ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Let's begin with the Pledge of Allegiance. Could everyone please rise.

(The Pledge of Allegiance was recited.)

ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Good morning, everyone. Welcome to our hearing.

We'll be discussing intellectual disabilities across the lifespan.

Before we call forward our first panel, I'm going to ask everyone, all of our staff members and the Representatives that are here, to please introduce themselves.

My name is Representative Tom Murt. I represent part of Philadelphia and part of Montgomery County, and I'll just be chairing until Representative DiGirolamo gets here.

23 PANEL ONE

24
25 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: I would ask our

1 first panel to please come forward: Secretary Thaler;
2 Celia Feinstein from Temple University; and Sheila Stasko
3 from the Waiting List Campaign.

4 Good morning.

5 MS. THALER: Good morning.

6 MS. FEINSTEIN: Good morning.

7 MS. STASKO: Good morning.

8 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Thank you for 9 being here today.

10 Before you testify, I just wanted to mention 11 briefly, in my opinion, what we're doing here today is the 12 highest moral ground there is in politics. This isn't even 13 politics; this is public service what we're doing here.

14 This is the most important issue for me
15 personally, and for many of my colleagues as well. Caring 16 for adults with intellectual disabilities and autism and 17 caring for our brothers and sisters who have challenges 18 with mental health is really a very, very important issue, 19 and we are very grateful for all the testifiers who have 20 taken the time out of their busy schedule to be here today.

21 DEPUTY SECRETARY THALER: Good morning to the 22 Members of the House Human Services Committee and the 23 staff.

24 My name is Nancy Thaler, and I am the Deputy 25 Secretary of the Office of Developmental Programs within

1 the Department of Human Services. And on behalf of 2 Secretary Dallas, I would like to thank you for the 3 opportunity to present testimony regarding DHS's efforts to 4 support citizens of the Commonwealth with intellectual 5 disabilities and with autism and their families to achieve 6 greater independence, choice, and opportunity in their 7 lives.

8 DHS provides services for over 53,000 people with 9 ID and/or autism. The vast majority of the people DHS 10 serves -- that is 70 percent or over 36,000 -- are living 11 at home with their families. Services are funded 12 predominantly through Medicaid and with State and local 13 funds through county government.

14 Specifically, there are three Medicaid home and 15 community-based waivers which fund services in the 16 community. The three programs serve approximately 17 31,060 people, and the three of them are the Person/Family
18 Directed Supports Waiver, which serves over 13,000 people 19 and is itself capped at a $30,000 limit per person; the 20 Consolidated Waiver, which serves 17,500 people and has no 21 cap; and the Adult Autism Waiver, which serves about 22 560 people and has no cap.

23 In addition, the Department of Human Services
24 operates an Adult Community Autism Program known as ACAP, 25 which is a managed-care program for individuals with

1 autism, and it serves about 152 people.

2 Finally, DHS funds institutional services in 3 private intermediate-care facilities for people with 4 intellectual disabilities -- there are about 2,200 people 5 in that program -- and our State-operated facilities, which 6 have today approximately 950. In addition to all of those 7 Medicaid-funded programs, our county programs serve 8 approximately 20,000 people with a combination of State and 9 local funds, and that together makes up the 53,000.

10 Services have been evolving over the years, and 11 we have made tremendous progress from the 1970s when almost 12 everyone was receiving services in an institution away from 13 their families and community. In today's reality, almost 14 everyone is living with their family or in supported homes 15 in the community.

16 But our progress has been more than changing the 17 location of services. Providing services to people in the 18 community has changed the program's focus and goals. Our 19 goal is not simply to provide care but to create 20 opportunities for growth and learning, to help people get a 21 job, practice their faith, join a health club, make friends 22 and "hang out" with them, become civically engaged; in 23 other words, to fully participate in their community and 24 live a typical life like yours and mine.

25 While we serve over 53,000 people in our service

1 system, there still is a significant number of people and 2 families who need but do not receive services. I will 3 provide you with waiting list figures and explain what the 4 Department's plans are to remove people from the waiting 5 list at a reasonable pace.

6 First, the number of individuals waiting:

7 There are two lists. One list for individuals 8 with intellectual disabilities has about 13,900 or close to 9 14,000 people on the waiting list. The other list, which 10 was created later, is maintained as an interest list for 11 autism services, and it has approximately 2,000 people.
12 Many of the individuals on the autism list may also be on 13 the waiting list for ID services. In other words, there is 14 some duplication.

15 The waiting list categories:

16 The waiting list categories apply to the ID
17 waiting list. We have 4,863 people listed as "emergency," 18 which is defined as needing services within the next 19 6 months; 5,521 are listed in "critical" need, which is 20 defined as needing services sometime within the next 21 2 years; and the remaining 3,500 are listed as "planning," 22 which is defined as needing services more than 2 years but 23 less than 5 years away.

24 Waiting and receiving services:

25 Of the approximate 10,000 people who have been

1 reported as needing services within the next 2 years --
2 that is the "emergency" and "critical" categories -- 3 7300 of them, or 7,300 of them, are getting some level of 4 service while the remainder are not receiving services at 5 all.

6 Of the 4,800 in the "emergency" group, 3,500 are 7 receiving some level of services. Of that 3,500, 1,500 are 8 enrolled in one of our waivers and have expressed a need 9 for additional services, and 2,000 are receiving some 10 limited services from our county programs.

11 While a large percentage of people in the 12 "emergency" category are receiving some services, the 13 services people are receiving are typically either for the 14 P/FDS Waiver, which is capped at $30,000, or they're 15 getting services through our county program, which provides 16 an even lower amount.

17 The same pattern holds true for the "critical" 18 list. Of the 5,000 individuals, 3,800 are receiving some 19 type of services, again through the P/FDS Waiver, but 20 mostly through our county funds.

21 And in the "planning" group, the same is true.
22 Of the 3,500 listed as needing services in 2 to 5 years, 23 2,500 are getting some level of service.

24 And I would say that -- it's not in my written 25 testimony but to sort of wrap that up -- the vast majority

1 of people who are waiting in any of those categories are 2 getting some level of service that does not detract from 3 the part of "emergency" and "critical." So the good news 4 is they're getting some services to hold on to, but that 5 doesn't mean that their needs are met.

6 The ages of individuals waiting:

7 Individuals on the waiting list are typically 8 between 3 and 88. However, almost 50 percent of them in 9 that "critical" and "emergency" category on the waiting 10 list are between the ages of 15 and 27. A large number of 11 these individuals are young adults who are beginning to 12 transition from school to adulthood or who have graduated 13 from school and are home with a working-age parent or 14 parents. Without services, these folks cannot navigate the 15 community or get a job, and the concern is that over time, 16 they begin to lose the skills they have acquired in the 17 school system.

18 The age of families of people on the waiting
19 list:

20 Of all the 13,900 individuals on the waiting 21 list, 2,000 are living with a caregiver over the age of 60.
22 Caregivers under the age of 60 tend to be working, 23 working-age adults. Therefore, this number suggests that 24 most of the individuals on the waiting list are living with 25 families who are working.

1 What we do not know about people on the waiting
2 list:

3 The instrument used to collect information for 4 people on the waiting list provides basic demographic 5 information about each person, but it does not provide a 6 standardized assessment of each person's clinical and 7 support needs, nor does it provide information on each 8 family's situation, which would help us shape our program 9 design and budget more accurately.

10 So to summarize:

11 There are over 10,000 people who have reported 12 that they will need services within the next 2 years.
13 Seventy-three hundred of them were getting some level of 14 service and the remainder are not receiving any services.
15 The vast majority are individuals in their late teens to 16 mid-20s whose parents are working age. These are the 17 families often referred to as the "sandwich generation," 18 because they are typically caring for children and their 19 own parents as well.

20 The data suggests that our service expansion 21 should focus on young adults who are transitioning or who 22 have transitioned from school as well as their families.
23 The provision of adequate supports for these individuals 24 would allow them to live at home and their families to work 25 more easily. The additional support would allow parents to 1 maintain family members at home rather than seek more 2 costly out-of-home services.

3 Why don't the waiting list numbers fall more 4 quickly:

5 The total number of people on the waiting list
6 has decreased overall in the past 6 years from about 16,400
7 to 13,900 today. This reduction has been made possible 8 through two strategies. The first is expansion in the 9 number of people served over the 3 years from 27,300 to 10 about 30,000 today in the waivers, and the second is 11 through turnover in the existing system. Each year, about 12 800 to 1,000 individuals are enrolled to fill vacancies
13 made available by people who leave the system. Each month 14 there are changes as people leave the program and others 15 enroll.

16 The waiting list does not decrease as rapidly as 17 enrollment increases, predominantly because of the impact
18 of the baby boom demographic. The US Census Bureau reports 19 that when persons born between 1946 and '64, commonly known 20 as the baby boom generation, began turning age 65 in 2011, 21 we started to witness a rapid growth of the wait of persons 22 65 and over. The country and our State are aging.

23 As the population over 65 grows, then demand for 24 long-term-care services increases in the general population 25 over 65. The people with ID and autism are 1.55 percent of

1 that baby boom generation. So as the Baby Boomers age, the 2 percentage of them that have ID is also aging, and so their 3 need for services is coming on us, as it is with the 4 typical population.

5 In addition, though, there are Baby Boomers who 6 are 65 and older who are not disabled and who don't need 7 long-term care but who have children with ID and autism.
8 These aging families are losing their capacity to care for 9 their adult children and are now seeking services. Had 10 there been no waiting list before the Baby Boomers began to 11 age, the increased demand due to the aging population would 12 have resulted in a waiting list.

13 DHS's actions to address the waiting list and the 14 interest list:

15 First, the service expansion:

16 • The Department is currently implementing the 17 fiscal year '15-16 budget initiatives, which will 18 reach about 1,050 people with intellectual 19 disabilities and autism. So that expansion is 20 beginning now.

21 • The Governor's Executive Budget for '16-17 22 includes $12.3 million in State funding, to reach an 23 additional 850 individuals with intellectual 24 disability and autism over the next year. So that, 25 again, is program expansion.

