commission served an important role in gathering information about organized crime activities in the Commonwealth. Since then, however, the law enforcement environment in Pennsylvania has substantially changed. With the adoption of a host of solid law enforcement legislation a much broader array of weapons are available to track and combat organized crime. The primary function of the Crime Commission has, therefore, outlived its usefulness. It issues an annual report on organized crime which frequently contains outdated information. It has little utility as a tool for prosecution. The commission's limited subpoena power has been largely gutted, leaving the organization with virtually no investigative, prosecutorial or grand jury powers. In the last ten years the state has spent over $22 million to underwrite the Crime Commission's activities which arguably have not resulted in one prosecution. My bill is about setting practical priorities for state funding of law enforcement. We in the Legislature need to ask ourselves, do we want to continue channelling our limited resources to a commission without a mission, or will we fire our tax dollars to the front lines in the war on drugs where they can produce tangible benefits for our neighborhoods and our communities? My hope is that this legislation will stimulate a healthy debate in review of our budgetary policies.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The remarks of the lady will be spread upon the record.

SENATE RESOLUTION

RECOGNIZING DECEMBER 1 THROUGH 7, 1991, AS "NATIONAL HOME CARE WEEK"

Senators BORTNER and O'PAKE offered the following resolution (Senate Resolution No. 122), which was read, considered and adopted:

In the Senate, November 26, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Recognizing December 1 through 7, 1991, as "National Home Care Week."

WHEREAS, Health care professionals provide compassionate, cost-effective services with pride and respect; and

WHEREAS, The demand for home health care services continues to increase due to an aging America, increasing accessibility of high technology services in the home setting, changes in health care financing and the needs and preferences of consumers; and

WHEREAS, Home health care allows consumers to be cared for in surroundings that are familiar and comfortable to them and preserves the important American social value of keeping families together; and

WHEREAS, Home care is an effective and economical alternative to institutional health care and maintains the dignity and independence of the recipient; and

WHEREAS, The National Association for Home Care has declared December 1 through 7, 1991, as "National Home Care Week" in celebration of the ways in which health care professionals strive to provide quality health care delivered in homes of Americans; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Senate recognize the week of December 1 through 7, 1991, as "National Home Care Week" in appreciation of the contributions and dedication of home health care providers to the residents of this Commonwealth.

RESOLUTION INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

The PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following Senate Resolution numbered, entitled and referred as follows, which was read by the Clerk:

December 4, 1991

MEMORIALIZING THE UNITED STATES CONGRESS TO REJECT ANY EFFORT TO IMPOSE UNREALISTIC CORPORATE AVERAGE FUEL ECONOMY (CAFE)
STANDARDS ON THE AUTOMOTIVE INDUSTRY

Senators STOUT, BELAN, LaVALLE, STAPLETON and HART offered the following resolution (Senate Resolution No. 123), which was read and referred to the Committee on Intergovernmental Affairs:

In the Senate, December 4, 1991.

A RESOLUTION

Memorializing the United States Congress to reject any effort to impose unrealistic Corporate Average Fuel Economy (CAFE) standards on the automotive industry.

WHEREAS, The automotive industry continues to make steady improvements in the fuel economy of the fleet it offers for sale to the public; and

WHEREAS, Efforts have been made recently in Congress to impose drastic increases in the Corporate Average Fuel Economy (CAFE) standards on the automotive industry for cars and light trucks, calling for a 40% increase to be achieved by 2001; and

WHEREAS, A major increase in the CAFE standards would sharply limit consumers' choice of vehicles, limiting them to choose from minicompact and compact cars; and

WHEREAS, Unrealistic standards would seriously reduce the availability of full-size and mid-size vans and pick-up trucks, the workhorse of many small businesses and farms; and

WHEREAS, It has been estimated that significantly higher CAFE standards could cost as many as 300,000 United States jobs in the next decade; and

WHEREAS, Higher CAFE standards would do little to enhance United States energy security - reducing oil imports by only 1% to 2% by the year 2005; and

WHEREAS, Many national safety experts have opined that a drastic increase in the CAFE standards would increase the risk of fatalities and injuries because of smaller and lighter automobiles creating a vast difference in vehicle sizes operating on the roads and highways; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania memorialize the United States Congress to reject any effort to impose unrealistic Corporate Average Fuel Economy (CAFE) standards on the automotive industry, thus preserving the freedom of the public to exercise its choice of vehicle to meet its needs; and be it further RESOLVED, That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the presiding officers of each house of Congress and to each member of Congress from Pennsylvania.

NAYS—0

A constitutional majority of all the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Secretary of the Senate present said bill to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

SB 517 CALLED UP

SB 517 (Pr. No. 1671) — Without objection, the bill, which previously went over in its order temporarily, was called up, from page 2 of the Third Consideration Calendar, by Senator LOEPER.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

SB 517 (Pr. No. 1671) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending the act of April 9, 1929 (P. L. 177, No. 175), entitled "The Administrative Code of 1929," further providing for domestic violence and rape victims' services.

Considered the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

Senator HART, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A3212:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 2333), page 2, lines 15 and 16, by striking out "court costs and"

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator HART. Mr. President, what the amendment does is remove court costs from the funds that will be paid out of funds collected for domestic violence victims. It has been brought to our attention that that creates a problem and we would like to assist domestic violence victims in paying legal fees.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, we did not agree to the amendment—and maybe we are confused and we are willing to be enlightened—but it appears to us indigent women would now have to pay court costs in these types of cases if this amendment goes in and at the same time there are no income guidelines for having an attorney appointed in these cases, and that is the whole concept of this.

Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the lady from Allegheny, Senator Hart.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Will the lady from Allegheny, Senator Hart, permit herself to be interrogated?

Senator HART. I will, Mr. President.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I am just saying why we oppose it. Perhaps the lady from Allegheny, Senator Hart, can enlighten us differently. If we are wrong we will stand corrected and move it, but we have some very serious concerns.

Senator HART. I would like to address the concerns of the gentleman from Philadelphia regarding women and paying some of their costs when it comes to divorce cases and domestic violence cases. What we are doing in this bill is attempting to assist women who have problems and assist other victims of domestic violence. In no way would this limit or reduce the help that is now given to those victims.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, the way I read the bill, on line 14 where it starts, and this is the area that the lady will be amending, the lady is amending lines 15 and 16. Line 14 reads, "The Department of Public Welfare shall request funds under a specific line item to be restricted solely to court costs and legal representation for victims of domestic violence..." and then it goes on. Why would the Senator wish to remove court costs from that area of assistance?

Senator HART. Mr. President, at present there are other assistances available for indigent women in paying court costs. At this point in time there is less available for legal fees. We have also faced some problems and some opposition to including court costs, therefore, in order to get the help to these victims quickly and allowing maybe for an addition in the future, we chose to amend out court costs.

Senator FUMO. I thank the lady.

I disagree with the interpretation of the lady from Allegheny, Senator Hart, and I feel that if we are going to provide legal representation to those women who need it who are victims of domestic violence and sexual abuse and protection from abuse actions, that we should also include the court costs. In fact, the court costs are less significant in cost than the legal representation, and I would urge a "no" vote on this. If we are going to pay for legal representation, it is very easy that we could pay for court costs in our own court system.

Senator HART. Mr. President, actually the reduction of the court cost allowance is in response to increased demand and limited funding for legal services and that has caused many agencies to restrict the ability to provide emergency representation to victims of domestic violence, which is immediate assistance to victims to get them help for protection from abuse and other types of protections. We felt that was a more immediate need.

AMENDMENT WITHDRAWN

Senator HART. Mr. President, I will withdraw the amendment.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Hart withdraws the amendment to Senate Bill No. 517 and, without objection, Senate Bill No. 517 will go over in its order.

BILL REREFERRED

SB 629 (Pr. No. 1673) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act providing limitations on contracts for dating services, for cancellation of dating service contracts, and for violations of the act.

Upon motion of Senator LOEPER, and agreed to, the bill was rereferred to the Committee on Appropriations.

BILLS ON THIRD CONSIDERATION AMENDED

SB 773 (Pr. No. 1753) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending Title 75 (Vehicles) of the Pennsylvania Consolidated Statutes, providing for confidential registration for judges.

Considered the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

Senator FISHER by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A3294:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1303.1), page 1, line 12, by inserting after "the": justice or

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Fisher.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Fisher, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator FISHER. I will, Mr. President.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, this amendment includes justices in the bill now, and as it is written it provides for judges. Is that every common pleas court judge and this just adds to that list of all the other appellate court judges?

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, on the last Session day two weeks ago we added an amendment to clarify the scope of coverage so that all justices or judges of our appellate courts and all common pleas court judges would be covered by the bill. Unfortunately, that amendment left out the word "justice" on line 13. This amendment merely seeks to make sure that the bill is consistent throughout.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, will this put them into the category to be able to receive a confidential plate?

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, the bill as it is currently, without the amendment, would allow all appellate court and common pleas court judges as well as federal court judges to get the confidential plates. The amendment merely seeks to insert the word "justice" one place where it was missing on line 13.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

Without objection, the bill, as amended, was passed over in its order at the request of Senator FISHER.

SB 865 (Pr. No. 1633) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act regulating credit services; prohibiting certain activities; providing for certain information to be given to buyers, for the contents of contracts and for enforcement; prohibiting advance fees by loan brokers; and providing penalties.

Considered the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

Senator SALVATORE, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A3453:

Amend Sec. 2, page 3, lines 5 through 8, by striking out all of said lines and inserting: (ii) Any bank, bank and trust company, trust company, savings bank, Federal savings and loan association or savings bank located in this Commonwealth, or savings association or any subsidiary or affiliate of such institution, whose deposits are eligible for insurance by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the Savings Association Insurance Fund of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation or the Pennsylvania Savings Association Insurance Corporation.

Amend Sec. 13, page 12, lines 8 and 9, by striking out all of said lines and inserting: (1) This section, and sections 2, 8 and 10(b) of this act shall take effect immediately.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

Without objection, the bill, as amended, was passed over in its order at the request of Senator SALVATORE.

BILLS ON THIRD CONSIDERATION AND FINAL PASSAGE

SB 963 (Pr. No. 1579) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act establishing the State Board of Professional Geologists and prescribing its powers and duties; providing for the licensure of professional geologists; and appropriating funds collected.

Considered the third time and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Cambria, Senator Stewart.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Cambria, Senator Stewart, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator STEWART. I will, Mr. President.

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I wonder if the gentleman would explain to me and my colleagues the need for this particular piece of legislation?

Senator STEWART. Mr. President, this quest for a geologist certification board began a long, long time ago when a number of geologists back in 1981-82 approached a number of us, and I was still in the House at the time, and explained to us how their profession is becoming more and more involved with construction and those types of things. At that time I introduced a bill on their behalf that went through the entire process and at that time Governor Thornburgh vetoed it, indicating a fiscal type problem. So we began the quest again and we talked with a number of the other professions, the engineers, and tried to get a consensus amongst all, including the fiscal people, and came up with this legislation. Since that time has passed it has become more and more clear to many of us who are supporting it that the profession of geology is being called upon more frequently, particularly by this General Assembly, when we talk about the siting of hazardous waste facilities, when we talk about the siting of municipal waste facilities, and now we are talking about the siting and monitoring of low-level nuclear waste facilities. This profession is being called upon more and more to promote and protect public health and safety. It is my feeling and the feeling of those in the profession, not only the geology profession but the engineering profession as well, that a certification board is necessary to make sure these people who we are going to be entrusting with serious responsibilities in the area of public health and safety be regulated in some way, shape or form, and this bill accomplishes that.

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I wonder if the gentleman could advise me of an estimated number of geologists who would be licensed by this particular bill?

Senator STEWART. Mr. President, it is really hard to say because there is no way now and there is no mechanism now in law to count them. There is no certification. There is no registration process. I really cannot give the gentleman a definite answer. We added provisions to grandfather a number of people. We do not know what those numbers are right now, and we do not really know how many will come forward and actually apply for the certification. So the answer is, I cannot give a specific answer, but I would be glad to talk with those involved and get that to the gentleman.

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I thank the gentleman.

I would like to make a few comments. We seemingly, every year, are inundated with groups who wish to be established as professionals and seek licensing by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. We all know licensing does not guarantee competency. We can look at any of the other licensed professions in the Commonwealth and know there are those who are very good at it and those who are incompetent, and licensing does really not that much to bring about competency. I have received no letters from others than those who are involved in this profession of geology who felt there is a need to license another group, a process which will certainly call for the increase in their services and the fees they will be charging and, therefore, become more expensive to wherever we use them, whether it is examining for a need for knowing the underground for solid waste or hazardous waste, or whatever we might be doing. I just do not see any need for this particular legislation. I will be voting "no" and encourage others to consider whether they ought to support this.

Senator STEWART. Mr. President, I, too, am reluctant to promote the establishment of any brand new boards or commissions, but in this case I think we are dealing with a profession that again is being called upon more and more to make real serious decisions. In my discussions, even with the engineers most of these people work with, the engineers are saying to us that they no longer feel comfortable backing up some of the reports they are doing on various projects, and they have indicated they would much rather have a method of certification for these people so they can work with them hand in hand on these projects. I would urge an affirmative vote.

And the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?

BILL ON THIRD CONSIDERATION AMENDED

SB 1209 (Pr. No. 1369) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act providing for the location and operation of family day care in private residential homes.

Considered the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

Senator GREENWOOD, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A3413:

Amend Sec. 7, page 3, lines 2 through 4, by striking out all of said lines and inserting:

Section 7. Municipal ordinance subordination.

This act shall supersede any local ordinances or regulations to the contrary.

Amend Sec. 8, page 3, line 6, by striking out "90" and inserting: 30

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator LINCOLN. I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Will the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator GREENWOOD. I will, Mr. President.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, over the years that I have been in office and early in my career there were efforts made to circumvent the 1968 zoning law, and for a lot of good reasons were very strongly opposed here in the General Assembly whereby group homes of any type could not seem to ever get the kinds of zoning variances that were necessary in a residential district. This strikes me as being the same effort, and before I determine whether I want to very thoroughly debate this and oppose it, I would like to have some idea whether I am correct in my assumption or not. Is this a circumvention of the 1968 zoning regulations, or law, as it would apply to having a group home even for a day care center?

Senator GREENWOOD. Mr. President, the matter before the Senate is the amendment. The amendment is a fairly minor matter. The bill itself establishes that family day care, which is a day care setting, not a group home 24 hours a day, but obviously a day care center for part of a day for six children or fewer, would be considered by all the municipalities in Pennsylvania as a residential use and the bill would, in fact, prohibit municipalities from, in turn, prohibiting that use in a residential area. The amendment itself simply changes that part of the bill which now requires the municipalities, after enactment of this bill, to take the active action, if you will, of amending their codes by simply saying that this supersedes their codes and they do not need to bother to go through the amendatory process with their ordinances.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I thank the gentleman.

Mr. President, I am concerned that the maker of the amendment's explanation was precisely what I had suspected whenever I saw the bill and we talked about it in our caucus earlier today. I want to tell you how very strongly I oppose the amendment because the amendment even is a stronger version of what I thought the bill might be. I want to say to the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, that his explanation was very clear and I do appreciate that and I did have some questions prior to that interrogation. We have gone over this issue regardless of how meritorious the reason for allowing zoning exceptions that are not done by local zoning boards.