1 • Through turnover, the Department will be able 2 to accommodate approximately 800 to 1,000 individuals 3 from the waiting list each year.

4 • And there's an additional $41 million in the 5 budget to accommodate the increased needs of the 6 people coming from the waiting list.

7 • And lastly, the Department is funding 8 $500,000 in the budget to leverage an additional 9 $1.8 million in Federal vocational rehabilitation
10 funds to expand employment services for individuals 11 with intellectual disability and autism.

12 Second, improving supports to families:

13 Recognizing that a majority of people receiving 14 services are living with their families -- approximately 15 70 percent -- and that many families are looking for 16 in-home supports, the Department of Human Services is 17 implementing program initiatives to improve supports to 18 families.

19 Pennsylvania is joining the National Supporting 20 Families Collaborative with 15 other States to explore 21 together ways that State policies and programs could be 22 transformed to better support individuals and their 23 families throughout their lifespan.

24 DHS will invite six counties in Pennsylvania to 25 participate in a statewide collaborative to redesign local

1 programs and practice. Local collaboratives will include
2 individuals and families, local community organizations, 3 and relevant public entities to develop community
4 solutions. Most important, Supporting Families
5 Collaborative will focus on methods of supporting families 6 of individuals on the waiting list and interest list.

7 As we prepare to launch this initiative, DHS
8 has sponsored the Pennsylvania Family Network, a 9 family-operated program that will provide information and 10 training to families across the Commonwealth. The 11 network's efforts will build the capacity of families to 12 plan for the future and access resources throughout their 13 community.

14 Managing resources:

15 DHS is launching an effort to establish a new fee
16 schedule for residential programs. Currently, over a 17 billion of our $3 billion supports people living in group 18 homes.

19 The move in fiscal year '11-12 from 20 county-negotiated contracts to cost-based rates established 21 by the Commonwealth was a good step toward standardizing
22 rates and strengthening accountability. But after 4 years 23 of implementation, the methodology of cost settling every 24 residential location has become burdensome for both 25 providers and the Commonwealth, and more importantly, has

1 resulted in a disconnect between the reimbursement and the 2 degree of service each person needs. A reimbursement fee
3 schedule that more adequately matches their individual need 4 will improve the management of our resources.

5 Lastly, planning for the future:

6 DHS plans to improve the instruments and 7 methodology used to identify and plan for people on the 8 waiting list and interest list. The Department intends to 9 maintain one list for people with ID and autism, while 10 assuredly maintaining an indicator for each unique 11 diagnosis, and to design a single assessment that will 12 provide adequate information about each person's 13 disability, the type and degree of support the individual 14 needs, and his or her living situation, including the needs 15 of the family, in order to improve our planning and our 16 budgeting. In addition, the Department is looking to 17 standardize the criteria used to prioritize individuals on 18 the waiting list for services.

19 Program expansion in the future should focus on 20 supporting families with services, information, and 21 training. We must reach families early in life so that 22 they can prepare and plan for the future, discover 23 resources in the community, and also create a positive
24 vision for their family member. We must support families 25 to connect with other families from whom they can learn and

1 enjoy the benefits of peer support.

2 Our services to people living with their families
3 should focus on employment, because a good job enables more 4 independence and having a valued role in the family and 5 community. Ideally, we should connect with individuals 6 before they complete their education so that the skills 7 they develop in school are not lost but instead are used to 8 get a job.

9 The renewal of the two Medicaid home and 10 community-based waivers beginning in July of 2017 provides 11 an opportunity for us to strengthen our ability to support 12 families and individuals with disabilities.

13 Thank you for the opportunity to provide this 14 information today, and I will be happy to answer any 15 questions that you have.

16 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Thank you,
17 Secretary.

18 Just a point of clarification. We're going to 19 wait until the very end to do the questions and answers, if 20 that's okay.

21 But I also wanted to recognize some of my 22 colleagues that have joined us: Representative 23 Craig Staats, Representative Eddie Pashinski, and 24 Representative Judy Ward.

25 Good morning, Celia.

1 MS. FEINSTEIN: Good morning.

2 Good morning, Representative Murt and Committee 3 Members and staff. I thank you for the opportunity to 4 testify before you today.

5 My name is Celia Feinstein, and I am the 6 Co-Executive Director of the Institute on Disabilities at 7 Temple University.

8 The Institute is one of 67 centers throughout the 9 country funded by the Federal Developmental Disabilities 10 Assistance and Bill of Rights Act of 2000. We are 11 Pennsylvania's University Center for Excellence in 12 Developmental Disabilities Education, Research, and 13 Service, UCEDD, and although our primary location is on 14 Temple University's main campus in Philadelphia, we are a 15 statewide program with a satellite office in Wexford, PA.

16 Our charge through the Developmental Disabilities 17 Act is to provide interdisciplinary pre-service training in 18 order to prepare the next generation of professionals, to 19 do community training, technical assistance and service, 20 and research and dissemination, all on behalf of people 21 with intellectual and developmental disabilities and their 22 families. We have been Pennsylvania's UCEDD since 1973, 23 celebrating our 43rd anniversary this year.

24 One of the core responsibilities of the UCEDD is 25 to be a resource to the disability community, both in

1 developing information and then in interpreting information
2 that exists. It is in this capacity I stand before you
3 today.

4 I have been asked to present data on the issues
5 facing people with disabilities and their families,
6 particularly those individuals graduating from high school
7 and those individuals with aging caregivers.

8 For purposes of this testimony, I will be 9 referring both to national data sources, primarily from the 10 National Association of Directors of Developmental 11 Disabilities Services and from the University of Minnesota, 12 and to the waiting list information provided through the 13 Pennsylvania waiting list instrument referred to as the 14 "Prioritization of Urgency of Need for Services," or PUNS.

15 From a national perspective, there are several 16 assumptions that we must consider. This is hard for you to 17 see. I apologize, members of the audience, but I thought 18 having a visual might be helpful.

19 Ah, there's a big screen in the back. Oh. So 20 okay; okay. Awesome.

21 Okay. So just some basic assumptions:

22 One is that growth in public funding is slowing 23 down, and we know this.

24 The second, which is the bottom chart, shows
25 that the workforce will not keep pace with the demand.

1 Typically, those who provide supports to people with 2 intellectual disabilities are women between the ages of 3 25 and 44 providing supports, and in many cases to those 4 65 and older, to those with lifelong disabilities.

5 As the chart shows, while the population of 6 individuals age 65 is on a steady increase, the population 7 of women between the ages of 25 and 44 has flattened.

8 Additionally, the population of individuals with 9 intellectual and developmental disabilities is competing 10 with the aging community and other communities who utilize 11 the very same population of middle-aged women for support.

12 The next assumption:

13 Families with whom 87 percent of individuals with 14 intellectual and developmental disabilities live nationally 15 are also continuing to age. Of the 4.7 million people with 16 I/DD nationally, 13 percent are receiving services outside 17 the home, 12 percent are receiving services at home, and 18 75 percent are not receiving services.

19 In addition to these national data, we also have 20 data about individuals with I/DD who are waiting for 21 services in Pennsylvania. As Nancy said, currently the 22 waiting list includes currently 13,933 people, of whom 23 35 percent are in "emergency" need, defined as needing 24 services within the next 6 months.

25 As the PUNS data from January of 2016 shows, of

1 the 13,933 people waiting, 2,516, or 18 percent, of the 2 caregivers are over age 60. Of these individuals, 744 were 3 in the "emergency" category and 1,742 in the "critical"
4 category, needing services within 2 years.

5 When you look at whether these individuals are 6 receiving any services, the following slide elucidates the 7 situation:

8 Of those waiting for services, approximately 9 53 percent are unserved, 47 percent underserved. If we add 10 to the mix those individuals who have been authorized or 11 enrolled in the waiver but are not yet receiving services, 12 there are still 5,658 individuals who are unserved.

13 The national data from the University of 14 Minnesota finds similar demands for services.

15 I think -- go forward one. There you go.

16 So this difficult-to-see slide just shows you the 17 demand for services since 1999, and you can see how that 18 pattern has formulated.

19 Okay. The National Core Indicators is a 20 collaborative effort between the National Association of 21 State Directors of Developmental Disabilities Services, 22 NASDDDS, and the Human Services Research Institute. The 23 purpose of the program, which began in 1997, is to support
24 State developmental disabilities' agencies to gather a 25 standard set of performance and outcome measures that can

1 be used to track their own performance over time to 2 compare results across States and to establish national 3 benchmarks.

4 Pennsylvania has participated in NCI since its 5 inception. Currently, 46 States and the District of 6 Columbia participate in NCI efforts.

7 As the NCI data shows, 64 percent of caregivers 8 are over 55 years of age. This is inclusive of the 9 11 percent who are 75 years or older.

10 Next.

11 In Pennsylvania, as the next chart shows, of the 12 individuals with I/DD receiving services, 57 percent of 13 them are living with family members. The Pennsylvania 14 percentage is similar to the national average of 56.5.

15 Another issue that must be considered in making 16 decisions about how to support people with intellectual and 17 developmental disabilities and their families is to look at 18 the situation that finds so many families in poverty.

19 From the 2011 NCI data, as the next slide shows, 20 46 percent of the people interviewed in the adult family 21 survey are living in poverty, defined as below $25,000.
22 The HHS poverty guidelines for a family of four in 2011 was 23 $22,350.

24 Another area of need identified in Pennsylvania 25 is the need for supports for those transitioning from

1 high school to adult life.

2 ODP, the Bureau of Special Education in the 3 Pennsylvania Department of Education, and the Office of 4 Vocational Rehabilitation in the Department of Labor and 5 Industry have made tremendous strides in supports to 6 students with I/DD, so that when students reach the age of 7 21, that feeling of falling off a cliff into an abyss has 8 lessened for many.

9 However, despite the strides made, more needs to 10 be done on behalf of students, both while they are still in 11 school to prepare them for life after high school and once
12 they graduate from high school. Whether a student chooses 13 to continue their education through a postsecondary option
14 of some kind or begin life in the world of work, supports 15 should be available as needed.

16 The PUNS data reflects the following:

17 As the data shows, there were 739 individuals who 18 are 21 and leaving the education system, according to the 19 January 2016 PUNS report. Of those individuals, 518 were 20 in the "emergency" category, and 176 were in the "critical" 21 category. These individuals are primarily waiting for 22 employment and other pre-vocational supports. And as Nancy 23 stated, this does not include people with autism who are 24 not receiving supports, who are not captured through the 25 ID waiting list.

1 The two groups of people I have spoken about 2 today represent among the most critically needy individuals
3 on the waiting list. However, others wait as well.

4 I have not talked about the families who struggle
5 to make it every day yet still need support. They may only 6 be in their 40s or 50s, but if one of the two parents 7 becomes ill, if the parents divorce, or if like so many of 8 us they are sandwiched by taking care of children and 9 parents at the same time, they are minutes from disaster on 10 a daily basis.

11 It is our greatest hope that families will be 12 kept together with just a little support from the system
13 when they need it. It is our sincere hope that resources 14 will be made available to support everyone on the waiting 15 list who needs support.

16 Thank you for your time.

17 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Thank you, Celia.

18 Good morning, Sheila.

19 MS. STASKO: Good morning.

20 I am pleased to be here. I thank you,
21 Representative Murt, as well as Members of the Human 22 Services Committee.

23 I am pleased to have this opportunity to share 24 information with you. I am the mother of a man who is 25 nearly 40 years old. He has an intellectual disability,

1 a hearing impairment, limited and difficult speech.

2 John is one of 6 children, 13 grandchildren, and 3 2 great-grandchildren.

4 I am part of that sandwich generation. My mother 5 is soon to be 90, is in a memory-care facility with severe
6 Alzheimer's. John and I visit my mother nearly every day 7 to make sure she is protected and taken care of.

8 It's a different kind of life, certainly not one 9 that we would have chosen. But we love our family and we 10 love our 40-year-old man, and our lives would crumble 11 without any kind of support.

12 I am here today because I am passionate about the 13 14,000 people who are on waiting lists across Pennsylvania, 14 whose lives will be torn apart because of unrelenting 15 caregiving. Forty-five hundred people are in "emergency" 16 need, according to the county system.

17 I attended the Human Services Committee meetings
18 in both the House and the Senate, and I was really taken 19 aback by how strongly you advocated for the things that 20 touched your heart and you are interested in, those who 21 have family members or people in your districts who were 22 concerned with drug and alcohol, or early childhood, or 23 mental health, long-term care.

24 And Legislators felt very strongly that no one
25 should ever wait, that you needed funding now, and yet I

1 don't understand why it's okay for this population of 2 people to wait. Why is it okay to take this segment and 3 say, it's all right; you can wait because you have families 4 who are going to take care of you.

5 The thing is that we are taking care of our 6 children until we can no longer take care of them. Our 7 concern is, what's going to happen to them when we die?
8 Who is going to be there for our children?

9 From the moment of birth, we are dealing with a 10 system that really doesn't fill our needs. Any parent will 11 tell you it's about filling out the paperwork and personal 12 plans. We run to doctors and hospitals more. We cry a 13 little bit more. We do battles with schools and the 14 administration. We're constantly explaining and fixing 15 things. As everyday life brings on challenges and the 16 support to help ease through transitions to a regular life, 17 that's exactly what we're looking for in everyday life.

18 I can honestly state that changes are finally 19 being made. Deputy Secretary Thaler has stood up and 20 recognized the role and importance of families in the 21 system. She's working on and implementing change with the 22 involvement of families, to which I say, finally! Up 23 until this point, we were rarely afforded a seat at the 24 table.

25 There are policy and regulatory changes that need

1 to happen to make our system flow for families, and it's 2 important that they are stated and recognized.

3 First of all, that waiting list does need to be 4 recognized. Families across the Commonwealth, and you'll 5 meet them here today, they're from all areas of the 6 Commonwealth, especially those who are on the "emergency"
7 waiting list. The Governor's budget will only help 8 250 people on that "emergency" list, leaving nearly 4,500
9 without hope.

10 We need to address more than 1,200 people on that 11 Priority 1 list for autism services. We need a more 12 aggressive approach or we're going to be in big trouble.
13 We have 20, 30, 70K, the unknown number out there, of 14 people with autism. The Bureau of Autism is not ready to 15 support the tens of thousands of people in Pennsylvania who 16 have loved ones with autism. The adult system only serves 17 a very small number of those who will need help.

18 There shouldn't really be a separation between 19 ID and autism. The ID and autism systems operate very 20 differently, and many families struggle to understand the 21 system that can best meet their needs. When a child 22 reaches 21, we get the calls. They don't know who they're 23 supposed to be going to, or what they're supposed to be 24 asking for, or which is the best waiver, or how are they 25 going to have their needs met.

1 The Office of Developmental Programs should 2 change the process so they understand who qualifies for 3 both systems and make both processes for waiting lists fair 4 enrollment, transparent, and based on need and easy to 5 navigate.

6 Please restore county-based funding. It's a
7 lifeline for many people. County-based funding was cut 8 dramatically in the Corbett Administration and it needs to 9 be restored. Families on the waiting list often relied on 10 those limited resources to help them get through these 11 emergency and rough patches until a home and 12 community-based waiver funding was available.

13 Restore family support funding at the county 14 level. In the past, counties would have limited amounts of 15 funding to offer family support. That funding has 16 essentially dried up. What it did was give families a 17 limited amount of funding that they could use on things 18 that they really wanted and needed, whether it was respite, 19 the ability to just have someone watch their child for a 20 couple of hours, day camp. And for a family to be able to 21 choose exactly what they needed and to have that flexible 22 amount, little amount of money, it was a godsend, and I 23 remember using that years ago for my son.

24 We need to provide relief for the older
25 caregivers in "emergency" status. There are 2,516 family

1 caregivers over the age of 60 who need support. Nearly 2 800 are in emergency situations, which means their loved
3 one's health and welfare is at risk and they need help 4 immediately.

5 The next one, No. 7, "Succession of care," ties 6 into that. When we talk to a family about what it is they 7 need, we're not talking about wills, trusts, and estate
8 planning. We're talking about, what's going to happen?
9 Who's going to take care of my kid when I'm not here to 10 take care of them any longer? That planning isn't strong 11 enough. It really isn't done in a measured way.

12 So all the planning we do, all the fighting, the 13 struggling, it's for nothing, because when we're gone, the 14 people who take over aren't going to be fighting and 15 carrying the torch forward. So we can build a wonderful 16 life for ourselves, but if there isn't someone who cares as 17 deeply about our individual as we do, it's just simply not 18 going to happen.

19 We need to eliminate high school grads on a 20 yearly basis. Essentially, the waiting list for adult 21 services begins when a person leaves high school, and if 22 the State plans for each and every graduate from school to 23 enroll into services, that's where we can stop that waiting 24 list. We're cutting it off right at the neck.

25 If we could provide a half million dollars in

1 State funding for the 2017 high school graduates -- the 2 budget year 2016-17 includes the high school graduates for 3 June '16 and June '17 -- that half million dollars will 4 support the June 2017 graduates. They would only need 5 1 month of support next fiscal year, and that would provide 6 them and their families the support they need so they could 7 just continue on with life.

8 The last one is a very big one, and we said, why 9 is it that we struggle so from year to year, and it's 10 because the Department needs to be stabilized. We see 11 great changes happening. Every time a new Administration 12 comes in, we have new issues, new problems, and new 13 changes, and we have had some very drastic changes in the 14 last Administration, which really hurt a lot of people.

15 So I don't know how you can do it, but there 16 really needs to be something that allows a smooth 17 transition from one Administration to the next, and that 18 would be a godsend for individuals and families.

19 So you have always been responsive to our needs, 20 and we know this because we come to your offices and we 21 talk to you. And we have witnessed, truly witnessed, a 22 greater understanding and a willingness to support our 23 families and those most vulnerable in the system, and we 24 thank you for your support.

25 Thank you very much.

1 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Thank you,
2 Sheila.

3 MS. STASKO: You're welcome.

4 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Just this panel, 5 we're going to ask you to take a few questions now, because 6 we know Secretary Thaler cannot stay with us until the end.
7 And if I could just begin, Secretary, and I think this is 8 an easy one.

9 In your testimony on page 5, you mention that 10 there are some people that leave the system, and my 11 question is, why would an individual with an intellectual 12 disability or their family decide to leave the system?

13 DEPUTY SECRETARY THALER: I don't have the exact 14 numbers, but people surely pass away. The good news is 15 that people live a long life, but they do pass away. And 16 sometimes people just simply leave the State. There is 17 rarely a withdrawal from service because they don't need 18 service anymore; it's usually leaving the State or passing 19 away.

20 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: All right. Dan.
21 Representative Miller; I'm sorry.

22 REPRESENTATIVE MILLER: Thank you, Tom. I know 23 we're short on time.

24 There was a lot there, and I just want to bottle 25 it here. And I appreciate the work that you and the

1 Administration are doing on this and the comments brought 2 together by all the panelists. But one of the quotes that 3 came up was "the waiting list needs to be recognized."
4 Just more of a comment, and my hope is to hear more on this 5 later.

6 To be honest, I don't want it recognized; I want 7 it eliminated, all right?

8 DEPUTY SECRETARY THALER: Right.

9 REPRESENTATIVE MILLER: So I don't see -- and I
10 know that there are numbers being kicked around and so 11 forth, but every day that is ticking by, I mean, we're 12 talking, one of the speakers referenced how, well, it's not 13 about trusts and estates. The majority of people who are 14 dealing with a loved one, caring for a loved one with a 15 disability, they're not going to be really leaving much in 16 a trust and estate. So that is almost an irrelevant part 17 of the conversation. I'm glad to work on it, but not 18 really where the meat of it is.