We have fought this over homes for mentally retarded. We have fought this over group homes for all different reasons and this amendment is even more onerous, as far as I am concerned, to local government in that we are saying to them we do not even trust you to make the effort to change your laws and your ordinances. We are going to do it for you. In no cases have I had any local government officials coming to me asking me first to allow a group home of any type to become a residential dwelling without going through the local zoning process. This is a very philosophically deep argument that I fought with my best friend, Dave DiCarlo, when we were House Members. We sat beside one another in the 1976 Session and the then-Senator Lou Coppersmith, and it was Senate Bill No. 96, and we debated it for hours. It passed, and David, being much younger than I, got much more excited about the victory and ran back to the back and was celebrating and I got up and asked for a reconsideration of the vote by which it passed. We did that and went over the bill and that was the day we sine die. I waited until Speaker Irvis hit the gavel to officially sine die, and I proceeded to tell him we had reconsidered, and that is how strongly I feel about this. That bill has never passed in all the years since and it would have gone to the Governor for his signature that day. I believe what we are about here today almost was done with no knowledge and I am certain that many people, given the opportunity to take a look at this, are going to remember. Those of us who have been around here from the early '70s through now can remember the very long and lengthy and very emotional debates that took place on this issue. It is not a simple thing like just saying we are going to take your ordinance off the book. You are actually saying to local governments, you are saying to residential districts you are going to accept, whether you want to or not, a day care center to be considered residential without going through the local zoning process and this amendment says that the local governments do not even get to keep their ordinances on the book. We are going to remove them by this action. I say to you it is a time in my own personal career where I have had to determine whether my very strong feelings about retarded children and retarded adults in day care now becoming part of the issue, whether I felt strongly enough about that to overlook what I felt was a basic right of people who live on Y Street, X Street, Z Street, in A municipality, B municipality. That is their responsibility. They live there. Many people put every ounce of money they have, all the sweat and blood that they have into buying a home and building it up, and, in many cases, whether we want to admit it or not, a home of this type will diminish the value of that home that people have worked for many years. For us to say with this amendment that we are not even going to give the local government officials an opportunity to rethink their laws, I think, just makes this even more onerous and a more difficult thing for local governments to assume. I would ask for a "no" vote on the amendment, and I will be prepared to debate the bill on final passage. I would hope every Member would take a look at it, and those who have had to take a position on this issue in the past, try to remember or get into their files and look at what we have debated. It has not been around for a long time. It is the first time I have seen it in ten years, or longer, but it was an issue that we really fought over and it was not a political issue. It was an individual issue that we fought over for many, many days and hours and weeks during the early and mid '70s in this General Assembly. I would ask for a "no" vote on the amendment.

Senator GREENWOOD. Mr. President, very briefly, I think this debate probably would have been more appropriate on final passage of the bill, but I also can understand the gentleman's logic in wanting to do it on the amendment. I think some distinctions need to be made. We are talking about family day care. This bill only affects those situations where you have three, four, five or six children because they are the only ones who have to be registered with the state, so we are talking six children or fewer. We are not talking about around-the-clock residential care. We are talking about day care. I think we need to keep in mind a number of issues. Number one, we have a problem in this Commonwealth with regard to the availability of day care, and we have a problem in this Commonwealth with the availability of after-school programs for children. There are a lot of people who think the large, if you will, commercial day care center is not always the best setting, and, in fact, the best thing we can do for our children, given the realities of two wage-earner households, is to have someone in the neighborhood, whether it is your next door neighbor or whether it is a grandmother or whether it is the child's aunt, or what have you, be able to bring a few children into her home and provide day care. It is really no different whatsoever from a family who has six children, and I do not think we want to get in the position of saying that a family of six children could be zoned out of a neighborhood by a municipality. So, really what you have to make here is a decision, and that decision is whether you think that it is reasonable to allow our municipalities to say no, to deny the right of a family to take in one, two, three, four, five or six children, no more, for the purposes of providing them with a place to be during the day. If you want to frame the argument on the entirety of its philosophy, we might as well have the vote on the amendment.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, it is deja vu for me. If I could have the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, grow eight inches and get lighter hair, I would think it was Dave DiCarlo in his debate in 1976. There is no question about the merits of the argument that Senator Greenwood is making. It just comes down to the bottom line. If that argument were used before a local zoning board, why would they reject it? And what we are doing is usurping the power of local municipalities to deal with controlling their own destiny as far as areas of zoning problems. I believe whenever we break that down and we decide to pass this amendment and pass this bill and it gets through the House and it becomes law, that any time a convenience store wants to locate itself on the corner where you have four to six to eight blocks of very nice real estate that people live in and it would be a great way to be convenient for those people to buy their milk, butter and bread, but it would also diminish the real estate value in that area. I believe the arguments could be used for anything you want, and if you want to destroy the zoning process from the ground up, then let us do that. Let us just do away with the 1968 zoning laws that gave the local municipalities the right to determine their own future, to determine who was going to live in certain areas and take it from there. If you do not agree with that, then you can support the amendment offered by Senator Greenwood and, ultimately, the bill. It is the same argument that was used 18 years ago, 15 years ago, 14 years ago, whenever we did this. You are just doing one thing. You are saying to local government, we have a really good idea that we think you should accept, whether you want to or not, and we do not think you have the ability to determine that this is a good enough issue that you could help make that zoning variance. That is basically what it is all about. You are saying to local government, you do not even have to change your law. We are going to do it for you. I do not believe that is the direction state government should be going, and I would very strongly urge you to vote "no" on this amendment.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

NAYS—1

Brightbill

A constitutional majority of all the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Secretary of the Senate present said bill to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

BILL ON SECOND CONSIDERATION AMENDED

HB 722 (Pr. No. 2593) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending the act of December 10, 1974 (P. L. 852, No. 287), referred to as the "Underground Utility Line Protection Law," defining "Consumer Price Index" and "tolerance zone"; further providing for the duty of users, for duties of designers, for duties of contractors and for the one-call system; and making a repeal.

The bill was considered.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on second consideration?

Senator DAWIDA offered the following amendment No. A3424:

Amend Sec. 5 (Sec. 7.1), page 7, line 11, by inserting after "COMMONWEALTH.": The one-call system shall be located entirely in this Commonwealth.

(2) A bid on any contract for services at the one-call center may not be made by a member of the one-call system or by a subsidiary of the member during membership and for a period of one year after membership is terminated. A bid on any contract for services at the one-call center may not be made by a director, officer or management employee of a member of the one-call system or a subsidiary of the member during service with the member and for a period of one year after service is terminated or, in cases where membership is terminated, during membership and for a period of one year after membership is terminated. This clause shall not apply if the bidder is a sole source supplier.

Amend Sec. 5 (Sec. 7.1), page 7, line 12, by striking out "(2)" and inserting: (3)

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator LOEPER. This amendment would affect House Bill No. 722 which is the one-call underground utility line protection law. Mr. President, this bill, House Bill No. 722, has passed the House. There is a deadline for the one-call system which I believe will expire probably within the next week if this legislation is not passed, and I would request a negative vote on the amendment, Mr. President, and an affirmative vote on the bill.

Senator DAWIDA. Mr. President, there is a deadline on this bill, that is true. However, the prime sponsor of this legislation, Representative VanHorn, agrees with the amendment and if we pass this amendment today, we will have no problems handling it tomorrow because it is not all that controversial. It merely says that we want to keep the one-call system, which is a highly meritorious idea, and we want to keep the office in Pennsylvania and we want to avoid conflicts of interest on the board similar to the law that we use for ourselves. There is a rumor that the possibility exists that the board was considering moving the office for the Pennsylvania one-call out of Pennsylvania, and I do not think that is a good idea and this simple amendment, I think, should be adopted.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I have a request for a temporary Capitol leave for Senator Schwartz.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Lincoln requests a temporary Capitol leave for Senator Schwartz. The Chair hears no objection. The leave will be granted.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, just very briefly, again, on the amendment, that while the amendment may have some merit to it to improve the one-call system, because of the time deadline that we are under in order to have this bill go directly to the Governor for his signature to keep the one-call system in existence, it is because of that that I would ask for a negative vote on the amendment and suggest that the gentleman may want to address this later in a separate bill.

Senator DAWIDA. Mr. President, we do have time and I just want to make it clear to everyone that what you would be voting on if you vote against this, and there is time to deal with this right now, is to keep this business in Pennsylvania. If you vote against the amendment, you run the risk, however slight that might be, of this particular office being moved out of Pennsylvania and I do not think that is appropriate. I think we have the time to deal with it, and the prime sponsor of the bill is in concurrence with what I want to do, so that there is no controversy involved. I think we all agree we ought to keep as many businesses in Pennsylvania as we can, but particularly one that deals with Pennsylvania utilities.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

(During the calling of the roll, the following occurred:)

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I would like to change my vote from "aye" to "no."

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The gentleman will be so recorded.

Senator PETERSON. Mr. President, I would like to change my vote from "aye" to "no."

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The gentleman will be so recorded.

The yeas and nays were required by Senator DAWIDA and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—23

Afflerbach	Fumo	Mellow	Schwartz
Belan	Jones	Musto	Stapleton
Bodack	LaValle	O'Pake	Stewart
Bortner	Lewis	Porterfield	Stout

Less than a majority of the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the negative.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on second consideration?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, To be printed on the Calendar for third consideration.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

The bill was considered.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on second consideration?

Senator LOEPER, on behalf of Senator JUBELIRER, offered the following amendment No. A3081 and, if agreed to, asked that the bill be considered for the second time:

Amend Sec. 12 (Sec. 801), page 25, line 7, by removing the period after "attorney" and inserting: ;

(v) any manager or exclusive general agent operating under any management contract or exclusive general agency agreement entered into prior to December 22, 1965, and therefor not subject to licensing pursuant to section 651 of this act: Provided, however, That any such management contract or exclusive general agency agreement shall subject the manager or exclusive general agent and the insurer to Article XII of the act of May 17, 1921 (P.L.682, No.284), known as "The Insurance Company Law of 1921": And further provided, That any sale, assignment or transfer of any management contract or exclusive general agency agreement, whether said contract or agreement was entered into before or after December 22, 1965, shall make the purchaser, assignee or transferee subject to licensing under this article.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on second consideration, as amended?

PETITIONS AND REMONSTRANCES

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I will be brief. I wanted to read to my colleagues today an essay which appeared in Time Magazine in the December 9, 1991 issue, entitled Essay, by Charles Krauthammer, "Why Americans Hate Politicians."

"Why does America so hate Congress? With everyone from Jerry Brown to George Bush running against Washington, it is obvious that the most powerful political current today is simple disgust with politicians. Elections last month sent incumbents packing in New Jersey, Virginia and Mississippi. In Pennsylvania, Harris Wofford succeeded in making former Attorney General Dick Thornburgh a stand-in for the Washington establishment and won a stunning upset. Term limits suffered a setback in Washington State, but will be back on the ballot next year in at least a dozen states.

"Why this cresting revulsion with politicians? The usual explanations, scandal in Washington, D.C., and recession in the country, simply will not do. We have had far worse scandal in the past. Bounced checks at the House bank do not compare with Watergate. And we have had far worse downturns. Forget the Big One of the '30s. Even the 1981-82 recession was far worse; unemployment then was 10.8%, vs. 6.8% today.

"What is new? In a word: advertising. A decade or two of negative advertising has finally had its cumulative effect. We have really come to believe that politicians are as bad as their opponents have been telling us in a thousand 30-second spots.

"It is easy to discount advertising on the grounds that no one could be so stupid as to believe it. But if advertising didn't work, corporations wouldn't spend billions on it. Can anyone really believe that beer makes men attractive to women? Yet that pitch continues to be made, year in and year out, for the simple reason that it works.

"So does negative political advertising. And it works not just to discredit individual candidates. A generation of negative advertising has poisoned our view of politicians in general. True, negative political advertising is not new. Lyndon Johnson's 'daisy' ad of 1964 said in effect that Barry Goldwater would rain H-bombs on the heads of little blond girls. But that ad ran once. Today it would be a mini-series. What is new about negative advertising today is that there has never been so much and it has never been so good. In the early days politicians would use television to say how right and good and wholesome they were. But when they took to the air to show, convincingly, how venal the other guy was, the perception of the modern politician changed from mere pompous ass to loathsome crook.

"How could it not? Imagine that McDonald's and Burger King had spent 15 years and billions of dollars showing not their own happy burgers but, in close-up, a death-inducing variety dripping with fat that was attributed to the other guy. Imagine Pepsi ads featuring the rotted teeth of kids who imbibed too much Coke. Imagine Delta commercials showing grieving widows saying, 'Don't ever fly Pan Am.'

"It wouldn't take 15 years for public confidence in fast food, soft drinks and air travel to decline. Which is why no industry has been so stupid as to devalue its product in pursuit of market share. Except politics. Finely honed negative campaigning has left a TV generation not just cynical about politics—why, even Frank Capra was cynical about politics—but positively revolted by it.

"Perhaps an extraordinarily productive government might overcome that revulsion. But for a generation, government has been structurally incapable of productivity. In the West divided government is a rare luxury. Yet since Nixon it has become the norm in the U.S. For most of the past 23 years, the White House and the Congress have been controlled by opposing and mutually negating parties.

"The founding Fathers established a government heavily checked and balanced, paralysis being a fine bulwark against tyranny. But now it goes too far. After all, a machine built for gridlock that spends just a few million dollars a year, as did the fledgling republic of the 1700s, is an annoyance. But a machine built for gridlock that consumes $1.4 trillion a year is a scandal. Wastefulness and inactivity suit minimalist Jeffersonian government just fine. But for an all-intrusive welfare state, they are a cause for rage.

"Divided government is characterized by either total inaction or mindless compromise. Consider the compromise on the B-2 bomber that just came out of Congress. Liberals wanted to kill it. Conservatives wanted to build more than the currently allowed 15. The compromise stops production at 15 but allocates hundreds of millions to 'maintain the vendor base.' Translation: Congressmen will keep the pork flowing to contractors in their district, but the country will have nothing to show for it. B-2 parts will be built by the thousands—but the Pentagon will not be allowed to assemble them into planes!

"Faced with such nonsense, multiplied daily, the cry has gone out for term limits. But this is to fight nonsense with nonsense. The case for term limits rests on the proposition that if you scramble eggs, you reduce the cholesterol. Throwing out today's rascals is cathartic but hardly a solution. There is not a shred of evidence that newer, less experienced politicians will make more effective legislators.

"In politics as in any other enterprise, the best prescription for getting a better product is competition. It makes far more sense to level the playing field with campaign spending limits and free television time than simply to bar from competition a whole cohort of candidates.

"Of course, candidates will undoubtedly use any free television time to accuse one another of food poisoning. There's the rub. We can fix and fiddle all we want, but even if we succeed in overcoming gridlock and fielding a higher caliber of legislator, the American voters are likely never to get the message. The message they do get comes from TV advertising. It comes from the politicians themselves. And it insists, with increasing frequency and sophistication, that politicians are crooks and fools. Any wonder we believe it?"

Mr. President, I think that editorial is food for thought for all of us and for everyone in America today, for if we do not do anything about it, our government will cease to operate.

ADJOURNMENT

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I move the Senate do now adjourn until Tuesday, December 10, 1991, at 11:00 a.m., Eastern Standard Time.

GUESTS OF SENATOR DAVID J. BRIGHTBILL PRESENTED TO SENATE

Senator BRIGHTBILL. Mr. President, we have in the gallery today the Youth in Government group from Palmyra High School. For the Members, to refresh their recollection, each year when we come back on a Monday in spring we find a note where the Youth in Government group from the Pennsylvania YMCA has used this Chamber and the House Chamber for purposes of holding a mock Session. This is the Palmyra Youth in Government group. They are accompanied by their president, Jen Bentz, and by their advisor, Donna Brightbill.

The PRESIDENT. Would the guests of Senator Brightbill and the special guest, Donna, please rise so that we can welcome you to the Chamber of the Senate.

(Applause.)

RECESS

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, at this time I would ask for a recess of the Senate for the purpose of a Republican caucus and for Members to have an opportunity to get their lunch and suggest that a caucus begin at 1:00 o'clock p.m. in the Majority caucus room, with an expectation of returning to the floor at approximately 2:30 p.m.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I would echo the same statement of the Majority Leader, that we will have our caucus, go to lunch and meet at 1:00 o'clock p.m. for a caucus in the caucus room at the rear of the Chamber.

The PRESIDENT. For purposes of Republican and Democratic caucuses, for lunch and then the caucuses to begin at approximately 1:00 p.m., the Senate will stand in recess.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed, the Senate will be in order.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

SB 700 — Without objection, the bill was passed over in its order at the request of Senator LOEPER.

BILLS ON THIRD CONSIDERATION AND FINAL PASSAGE

HB 722 (Pr. No. 2593) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending the act of December 10, 1974 (P. L. 852, No. 287), referred to as the "Underground Utility Line Protection Law," defining "Consumer Price Index" and "tolerance zone"; further providing for the duty of users, for duties of designers, for duties of contractors and for the one-call system; and making a repeal.

Considered the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

Senator DAWIDA. Mr. President, you will recall yesterday this Body defeated an amendment that could have easily been put in which would have made sure this particular institution, the one-call, stays in Pennsylvania. For the life of me I do not understand that, but it was suggested by the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Loeper, that I should do this through a regular bill. This is a meritorious bill, and I will be introducing this bill. I have it already in my hands. If any of you want to protect Pennsylvania jobs and keep them in Pennsylvania, whatever your mechanism, whether it be done by the amendment—you did not want to do that yesterday—I suggest you get on this bill very soon. There is a possibility that the Pennsylvania one-call system could be moved out of Pennsylvania. We did not protect against that yesterday, and I think that is an unconscionably dumb thing to do. So we will try to protect that through this legislation, and I urge everyone to support the current bill.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?
It was agreed to.

On the question,
Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—49

Afflerbach	Greenleaf	Loeper	Robbins

SB 773 (Pr. No. 1801) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending Title 75 (Vehicles) of the Pennsylvania Consolidated Statutes, providing for confidential registration for judges.

Considered the third time and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,
Shall the bill pass finally?

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Fisher.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Fisher, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator FISHER. I will, Mr. President.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, one of the problems that could arise with confidential license plates is that law enforcement agencies and the courts would be unable to ascertain who the vehicle was owned by if that person got parking tickets. Is there any way the gentleman can make us feel secure that this will not be a way in which the people who are going to have these confidential plates will be able to duck parking tickets?

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, yes. Currently in regulations in Volume 67, Chapter 59.1, specifically in 59.5, there are specific regulations which provide for information concerning the identity of any confidential registrant to law enforcement agencies. So it is my intention as the prime sponsor of this legislation that certainly these regulations would apply because our bill is amending the same section of the Motor Vehicle Code which these regulations are promulgated under so that any new confidential registrants would, of course, have their plates be made available to law enforcement agencies.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, does the gentleman also agree that the courts, in the process of handling these parking tickets or summons which get sent out, would also have a right to know the identity so that they can enforce their parking ticket summons on them?

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, very clearly, either the police officer issuing the summons or the court which was involved in processing of the summons, it is my intention that they should have access to the name of the confidential registrant, not only under this bill but under current law, I would hope.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I thank the gentleman.

In light of that interrogation, I would ask for an affirmative vote on our side.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Belan, Senator Jones, Senator Williams and Senator Andrezeski.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Mellow requests temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Belan, Senator Jones, Senator Williams and Senator Andrezeski. The Chair hears no objection. The leaves will be granted.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration, as amended?

Senator FISHER, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A3019:

Amend Title, page 1, line 20, by inserting after "acts,"": extending the act to counties of the second class;

Amend Title, page 1, line 25, by removing the period after "limitations" and inserting: ; and making repeals.

Amend Bill, page 1, by inserting between lines 27 and 28:

Section 1. The title and section 103 of the act of July 31, 1968 (P.L.805, No.247), known as the Pennsylvania Municipalities Planning Code, reenacted and amended December 21, 1988 (P.L.1329, No.170), are amended to read:

AN ACT

To empower cities of the second class A, and third class, boroughs, incorporated towns, townships of the first and second classes including those within a county of the second class and counties of the second class [A] through eighth classes, individually or jointly, to plan their development and to govern the same by zoning, subdivision and land development ordinances, planned residential development and other ordinances, by official maps, by the reservation of certain land for future public purpose and by the acquisition of such land; to promote the conservation of energy through the use of planning practices and to promote the effective utilization of renewable energy sources; providing for the establishment of planning commissions, planning departments, planning committees and zoning hearing boards, authorizing them to charge fees, make inspections and hold public hearings; providing for mediation; providing for transferable development rights; providing for appropriations, appeals to courts and penalties for violations; and repealing acts and parts of acts.

Section 103. Construction of Act.—The provisions of this act shall not affect any act done, contract executed or liability incurred prior to its effective date, or affect any suit or prosecution pending or to be instituted, to enforce any right, rule, regulation, or ordinance or to punish any offense against any such repealed laws or against any ordinance enacted under them. All ordinances, resolutions, regulations and rules made pursuant to any act of Assembly repealed by this act shall continue in effect as if such act had not been repealed, except as the provisions are inconsistent herewith. The provisions of other acts relating to municipalities other than cities of the first and second class [and counties of the second class] are made a part of this act and this code shall be construed to give effect to all provisions of other acts not specifically repealed.

Section 2. The definitions of "county," "governing body" and "municipality" in section 107 of the act are amended to read:

Section 107. Definitions.—(a) The following words and phrases when used in this act shall have the meanings given to them in this subsection unless the context clearly indicates otherwise:

***

"County," any county of the second class [A] through eighth [classes] class.

***

"Governing body," the council in cities, boroughs and incorporated towns; the board of commissioners in townships of the first class; the board of supervisors in townships of the second class; the board of commissioners in counties of the second class [A] through eighth classes or as may be designated in the law providing for the form of government.

***

"Municipality," any city of the second class A or third class, borough, incorporated town, township of the first or second class, county of the second class [A] through eighth class, home rule municipality, or any similar general purpose unit of government which shall hereafter be created by the General Assembly.

Considered the third time and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Senator SCANLON. Mr. President, I would like to offer some remarks that I would ask to be spread upon the record.

The PRESIDENT. Without objection, we will enter these remarks into the record at this point.

(The following prepared statement was made a part of the record at the request of the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator SCANLON:)

Senate Bill No. 1086 amends the Insurance Department Act. This legislation is designed to improve and modernize Pennsylvania's insurance laws regulating the financial solvency of insurance companies.

This legislation improves weaknesses in the current system of financial solvency. The improvements are intended to assure adequate disclosure, accountability and limits on the authority of some insurers and third parties necessary to safeguard the solvency of the insurer.

This legislation will improve the departments efficiency and responsiveness in the conduct of on-site examinations of the financial conditions of domestic companies. By providing the department with more flexibility in determining which companies to examine means the new law will result in more meaningful examinations.

Senate Bill No. 1086 would permit the Insurance Commissioner to take prompt action when a foreign insurer, not domiciled in Pennsylvania, is believed to be in hazardous financial condition.

This legislation would clarify the department's jurisdiction and authority to regulate the financial solvency of unlicensed or unauthorized insurers operating under the guise of a federal exemption.

This legislation improves the problems many insurance company managers have when delegating management authority to third parties who have conflicting interest or inadequate abilities. Senate Bill No. 1086 accomplishes this by providing for the licensing and regulation of managing general agents. Managing general agents are different from insurance agents in that they not only have the authority to underwrite and price risks but also to adjust and pay claims. In addition, Senate Bill No. 1086 also minimizes reinsurance abuse by providing for the licensing and regulation of persons who arrange and manage reinsurance transactions on behalf of insurers. This bill establishes record keeping and reporting requirements for reinsurance intermediaries and insurers.

Mr. President, this legislation is good for Pennsylvania's insurance regulatory environment. It is good for Pennsylvania's insurance companies and good for Pennsylvania's consumers.

This bill has been reported out of the Committee on Banking and Insurance and the Committee on Appropriations unanimously. I ask for a positive vote.

And the question recurring,

A constitutional majority of all the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Secretary of the Senate present said bill to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

SB 1087 (Pr. No. 1806) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending the act of May 17, 1921 (P. L. 682, No. 284), entitled "The Insurance Company Law of 1921," further providing for the purposes of incorporation, for capital stock, surplus, investments and other financial requirements, for reinsurance and for certain annual reports; providing for business transacted with broker-controlled property and casualty insurers and for insurance holding companies; implementing the Risk Retention Amendments of 1986; providing for regulation by the Insurance Department of risk retention groups and purchasing groups doing business in this Commonwealth; further providing for the taxation of risk retention groups and purchasing groups; providing for the regulation of the placing of insurance on risks located in this Commonwealth with insurers not licensed to transact insurance business in this Commonwealth; providing for a life and health insurance guaranty association; providing for certain fees and for civil and criminal penalties; and making repeals.

Considered the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

Senator SCANLON. Mr. President, with respect to Senate Bill No. 1087, I offer the following statement which I would ask to be spread upon the record.

The PRESIDENT. Once again, without objection, Senator Scanlon's remarks will be entered into the record at this point.

(The following prepared statement was made a part of the record at the request of the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator SCANLON:)

Senate Bill No. 1087 amends the Insurance Company Law of 1921. This bill is the companion bill of Senate Bill No. 1086 and this bill also improves the financial solvency of insurance company regulation by the Insurance Department.

This legislation improves the system by imposing standards on transactions arranged between an insurer and a parent company where the transactions may have a detrimental impact of the insurers' insolvency. Senate Bill No. 1087 would establish the department's authority to disapprove certain proposed transactions such as loans, investments or other transactions which the department determines may have an adverse impact on the interest of the insurers' policyholders.

This legislation clarifies existing law by establishing penalties for late annual filings and the penalties for filing false statements are also increased.

Mr. President, I ask for a positive vote on Senate Bill No. 1087. This legislation is essential for the Insurance Department to regulate the solvency of financial companies, and it is imperative for the companies to utilize the requirements of this legislation to their benefit which is to ensure the financial health of each of the insurance companies in this state.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

It was agreed to.

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Senator CORMAN. Mr. President, I would like to offer a letter from Ronald Chronister, Deputy Insurance Commissioner, Regulation of Companies, to Mr. Larry Kauffman, who is with the Pennsylvania Association of Mutual Insurance Companies, to be spread upon the record. It is an explanation of this particular piece of legislation as determined by the Insurance Department.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair thanks the gentleman, and without objection his remarks will be entered into the record at this point.

(The following letter was made a part of the record at the request of the gentleman from Centre, Senator CORMAN:)

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA
INSURANCE DEPARTMENT
Strawberry Square
Harrisburg, Pa. 17120

November 20, 1991

Mr. Larry E. Kauffman
PA Association of Mutual Insurance Companies
4th and Chestnut Streets
Harrisburg, PA 17101

Dear Mr. Kauffman:

You have expressed the concern of PAMIC member companies that it be clear that the amendments to Section 320 of the Insurance Company Law proposed in Senate Bill 1087, Printer's No. 1357 retain the Commissioner's discretion to establish by regulation requirements for filing audited financial statements that differ from the instructions for completion of the NAIC annual statement blank. We have reviewed the proposed legislation with legal counsel and are of the opinion that nothing in the proposed amendments would diminish the Commissioner's discretion to promulgate a regulation or issue a statement of policy allowing filing variations from the NAIC instructions for completion of the blank.

The purpose of the amendment to Section 320 is to make clear that the standard requirement is for insurers to file financial statements in the form adopted by the NAIC. The last clause of Section 320(a), however, has not been changed. This clause grants the Commissioner discretion to make changes in the standard required form. The Commissioner has this discretion in Section 320 currently, and the amended language does not alter this in any way.

I believe that the above addresses your concerns on the statutory amendment.

If you have any additional questions on this issue, please contact me as soon as possible.

Sincerely yours,
RONALD E. CHRONISTER
 Deputy Insurance
 Commissioner
 Regulation of Companies

BILL ON THIRD CONSIDERATION, DEFEATED ON FINAL PASSAGE

SB 1209 (Pr. No. 1803) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act providing for the location and operation of family day care in private residential homes.

Considered the third time and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, I would just like to call the Members' attention to this bill. It is a longstanding legislative controversy. In my 19 years in the General Assembly this issue has been one that we have fought over many times. I am not going to get too heavy in this debate on it. It is simply, notwithstanding the merits of having a home for day care in a residential area, the issue is do you want to take away from local governing bodies the right to zone and the right to plan and the right to decide what they want in their municipalities? The bill very clearly violates that procedure, takes away from local municipalities the right to make a decision, in this case rendering null and void every one of their laws and regulations and ordinances in this particular issue. It is an issue that has been fought with a great deal more controversy and a great deal more fervor in the General Assembly in the past. I have no idea why this is not generating some type of enthusiasm on either one side or the other, but I will tell you the merits of every issue that we have discussed and these efforts that were made over the years had nothing to do with it. The merits, whether it is for a day care center or not, are not the issue. The issue is we are going to take away from local zoning boards, local municipalities, the right to decide this issue and I would ask for a negative vote on this bill.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Greenwood, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator GREENWOOD. I will, Mr. President.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, clearly the bill is easily understood. My concern is that I am not aware of any particular problem that would necessitate a piece of state legislation that would, in effect, override every municipality's local zoning code in this regard. Could the gentleman enlighten me as to why there seems to be a need for this legislation?

Senator GREENWOOD. Mr. President, there is, in fact, a problem. It is a serious problem. It is a problem we have experienced in my district numerous times and probably has been experienced in Senator Afflerbach's district and it may not have come to his attention. What happens is when a municipality has a zoning ordinance that treats what amounts to baby-sitting four to six children in a home—it is often the neighbors' children themselves, a woman or a couple in a neighborhood who usually it is a woman—decides that what she will do for a little extra money is to take in some kids, either during the day while the other parents are at work or maybe after school or before school, kindergarten for instance, we are talking about no more than six children here—in those municipalities that treat this as a business, the day care provider frequently has to go before a zoning hearing board and pay as much as $500, $775, I have a case here, just to be heard to get a permit. That is a very undue burden and it happens across the state. We have editorials from York, editorials from my county of Bucks in support of this after having recognized this as a problem. All we are saying here, and it is very different than the gentleman from Fayette, Senator Lincoln, characterizes it, this is not comparable to taking a building in a residential neighborhood and turning it into something else, turning it into some other kind of facility. We are talking about a home where a family lives and that family chooses to provide a service to its neighbors in the form of baby-sitting, and we think that should be automatic. It is a service that is dearly needed across the Commonwealth and since there are problems of people either being told they cannot do this at all or that if they do they have to spend $500, $700 in order to get a permit, we think that is a barrier that should not exist.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, I am not aware of any specific municipalities that have created such a barrier. Could the gentleman be more specific and enlighten me with respect to the names of particular townships or boroughs that have created the kind of barrier he has described?

Senator GREENWOOD. Mr. President, in my county and from the top of my head, I do have notes to that effect, but I know we have had complaints from Newtown Township. We have had complaints from Doylestown Borough, to name a couple.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, an additional question I would have is this. As I understand the family day care home, an individual would be permitted to care for up to six children who are not related to the individual operating that child care service. Is that correct?

Senator GREENWOOD. Mr. President, the gentleman is correct. The state regulations require that if you have more than six children unrelated to the homeowners, then you have to go into a different kind of a permitting process. Family day care is defined as six or fewer.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, I also understand that the individual operating the child care service may have any number of his or her own children mixed in with the group of up to six. Is that also correct?

Senator GREENWOOD. Mr. President, that is as correct as the statement that the next door neighbor may have eight children of their own.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, the gentleman has hit upon precisely my point. What we are talking about here really is an unknown set of numbers for which we would override local zoning. The individual, as I understand it, operating this particular service may in fact have five children of his or her own and take in an additional six children for a total of 11 children in that household. Under this legislation that would be permitted irrespective of any zoning. Is that correct?

Senator GREENWOOD. Mr. President, that is correct, and it is also correct that if a family moves in with seven children they do not need a permit to do that because for the most part we do not think a handful of children is something that destroys a neighborhood. Many of us think that children add to the quality of life in a neighborhood.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, additionally, as I understand the bill, this would, in fact, permit any number of homes or operators within a given city block or within a given radius of any distance whatsoever to operate irrespective of any local control. Is that also correct?