19 DEPUTY SECRETARY THALER: Right.

20 REPRESENTATIVE MILLER: The reality of it is that 21 these families are hanging on by the thinnest thread, and a 22 simple breeze one way on the wrong day and the whole thing 23 is off.

24 So I would ask you, Madam Secretary, as you go 25 back, and hopefully as we continue the conversation with

1 it, what I'm looking for from the office -- and I
2 appreciate the summary data for it -- I want a plan with 3 real numbers. And I know there's going to be a lot of it
4 there, but I want a plan with real numbers that doesn't 5 recognize it, that eliminates it.

6 So thank you very much for your time. I 7 appreciate it.

8 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Representative
9 Pashinski.

10 REPRESENTATIVE PASHINSKI: Thank you very much.

11 And thank you all for your testimony.

12 Could you please go back to the last 13 Administration, because we had an $84 million cut, right?
14 Okay. So now, how did you deal with that $84 million cut?

15 And initially Governor Wolf had indicated he 16 wanted to restore that over 3 years, $28 million each year.
17 Could you lay out how that would work? What happened with 18 the 84 -- what happened to all these folks, and now, if the 19 $28 million came back per year, how that would restore 20 whatever your needs are.

21 DEPUTY SECRETARY THALER: Sure.

22 I think the amount you're talking about is the 23 human services from the money that goes to counties, and 24 this Governor proposed restoring it every 3 years. That's 25 probably the most responsive and flexible money we have in

1 this system, because it goes to county government, and 2 county administrators are free to resolve problems as they 3 occur on the spot.

4 And quite frankly, with less funds, they first 5 took money away from structures, like we have monitoring
6 teams and health-care quality units. So first they cut 7 them, because it wasn't service, and so they undermined the 8 ability of those two entities to do their jobs. And then 9 they simply authorized less service. There were people who 10 didn't get services for that amount because the money 11 simply wasn't there.

12 REPRESENTATIVE PASHINSKI: So therefore, that 13 increased the number of people on the waiting list.

15 MS. FEINSTEIN: Yes.

16 REPRESENTATIVE PASHINSKI: Okay.

17 DEPUTY SECRETARY THALER: Or it made -- people 18 may have gotten less. You know, I talk about this sort of 19 lifeline. A lot of people on the waiting list are getting 20 something. That doesn't change the fact that it's critical 21 or an emergency or they're not stressed out; it just simply 22 means we're keeping it together day by day so it doesn't 23 fall apart. And I think that's what that local money does 24 for people, and not having it undermines their ability to 25 do that.

1 REPRESENTATIVE PASHINSKI: And what other cost 2 drivers do you have that would increase the need for 3 dollars?

4 DEPUTY SECRETARY THALER: I think there are 5 probably two: the demand for service, the need for 6 services; and the other is just simply the cost for 7 service. So providers having to, for instance, absorb the 8 cost of the Affordable Care Act, which gives more people 9 health insurance. Or the recent Federal Department of 10 Labor rules on both overtime and payment to supervisors, 11 staff, or the right -- raising the threshold at which you 12 can exempt people from overtime.

13 So providers have those increased -- plus, these 14 days, the cost of living doesn't go up astronomically but 15 it does go up some, and providers want to be able to 16 compete for the workforce.

17 So it's both increased costs and the need for 18 services are the two big drivers.

19 REPRESENTATIVE PASHINSKI: Thank you very much.
20 Thank you.

22 Kinsey.

23 REPRESENTATIVE KINSEY: Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

24 Also, I want to thank the three of you for being 25 here this morning. I think I have had opportunities in the 1 past to talk with each of you. I actually had the 2 opportunity to work with you, Ms. Thaler, years ago.

3 DEPUTY SECRETARY THALER: Right.

4 REPRESENTATIVE KINSEY: A couple weeks ago when 5 the Appropriations Committee met, we met with the 6 Secretary, Secretary Dallas, and I think for the second 7 year in a row I have asked a similar question, and you sort 8 of touched on it a few minutes ago, Secretary Thaler.

9 You know, I shared how I was once a provider,
10 still am a provider, actually, but not a direct-care
11 service provider. And the question that I asked, and I 12 think, again, you just touched on it, but I have asked the 13 question in regards to the folks that are providing 14 services. And, Ms. Feinstein, in your report you mention 15 that the workforce will not keep pace with the demand.

16 Going back to the workforce in and of itself, I 17 had asked the question of Secretary Dallas about an 18 increase for those individuals that are providing services 19 to individuals. And unfortunately, I don't believe -- and 20 Secretary Thaler, you can correct me -- but I don't believe 21 that there were dollars allocated to provide an increase 22 for those individuals providing services.

23 DEPUTY SECRETARY THALER: Right.

24 REPRESENTATIVE KINSEY: So, Ms. Feinstein, then 25 back to your report, I mean, so if there are no dollars to

1 provide additional moneys to those individuals who work in 2 that profession, I mean, you provide training. I mean, is 3 that one of the keys that we're finding out in regards to 4 the workforce, you know, not meeting the demand?

5 MS. FEINSTEIN: Absolutely. I think the wage
6 issue is huge. The availability of bodies is another
7 issue. So what are we doing, and I can speak for my own 8 university.

9 The College of Education at Temple University has 10 made a decision that teaching teachers is not all we should 11 be doing in the College of Ed. We should be preparing 12 people who might come through a college of education to 13 learn to work in human services in another capacity.

14 So I think universities are aware of the 15 population trends. We're deeply aware, because it is 16 affected by our enrollments every day, although now that we 17 have a good football team, that's not so much of an issue 18 for Temple.

19 REPRESENTATIVE KINSEY: And basketball.

20 MS. FEINSTEIN: And basketball. They had lost 21 last week.

22 But truly, we're all reinventing ourselves,
23 recognizing the population trend needs.

24 REPRESENTATIVE KINSEY: Thank you.

25 Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

1 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Any other
2 questions for our panel?

3 Thank you very much for testifying today.

4

6 SCHOOL/TRANSITION

7
8 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Can we ask our 9 next panel to please come forward?

10 Good morning, everyone. Thank you for being with 11 us today.

12 Tom, do you want to go first?

13 MR. TOM CARASITI: I'm going to let Marisol speak 14 first.

15 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Sure.

16 MS. RAMOS: I'm sorry; I was supposed to go 17 second.

18 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: That's okay.
19 Take your time.

20 MS. RAMOS: So I will start to thank you, all of 21 you, for this support that you have given to me and my 22 family over these years.

23 My name is Marisol Ramos, and 22 years ago I came 24 from Puerto Rico with my husband, Jose. I had my daughter, 25 Naomi, and my son, Justin.

1 I work for a company called Vision For Equality, 2 and this company helps educate families with people with 3 disabilities. And I work there because I became to 4 advocate for my children and for other people, and this is 5 a pleasure for me. My husband works at the city of 6 Philadelphia in the Health Department.

7 And I want to tell a little briefly about Naomi.
8 She was premature. Now she -- I'm sorry. She had a lot of 9 medical and physical disabilities, impairment. She 10 requires a lot of care and around-the-clock supervision.

11 After she was born, the doctor tell me, like, 12 it's really a good idea to put her ahead in an institution, 13 but my husband and I feel like that's not a place for my 14 daughter. Also, I want my daughter to be with us at home 15 with all the love. The only I ask for my kids is to have 16 the same opportunities like other people have.

17 After I had my daughter, 6 years later Justin 18 came. Justin had autism. For us, it's really sad, but at 19 the same time, already they start working with him for he 20 gets the therapies they need.

21 Now we have nursing services like every week, 22 like 50 hours a week. And she had a nurse for 10 hours.
23 And in this moment I'm really upset, because a couple 24 months ago they tell me they want to cut the nurse for 25 Naomi, and that is really bad for us, because without

1 support -- I also had a mental health support hearing.
2 It's only me and my husband. So I'm in the second appeal
3 for trying to get this service back for her, because really 4 she requires, because she had all that stuff, she really 5 needs the services.

6 Plus now, to continue without services, my 7 husband or I have to quit our jobs. And it got to be 8 really bad, because us really want to provide for our 9 children. Us want to give them all the stuff they need, 10 but without a job, that got to be impossible.

11 So the thing I can ask to do is try. I'm sorry 12 I'm not reading the thing I'm coming with.

13 Like, thinking of all the families like our 14 family who is in the waiting list, some of the people are 15 really, like, only they need a little support to continue 16 helping the kids, because they deserve, like, the same 17 thing everybody has.

18 So thank you so much for listening to us. I have 19 to leave, but thank you. Thank you very much.

20 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Thank you,
21 Marisol.

22 MR. TOM CARASITI: Representatives, the testimony
23 that was submitted earlier for mine, it was a little long.
24 So in the interests of time, I kind of -- the same content, 25 but I brought it down some. And I will give that to Pam

1 later so that she can put this testimony on record.

2 Good morning, Representatives. My name is 3 Tom Carasiti. I'm from Pike County. I'm here with my 4 wife, Teri, and my 24-year-old son, Glenn.

5 Thank you for this time to make our appeal for 6 your support; specifically, to fund high school ID and ASD 7 graduates.

8 Our son has an intellectual disability, an IQ of 9 54, and the many, many challenges that accompany severe 10 autism. He was not fortunate to have the skills you and I 11 have for life's journey, but in collaboration with 12 advocates, Legislators wrote and passed laws so that Glenn 13 received an exclusive special education. So instead of 14 being institutionalized, left rocking and self-stimming, 15 Glenn was educated and learned many basic skills and is 16 able to participate in family activities.

17 Despite his challenges, you enabled him to 18 exercise his right to the pursuit of happiness, but only 19 through school age. At graduation, our ID and ASD adults 20 then have the right to be institutionalized at tremendous 21 costs, but we waived that right for a chance, the waiting 22 list, at a much less costly but much improved life at home 23 and in the community.

24 Fortunately for Glenn and our family, thanks to 25 most of you who were here during the 2012-2013 budget

1 process, Glenn received the graduate initiative and came 2 off the waiver waiting list, so thank you very much.