Senator GREENWOOD. Mr. President, that is essentially correct. I suppose there would be some limitation with regard to the total number of available children in the community.

Senator AFFLERBACH. Mr. President, I thank the gentleman.

As the gentleman, Senator Greenwood, knows as well as many Members of this Chamber, I have been a very strong advocate for improving our child care facilities and child development facilities in the Commonwealth. I do, however, have some degree of concern about whether we want to, as a state Body, override all our local control over how many such homes may operate and to what degree the number of children may be included in those homes. The number of six children who are unrelated seems to put a cap on it, but, in fact, as we just discussed, it does not really tell us whether we would have a home operating with six children, eight children or 12 children, nor does it determine how many such operations may occur in a given community. For that reason I would think that at this particular time I would ask for a negative vote on the bill. I think the proposition has some merit, but I would like to further investigate this before we unilaterally override local decision-making power in this regard.

Senator BELL. Mr. President, I am going to vote "no" on this bill. I think that borough councilmen of the boroughs in my district, the township supervisors of the townships of the second class, the commissioners of the townships of the first class and the councilmen of the cities of Chester County which I represent are better equipped to run their own local government than big brother in Harrisburg.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, very briefly, the sponsor of the bill very adequately described what we do agree upon, but I have a serious problem with his statement that what I was saying was not quite so. There is no question that the family who wants to have their own children and wants to bring in up to six other children that are not related, I can see that being a very meritorious effort, and they may want to do that with their property. The basic difference in his approach to this and mine is that the next door neighbor who bought their home with the full intention of raising their ten, twelve or two children, whatever they had, did that because there was not a group home beside them, and they had local zoning laws to protect them from that type of activity taking place, whether it be for this very meritorious issue or some other item of concern socially throughout this Commonwealth. I think it is a disgrace to say that we have to do this for local government. Twenty-five or thirty years ago when we asked local governments to take on the responsibility of zoning, we asked them to do it. We have not really funded their efforts very well. If you think you want to get in the middle, as a Legislator, of every zoning proposition that comes before the local zoning board, vote for this bill. There are two ways of doing this. You can go in and ask for the area to be zoned differently or you can request a variance to do that. That should be determined by local government officials, and we should not be doing these types of things from a state level. I would ask you to consider that before you vote and to vote "no" on this bill.

Senator GREENWOOD. Mr. President, very briefly, in rebuttal to a couple of the statements, I think we need to keep in mind in this discussion here about our duty to protect the sovereign rights of municipal governments to limit the uses of property. We need to remember there is a unit out there that we have a greater obligation to and that unit is the family and the homeowner. This is not about what the state does to the local governments. This is about whether we think it is fair to have a community say to one of its families, you may not baby-sit six children in your home. I think that is what we need to protect. We are not talking about anything that would in any way depreciate property values, and I think it is very important to understand we are talking about children here, not junk cars. I would ask for a positive vote, Mr. President.

Considered the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

Senator STEWART, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A3605:

Amend Sec. 1, page 1, line 11, by inserting after "convey": to Cambria County

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

Without objection, the bill, as amended, was passed over in its order at the request of Senator STEWART.

BILL ON THIRD CONSIDERATION AND FINAL PASSAGE

HB 1827 (Pr. No. 2722) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending the act of October 27, 1955 (P. L. 744, No. 222), known as the "Pennsylvania Human Relations Act," further providing for the right to freedom from discrimination in employment, housing and public accommodations; prohibiting discrimination because of familial status; amending and adding certain definitions; further providing for the powers and duties of the Pennsylvania Human Relations Commission; further providing for enforcement, remedies and penalties; making editorial changes; and continuing the Pennsylvania Human Relations Commission pursuant to the Sunset Act.

HB 2000 (Pr. No. 2511) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act reestablishing the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission.

Considered the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

FUMO AMENDMENT I

Senator FUMO, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A3474:

Amend Title, page 1, line 1, by striking out all of said line and inserting:

Amending Title 66 (Public Utilities) of the Pennsylvania Consolidated Statutes, further providing for the appointment of members; and reestablishing the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission.

Amend Bill, page 1, by inserting between lines 3 and 4:

Section 1. Section 301(a) of Title 66 of the Pennsylvania Consolidated Statutes is amended to read:

§ 301. Establishment, members, qualifications and chairman.

(a) Appointment and terms of members.—The Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission, established by the act of March 31, 1937 (P.L.160, No.43), as an independent administrative commission, is hereby continued as such. Prior to the third Tuesday in January of 1987, the commission shall consist of five members who shall be appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of two-thirds of all the members of the Senate, for a term of ten years, provided that the term of any member appointed to fill a vacancy existing on the effective date of this amendatory act and prior to the third Tuesday in January of 1987 shall expire on March 31, 1987. Vacancies on April 1, 1987, shall be filled as follows: One term shall be until April 1, 1990, and one term shall be until April 1, 1992. Confirmation of such gubernatorial appointees shall be by a majority of the members of the Senate. If other vacancies occur between the effective date of this amendatory act and April 1, 1987, the term shall be the balance of the term to which the predecessor had been appointed. Vacancies after April 1, 1987, shall be filled for the balance of the term to which a predecessor had been appointed. Thereafter, the commission shall consist of five members appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of [a majority] two-thirds of all of the members of the Senate, for a term of five years. The Governor may submit the nomination to the Senate within 60 days prior to the expiration of the term or the effective date of the resignation of the member whom the nominee would replace and shall submit that nomination no later than 90 days after the expiration of the term or the effective date of the resignation. A commissioner may continue to hold office for a period not to exceed six months beyond the expiration of his term if his successor has not been duly appointed and qualified according to law.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, there is not a lot of debate on this. This would require that the Senate confirm appointees to the PUC by a two-thirds vote, something which we had in here for very many years and then, in what I believe some degree of haste, did away with and something which we have begun to restore in other agencies, and I would like to see it restored to the PUC.

Senator BELL. Mr. President, I have in my hand Act 114 of 1986. This is the PUC Act. This Act says that the PUC shall continue, and so forth, "...until December 31, 1991, when it shall terminate and go out of existence unless reestablished..." I am not going to read the whole thing. I am going to say this. If any amendment goes into this bill and this bill does not pass both houses and get signed by the Governor by December 31st, there is no PUC in Pennsylvania.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I am quite surprised and somewhat depressed that my good colleague, the gentleman from Delaware, Senator Bell, would yield the Senatorial influence to the dictates of the House. Mr. President, I think it is our prerogative, our duty and our responsibility to amend this bill in whatever fashion we deem necessary, and I think we can then only hope that the House will concur in those amendments. There is something to be said for leverage at the last minute and, perhaps, this is the time to do this. I doubt very much that if, in fact, that is the case that the House of Representatives would refuse to agree to such an innocuous amendment for such an important agency.

Senator BELL. Mr. President, this is my second speech and that was the gentleman from Philadelphia's second speech and this is my last speech on this subject. I do not know what the House is going to do. I do not even know if they are going to be around after tomorrow, but if this bill does not pass—and I am not talking about Sunset, I am talking about the Act of 1986—and the PUC is not reestablished by December 31, 1991, there is no PUC.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

FUMO AMENDMENT II

Senator FUMO, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A3627:

Amend Title, page 1, line 1, by striking out all of said line and inserting:

Amending Title 66 (Public Utilities) of the Pennsylvania Consolidated Statutes, increasing salaries of the chairman and members; and reestablishing the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission.

(e) Compensation.—Each of the commissioners shall receive an annual salary of $55,000, except the chairman, who shall receive an annual salary of $57,500. For the year 1992, each commissioner shall receive a salary which is adjusted to reflect the 1987 COLA, as determined by the Social Security Administration, being added to the then annual base salary; the 1988 COLA being added to the first adjustment to salary; the 1989 COLA being added to the second adjustment to salary; the 1990 COLA being added to the third adjustment to salary; the 1991 COLA being added to the fourth adjustment to salary; and the 1992 COLA being added to the fifth adjustment to salary. In 1993 and each year thereafter, each commissioner shall receive an annual salary which is adjusted to reflect the COLA for that salary year as determined by the Social Security Administration. For purposes of this subsection, the term "COLA" means cost-of-living adjustment.

4 Amend Sec. 4, page 2, line 5, by striking out "4" and inserting:

On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, this amendment would allow for a cost of living adjustment to be given to the salaries of the PUC Commissioners, retroactive to 1987. There have been many requests that we increase their salaries, and rather than do that, Mr. President, the only fair thing to do, I think, is to at least allow them to have the same amount of buying power that they had back in 1986 for this. The COLA that we used in the bill is the same COLA that the Social Security Administration uses. It is less than the CPI that is commonly calculated. Mr. President, we are in an area when we talk about PUC Commissioners that needs a great deal of expertise. These individuals are precluded from having outside income of an earned nature. Quite frankly, Mr. President, I think, given the responsibilities of the agency and the awesome power that it has, it is about time that we at least pay them what we paid them back in 1986. Mr. President, I would ask for an affirmative vote on the amendment.

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator FUMO. I will, Mr. President.

Senator SALVATORE. Mr. President, what will be the cost to the taxpayers of Pennsylvania if his amendment goes in?

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, there would be no cost to the taxpayers of Pennsylvania, because the money generated by the agency would pay this and the people who pay that are the utility companies and people of that nature who have to pay fees into the PUC.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator FUMO. I will, Mr. President.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, as I read the amendment, it indicates that the base salary of a commissioner is $55,000 per year and the chairman's salary would be $57,500. I was wondering if the gentleman could tell us what those two salaries would be at the end of the adjustment period with the COLAs that would be added onto those figures?

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I am advised that it would be approximately $70,000 in 1992.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, then is it correct that the salary would be $70,000 at the end of 1992 and prospectively from that point forth that that salary would increase on a yearly basis based on a COLA as outlined in the amendment?

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, yes, but specifically not just a COLA or a CPI calculation but the specific COLA that Congress would grant the Social Security recipients, which is far less usually than the CPI adjustment.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

A voice vote having been taken, the question was determined in the negative, and the amendment was defeated.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration, as amended?

GREENLEAF AMENDMENT

Senator GREENLEAF, by unanimous consent, offered the following amendment No. A3332:

Amend Title, page 1, line 1, by striking out all of said line and inserting:

Amending Title 66 (Public Utilities) of the Pennsylvania Consolidated Statutes, providing for construction of sewer or water system extensions; and reestablishing the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission.

Amend Bill, page 1, by inserting between lines 3 and 4:

Section 1. Title 66 of the Pennsylvania Consolidated Statutes is amended by adding a section to read:

§ 1512. Construction of sewer or water system extensions.

(a) General rule.—Except as otherwise provided in subsection (g), where a sewer or water system is to be extended at the expense of the owner or owners of properties or where the public utility otherwise would construct the line extensions or connections, (other than water meter installation), the property owner or owners shall have the right to construct the extension or install the connection himself or themselves or through a subcontractor approved by the public utility, which approval shall not be unreasonably withheld.

(b) Estimate of costs.—Cost estimate proposals provided by a contractor or subcontractor shall include the cost of any extension of service lines from the main to the curb and the cost of all materials.

(c) Construction specifications.—Construction by the property owner or owners shall be in accordance with an agreement for the extension of the public utility's system and in compliance with plans and specifications provided by or approved by the public utility and shall be undertaken only pursuant to the regulations, requirements, rules and standards of the public utility, applicable to the construction, which rules and regulations shall be consistent with this section. The construction shall be subject to inspection by an inspector employed by the public utility authorized to approve the construction.

(d) Limitation on construction.—A public utility may require the construction of only such facilities as may be necessary to supply service to the property owner or owners.

(e) Deposit for costs.—

(1) When a main is to be extended at the expense of the owner or owners of properties, the property owner or owners may be required to deposit with the public utility, in advance of construction, the public utility's estimated reasonable and necessary cost of reviewing plans, construction inspections and administrative, legal and engineering services.

(2) The public utility may prescribe that the property owner or owners shall reimburse the public utility for reasonable and necessary expenses incurred as a result of the extension.

(f) Dedication of facilities.—Upon completion of construction, the property owner or owners shall dedicate, and the public utility shall accept, the extension of the public utility's system, provided dedication of facilities and the installation complies with the plans, specifications, regulations of the public utility and the agreement. A public utility may provide in its regulations for facilities constructed at the expense of the owner or owners of properties which the public utility will accept as a part of its system.

(g) Construction by public utility.—The public utility shall have the right, at its option, to perform the construction itself only if the public utility provides the extension or customer facilities at a lower cost and within the same time table specified or proposed by the property owner or owners or his or their approved subcontractor.

Amend Sec. 4, page 2, line 5, by striking out "4" and inserting:

5

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, this amendment would allow an owner to construct a sewer or water system extension himself or through a public utility approved subcontractor. Construction of the extension by the owner must be in accordance with the specifications approved by the public utility. Presently public utilities have complete control over sewer and water extensions and the owners were precluded by some utilities from construction of these lines. I might say the vast majority of the utilities allow such a procedure, although, unfortunately, some do not. It has been shown that the owner can put the line in for much less than the public utility following the same specifications and regulations of the utility, and these additional costs only increase the cost of the construction if it is a new house or the cost of a new home or new construction. Act 203 of 1990, which I believe was the impact fees that we had adopted previously, set a precedent in that municipal authorities are now mandated to allow the owner the first right of refusal to put in water and sewer extensions. The owner, if he decides to construct the line, must follow specifications of the authority. Of course, the authority's inspectors have oversight over the line construction and the owner can put the lines in for much less and, in fact, in some cases as much as 30 percent less than what the utility can put it in for. This amendment merely brings conformity between municipal authorities and publicly regulated utilities regarding the construction of water and sewer lines and it primarily gives the owners of properties, whether they be individual homeowners or individuals who have businesses—and I have received communications from both types or from people who are involved in the construction industry—the right to put specified lines in at a lower cost, which, of course, will relate to savings to those individuals affected by this legislation. I request an affirmative vote.

Senator PORTERFIELD. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Montgomery, Senator Greenleaf.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Montgomery, Senator Greenleaf, permit himself to be interrogated?

Senator GREENLEAF. I will, Mr. President.

Senator PORTERFIELD. Mr. President, I would ask the maker of the amendment if, indeed, this would permit any property owner to proceed with the installation of water and sewer lines on his or her property?

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, the answer is yes.

Senator PORTERFIELD. Mr. President, my concern is that of a safety factor. There are many companies, both water and sewage, that acquire information as to the location of gas lines and other items that are under the ground that are to be known and located, and we find that they go out and they hit water lines or they hit gas lines, and if they hit a gas line in particular, this could be of great danger to the public. I think that an individual being permitted to install a water line or sewer line could be a safety hazard to the immediate public and, although they would be in compliance according to the bill, I have great concern that individuals would be able to do this without any further regulation. So, therefore, I would ask for a negative vote on the amendment until such time as that amendment could be dressed up to include the statements that I have mentioned.

Senator GREENLEAF. Mr. President, I certainly respect the gentleman's concerns, but I do not think it is a real concern right now. We have construction going on by a variety of people who deal with excavation and they have to go through a procedure determining where those lines are. It is done every day in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania very extensively. This would not add any greater risk or danger than what the present construction procedures are now.

Senator LEWIS. Mr. President, I rise to join the gentleman from Montgomery in urging an affirmative vote on this proposal. The gentleman from Westmoreland may recall that the measure with which we dealt just yesterday provided for the continuation of a program called the one-call system which is, in fact, designed to try to provide comprehensive one-stop information about subjects of potential hazards. That information is available to everyone. We should also note that although the landowner would be permitted to engage in this type of construction practice, I am not aware that it would in any way abrogate the obligation to obtain permits from municipalities. It is my understanding that part of that permitting process is one which requires the information to be obtained with respect to the siting of potential hazards. I think that the gentleman's concern, in fact, reflects a legitimate issue, but I think the safeguards which are currently in place for contractors will continue to apply even for the landowners and that there is no reason for the gentleman from Westmoreland to be concerned that there would be any more likelihood for an accident than might otherwise occur at this time. So for those reasons I would urge an affirmative vote on this amendment.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

A voice vote having been taken, the question was determined in the affirmative, and the amendment was adopted.