3 (A slide-show presentation was played.)

4 MR. TOM CARASITI: What has Glenn been doing with 5 the taxpayers' dollars on the waiver program? Back up.
6 Back up two. Thank you.

7 Glenn goes off to work 5 days a week. Two days
8 he volunteers, and 3 days he's actually in competitive 9 employment in a restaurant.

10 So Glenn, what are you doing in this picture? Do 11 you see the picture, and what are you doing in this 12 picture?

13 MR. GLENN CARASITI: He's cleaning the -- he's 14 cleaning the thing up on the tank truck.

15 MR. TOM CARASITI: Okay. You're cleaning the 16 water tank truck.

17 Okay. What are you doing in this picture?

18 MR. GLENN CARASITI: He's cleaning the fire truck 19 panels for the fire truck supplies.

20 MR. TOM CARASITI: Yes. One day a week, we 21 volunteer at the firehouse.

22 This day he's volunteering at a fitness center.
23 What are you cleaning at the fitness center?

24 MR. GLENN CARASITI: The handles.

25 MR. TOM CARASITI: Okay. We hope eventually this

1 can lead to competitive employment.

2 Now, this is competitive employment. He gets 3 minimum wage.

4 MR. GLENN CARASITI: I take out the pizza boxes, 5 and it's unflattable.

6 MR. TOM CARASITI: Yes. You take them from being 7 "unflattable."

8 What are you doing in this picture?

9 MR. GLENN CARASITI: I take the raw chicken legs.
10 It's not crispy. (Blah.) And put it on the oven tray.

11 MR. TOM CARASITI: He puts the raw chicken on the 12 oven tray.

13 MR. GLENN CARASITI: But I like the buffalo
14 boneless chicken wings crispy. I take the barbecued 15 chicken wings.

16 MR. TOM CARASITI: Okay. He's elaborating now.

17 MR. GLENN CARASITI: It's good. I put bacon on 18 the tray.

19 MR. TOM CARASITI: There he's putting bacon on 20 the tray.

21 MR. GLENN CARASITI: On the middle of the tray.
22 It's on the middle of the tin oven tray.

23 MR. TOM CARASITI: Now, Glenn has a -- last, 24 what's this activity, Glenn? Glenn, what are you doing 25 here?

1 MR. GLENN CARASITI: Onion rings.

2 MR. TOM CARASITI: Talk into the microphone.

3 MR. GLENN CARASITI: Onion rings. I put them on 4 the scale.

5 MR. TOM CARASITI: How many ounces?

6 MR. GLENN CARASITI: Seven.

7 MR. TOM CARASITI: Okay. He makes sure the 8 portions are only 7 ounces. Okay.

9 Now, and this is the coworkers, Glenn's coworkers 10 at the restaurant. And he does -- probably there are at 11 least about 20 different tasks he does for the restaurant, 12 similar to what you just saw.

13 So like us, even with an IQ of 54, he gets the 14 connection of work and the quality of life it brings.

15 MR. GLENN CARASITI: Lisa.

16 MR. TOM CARASITI: Oh; he's naming his coworkers.
17 Okay.

18 He enjoys the self-worth of being productive, 19 earning a wage, and choosing his spending. He likes 20 earning his "bucks," as he calls it, and the ability to 21 purchase "stuff" and planning his vacation time. And 22 that's something now that has been of the last couple of 23 years. He likes planning his vacation time.

24 Glenn, what do you plan -- what's your vacation
25 you're planning for this year?

1 MR. GLENN CARASITI: They're juicy.

2 MR. TOM CARASITI: No, no; we're going to do 3 better than that.

4 MRS. CARASITI: Where are we going for summer
5 vacation?

6 MR. GLENN CARASITI: New England.

7 MRS. CARASITI: New England.

8 MR. TOM CARASITI: He wants to go to New England.
9 Why to New England? What do you want to see?

10 MRS. CARASITI: What buildings?

11 MR. GLENN CARASITI: The Capitol Buildings.

12 MRS. CARASITI: The State Capitol Buildings.

13 MR. TOM CARASITI: From coming here to Harrisburg
14 to advocate, he now likes Capitol Buildings. We have made 15 quite a few Capitol Building stops across the United 16 States.

17 MRS. CARASITI: Seven under our belt so far.

18 MR. CARASITI: Yes.

19 And Glenn, where did we go last year? Where was 20 your vacation that you picked last year?

21 MR. GLENN CARASITI: Canada.

22 MR. TOM CARASITI: Why Canada?

23 MR. GLENN CARASITI: Ottawa.

24 MRS. CARASITI: Ottawa. We went to Ottawa.

25 MR. TOM CARASITI: Ottawa, because of their

1 Capitol. It's a double Capitol, as he calls it, because 2 it---

3 MR. GLENN CARASITI: And Paris.

4 MRS. CARASITI: And Paris -- Ontario.

5 MR. TOM CARASITI: Yes. Yes; we did not 6 travel---

7 MRS. CARASITI: Paris, Ontario, not Paris, 8 Europe.

10 MR. GLENN CARASITI: Ottawa. Like a Parkway City
11 Hotel?

12 MRS. CARASITI: Yes, it was like a Parkway City
13 Hotel.

14 MR. TOM CARASITI: Okay.

15 Your voting for graduate funding in 2012, that 16 was the enabler here. We raised the expectations, you 17 provided the funding and the job coach, and he grew with 18 the challenge.

19 Without the funding, he would be idle at home, 20 his skills and behaviors eroding. Without it, he would 21 regress, possibly becoming too difficult to handle in our 22 advanced years, and therefore, institutionalized at a 23 higher cost with an outcome unlike the results we have 24 now.

25 So we have a new class of graduates that need

1 your support, and only you have the power to enable them
2 the same support that you afforded Glenn, the same
3 opportunity most Pennsylvanians, like us in this room, 4 enjoy just by virtue of birth.

5 And here are some reasons why I think you should 6 fund -- whoops; how did that happen? Let's see if you can 7 rotate that. There you go.

8 First of all, there's the highest standard, that 9 Representative Murt even mentioned at the beginning, set 10 forth by Thomas Jefferson in the Declaration of 11 Independence: All citizens have an inalienable right to 12 pursue happiness. They can't pursue happiness idle at home 13 or in institutions. Without a waiver initiative, we deny 14 them the natural right that you and I enjoy, a right we 15 give them for education but not for adulthood.

16 On average, special education students cost
17 $17,000 annually. The more severe, like Glenn, the costs
18 are higher. For Glenn's job coach, for the outcome you 19 just saw, that cost is only about 9,000 per year in State 20 dollars.

21 That cost, that doesn't waste the education
22 investment already paid for by taxpayers. It helps support 23 up to three jobs: Glenn's job, his job coach, and in some 24 cases, a parent won't have to quit work to stay home with 25 their son or daughter.

1 The third bullet: It's a smart investment,
2 because it immediately leverages a 52 percent Federal 3 match. It's a 100 percent return directly back into the 4 Pennsylvania economy, not to the individual, but to jobs.

5 There's also a new emphasis in legislation for 6 schools and OVR to place individuals in jobs before they 7 graduate high school, but the school supports for those 8 jobs, transportation for one, end at graduation. If you do 9 not pass the graduate initiatives, those students will lose 10 their jobs and we have wasted education and OVR dollars.
11 We need to be consistent with our other legislation.

12 Funding here provides the positive benefits just 13 noted and avoids other government costs for results such as 14 welfare or increased medical mental health costs. Without 15 a graduate initiative, a parent may have to quit their job 16 to remain home with their son or daughter. What does a 17 single parent do? This could tip the family income balance 18 to require other government assistance programs.

19 We should take the proactive approach and 20 transition our graduates to productive outcomes with 21 Medicaid dollars and avoid using government assistance 22 reactively for unintentional costs. Instead of paying for 23 the safety net, let's pay so the individuals and families 24 don't fall to begin with.

25 And lastly, relative to the whole, what I have

1 just described is rather inexpensive. The proposed budget
2 calls for an overall 7.1 percent increase. The proposed 3 initiative only impacts the budget by 0.05 percent, or 4 $5/100^{\text{ths}}$ of a cent.

5 I have one additional request that Sheila spoke 6 about. And you can go to the next.

7 We would like another line item to fund 1 month
8 of the 2017 graduates, because even on an on-time budget 9 initiative, there's a large gap before services can begin,
10 4 to 6 months at best, sometimes longer. This gap causes 11 hardships on the family wage earners and can cause skill 12 regression and loss of jobs created by the schools and 13 OVR.

14 If we had a second initiative for 2017 graduates 15 for 1 month at a cost of only $500,000, then services can 16 begin immediately when they graduate. Graduates and 17 caregivers can then plan their future in advance, similar 18 to what typical high school graduates enjoy.

19 Typical grads are not in limbo on a waiting list
20 subject to budget debates. If you add $500,000 this year 21 for the 2017 graduates, they can be the first class to 22 begin adult services immediately when school supports end, 23 and then next year we won't be back here asking for 24 $5 million more for graduates, only $500,000, to start the 25 next class and so on.

1 You have the power to solve this problem and have 2 an impact on large numbers of families' lives. That one 3 $500,000 change to the budget, or 0.0015 percent, would 4 make a major difference on how Pennsylvania solves the 5 special needs transition from school to adults.

6 Thank you.

7 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Thanks, Tom.

8 Maureen, good morning.

9 MS. CRONIN: Good morning.

10 Thank you so much for the opportunity to talk to 11 you today about the waiting list for persons with 12 intellectual and developmental disabilities. I am 13 extremely honored to speak before you with all the best 14 advocates across Pennsylvania today.

15 I'm the Executive Director of The Arc of 16 Pennsylvania, and as such, many of you know about The Arc.
17 The Arc is a member of the national The Arc US, and in 18 Pennsylvania, we have 34 chapters and 8,000 members.

19 And you have my written testimony, and I won't go 20 through that. Instead, I'm going to keep this pretty 21 short.

22 Quite frankly, I feel like I'm speaking, 23 certainly singing to the choir. Many of you I have worked 24 with personally. If I haven't, the chapters of The Arc 25 have worked and sung your praises to me, so I appreciate

1 all the work that you are doing.