The PRESIDENT. Without objection, House Bill 2000, as amended, will go over in its order.

FINAL PASSAGE

SB 332 (Pr. No. 1273) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending Title 42 (Judiciary and Judicial Procedure) of the Pennsylvania Consolidated Statutes, further providing for imposition of the death sentence.

Considered the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third consideration?

MOTION TO REVERT TO PRIOR PRINTER'S NUMBER

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, at this time I would like to move that we revert to prior Printer's No. 342 on Senate Bill No. 332.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Fumo moves that we revert to prior Printer's No. 342 on Senate Bill No. 332.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, if we do that, we will be bringing the bill back to its original form which says that we will not execute children in Pennsylvania under the age of 18.

Mr. President, the bill as amended puts the minimum age for a crime that was committed at 16. I think in our state today we have an obligation not to electrocute children below the age of 18 who have committed crimes. I recognize heinous crimes can be committed by children under that age, but that does not mean that we out of our frustration and anger should agree to electrocute them or kill them by lethal injection. Mr. President, the leading statement of international law on the death penalty is found in the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, adopted by the General Assembly of the United Nations on December 16, 1966. The covenant which came into force on March 23, 1976 provides in paragraph 5 of Article VI, "The sentence of death shall not be imposed for crimes committed by persons below the age of 18." Mr. President, there is no western civilized nation that executes children under the age of 18. In Pennsylvania's entire history we have killed 1,000 people through the death penalty but only five of these can be confirmed as being under the age of 18, and the last person that we electrocuted for a crime under that age was in 1916. Mr. President, the American Bar Association, generally a conservative body, has adopted a resolution opposing the imposition of capital punishment upon any person who is less than the age of 18 years at the time of the commission of the offense. The National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges has adopted a similar resolution, and the American Law Institute's Model Penal Code includes 18 years of age as the minimum age for the imposition of death. The drafters of this section forcefully and simply stated that, "Civilized societies will not tolerate the spectacle of the electrocution of children."

Mr. President, how can we in Pennsylvania ignore the rest of the civilized world, ignore the pleas of Amnesty International and agree to kill children under the age of 18 years? Mr. President, we get very upset when our hostages are held in Lebanon and we are very supportive of Amnesty International when they fight for the human rights of individuals in other countries, but yet here in America and here in Pennsylvania, in particular, we ignore the pleas of the same people who we support when they go into other countries and want to amend this bill to allow for executions under the age of 18.

Mr. President, society is judged by how it treats its least fortunate not its most fortunate, and I submit to you although the crimes can be heinous and although they can evoke a lot of anger and frustration, I still submit to you that we as a society must have gone wrong somewhere if a child under this age commits such a crime, and if we have, who are we to say that we should now kill that child for the wrongs that it did as a result of the failure of society? I know people do not like to hear that, Mr. President, but that is, in fact, the truth. We have not done this since the beginning of the 19th Century. There is no reason to go out of here with a black mark on this Chamber and state as a policy that we should electrocute children under the age of 18 years.

Senator LEWIS. Mr. President, I rise to oppose the motion to revert. I think it is important to understand the context in which this bill comes before us. At the present time Pennsylvania has no law with respect to a minimum age for the imposition of the death penalty. What that means simply is that, at least pursuant to the statutes of this Commonwealth, any person, regardless of his or her age, could be subject to the death penalty—an 8 year old, a 12 year old, an 18 year old—and what the intention of this statute is is to establish, by law, a guideline for the use by our courts. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, pointed out that in the 20th century no child under the age of 18 has been subject to the death penalty in Pennsylvania. Keep in mind that that conclusion was achieved at a time when there were no guidelines. Why could that happen? For the simple reason, as I believe that most of the Members here know, that in consideration of the application of the death penalty, age is a mitigating factor which has to be considered by the courts, and so without any prohibition on a minimum age, the courts in this century have not seen one situation in which they believe that someone under the age of 18 appropriately deserved to be executed. I think it is important to note that. Why then the difference between age 16 and age 18? First of all, we will be establishing a minimum below which no court can even consider going. But the age 16 is in this bill as the result of an amendment which I offered and was adopted by the Committee on Judiciary, and I did so because age 16 is now the age which is the target that has been established by the United States Supreme Court when it has reviewed matters brought before it from other states in the United States. There is nothing magical about it, but I think it reflects a commonsense and practical approach. First of all, all of us here know that 16 and 17 year olds are capable of committing some of the most brutal, heinous, physical acts imaginable, and it is conceivable that it might be appropriate under the death penalty statutes as they are now in force in this Commonwealth to apply that punishment to one of these individuals. By adopting the age of 16 rather than 18, we leave open that possibility, albeit an unlikely one, that it would occur, it nevertheless is present in the event a suitable set of circumstances presents themselves. Secondly, however, as I have already stated, age is a mitigating factor, and even though we adopt a 16 year old standard, the likelihood of anyone under 18 being subjected to that penalty is inconsistent with the history and the experience in this Commonwealth. And so I think the fear, the risk that the gentleman seems to imply about everyone under the age of 18 who is subject to a first degree homicide prosecution being made the subject of a death penalty is inconsistent with the experience in the Commonwealth. For all of those reasons, I would urge a "no" vote on the motion to revert and the supporting of the 16 year old age standard as is now to be found in the bill.

Senator WILLIAMS. Mr. President, the debate on the issue raised by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Fumo, causes me some trouble. I strongly support the notions that he put on the floor as basic and fundamental to a humane society, a society that carves out for its children a definite place within the framework of law and order. I think Senator Fumo cited most poignantly, much better than I ever could, all of the basic wisdom and decisions that go into prescribing that standard. I do not think it could be stated any better for an orderly society. The debate thereafter by the opposition gave several reasons, none of which provided any certainty in law—morality, human history, or the like—but opinions that vary back and forth which, frankly, said that although it never happened, it did not happen because there was a standard. Well, I would beg to say that whatever existed then bore a very close relationship to standards provided by us through history, through conventions and through the standards of behavior that have been well considered. I also add that anything that would have contravened those standards might very well have been struck down if we were going to kill kids because it would be arbitrary and discriminatory, because when it comes to capital punishment it is for a reason that people are angry, and the reason we have a standard to separate kids is because they are going to get angry when people do things like murder and, therefore, we define ahead of time a reasons standard. So, if we follow the remarks of the last speaker and do not provide any standard, that, too, would probably have fallen by the courts. So, he picks age 16. Well, we all know no particular number is correct or incorrect because children who become adults all have certain experiences. Some of those experiences result in sick behavior—Ted Bundy, Manson, Jimmy Jones, any number of famous people. In the books of modern day, fact is far more fantastic than fiction, and I do not know what causes all of that behavior, but we have classic examples of people who were children whose impulses were impacted upon because of something early in life. We also have a number of lesser known children who do not fall into those categories who do, for one reason or another, get into this category. I, for one, am extremely concerned about the agitated and aggressive behavior, the violent behavior, increasingly violent behavior of children in this country, in all of its cities and especially in some of its poorer sections. Yet, I am not here to say it is our fault as a society. I do believe, however, that we do more to talk about let us punish somebody rather than to find out what is going on and what is going wrong. Having said all of that, all that is to say is that it is an imperfect equation. Violent behavior is escalating in good families and bad families. It is no question if someone was, whatever that child's age may be, that a rich family would say, well, the poor guy had psychological problems. It happens all the time. If you are in a poor family, you do not have psychological problems. Well, that does not solve it either. It is only to say that when we are arbitrary we all fall beyond the mark. When we are reasoned sometimes we are happy and sometimes we are sad.

I rise to strongly support the motion as a humane thing, as an issue that provides for us as a society, a standard that can weather not just political rhetoric by politicians, present company excepted, who practice the fine art of appealing to the emotions without delivering anything substantial in the way of crime prevention, law enforcement improvement or any of those things to people who suffer in this country with the continual uninterrupted assault of crime on their bodies and their families. So our responsibilities many times are avoided because we are apt to use the spoken word to suffocate and blind the real issues of responsibility of protection from crime and criminals, and this instance on the floor tonight is just one example. The history of man will say to us, children are in a category, otherwise, why do we not send them to war? Children are in a category whether they do something bad or good. Children are excepted by definition. How dare us to dillydally with 16 or 17 year olds, or what may be, because someone offered an amendment in a committee. I do not know what the answer is, but the offerer has said, more or less, let us do a standard that we can relate to history and say here it is. You go to war at 18 years of age, so you are an adult. I think it is a very measured thing we need to do here tonight and not just to play to the whims of our fancy. It is an issue far deeper than the behavior we are talking about. The crime on our streets is beyond our standard, so far beyond our standard we have not been able to stop it. Does that mean that we participate in that? We give up and say okay, we are going to kill kids, and let us say that we made a mistake and we killed a kid, not that killing anybody would be a mistake, but the front page of the Inquirer for the last two days will indicate how men and women, adults, in this case, put a lady in jail for six or seven years for killing someone that she probably did not kill. How would we feel if we killed an 11 year old? So I merely suggest that the issue raised by the Senator from Philadelphia is far, far deeper than the surface of the conversation we have tonight, and whatever we do will have impact not just on what becomes law but what becomes our habit, what becomes our habit to erode the standards that have been with us for yea decades and decades by wise men and women. So, I sit down now in order to support the motion.

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I rise to oppose the motion to revert. There is no question, not just from this debate, but from any examination of a question as serious as the death penalty, that this is indeed one of the most serious issues that we can face in the Senate of Pennsylvania. Pennsylvania's death penalty statute has been on the books since 1978. As of today, 1991, not one person has yet been executed under that statute. There have been various reasons why that is the case, but I think it is important to recognize that there is a significant time delay between the commission of an offense, between the conviction and certainly between the disposition of all appeals and the ultimate execution of any defendant under this act. What Senate Bill No. 332 in its current form proposes to do is to establish a minimum age, and that minimum age in the current bill is, I believe, an appropriate minimum age. The bill says that a sentence of death shall not be imposed upon persons who were less than 16 years of age at the time of the commission of the offense. The commission of the offense is an important distinction, not at the time of execution. Pennsylvania's current law contains no minimum age. However, Pennsylvania's current law, a law that was drafted some 12 years or more ago after the United States Supreme Court constitutionally gave their approval to a death penalty statute from the state of Georgia, Pennsylvania's current statute, which has also been approved by the United States Supreme Court, contains within it what is known as aggravating and mitigating circumstances. If you had a child who was age 17 at the time of the commission of an offense, and that is really what we are talking about here, a person who gunned down a law enforcement officer, a person who maybe killed someone in the course of kidnapping, that person under the bill in its current form would be eligible to be considered for the death penalty by a jury, if convicted, for a contract killing, for many other heinous crimes. But what we also have in Pennsylvania's death penalty statute is a section called mitigating circumstances, and one of the mitigating circumstances in the death penalty statute is the question, the age of the defendant at the time of the crime. The adoption of this bill in its current form will allow that mitigating circumstance to continue. A jury who is faced with a case, a tough case, of someone between the ages of 16 and 18 at the time of the commission of crime most certainly will have the opportunity to weigh that age at the time when they determine a sentence, but I also think, Mr. President, that the jury should have the opportunity to weigh those aggravating circumstances to determine whether or not that particular case may be a case in which the death penalty should be imposed. Mr. President, I submit that the motion to revert would provide too much inflexibility for jurors and juries throughout the Commonwealth in future years. But I do submit that the establishment of a minimum age as is called for in Senate Bill No. 332, in its current printer's number, is an appropriate level below which we should say to the juries and we should say to the judges that the sentence will be life imprisonment. Without the passage of this bill in its current form, we will not have that minimum age. But I think to approve the motion to revert, we will be raising the age, which will be the minimum age, too high. I know this is a tough question, but I hope that the Members of the Senate will really examine that we are really talking about age at commission of the crime and we really have a death penalty statute in place that works. It has worked, and I think we should let it continue to work with the one amendment which would be included in the bill. I urge the adoption of the bill in its current form and the rejection of the motion to revert.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I have listened to the arguments of the gentleman from Allegheny, Senator Fisher, and the gentleman from Bucks, Senator Lewis, and I have to bring a few things back to reality here. Yes, there is no current law on this issue and no guidelines in Pennsylvania. However, as has been said, the Supreme Court of the United States has already said that under age 16 is unconstitutional because of cruel and inhumane punishment. They have not said that it is good public policy to electrocute children between the ages of 16 and 18. Mr. President, with the bill in its current amended form, there is no need for the bill. You cannot constitutionally kill a child below that age anyway. The bill originally in its form had a purpose, and that purpose was to bring Pennsylvania in line with the rest of western civilization. That is what it was for. If we wanted 16 years old, you could sit back and let the Supreme Court rule. If you wanted below that, you could not have it anyway. Mr. President, I do not think too much inflexibility is the issue. The issue here today is whether or not we as a governmental Body in Pennsylvania are going to live up to the standards set by western civilization. That is what the issue is. I doubt very much if a jury would convict someone below the age of 18 and let them be electrocuted or suffer death by lethal injection. The issue here is what does Pennsylvania stand for? What is the public policy of this Commonwealth? What do our people stand for? Are we or are we not ready to take our place among the rest of the nations of western civilization? That is what the true debate is tonight. Or do we want to go around and brag that we are tough on crime and we are going to get those little kids? Kill them, put them out of their misery, because probably we as a society failed those children when they were born. That is all this bill is going to say, that we agree with the rest of western civilization. As amended, Mr. President, we do not need this bill. The Supreme Court of the United States will not let you execute anyone under the age of 16.

Mr. President, I urge an affirmative vote on the motion so that we can hold our heads proud in the world.

Senator HELFRICK. Mr. President, as the prime sponsor of this bill, I would urge all my colleagues to revert to the prior printer's number. I think it is the only human thing to do tonight. I think all of us have been associated with children up to the ages of 18, and certainly we have seen many children under the age of 18 and up to the age of 18 who certainly cannot be responsible for some of the actions they have done, particularly due to the upbringing they had. Probably most of us here were fortunate that our parents raised us to be responsible, respectable citizens. Not every child has that privilege. Once again, I would urge all my colleagues to revert to the prior printer's number.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, Senator Afflerbach has been called to his office and I request temporary Capitol leave for him and also for Senator Lewis who has been called to his office.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, Senator Hopper, Senator Shumaker and Senator Armstrong have been called to their offices, and I request temporary Capitol leaves on their behalf.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Mellow requests temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Afflerbach and Senator Lewis. Senator Loeper requests temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Hopper, Senator Shumaker and Senator Armstrong. Is there an objection to the leave requests? The Chair hears none. The leaves will be granted.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVE CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT. Senator Jones is back with us. Her leave will be cancelled.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the motion?

(During the calling of the roll, the following occurred:)

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, I would like to change my vote from "aye" to "no."

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman will be so recorded.

Senator HART. Mr. President, I would like to change my vote from "aye" to "no."

The PRESIDENT. The lady will be so recorded.

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, I would like to change my vote from "no" to "aye."