2 I'm really here to give you some ammunition, some 3 more information as you make decisions in your caucuses, 4 because this is a tough time, and I think everyone comes 5 with very, very compelling reasons of how tax funds should 6 be spent. And I want to tell you a little bit more about 7 people who are students who are transitioning from school.
8 They have been in special education for 12, 18 years, and 9 then they are transitioning to adult life.

10 And, you know, when I think about my own son, 11 typically developing son when he was transitioning and we 12 went to high school, it was a pretty simple process. Many 13 of you will remember, you know, you start freshman year.
14 God willing, chances are in 4 years he'll graduate, you 15 know. We had pretty much a plan.

16 You know, the school was very good, helped him
17 get applications and do his SATs. And, I mean, it was a 18 couple months worrying about what college he was going to 19 go to, but it was a pretty smooth process between high 20 school and college.

21 And sure enough, he got into Temple, and we heard 22 a lot about Temple earlier. And, you know, it was very 23 predictable. We even knew what dorm he was going to live 24 in. We knew what branch campuses or what bank branches
25 were on campus. So we were a little bit nervous, but it

1 was a very predictable process, and we knew we were joining 2 the ranks of a whole lot of other people who smoothly
3 transitioned high school kids to college.

4 That's not how it is with people with 5 intellectual disabilities and autism. And I think even 6 looking around the room, most of us know what we're going 7 to be doing in a year. Even if we're changing jobs, we 8 work through a plan B. So it's a pretty predictable life 9 of how it's going to be.

10 For people who have sons and daughters graduating 11 from school, if you go up to them now and you say, 12 "So what's your son or daughter going to do when he 13 graduates from school?" Every single one of them will say, 14 "I don't know. I'm waiting. I'm waiting to hear from the 15 county. I am very nervous. I'm waiting to hear if he's 16 going to get waiver services. I don't know if he's going 17 to be prioritized. You know there are other families that 18 are waiting for services, too, in my county, and I just 19 don't know if he's going to be at the top of that list."
20 It causes extraordinary stress.

21 And I want to tell you a little bit about one of 22 my board directors. So this is -- you know, you picture 23 one of my board directors on the Board of Directors of The 24 Arc of Pennsylvania -- a pretty connected person. She has 25 been a lifelong advocate since her son was born. The time

1 that he was 20 -- he was going to be turning 21 -- she did
2 not know what was going to happen when he turned 21. So 3 this is a person who has, you know, worked tirelessly as an 4 advocate, connected to the county, knew who to call, knew 5 what to do.

6 It was pretty clear what her son was going to 7 need. He was in, you know, this system for 21 years. He 8 had been tested, evaluated. Everybody knew what he would 9 need. He can't be home alone. He would need services and 10 supports. Everybody knew it for 21 years. So it's really 11 kind of hard to understand how, in this case, it still 12 broke down.

13 I would call her periodically, "How's it going?
14 Surely by now you would have heard how he is doing, whether 15 he's going to have waiver services." He's going to be 21.
16 He's now receiving EPSDT services, which would include 17 nursing services.

18 The nursing agency got a little nervous. They 19 knew he was going to turn 21, and they knew the funding 20 that paid for the nursing would stop the day he turns 21.
21 The EPSDT funds would not continue. What's going to be the 22 plan for transition?

23 If you ask the county, the county said, well, you 24 know, we have other families that are waiting that are in, 25 believe it or not, even more dire circumstances than this

1 situation. A little tough to picture, you know, as an 2 outsider, what were those other situations that were worse
3 than this 21-year-old, medically fragile, couldn't be home
4 alone, needed a lot of supports, two parents working. So I
5 can imagine, those kinds of emergencies for the other 6 families must have been pretty impressive if this really 7 stressed the county in trying to figure out who they were 8 going to support.

9 You know, people say, well, the parents, you
10 know, they were both working: "One could stay at home, 11 couldn't they?" Well, quite frankly, one would have stayed 12 at home the first time he got sick, you know, and almost 13 died when he was 3. It was tough to continue to keep 14 working when he had such medical needs. It would have been 15 so much easier when he was younger to have one person 16 working, but that wasn't possible. They would not have had 17 a home if they lived off of one income, and it's just as 18 simple as that. They would not have had a home over their 19 heads.

20 So both of them worked. They have been doing the 21 best they could, loving their child, but now this loomed 22 over them. I would call the board director and say, "How's 23 it going?" She would be crying. This is one of the 24 strongest women I know. She has done monumental things 25 caring for her son, and she doesn't know what's going to

1 happen. This is now the beginning of January, and she 2 still doesn't know what's going to happen.

3 So not only are they looking at who's going to 4 quit their job, but also their retirements. You know, half 5 of their retirement is affected, so the safety net for 6 their future is now something that they're concerned about.

7 Sure enough, many calls to the Department of 8 Human Services' Office of Developmental Services --
9 Programs; sorry -- and multiple calls, and finally a week 10 before he turns 21, he is now going to be in a waiver. All 11 is well.

12 I mean, a huge relief for the family, but can you 13 imagine that stress for those few months. I mean, it's 14 just a horrible situation that didn't have to happen. He 15 was going to be 21 for 21 years, you know? I mean, and we 16 knew what he was going to need.

17 So, you know, putting families through that kind 18 of stress, just, it's not fair. None of us go through it.
19 We don't live like that. And I can tell you many, many 20 stories, and I know time is tight. Just know that I'm 21 happy to meet with the individual and tell you more.

22 But, I mean, I have people that work with me.
23 They waited months between high school graduation and when 24 their son received services. And another family used their 25 retirement to hold over. They paid for day supports until 1 their daughter was finally in a waiver.

2 And the people I hang out with are good friends.
3 They are connected to The Arc. And if they are going 4 through this, I can only imagine what it's like for people 5 who don't know who to call and who are really waiting for 6 services and are in dire straits.

7 And we know that if you let things really implode
8 in a family, the types of supports they are going to need 9 are going to be so much greater. It's going to be so much 10 more costly. You know, if we can do some of the things 11 that you heard earlier, is put supports in right when the 12 student is graduating, you don't wait for the whole family 13 to implode.

14 You know, if you wait long enough, the family
15 implodes, and then they need an intermediate-care facility, 16 and we know that that's really expensive, and that's what 17 happens if we don't provide supports early on.

18 So in conclusion, I just want you to know that 19 you appropriate funds each year for graduates, and that's 20 an amazing thing. But what has happened, because of the 21 shortage in funding, the funding wasn't released until 22 9 months into the year. So you thought you did the best 23 you could, but a family actually is waiting in between when 24 their son or daughter graduates. They don't know what it's 25 going to look like.

1 The counties, counties with resources kind of 2 string together things and keep families going. Counties
3 without resources, the family is just hung out to dry.

4 There are a whole lot of families who, when they 5 go to their counties, the county goes, we don't have any 6 money, so they're not even put on a waiting list. They're 7 not even counted in terms of what their circumstances were,
8 because the counties are so tired. They know they don't 9 have money, and they just say, there isn't any money, and 10 so the families don't even try. So we don't even know how 11 bad it is. But we figure if the people that come to us who 12 are connected with The Arc go through all of this, that 13 people who are not connected must really, really have it 14 bad.

15 So I want to thank you very much for the time
16 that you have spent listening to me today, and I want you 17 to know that at The Arc, we're going to do our best. We 18 are going to really, really in the next few months try to 19 get every Legislator to understand how much this funding is 20 needed.

21 We're going to help with, you know, fighting for 22 revenue. I mean, we think that's a critical piece to this.
23 And we know that you are here, too, and we know that you 24 are doing your best and you know how important this work 25 is.

1 And I don't want you to get discouraged. I
2 really do think it's doable. I think it is -- it can be a 3 small amount of money. I don't think you have to be 4 overwhelmed by it. But just know we'll work together, and 5 thank you so much.

6 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Thank you,
7 Maureen.

8 Good morning, Sharon.

9 MS. DUCKETT: Hi.

10 Hello. My name is Sharon Duckett, and I am the 11 disabled mother of special needs twins, Christian and 12 Christina, who both have intellectual disabilities and 13 autism. They will be graduating June of 2016. I am here 14 today to share what I and thousands of other parents are 15 faced with with young adults trying to transition out of 16 high school to adult life.

17 Graduation is usually a time of great joy and 18 promise. The future is awaiting, and now you can pursue 19 all your dreams. But for the special needs young adult, it 20 is a life on hold, a waiting game, and many are still 21 waiting. It is a tragedy that does not have to happen.

22 I received a letter stating both of my twins were 23 eligible for waiver services, but at this time, there is no 24 funding. My heart felt like it was going to stop, and 25 tears began to flow. I could not breathe now.

1 No funding? How can my twins put their daily
2 lives on hold? They will surely lose all their skills they 3 worked so hard to achieve. Waiver services provide 4 supports to help them live in the community and stay at 5 home, the only life that they know.

6 No funding? They will lose both internships.
7 One works at Marshalls and the other at the library. They 8 cannot continue without supports. Their lives will be 9 interrupted. Waiting will destroy them. They will lose 10 hope and their dreams to live an everyday life in their 11 community, like you and I.

12 How many years will they wait? They will wait 13 like thousands of others who are still waiting, waiting and 14 will lose their skills and supports they need daily to take 15 walks, to go to work, to go to the library, to get out of 16 bed. And just like you, we have lives. We need services 17 and supports to live.

18 Why must we wait to live our lives as productive 19 human beings on this earth? Why? Why must children also 20 wait, and for how long will they be waiting to exhale?

21 I ask today that you find more funding for the 22 Waiting List Campaign so that our young adults can breathe 23 and live their dreams, reach for the stars like we have 24 promised them their entire lives. Why must they live a 25 dream deferred -- a dream deferred?