BILL ON CONCURRENCE IN HOUSE AMENDMENTS, AS AMENDED, TO SENATE AMENDMENTS

SENATE CONCURS IN HOUSE AMENDMENTS, AS AMENDED, TO SENATE AMENDMENTS

HB 1321 (Pr. No. 2877) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending the act of March 4, 1971 (P. L. 6, No. 2), known as the "Tax Reform Code of 1971," further providing for the scope of sales and use tax, for the definitions of "claimant," "dependent," "household income," "total household income" and "poverty income" and for special tax provisions for poverty, for transfers to the Hazardous Sites Cleanup Fund and the Public Transportation Assistance Fund; further providing for reports by mutual thrift institutions; and making repeals.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I move the Senate do concur in the amendments made by the House, as amended, to Senate amendments to House Bill No. 1321.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, on the bill that is before us, I think it is imperative we note for the record that the measure before us this evening is a much awaited victory for Pennsylvania taxpayers and really to uncloud some of the confusion that has been in place since the inception of some of the taxes that were passed and the interpretation of them since August and, more recently, October. I think the bill we have before us, Mr. President, is going to try and clear up some of those misinterpretations by the Revenue Department, and particularly we found the citizens of Pennsylvania have been up in arms as far as the application and interpretation of some of these service taxes. I think, Mr. President, it is important that this is a bipartisan effort. Both Republicans and Democrats have been fighting to restore fairness in many of these areas. I think, also, it is important to note that as far back as October 18th, I sent a detailed letter to the Secretary of Revenue explaining to her where, in our view, the department had gone well beyond the legislative intent and boundaries of reason. I think it is important to note that most of the items we asked that they reconsider at that time are now part of the bill that is before us for our consideration this evening. Unfortunately, Mr. President, we had to take this route, and as far as the public was concerned, state policies seemed guided only by the desire to squeeze out as many tax dollars as possible and, therefore, I think all of us had no other option other than to pursue a legislative remedy. In addition, Mr. President, to the many corrections that will restore traditional sales tax exemptions, this measure tonight also relieves the concerns of our senior citizens by restoring the poverty exemption as it was prior to August 4th. This restoration of the poverty exemption will affect some 600,000 senior citizens across this state who will benefit by the language that we should pass here this evening. I think, Mr. President, another most important point is that we are able to accomplish these changes without basically knocking any hole in state services or creating any sort of budget problem as far as a revenue reduction. The only reservation about this legislation is that many of us would have liked to see more items included in the list. It does address many of the outstanding difficulties. Regrettably, I think we are all aware there are others that remain out there. It seems to me, Mr. President, the other message to the people of Pennsylvania is that this action this evening of tax repeal, in my view, is only the beginning. Our work does not end with repealing these items that have proved most offensive to taxpayers and consumers alike. In the months ahead, I think it is important that we all must work together to address the larger question of working our way back toward a better climate for jobs and business and commerce in our state and to try and ease the tax burden that is currently being felt by our citizens. By moving today, Mr. President, to restore some reason and fairness to state taxes, we signal our commitment to do far more in the months ahead for the benefit of all Pennsylvania taxpayers, and I would ask every Member of this Chamber to cast an affirmative vote.

Senator FUMO. Mr. President, I, too, support the motion to concur. However, I think we have to really recognize what has occurred here. In the drafting of the tax bill in the new taxation areas, those areas of service taxes with which we have not had previous experience, there were mistakes in draftsmanship in the statutory language. Mr. President, as a result of some of those mistakes and some of those areas where we left some areas open for interpretation, there were problems. There is no doubt about it that when we did warehousing, we never intended to tax safe deposit boxes. When we did the rectification of the so-called pizza tax, we never intended to tax baked goods in bakeries. Mr. President, when we did the tax on premium cable services, we clearly meant to tax just those cable services and channels that were coming in. We never intended to tax additional outlets or service calls or maintenance calls. Mr. President, in some of the drafting that was done at very late hours by four of the best staffs that this Capitol has ever seen, and they are the staffs of the Committees on Appropriations of the Senate and House Majority and Minority, there were mistakes, and the people who worked on this worked around the clock. We all remember those days, although maybe some of us have forgotten. Mr. President, the effort today is to rectify those mistakes and also to take away those other areas in which there is room for legitimate concern. Mr. President, it is also important to note this bill and the contents thereof have been agreed to by the administration and the Governor himself, with the exception of some of the amendments that went in today. There are other areas that we are changing clearly what we did before and that is the special poverty exemption formula. When we enacted it originally we did not know it would have gotten the criticism that it did, and, fortunately, we have the money and the wherewithal to change that. In fact, Mr. President, on that particular issue we get an increase in revenue. When we did warehousing, Mr. President, perhaps we made a mistake and we should not have taxed warehouses and distribution centers. That was not the Department of Revenue's fault or the administration's fault. It was our intent to do that, although some Members feel it was not their intent, and there may well be some areas of confusion because the bill was quite long, the hour was quite late and the areas were quite complicated. Mr. President, yes, this is a first step in attempting to straighten out the language problems and the differences that we had and the mistakes that we made. I, too, would like to see the day that we can repeal a number of these taxes, particularly those taxes on business that are causing our industries and our corporations and our businesses to lack a certain competitive advantage that they need. But, Mr. President, the economic times are hard. We are in the grips of probably the greatest recession, if not a depression, that we have seen in this country. We are certainly very close to the 1981-82 recession which was the worst since the Great Depression, and, in fact, recent surveys and polls have shown us that consumer confidence, which is the key to any economic recovery, right now is lower than it was in the 1981-82 recession. We look at a Christmas season ahead in which we hear every day that economists and those people that predict these type of things telling us this year's Christmas season will not be as good as last year's Christmas season, and that will have a direct impact on our sales tax revenues. But, Mr. President, the equation is very clear. There is nothing complicated about it. Pennsylvania must have a balanced budget. We do not have the luxury that they have in Washington, to be able to increase and have huge deficits which, ultimately, wreak havoc on the economy. And, Mr. President, if we want to spend the money we spent in the last budget, we must, in fact, pay for that money. I do not want to dwell deeply into the debate of that night, but everyone I talked to said, basically, make sure you cut the budget but do not cut my program. Mr. President, that is the kind of thing that leads to the kind of budget that we had. It was not easy here to get the votes we had to get, and it was particularly even more difficult in the House of Representatives, where I sometimes have to honestly admit reason escapes reality over there.

Mr. President, before us today is a way to straighten this out and we all agree we should straighten it out, but we should not kid the public into thinking there is a large tax break on the horizon for Pennsylvania citizens, because there is not, until and if the economy turns around. Mr. President, I said in here the other day when I voted with the majority on the educational choice bill, that too was not a free lunch, and I was the only one who said I was prepared to vote for the taxes to fund that. We had a majority of people in here vote to spend that $300 million, and if our revenue estimates and actual cash collected does not yield the money to pay for that, if it becomes law, we will be back here passing taxes to pay it. It is unfair and really very frustrating to tell the public there is a tax break on the horizon when just the other day we spent another $300 million. All that aside, Mr. President, I urge an affirmative vote.

And the question recurring,
Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution and were as follows, viz:

LEGISLATIVE JOURNAL

WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 11, 1991

SESSION OF 1991 175TH OF THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY

No. 76

SENATE

WEDNESDAY, December 11, 1991.

The Senate met at 11:00 a.m., Eastern Standard Time.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore (Robert C. Jubelirer) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The following prayer was offered by the Secretary of the Senate, Hon. MARK R. CORRIGAN:

Heavenly Father, grant to these Members of our Senate, and all the leaders of our state, wisdom and strength to know and to do Your holy will. Fill them with the love of truth, honesty and righteousness. Make them always remember that they are Your servants called to lead our Commonwealth. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. A quorum of the Senate being present, the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding Session of December 10, 1991.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding Session, when, on motion of Senator LOEPER, further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE

Senator LOEPER, from the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations, reported the following bill on concurrence in House amendments:

SB 653 (Pr. No. 1822) (Amended)

An Act amending the act of March 4, 1971 (P. L. 6, No. 2), entitled "Tax Reform Code of 1971," providing for the treatment of net operating losses; reducing the rate of corporate net income tax; increasing the capital stock franchise tax exemption; phasing out the levy, assessment and collection of capital stock franchise tax; further providing for the taxation of insurance premiums and annuity considerations; and providing for a limited tax amnesty program.

BILLS IN PLACE

Senator REIBMAN presented to the Chair several bills.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS

Senator REIBMAN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the Senate.

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, the two bills that I have introduced today are a result of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching which has just issued its report this past week. What the report says is that too many children are not ready for school and that in Pennsylvania it has been identified to be 29 percent of the children are not ready for school. We have been debating on the floor of this house several days ago improvement of education. One of the bills, of course, that was debated most heavily was the choice bill. There is no empirical evidence to show anywhere that the competition between the private sector and the public sector improves educational opportunities or performance, but what the Carnegie report has shown is that children who are ready for school have the kinds of services that are necessary, that are embodied in my bill, such as children cannot learn because of poor nutrition, preventable health problems and lack of intellectual stimulation in their early years. In order to alleviate this—and President Bush in his goals for the year 2000, his primary goal is that by that time in our calendar, the year 2000, children should be ready for school—and among those items that make them ready are the items that are embodied in my bill. There is plenty of evidence to show that early childhood education, early intervention and Head Start have improved the quality of education of children who are afforded that opportunity.

In 1978, as early as that, the Education Commission of the States sponsored a program of research that showed that early childhood education programs significantly reduced the number of children assigned to special education classes. Early education programs significantly reduced the number of children retained in grade. The evidence indicates early education significantly increased children's scores on fourth grade mathematic achievement tests with a suggestive trend toward increased scores in reading tests. The report goes on and on to show this great investment in order to get children ready for school so they do not drop out and that they can learn on full stomachs, healthy children, and mind stimulation.

Is this going to cost money? It sure is going to cost money. My bill calls for an appropriation of $50 million. It is a far cry from what is estimated in the choice voucher bill of $300 million. The programs, many of them are already in place in Pennsylvania, what they need to be done is to have them funded so we can no longer stand on the floor of this house and say that a quarter of our children are being ill served in the school system. This is only one piece of a whole program. We need school improvement. There are lots of strategies. Legislation has been introduced in our Committee on Education, a whole list of reforms to help children learn and to improve our education system so that our youngsters can meet the competition they are going to have to meet from kids from Japan, Taiwan and Korea whose education systems and curriculum content are greater in depth than what we have. I will leave the bills open for more sponsorship if anyone is brave enough and more willing enough and more sincerely interested in improving the education quality of all of the children in Pennsylvania, whether they go to public or private schools, because these services of health and nutrition will be available to all children. The money should be spent for services to children and not only for programs which have a dubious experiment or experience as to improving schools and education.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The remarks of the lady will be spread upon the record.

For the information of the Members, the Chair seems to be getting more requests for remarks on introduction of bills. The Chair would like to read the Rule, "Reading of bills in place at which time they shall not be subject to debate or remarks." The Chair has been lenient. I think that as this matter becomes more demanding, we should remember there is an order of business called Petitions and Remonstrances where it is appropriate to give such remarks. I think the Members ought to keep that in mind. Senator Reibman appropriately asked for consideration. The Chair did do that, but I think now that we have had others who are beginning to ask for the same consideration, the Chair would like to remind the Members of the Rule.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator FISHER. Mr. President, I would request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Helfrick, Senator Madigan and Senator Robbins and a legislative leave for the day for Senator Pecora.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Fisher requests temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Helfrick, Senator Robbins and Senator Madigan and a legislative leave for today's Session for Senator Pecora. The Chair hears no objection. The leaves will be granted.

Senator BODACK. I would ask for temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Afflerbach, Senator Fumo, Senator Jones and Senator Williams and legislative leaves for Senator Lynch and Senator Schwartz.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. There is a request for temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Afflerbach, Senator Fumo, Senator Jones and Senator Williams and legislative leaves for today's Session for Senator Lynch and Senator Schwartz. Without objection, those leaves will be granted.

NAYS—0

A constitutional majority of all the Senators having voted "aye," the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Secretary of the Senate present said bill to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

RECESS

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, about a half hour ago or so, we had a meeting of the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations where Senate Bill No. 653 was reported from the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations. There were some substantial changes made through amendment in that proposal, and our staff only had an opportunity to look at that amendment shortly before the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations was convened, and the rank-and-file Democratic Members have not at all had the opportunity to look at Senate Bill No. 653 as it has been amended. For that reason I must reluctantly, Mr. President, ask for a caucus for the purpose of discussing the amendments that have been put in Senate Bill No. 653 by the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Do you want that caucus now or do you want to run through the Calendar?

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I think it is important since we have the Members who are present in Harrisburg right here on the floor that we have that caucus right now.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I was wondering if the gentleman could give me an idea about how long he expects to be in caucus?

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I do not think it will take very long. The amendments, I think there are three or four different parts of the proposal, we have to discuss in caucus, and it is our expectation that we will handle it in a very expeditious manner and, hopefully, be back here within 15 minutes, if possible.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Mellow has requested a recess of the Senate for the purpose of a Democratic caucus to begin immediately in the caucus room to the rear of the Senate Chamber, and for that purpose the Senate will stand in recess.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The time of recess having elapsed, the Senate will be in order.

RECONSIDERATION OF SB 1209*BILL ON FINAL PASSAGE

SB 1209 (Pr. No. 1803) — Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I move the Senate do now reconsider the vote by which Senate Bill No. 1209, Printer's No. 1803, went over in its order.

The motion was agreed to.

On the question,
Shall the bill pass finally?

LEGISLATIVE LEAVE CANCELLED

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Chair recognizes the presence of Senator Andrezeski on the floor and his temporary Capitol leave is cancelled.

And the question recurring,
Shall the bill pass finally?

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, after further consultation, I would request that Senate Bill No. 1209 go over in its order.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Senator Loeper once again requests that Senate Bill No. 1209 go over in its order. Without objection, Senate Bill No. 1209 will go over in its order.

BILL OVER IN ORDER

SB 1214 — Without objection, the bill was passed over in its order at the request of Senator LOEPER.

SPECIAL ORDER OF BUSINESS SUPPLEMENTAL CALENDAR NO. 1

BILL ON CONCURRENCE IN HOUSE AMENDMENTS AS AMENDED BY THE SENATE SENATE NONCONCURS IN HOUSE AMENDMENTS AS AMENDED BY THE SENATE

SB 653 (Pr. No. 1822) — The Senate proceeded to consideration of the bill, entitled:

An Act amending the act of March 4, 1971 (P. L. 6, No. 2), entitled "Tax Reform Code of 1971," providing for the treatment of net operating losses; reducing the rate of corporate net income tax; increasing the capital stock franchise tax exemption; phasing out the levy, assessment and collection of capital stock franchise tax; further providing for the taxation of insurance premiums and annuity considerations; and providing for a limited tax amnesty program.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I move the Senate do concur in the amendments made by the House as amended by the Senate to Senate Bill No. 653.

On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Senator PETERSON. Mr. President, I rise today to discuss the importance of Senate Bill No. 653 and how it relates to the future of jobs in the Commonwealth. We all know we went through one of the tougher years in the legislative process. We all know we ended up with a $2 billion-plus deficit that we had to pay and move on with government costs. But when the dust settled and things were finalized, we sent a message to the business community of Pennsylvania that chilled their enthusiasm to do business in this Commonwealth. When we passed Act 22 we realized that we had to pay for a deficit and ongoingly pay for government and deal with the recession. In that bill we factored in the factor that on January 1st of this year we will cut the personal income tax from 3.5 percent to 3.1 percent. Then in July we will factor down again the personal income tax to 2.8 percent, realizing that once the deficit is paid for we will not need $3.5 billion of ongoing new taxes. I think the business community was more than generous when many of them, not all, offered to pay a surtax. I think the business community agreed, many of them, not all, to surtaxes to help fund the deficit. Some organizations even paid for TV commercials saying we are in debt and we have to fund it, we have to pay our bills. But the thing they never anticipated was that they were to have the highest corporate tax in this country, barring Connecticut, which is going to be dropping theirs, and the highest capital stock and franchise tax. I do not think they ever anticipated that the loss carry forward provision would be eliminated in tax law because it makes no public policy sense. It was a terrible change in the tax law. What that issue alone does to a new business, and most new businesses lose money their first, sometimes their second year, and let us take the simple example that if a small business lost $50,000 its first year, lost $25,000 its second year and made $25,000 its third year, very simple mathematics would tell us they are still $50,000 in the hole, but we are still going to tax that $25,000 they made their third year as if it were profit. That is not fair tax policy. I think what we did not do is remember we are in a competitive world, a competitive society and that we have to compete as a state. I have a map here that was put together a short time ago and to make sure it was accurate I called every revenue department in states surrounding Pennsylvania, and I think it is important that as we set our future tax policy, and we are starting to do that with this bill today, that we look at what our competitors are doing. We look at Ohio, which all of western Pennsylvania has to compete with. They have a 5.21 percent corporate tax if your business only makes $50,000 and then thereafter you pay an 8.9 percent. In Pennsylvania you pay a flat 12.25 percent. Their capital stock and franchise tax is 5.1 percent up to $50,000 and then it goes to 5.82 mills. Ours is 13 mills, two and a half times as much. Their loss carry forward provision that allows losses to be utilized against future gains is 15 years, the same as the federal government.