1 What happens to a dream deferred? Does it dry up
2 like a raisin in the sun or fester like a sore and then 3 run? Does it stink like rotten meat or crust and sugar
4 over like a syrupy sweet? Maybe it just sags like a heavy 5 load, or does it explode? You have the power to stop this 6 explosion. Please find more funding for the waiting list 7 so that our children can live their dreams.

8 Thank you.

9 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Thank you,
10 Sharon.

11 REPRESENTATIVE MILLER: Tom?

13 Miller.

14 REPRESENTATIVE MILLER: Are we still doing any 15 questions?

16 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Well, we were 17 going to ask our testifiers to wait until the end, and 18 we're going to hold the questions until the end.

19 REPRESENTATIVE MILLER: Thanks. No problem.

21 PANEL THREE:

22 OLDER CAREGIVERS

23
24 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Could we ask our 25 next panel to please come forward?

1 Just a reminder to the testifiers as well as the 2 Representatives, we're due on the Floor at 1 o'clock, so we 3 have to conclude by 1300 hours.

4 Good morning, Nancy.

5 MS. MURRAY: Hi.

6 Good morning. My name is Nancy Murray. I'm the 7 President of The Arc of Greater Pittsburgh at ACHIEVA, and 8 my husband and I have two adult children with intellectual 9 disabilities.

10 ACHIEVA supports more than 12,800 children and 11 adults with disabilities and their families throughout 12 western Pennsylvania. We provide early intervention, 13 advocacy, family support, inclusive community activities,
14 employment, residential supports, in-home care,
15 special needs trusts, and long-term planning services.

16 Waiting for supports and services has an impact, 17 as you've heard this morning, not only on the person who is 18 waiting but also on their family. While waiting, 19 individuals lose educational and employment skills, and 20 families have to ensure that a caregiver is always 21 available.

22 So in two-wage-earner families, one person often 23 has to give up a job to stay at home to provide care and 24 supervision. In a family in which there is a single 25 caregiver, that person will desperately have to juggle

1 caregiving demands while trying to also work. Many 2 families are forced into near poverty, relying on SNAP and 3 other government benefits. They lose their health-care 4 coverage, and they lose their retirement benefits.

5 And then there are the families in which there is 6 an elderly caregiver in their 60s, 70s, or 80s who is still 7 caring for an adult child who is now 40, 50, or 60. These 8 mothers and fathers are just not caring day in and day out 9 for their adult child with a disability; they may be doing 10 this alone, as their spouse may have died or is not 11 physically able to help any longer.

12 These mothers and fathers are also living with 13 the issues that accompany aging that all of us face, 14 including serious or chronic health issues, loss of stamina
15 and energy, and the daily worry and fear of who will care 16 for their adult child when they are no longer able to do 17 so.

18 Today, I wanted to bring three families that I 19 have known with me, but unfortunately, due to their 20 caregiving responsibilities, they could not come, so I will 21 tell you their stories.

22 First there's Cathy, a mother I met almost 23 40 years ago, who is now in her late 70s and who is a 24 cancer survivor. Cathy had six children when her husband 25 was sent to prison. When he was released years later, he

1 moved to Florida. He never really supported his family, 2 yet he came home at the end of his life when he was dying
3 and needed someone to care for him.

4 Cathy worked and supported her family. One of 5 Cathy's six children is now in her 50s. Amy has 6 Down syndrome, and when she was younger, Amy attended high 7 school alongside children who did not have disabilities, 8 and she was extremely social. Amy had a promising future 9 and was looking forward to having a job and maybe even 10 living independently.

11 Gradually, that dream evaporated. Amy has since 12 experienced a multitude of physical and emotional issues.
13 She has lost her ability to speak, eat, and walk. She has 14 endured countless surgeries and medication regimens. She 15 now requires somebody to be with her 24/7. She still lives 16 with her mother and, thank goodness, has some siblings who 17 are willing to help her mother and able to help her mother 18 care for Amy.

19 • Amy's mother just prays that she will now
20 outlive Amy by 1 day.

21 Then there's Daniel, who is in his 50s and whose 22 mother recently died, leaving Daniel alone in the family 23 home. Daniel has some family members, but none of them are 24 stepping up to assist.

25 In fact, I got the call about Daniel from a

1 friend and her husband who had agreed to be his power of 2 attorney when his mother was dying. When his mother died, 3 Daniel was unknown to the system.

4 Since then, this couple has completed eligibility
5 paperwork for government benefits and a special needs 6 trust, has gotten him much needed medical attention, and 7 has organized a group of people to check in on him multiple 8 times each day. However, at some point, Daniel will be 9 moved into a group home with people he does not know, and 10 he is still wondering what happened to his mother.

- 11 • Daniel's mother did not outlive him by 12 1 day.

13 Then there is Nan, who is in her 70s, and her 14 son, Drayton, who is in his 50s. Nan's husband died a few 15 years ago.

16 Drayton was a successful businessman until one
17 day, 7 years ago, while on a fishing trip, he had a heart
18 arrhythmia, lost consciousness, thus cutting off his air
19 supply. When he awoke from a coma 5 days later, he had no 20 memory of the event. Today, he is unable to work and 21 cannot retain his short-term memory. He has now moved back 22 home with his mother, as he needs daily supervision.

23 He is not waiting for services through the ID 24 system; he is waiting for services through the Office of 25 Long-Term Living, but Nan found me through our parent

1 network.

2 • Nan also hopes and prays that she will outlive
3 Drayton by 1 day.

4 As you have heard this morning, there are 5 thousands of elderly caregivers across Pennsylvania who are 6 facing the need to be a caregiver while at the same time
7 they are dealing with the death of a spouse, their own 8 failing health, and the end of their own lives.

9 Maybe you know one of these families. If not, 10 just for one minute try to imagine what it must be like to 11 be in your 70s, to be someone's sole caregiver, to be 12 exhausted at the end of every day, to be dealing with your 13 own medical issues, and to wake up every day worrying about 14 who is going to take care of your adult child when you 15 become too sick or die.

16 So on behalf of these three families, all the 17 families you've heard about this morning, and families who 18 are not with us this morning, I hope that when you are 19 voting for the Governor's budget that you will remember all 20 of these families who are, without a doubt, some of the 21 most vulnerable of Pennsylvania's families.

22 Thank you very much.

23 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Thank you,
24 Nancy.

25 Mary? Good morning.

1 MS. OHL: Hi. Good morning, Representative Murt
2 and Members of the Committee.

3 My name is Mary Ohl. Can you hear me? Good 4 morning.

5 And I'm here to give testimony from the 6 perspective of an aging older parent and caregiver. We 7 live in northeastern Pennsylvania in a town called Milford, 8 which is in Pike County.

9 I would like to insert a little humor, so bear
10 with me; give a little levity here. I heard a wonderful 11 joke, and it will only take 2 minutes.

12 This wonderful woman, she's about 85 years old, 13 she goes to the pearly gates of Heaven, and who's there but 14 the archangel Michael. And she's all set to go in because 15 she knows she has lived a beautiful, wonderful, moral life.

16 And he says, "Just one question, Mabel. You just 17 got to do one thing." She said, "What's that?" He says, 18 "You got to spell one word that I give you." So she said, 19 "Well, what's the word?" and he says "Charity." So Mabel 20 goes, "C-H-A-R-I-T-Y." "Fantastic; you're in. Just do me 21 a favor. Watch the gate for about 5 minutes. I got to 22 take a break."

23 With that, her ex-husband shows up at the pearly 24 gate. Mabel's not too happy to see him; he's not happy to 25 see her either. So he goes walking in. He says, "You

1 know, I've been good. You know, I know you don't think so,
2 but I've been good, and here I am." She says, "One thing.
3 One thing. You have to spell a word that I give you." He 4 says, "Oh, okay. What's the word?" She says,
5 "Czechoslovakia."

6 Anyway. Anyway, it helps my nerves when people 7 laugh.

8 So Dennis was born 47 years ago and was diagnosed 9 with intellectual disability, autism, multiple congenital
10 cardiac defects. He's also legally blind, about 60 percent 11 deaf in both ears, and has a speech impediment. The 12 doctors tell me that his hearing and vision will 13 deteriorate yearly.

14 My testimony has been submitted to you all, but 15 also in the interests of time, I would invite you to view a 16 short video, a documentary done a couple years back 17 depicting his journey in trying to obtain an everyday life 18 in his community. The website is odpconsulting.net and 19 it's under "Featured Stories." I really think you would 20 enjoy it. It's not long. It's not boring. It's pretty 21 good.

22 So to briefly begin, I must tell you about the 23 impact of Geraldo Rivera's especially poignant documentary 24 called "The Last Great Disgrace." It exposed the 25 atrocities in what was the largest institution in the

1 United States that has about 6,000 developmentally disabled
2 people during the fifties, sixties, and seventies.

3 In this testimony, I'll only use the "R" word in 4 its historical perspective. Remember that.

5 In 1972, he took his camera into the Willowbrook
6 State School for the Mentally Retarded in Staten Island, 7 New York, and exposed the unbelievable atrocities that 8 thousands of residents lived in and graphically displayed 9 the filth, the odors, the overcrowding, the inadequate and 10 abusive care of these residents. This exposure prompted 11 enormous public outrage, and subsequently, new laws and 12 regulations were passed to protect people who lived in 13 institutions. A long time coming, but Willowbrook closed 14 in 1987.

15 A little fact there was that I lived in Manhattan
16 at the time, so I was about 15 minutes away from this 17 place, and I just couldn't get over the fact that it was 18 going on 15 minutes away from me, and I couldn't get over 19 the fact that this was happening in the United States of 20 America.

21 This affected me so much that I knew one thing 22 for sure about my son, Dennis. I didn't know a lot about 23 Dennis. In fact, I really wasn't concerned about his 24 intellectual disability. I just wanted the kid to live. I 25 mean, he was sick in hospitals for 5 years. I said, God,

1 do what you want with the MR, MS, whatever you want to call
2 it, but let him live. So it affected me so much that I 3 knew for sure that he would never, ever go into an 4 institution.