We can go to New Jersey where their corporate tax is 9 percent. Their surtax is .375 percent, which is less than half a percent, and that comes off in 1992. They have no capital stock and franchise tax yet and in 1984 they started their loss carry forward provision because it is prudent public tax policy. You go all the way around. You look at Maryland. You look at New York State, the state of taxes. Everybody knows that New York State is the state of taxes. They have a 15-year provision of loss carry forward. They have a 9 percent corporate tax with a 15 percent—that is 15 percent of the 9 percent, so it is really about a 10 point something percent, and the surtax is temporary. They are going back to 9 percent. Their capital stock and franchise tax is 2.41 mills compared to Pennsylvania's 13 mills. I am speaking here, sort of turning my back on all of the other taxes that we passed, and in a recent speech that I gave I listed 30 new ways businesses can be taxed under Act 22 from the corporate, capital stock and franchise, the exemption, the loss carry forward, inter-corporate dividends, the electric bill, the gas bill, the telephone bill, and we are one of few states—I checked today—that taxes interstate long distance, intrastate long distance, computer systems, collective services, and on and on. We all know the list. All of those are new taxes on business. I think we have to compare. I think we have to calculate where we are at if we want jobs for our people. The personal income tax is going to come down because we are not going to need those ongoing revenues forever, because the biggest share of that was to pay off a deficit. Companies today, right now, are making decisions of where they are going to do business. I have several in my district. They are going to decide in the next couple of months whether they are going to expand in Ohio or they are going to expand in Pennsylvania, and we need to send a message to those companies and every other company that is making corporate decisions today that we want their job opportunities for our people, that we want to compete, that we are not turning our backs on them, that we have not forgotten them, that we are going to start in 1993 trimming down business taxes slightly and in 1994 a little more. This bill does not go far enough but it is a start. We hope to show business that there is a little light at the end of the tunnel. We must give them hope because when they make those decisions, folks, we could spend $100 million in new grants in the Commerce Department and you cannot buy them back. When you lose those good business jobs that we have in the west, the few we have left, an economy that never recovered from the 1981 recession, when we lose further job opportunities for our citizens and our constituents, we cannot buy them back. There is not enough money in the state Treasury if we put in $100 million or $200 million. The most prudent thing to do is not to lose them by forgetting that we are in a competitive society. We have to compete and we want to be fair. I think the thing that scares me most is when I look at the Casey Administration—and I know this will not please several people—but when I look at the hostility of the DER agency, when I look at the lack of foresight of our state PUC, when you have the hostile attitude now in the Department of Revenue, when you take hostile bureaucracies and regulatory agencies towards business and couple it with the tax package that we have out there that is ongoing forever, with no surtaxes like most states have, you are going to have businesses give up on this state and we must not let that happen. We must pass Senate Bill No. 653 which is a step in the right direction, which puts a little bit of light at the end of the tunnel, allowing business to continue to stay here, prosper here and grow here. It will not happen if we do not act today. I urge my colleagues to unanimously support Senate Bill No. 653 as the first step this General Assembly makes in a fair tax policy for jobs and business growth.

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I am not going to prolong with any degree of length the Session here this afternoon, but I think there are a few comments that must be made. First of all, Mr. President, we on this side of the aisle would certainly like to be in a position of being able to support a tax reduction. Since 1987 we have supported tax reductions for business on a number of occasions. Unfortunately, Mr. President, we are not in a position this afternoon to go ahead and to say we can grant meaningful reduction to the people of Pennsylvania and knowing full well that we can bring about what we are talking about on the floor here of the Senate, the same way that just last week or two weeks ago there was a choice of education, but last week there was a choice of education proposal that was passed here on the Senate floor, knowing full well at that point in time that that program could not, in fact, be implemented. I listened at great length to the gentleman from Venango, Senator Peterson, and I must say he made some very strong arguments in favor of a proposal to reduce taxes. But I have to point out one thing of a meeting that took place in my office just yesterday because Senator Peterson talked about the State of New York. I am very fortunate right now in my district that I have one of the major corporations that is located in New York State that is moving into my district. They are going ahead and they are constructing a store in Lackawanna County and one in Erie County, two stores in Pennsylvania. They are going into a new state, expanding from New York State for the first time, and for some particular reason, maybe divine intervention, I do not know, but they have decided they would like to expand into the State of Pennsylvania. I met with them at length yesterday and I will tell you the name of the company. It is a food market by the name of Wegmans. Wegmans is a major food chain in New York State that employs thousands and thousands of people. They are going to locate a store in north-eastern Pennsylvania that is going to be 120,000 square feet. I cannot even imagine a grocery store the size of 120,000 square feet, and they are going to employ 600 people. They just recently started the site preparation for the construction of that store. They are locating the same type of store in the district of the gentleman from Erie, Senator Andrezeski, shortly thereafter. I asked them the question, I said we hear so much more and more and more in Pennsylvania that we have a tax climate that is not favorable. And the man from Wegmans said to me, Senator, nothing could be further from the truth about Pennsylvania. He said if you look at the personal income tax alone in New York State, it is somewhere around 9 percent. He said personal income tax in Pennsylvania at 3.1 percent represents one-third of what we are paying in personal income tax right now in New York State. Not once, Mr. President, during the discussion that took place in the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations did I hear anything at all mentioned about the consumer in Pennsylvania. Never once did I hear mentioned that we do have a proposal in front of us to reduce taxes and that that proposal will, in a proportionate share, take care of the interest of business, and it will take care of a reduction to the personal income taxpayer in Pennsylvania who pays about 78 percent of the freight in Pennsylvania. I guess I am not surprised that there is no mention of that, but I am a little bit surprised that we would talk about a two percent annuity tax elimination, that we would talk about the restoration of a capital stock exemption from $50,000 to $100,000, that we would talk about the reduction of the capital stock and franchise tax, effective January 1, 1993, to 11 percent, and that we would see fit to go ahead and to implement a program that I so strongly supported and sponsored, along with Senator Frank O'Connell, back a number of years ago, to implement in Pennsylvania for the first time a loss carry forward provision in filing your corporate net income tax. But not one breath of air was mentioned for the 12 million consumers and the individual taxpayer in Pennsylvania who right now is paying a 3.1 percent personal income tax. Mr. President, it is not that long ago. It was Act 58, Senate Bill No. 443 of 1987 under the Casey Administration that we went ahead and we increased by doubling the value exemption from capital stock and franchise tax from $50,000 to $100,000. Also, at that point in time we reduced the gross receipts tax, because we as Democrats believe in the same basic philosophy that you believe in, that to have a good economy in Pennsylvania you must treat business fairly as far as the tax structure, but in doing so, Mr. President, you also must treat the individual taxpayer in the same manner. Obviously, the amendment we have here does nothing with the individual taxpayer. Obviously, the amendment we have here, Mr. President, we know full well cannot be implemented. The Members of leadership on both sides of the aisle, in both the House and the Senate, had the opportunity yesterday of attending a briefing by the Governor. The Governor was very on point to show to us that unless something takes place with the recession in this great country of ours over the next six months, the last six months of this fiscal year, by taking some very strong cost-saving measures, by reserving some $230 million, we may go ahead, hopefully, and end the year with a surplus, if you will, of $1 million. By implementation of some of these tax cuts, it would negate any possible chance whatsoever of a tax decrease next year.

Mr. President, I just want to close by once again pointing out something I pointed out several weeks ago in discussion, and the quote is going to be from a national publication, Fortune Magazine, dated November 4, 1991, which once again does not spell out the argument that was just given to us by the gentleman from Venango, Senator Peterson. It talks about the third best city in the United States to do business with is the City of Pittsburgh. It talks about what its average salary is for manufacturing positions. It talks about what its average salary is for clerical positions. It talks about its access to labor, that it ranks fourth in the country as far as its access to labor, and it talks about its pro-business attitude. Its pro-business attitude, when you go ahead and you relate that to every other city in the United States, ranks eighth. Nashville, Tennessee, ranks fourth. Salt Lake City, Utah ranks thirteenth. Kansas City ranks tenth. I could go on and on, and I could give you exactly what the ratings are of other cities with regard to pro-business. The pro-business climate of Austin, Texas is thirteenth. The pro-business climate of Orlando, Florida, the home of Disney World, ranks tenth. The City of Pittsburgh ranks eighth, located in this great Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. In the Sun Belt, the sunshine State of Arizona, Phoenix, Arizona, if you will, ranks twenty-first. So, Mr. President, I would agree in concept, in theory, in principle, as would each and every one of us that we would like to go ahead and we would like to reduce taxes proportionately based on some type of a surplus in government. We right now are living with the Ronald Reagan reduction of taxes of the 1980s, when a tax reduction was given based not on surplus, but based on credit, and what it did was it created a gap between the haves and have nots in this country, which has never been greater. Since 1983, Mr. President, we in the Pennsylvania General Assembly have enacted 24 separate tax cuts with the passage of 16 different tax reduction proposals, and, in fact, in 1988 Senate Bill No. 1534 of Act 109 of 1988, we gave the largest reduction of taxes ever to business by retiring the state's Unemployment Compensation debt to the federal government. Mr. President, we concur that we would like to be in a position of reducing taxes. We would like to reduce them in a fair way. We would like to reduce them to the consumer, to the individual taxpayer in Pennsylvania who pays the personal income tax. We would like to reduce them to the people who pay sales tax in Pennsylvania, and we would like to reduce them also to our business interests that go ahead and pay capital stock and franchise tax, that pay our corporate net income tax, that go ahead, Mr. President, and they have lost the exemption, hopefully only temporarily, for a loss carry forward provision. We would like to be in that position, but we know full well, as does every Member on the floor of this Senate today knows full well, that in all good conscience all we are doing is we are misleading the people of Pennsylvania by saying we can enact Senate Bill No. 653 by putting in these particular types of tax reductions and that the corporate interests in Pennsylvania will be able to recognize these by saving money starting immediately with tax amnesty starting in January of 1993 with the restoration of the $100,000 exemption in the reduction of the capital stock and franchise tax and by the restoration in 1994 of the loss carry forward provision. But we also know deep down in our hearts that we are in the midst of one of the deepest recessions that we have ever had in this great country of ours, that we have a federal deficit that is in excess of $280 billion, that we have a federal government, Mr. President, that appears to be out of control because they have not been able to come to grips with the tremendous problem, not only right here in Pennsylvania but also in every state of ours. But we also have the consolation of knowing if we go ahead and we stay the course, if we go ahead and we do not implement programs that are going to spend money and if we take some advice from people who tell us how to tighten our belts in this fiscal year, we will not be faced with the same problem that many of the other states in this great country of ours are going to be faced with because of the recession and of having a tax increase in the 1991-92 fiscal year. As meritorious as this proposal is, as great as it sounds, with all the wonderful political rhetoric that is going to be expressed on the floor of this Senate today on both sides of the aisle, Mr. President, the bottom line is we cannot afford this type of tax cut and, furthermore, it deals only with the business interests in Pennsylvania and it has ignored the largest taxpayer in the state, the individuals who pay the personal income tax. For those reasons, Mr. President, I must ask for a negative vote.

Senator BELL. Mr. President, I am going to vote "no" on this bill because I agree with the principles, but I say the timing is lousy. We should not be taking actions like this when the national picture looks like we bottomed out in this recession. Yesterday, General Motors stock dropped down to $27 a share. I do not know if you people realize it or not but one of the biggest sources of sales tax in Pennsylvania is the sale of automobiles, and if we are selling so damn many cars, why is General Motors stock going down? I am just a country boy. I also count trucks on the Turnpike and Monday they were not there. That means cargo is not moving. I would support legislation like this, but I do not approve of the timing.

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, the gentleman from Lackawanna, Senator Mellow, covered this extremely well. I just want to speak to a couple other parts of this issue that kind of bothered me a little bit.

One is the fiscal note, and I think it is so typical of what we have been getting here for the last several years and they just make up anything you want and throw it out. Now anybody who votes for this who believes this fiscal note ought to check with the Governor's office. And the Budget Secretary to my knowledge, is the one who officially certifies revenues. Just to start at the top on the repeal on tax annuities, there is a minus $30 million shown on the fiscal note that I have in front of me. The Governor's office has certified that as a $45 million loss the first year, $36 million the second year, and $36 million thereafter, and there is nothing in the second and third years in this fiscal note. The tax amnesty program, which we discussed at great length back during May, June, July and into August when we were trying to resolve the budget problems, the reason why it was never used is the Budget Secretary would never certify more than $10 million in gain. There is a $35 million plus sign in that column the first year, and then it goes on and on. I say that you have to change that and you have to subtract $25 million and show only a plus $10 million every year from this year on. My figures show in the 1991-92 fiscal year, which we are in now, according to official estimates and certified revenues on the part of the Budget Secretary, in this fiscal year because of this we would have a $35.2 million loss in this fiscal year. In the next fiscal year, adding in the other changes, it is $86 million in losses. Going out to the 1993-94 there is a $398 million loss shown on this fiscal note and you still have to add another $35 million into that, so you are talking over $400 million. That is in spite of the fact that we have been hearing that because of the national economy, because of lack of consumer confidence we are looking now at somewhat of a deficit coming for the end of this year and the Governor has proposed ways of making us to be able to balance our budget without further tax increases. This is the kind of effort that causes further instability in the business community. It causes a further eroding or the lack of confidence by your consumers. Mainly because I want to see anybody who votes for this go home and tell their next door neighbor or their partner in business, or whatever it is, that I felt that we should be reducing corporate taxes to the tune of $35 million and make a deficit this year, but I really do not think you are paying too much and I really do not think that the sales tax is too high. I do not want to bother with that. I just want to bother with business taxes and be damned with the consumer. That is basically what you are saying.

The other point I want to make is that this is absolutely the kind of thing that frustrates me to the point that I just want to go someplace and hide. Where was this amendment yesterday? Where was this amendment to House Bill No. 1321, when it meant something, when you could have amended that bill and sent it to the Governor and it would have been his decision whether as to accept this or not? Why was that not done? Because you know that this is not something responsible and something that can be done. Yet you will be able to leave here, those of you that are going to support this effort, and tell the world that I am your friend. I support you. I believe we ought to do something and come July 1st none of this will have taken effect. None of it. Whether it passes in this Body with 26 votes or 48 votes or 50 votes, or whatever, it is not going to take effect. I believe that this is really frustrating for me and I know what it has to be like to your business friends, to know that you had an opportunity yesterday to do this legitimately.

The last point that I would like to make is that it is a shame that as usual there is no budget cutting in this, there is no one saying that even accepting the fiscal note that is put out here, there is going to be a shortfall next year. The same people who are doing this and making this effort were right there to vote for choice, another $350 million expenditure in the coming year's budget. None of those people supported this past year's budget which had tremendous increases in funding for their very poor school districts. It just does not make any sense to me. I know that we get into partisan politics and it is a shame because there has to be a time when that goes away. Back in the summer when we were trying to solve this problem, there was not one person on that side of the aisle who came forth, privately or publicly, with any effort to make the tax bill a little bit different than what it was. The only thing that I received from my Republican counterparts here—and it was even worse in the House because they were talking about all these wild things to save money and coming into the budget negotiation talks with all the requests they could find to spend. If people only knew how hypocritical the Republican caucus in the House is—spend privately, cut publicly from things that cannot be done. If you would have come forth with a proposal similar to this, there are many people on this side of the aisle who are just as concerned about the business community as you are, but there is not one of you who can stand up and point to a day, an hour, a moment, a bill, a resolution, an amendment that offered any type of relief as this. Whatever was offered, you sat in your seats, voted "no", with the exception of four courageous people in that caucus, and now we want to go out and play these kinds of games for political benefit. I think it is unfair to the same people who you are trying to tell you are helping, and I am telling you they are not that stupid. They are going to know that this is just a game. If you were serious, you would have done this yesterday. I would ask for a "no" vote.

Senator ARMSTRONG. Mr. President, we talk about some forecasts. This Governor and this Budget Office, I do not think there are any two in the nation that have been so wrong in forecasting. They cannot even come close. I remember at the beginning of the year how the budget was and that everything was fine, and we were saying, well, it is going to be at least a $1 billion shortfall, and then $2 billion and then I guess it was over $3 billion. So as far as their forecasting ability, their crystal ball has been cracked for a long time. As far as consumer taxes, they are going to roll back in Act 22 to 2.8 percent, I believe, on July 1, 1992. So the consumers have been addressed and the business area has not, but we are talking jobs right here. We are talking about a jobs tax. Talk about consumers. I have 50 consumers in Lancaster County now that will not have a job. Yesterday I received a call from a president of a corporation who was going to come to Pennsylvania, to my district as a matter of fact, and create 50 good jobs. Everything was almost just about 100 percent there until this tax package was passed. He decided to go to Kansas. He says they have a better business climate in Kansas than they do in Pennsylvania. So I have 50 people in Lancaster County who will not be working. So I have 50 people who will be collecting unemployment compensation to the tune of, I do not know, maybe $41,000 a month, that we are paying out instead of getting in. They will not be paying any personal income tax, so we are losing that. The corporation will not be paying any taxes at all, so we are losing that revenue. We are losing thousands and thousands of dollars a week in revenue which we could get. Also the ripple effect or the multiplier effect of those dollars which would create even more jobs, we are losing all of those. Instead of having a positive impact in Pennsylvania, we are now having a negative impact. This was concrete evidence of job loss yesterday. This administration is not helping at all. This morning I had a meeting with an executive of Hershey Foods, a person who is a decision-maker, who decided to go to Virginia. This is a true story. They decided on three states to locate their manufacturing plants—Pennsylvania, Virginia and I believe the third state was Delaware. They sent a request to the Commerce Departments of those three states. Within ten days, two states had a whole package back to Hershey Foods. One state did not. Pennsylvania did not even respond until three weeks later when someone in the Commerce Department called them on the phone and said, we are getting this package together and we will have it in a couple of weeks and, by the way, who is going to pay for the Federal Express charges? That is the type of decisions that are being made in the Commerce Department. We have a new Commerce Secretary coming in over there. I do not think the person has had one day of business experience in his life. He is an attorney. I have nothing against attorneys, but what do they have in the way of business experience? He is young. He does not have any business experience, but, yet, he is going to be the next Commerce Secretary in Pennsylvania. I think we have to send a signal to the people out there that we want our jobs back in Pennsylvania. We are tired of people in other states taking these jobs. We had an economic development person in Lancaster who is now the economic development director in Charlotte, North Carolina. He is just taking all kinds of jobs down to North Carolina because of the tax package we passed. It is easy pickings for him. We are losing jobs right and left, and we have to do something to show them that we are interested in getting these jobs back in Pennsylvania, and Senate Bill No. 653 is one small step to get some of these jobs back.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I believe what we have before us today in the Senate is really a blueprint of action for the future, and it demonstrates concern of the impact of this current year's budget and revenue package. What it has had is an adverse effect on jobs in the business community in Pennsylvania, and certainly that affects all the citizens of the Commonwealth. I think what we see here, Mr. President, is a blueprint, a suggestion for potential action not only in this year that is a revenue neutral program, but also to send a signal that in 1992-93 as well as 1993-94 there is a serious commitment to try and address some of these issues that are really hampering the growth of business and jobs in Pennsylvania and Pennsylvania's economy. In order to try and move forward with some type of blueprint for action, I would ask for an affirmative vote to Senate Bill No. 653.

Senator SHAFFER. Mr. President, very briefly, I know the hour is growing late. We talk about taxes on business and taxes on individuals, and the other side has made a strong point here today that we have not lowered taxes on individuals. Well, let me say, Mr. President, that the cruelest tax of all is the tax that eliminates your job and eliminates your ability to pay taxes. Eighty-five percent of the people in this country—and I assume the same would hold true for this state—outside of those employed by government, including the military, are employed by companies of 35 or fewer, and while we delight in the large corporations, and the more we have the better off we will all be—I feel confident—the truth of the matter is over the last ten years the Fortune 500 has created a net gain of jobs in this country of zero. All job gains in the last decade in the United States and, indeed, in Pennsylvania have come from the small private business sector, Mr. President, and there is no more relevant tax to the small business sector, and that equals jobs, there is no more important jobs tax, no more devastating jobs tax in this state than the capital stock and franchise tax. The gentleman from Venango, Senator Peterson, has gone on and the charts are available here which demonstrate that Pennsylvania is in the stratosphere of capital stock taxes in the northeast part of the United States. Come January first, we will be the premiere leader in the CNI tax in this entire country, Mr. President. But more than anything else, the $100,000 exemption for small businesses, and that affects only the small businesses, the $100,000 in the capital stock and franchise tax has no relevance to U.S. Steel or to Armco or to IBM or to any other large businesses that we have in this country, but it is darn important to the little marginal business where a few thousand dollars is the difference between profitability and bankruptcy. When we consider that Pennsylvania can be a pretty hostile, uncompetitive state in terms of our workers' compensation and our unemployment compensation tax, and when we consider that with the states in the northeast, we are building a veritable tax wall around this state to keep jobs and business in, and when we consider, Mr. President, that Act 22 was the most devastating law in the last decade when it comes to creating the very jobs that we need to create wealth and create satisfaction for our citizens, Mr. President, believe me, what we are doing today here is only sending a minimal glimmer of hope, a kind of a half-hearted promise that someday in the not too distant future those entrepreneurs, those individuals who are trying to create real wealth, trying to create real opportunity for our fellow citizens are somewhat appreciated. Mr. President, please know they do not believe they are appreciated by state government today. I urge adoption of Senate Bill No. 653.

Senator REIBMAN. Mr. President, I was very much interested in hearing what some of my colleagues have said about the loss of businesses and jobs in Pennsylvania, and I assume that some of that is true. However, I would like to say that in my county, in Northampton County, we border New Jersey. We have companies that are coming into our industrial parks creating jobs. There is a project here that will cost $1.1 million, and our industrial development bonds have been sold at $23.7 million in order to bring business into the Lehigh Valley. There is another company that is just now expanding and making more jobs in the Lehigh Valley in our industrial parks. There is a food processing company which is purchasing machinery and equipment to manufacture sweet potato pies which is coming into our county as well. So there are many, many companies that are coming into Pennsylvania. A lot depends upon the individual environment of some of those areas. We in the Lehigh Valley have good roads. We are close to markets. We have a very aggressive industrial development corporation that is very aggressive in bringing in people. Our banks are cooperating. We are creating jobs in the industrial parks, and most of the lots in our industrial parks are now being sold, or at least there are options to buy, for expansion and for bringing new business in, despite the fact that we have the kind of tax program we have, and I surely would like to see it reduced too, when and if we can do it. But to categorically say, and to make the generalization that this is keeping jobs out of Pennsylvania, I am here to say that in some areas of Pennsylvania we are still attracting very important businesses which are coming into our areas and making jobs.

Senator PETERSON. Mr. President, I very carefully listened to the opponents of Senate Bill No. 653. I am glad that business in the Lehigh Valley is healthy and strong and people are all working. It must be the same up in Scranton where the Senator comes from who spoke, but I do find it a little surprising when I know most of western Pennsylvania is absolutely struggling for its economic life, that the one speaker from Fayette County thinks these are not necessary. In my opinion the Casey Administration demanded that there were no business rollbacks, that there were no cutoffs, that these were not surtaxes. The business community came forward and said, we will pay a 50 percent surtax. They did not expect forever taxes, but I understand there are those who have to defend the Casey Administration, no matter what position they have. But here is my opinion of the Casey Administration when it comes to jobs and business and economics. Within the administrations that I have worked with, and there have been three, there have always been a few entrepreneurs. I have given this in several speeches and no one has ever come forth. If there is a former entrepreneur in a leadership position in the Casey Administration that he or she understands the investment of capital, who has gone to the bank and borrowed money, put it on the table, created jobs and employment opportunities, met a payroll and paid off those loans, that is an experience, folks, that means something. I do not think there is any of that experience in the Casey Administration. As I look at it, I cannot think of a Cabinet official who has run a business. There is a far difference in running an agency of government where taxes support you than running a business where you borrow money, where you put your name on the line, where you go in hock and you pay off those loans and you create jobs for the economy. I am sorry that there are so many willing to support the Casey Administration's continued efforts to stick it to business. Let me just share this with you. The House recently held some hearings. A businessman Leonard Magargee, President of Magargee Brothers, Incorporated, said, "Small businessmen today are faced with a sales tax resulting in a loss of business. A 50% increase in the corporate income tax, reducing profits, a 400% increase in corporate stock tax, a 50% increase in personal income tax, an enormous increase in unemployment compensation payments over the last three years, and a proposed 52% increase in workers' compensation payments. Why should we stay in PA? Why should we continue to be legitimate business enterprises? Why do I feel that the state, city and federal Legislators are our enemies?" Another excerpt, "Your 1991 tax changes have clearly proved our commitment to Pennsylvania was foolish, and our confidence in our state government was misplaced. Your lack of fiscal responsibility will now have a devastating impact on Pennsylvania business...." Another businessman from Pennsylvania said, "Our state government has sold out the business backbone of our Commonwealth, and the backbone of its economy. If I sound angry about it, you're damn right I'm angry about it, and deservedly so.... Our plans have shifted away from Pennsylvania."

In conclusion today I would like to say in argument for this bill it is not something we just ought to talk about. It is not something we should sit here and wait until there are surpluses in the bank, because you know and I know for every $100 million of surplus, there will be one billion dollars of ideas of how to spend it. That went on here since time began. You cannot wait for surpluses. We cut the personal income tax back in two increments. That was prudent. That is a consumer tax. But as the gentleman from Butler, Senator Shaffer, so aptly said, the cruelest tax of all is the tax that takes away opportunity.

In conclusion, I would like to have you listen to this very short statement by another businessman. If you would please listen, I think it says it all. I think we may all need an economics lesson. He said, "I think the future of the economy of this Commonwealth and specifically the west, which lost so much population in the last census and which is continuing to decline and dry right up and die on the vine, is that we pass some hope to business that all of these taxes that have been piled on business are not forever." In conclusion I want to give a statement from a businessman who I think says it so well. "Business is not a special interest group—it is the very foundation of our economic system. It is the original source of all wealth, all jobs and benefits, the tax base from which all of the programs of government are funded." Business is not our enemy and we should not treat it like one. If we do not learn to compete, we will be an unemployment state and a welfare state, and that is where we are headed in western Pennsylvania if we do not pass Senate Bill No. 653.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant Governor Mark S. Singel) in the Chair.

LEGISLATIVE LEAVES

Senator MELLOW. Mr. President, I would like to place Senator Andrezeski on temporary Capitol leave. He has been called to his office. Also, I request temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Dawida and Senator Scanlon.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Mellow asks for temporary Capitol leaves for Senator Andrezeski, Senator Dawida and Senator Scanlon. The Chair hears no objection. Those leaves will be granted.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I also would request a temporary Capitol leave on behalf of Senator Wenger.

AMENDMENTS TO HOUSE BILL

The Clerk of the House of Representatives informed the Senate that the House has concurred in amendments made by the Senate to House amendments to Senate amendments to HB 1321.

SENATE BILL RETURNED WITH AMENDMENTS

The Clerk of the House of Representatives returned to the Senate SB 2, with the information the House has passed the same with amendments in which the concurrence of the Senate is requested.

The PRESIDENT. Pursuant to Senate Rule XV, Section 5, this bill will be referred to the Committee on Rules and Executive Nominations.

BILLS SIGNED

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant Governor Mark S. Singel) in the presence of the Senate signed the following bills:

HB 520, 722, 1321, 1827, 2145, SRR No. 3, SRR No. 6 and SSR No. 7.

REMARKS ON RETIREMENT OF ALBERT S. MARSHAL, CHIEF OFFICIAL REPORTER OF DEBATES

Senator LINCOLN. Mr. President, we get into a lot of very difficult debate in this Body and disagree with one another quite a bit, and, occasionally, it is very nice to be able to do something in a more pleasant manner. One of our reporters, Al Marshal, will be retiring. This is his last Session day, and I believe it is 22 years or 23 years that he has put up with this madhouse that we call the Senate. I believe that is the type of individual and the type of effort that makes this particular Body work. I would like to extend from the Democrat caucus my sincere congratulations on your retirement and a thank you for all the years of well-done work. Al, we wish you the best in the future, good health and happiness, and come around and see us every once in a while.

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I also would like to just take a moment to recognize Al Marshal for his outstanding and dedicated service to the Senate of Pennsylvania for some 22 years. You know, it is difficult enough on those of us who are Members to try and figure out the schedule of when we are going to be here and when we are not, and I know particularly for the employees of the Senate it is a very difficult time many times to try and plan whether you are going to be home in the evening or you are not going to be home and that those nights we are here until midnight or, for example, this summer, I guess, when we did a 36-hour day, it is very meaningful, the dedication, that the employees of this Senate put in for the Members of the Senate and the operation of the Senate. It is that service that Al has performed for so many years that maybe the public does not realize the time and effort that goes into this and the sacrifices that one makes with their home situation. But on behalf of the Senate Republican caucus, on behalf of all of us, and I am sure all the Senate employees as well, we wish you the very best in your retirement and the best of luck in the years ahead. Al, thank you very much for the time you spent with us.

REMARKS ON RETIREMENT OF JAMES MUMPER, SENATE CHAMBER SUPERVISOR

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I would also like to mention that one other very valued employee of the Senate Chamber, a face that is familiar to all of us, is also retiring, and that is Jim Mumper, Senate Chamber Supervisor, who has served this Senate well for many years, a familiar face to everyone. Nothing is ever too much trouble. He is always there with a smile, a helping hand, whatever he can do to be of assistance to the institution of the Senate of Pennsylvania, and we also, collectively as the Senators and Members of the Senate, wish Jim well on the occasion of his retirement this year and wish him good health and many years of happy retirement in the future.

RECESS

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, at this time I would ask that the Senate do now recess to the call of the Chair. As I had discussed with the Minority, it would be the intention to possibly reconvene next Tuesday at a time yet to be announced for the purpose of simply bill signings. It would be a token Session with no votes taken, and at that time a motion would be made for adjournment until January 7th.

The PRESIDENT. Senator Loeper moves that the Senate do now recess to the call of the Chair.

The motion was agreed to.

The PRESIDENT. The Senate stands in recess.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT pro tempore (Robert C. Jubelirer) in the Chair.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The time of recess having elapsed, the Senate will be in order.

HOUSE MESSAGES*HOUSE CONCURS IN SENATE AMENDMENTS TO HOUSE BILLS

The Clerk of the House of Representatives informed the Senate that the House has concurred in amendments made by the Senate to HB 872, 1058, 1807 and 1981.

BILLS SIGNED

The PRESIDENT pro tempore (Robert C. Jubelirer) in the presence of the Senate signed the following bills:

HB 872, 1058, 1807 and 1981.

ADJOURNMENT

Senator LOEPER. Mr. President, I move the Senate do now adjourn until Tuesday, January 7, 1992, at 11:45 a.m., Eastern Standard Time, unless sooner recalled by the President pro tempore.

The motion was agreed to.

The Senate adjourned at 11:59 p.m., Eastern Standard Time.