5 Dennis was 18 years old when he moved to 6 Pennsylvania and he enrolled in high school, the local high 7 school. This was very exciting for him, because it was the 8 first time he was with children his own age and in an 9 intermediate unit. I dreaded the day he was going to 10 graduate in 1989, because in those days, there was nothing 11 for him after graduation, especially in a rural community.
12 There was no supported employment, there was no integrated 13 or competitive employment, even secondary education.

14 We were advised by people that were professionals
15 and people that thought they were doing the right thing 16 that sheltered workshop is the answer. "He won't be 17 sitting in front of the boob tube. You guys have to work, 18 so it's the next best thing." We didn't know much about 19 sheltered workshops, to tell you the truth. But I'll tell 20 you, after a few weeks, my husband and I knew this was not 21 for our son, a son who we loved and cherished.

22 There had to be something else, but what? Along 23 this time, we registered with our county's MH/MR, it used 24 to be called. Now it's the MHDS agency. I can't keep up 25 with all the changes, but I certainly am going to try.

1 Along this time, we registered and was assigned a 2 supports coordinator. Soon, we enrolled Dennis into an 3 adult day program. This certainly beat the sheltered 4 workshop that looked like a big airplane hangar with 5 hundreds of people sitting at tables doing different tasks.
6 The level of noise itself was deafening as time went by.
7 I'm sorry: As time went by, I began to search for answers
8 to questions about Dennis's life, his future, and how I 9 could make it better and fulfilling.

10 Unlike the stories you have heard here today, and 11 they were very powerful, and the thousands that you haven't 12 heard, Dennis was enrolled in the home and community-based 13 service waiver. He was not -- I repeat -- he was not on 14 the waiting list. Heretofore, I would like to show you how 15 a young man's life was changed because he was not on the 16 waiting list.

17 (A slide-show presentation was played.)

18 MS. OHL: One thing for sure was that this mom 19 had to get educated in a very serious way. You see, when 20 Dennis was born, I did not get the manual that teaches a 21 new parent how to raise a child to adulthood with 22 significant intellectual as well as physical disabilities.

23 So, off to Harrisburg I went. Why? Because 24 everyone I spoke to said Harrisburg is where they all have 25 the answers, know how to support your child and have a good

1 quality of life. Everything is going to be great. Oh, 2 wait till you see when you go to Harrisburg. It's 3 wonderful.

4 Sitting before you in the room giving testimony
5 today are most of the people, heroes, mentors I call them, 6 the people that are sitting back here and the people that 7 are sitting up there, as well as fearless advocates that I
8 met so many years ago. We won't go into how many years
9 ago, but we met them a long time ago. I met them a long 10 time ago.

11 They mentored to me. They encouraged me. They 12 cried with me. They struggled with me and forged an 13 unbreakable bond that created a second family for our 14 family. The bond was this: how to make sure our 15 children's future was safe, healthy, fulfilling, and to be 16 assured of the same opportunities as everyone else's sons 17 and daughters by birthright had.

18 They were talking about people living in their 19 own communities, not institutions. Even maybe living in 20 their own apartments or homes; working at real jobs in 21 their very own communities. Paying taxes. By the way, my 22 son votes in every single election. Volunteering and being 23 respected and valued members of their communities. Having 24 goals and dreams and never, ever, ever forget about their 25 dreams.

1 Now Dennis is living in his own home that he 2 rents, has caring staff that support him, and is leading a 3 self-determined life. I implore you to see how outcomes, 4 lives, and futures are in the balance. Almost five 5 decades, that's almost 50 years ago, a young mother faced 6 tremendous odds. The people sitting here changed the 7 complete trajectory of how my family's life would be.

8 They also enabled Dennis to meet the many 9 challenges he has had to encounter throughout his whole 10 entire life. Please take a look at that picture and how 11 one person in his life was totally changed because of 12 important decisions being made by this body that you 13 represent. Your mission is for all people with 14 disabilities to enjoy their lives with greater dignity, 15 opportunity, and self-determination.

16 A few months ago, my elderly husband was 17 diagnosed with Alzheimer's disease, and even though this 18 has been hard to ingest, I know the Lord is going to save 19 us, and we believe in Him and He has always been with us.

20 The aging caregiver is going to continue to 21 believe that these extraordinary individuals, families, and 22 this committee, this wonderful committee that you are 23 sitting on, will always believe and advocate for the right 24 that all people have opportunities and choices and be 25 valued members of society, living in their own communities

1 free from abuse, neglect, and discrimination.

2 With your indulgence, I would like to take a 3 moment to mention some of the true pioneers that are 4 sitting before you in this room today.

5 Of course, this distinguished body, I thank you.

6 Our leaders and mentors for many years:

7 Nancy Thaler, she's impossible to understand.
8 She's from Mars, I think, because she just doesn't belong
9 on this earth. She's just solar somewhere.

10 Celia Feinstein, my God. Talking to her, she 11 never changes her sense of humor. She's wonderful.

12 Sheila Stasko has been doing this waiting list
13 I think for 5,000 years.

14 MS. STASKO: It feels like it.

15 MS. OHL: It feels like it is right.

16 Maureen Cronin, come on. With a name like that, 17 you know I love her. Look at all the work she has done.

18 Graynle Edwards over there. Look at him. He has 19 been on boards. He has worked hard advocating.

20 Dee Cocchia, need I say more? You all know her.
21 She's a firecracker. She's not going to take any bull, and 22 she's going to fight until the day she dies.

23 Maureen Devaney. She has a sweeter way of 24 talking, but she's going to get you. She's going to get 25 you.

1 Lisa Tesler. By the way, she's going to be the 2 coordinator of a wonderful happening thing. It's the 3 Family Parent -- I think it's the Parent Family Network.
4 Was I supposed to say that?

5 MS. TESLER: That's fine. The Pennsylvania
6 Family Network.

7 MS. OHL: I don't think it's a secret anymore.

8 But a long time ago, we had partnerships, and 9 what this partnership did was teach families, how to teach 10 families, and self-advocates, how to teach self-advocates.
11 If there's one thing I can stress, teach the families.
12 Remember, when I had Dennis, I knew nothing. You have to 13 teach the families, and understand, families will teach 14 other families.

15 Um, who else? Nancy Murray. I'm not going to 16 say anything about her because I'm mad at her today. But 17 anyway. Anyway, Nancy Thaler and me have been going back 18 for years and years and years -- I mean, excuse me; 19 Nancy Murray, back years and years and years. I love her.
20 She loves me, I think.

21 And Shirley Walker, come on. What's she, 22 30 years with this business? Thirty-five? Is she here?
23 Back there. But she's unending; I see her all the time.

24 And so many more that are not here today. Dennis 25 and I and my husband are blessed; we're grateful to have

1 you all in our lives. I wish you nothing but the best.
2 God bless you all. You are on a good mission. Don't ever
3 doubt it. Don't get bored of it. Don't keep saying, you
4 know, oh, we heard it a thousand times. You are doing 5 wonderful work.

6 I thank you, and any questions I'd be happy to 7 answer.

8 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Thank you, Mary.
9 Good morning, Dr. Edwards.

10 DR. EDWARDS: Good morning, Representative Murt.

11 I want to thank yourselves as well as your panel 12 for allowing me to come before you to share with you my 13 experience as a parent of an intellectually challenged son.

14 Before I begin, I want Mary to be my campaign
15 manager when I run for office.

16 I am here for the purpose of securing adequate 17 financial support for dependent, intellectually challenged 18 citizens of seriously ill and deceased parents.

19 I am a 79-year-old parent of a 50-year-old son 20 who suffered brain damage shortly after birth and have 21 acquired considerable knowledge of the struggle related to 22 a special needs advocacy for the past 60 years.

23 His mother and I have a history of advocacy to 24 ensure a meaningful life in this community since 1975, 25 where we challenged the school system to provide a free and

1 adequate education for our 8-year-old son. During the 2 ensuing years, our advocacy manifested itself in a variety 3 of ventures.

4 Beginning with myself:

5 I was a lifeguard. That's where I provided 6 swimming lessons for cerebral palsy individuals.

7 I have had an opportunity to be a part of 8 demonstrations, both in Philadelphia as well as Harrisburg, 9 again on behalf of intellectually challenged citizens for 10 adequate support services.

11 As an administrator, I was recognized for 12 providing an atmosphere where all of our special needs 13 secondary students were treated with respect and integrated 14 into all of the school activities without prejudice.

15 As a building principal, incidentally, I 16 oftentimes had to advocate for the parents who might have 17 been bringing charges against our building, because 18 oftentimes these parents were not represented adequately by 19 an advocate, which meant that I saw the inadequacies of 20 what was happening with the child, so I thought it was 21 important to help that parent because the child needed that 22 kind of support.

23 I have served on several local and statewide 24 boards for the advocacy for a meaningful experience for the 25 disabled, covering a period, again, of almost 20 years.

1 I have had a chance to speak before committees
2 here in Harrisburg in the past as well.

3 The above activities are demonstrations of our 4 commitment to enable all citizens to live a full and 5 enjoyable life within the community of relatives and 6 friends.

7 We have tried to afford our son with the same 8 opportunities as evidenced by his extensive traveling in 9 many cities, including Toronto, Canada; east of the 10 Mississippi. He has participated in Special Olympics and 11 an assortment of local social, sporting, and entertainment 12 events throughout his life.

13 In recent years, there has been a reduction in 14 some of these activities due to our aging, and we are 15 having to come to grips with the prospect as to what will 16 happen when we are gone. While some dependent adults have 17 relatives who are willing to take on the enormous task of 18 caring, there is a much larger group who have no such 19 safety net.

20 Many of us are approaching our senior years, and 21 more parents are approaching 75 and 80 years and even 22 older. One needs to just view the trepidations that so 23 many elderly parents, including ourselves, are experiencing 24 because of the limitation of such safety nets that are 25 committed to providing a full and meaningful life for their

1 adult children.

2 Going on the website and downloading, quote, 3 "Autistic Daddy," end quote, you will be able to review the 4 many testimonies of parents who are traumatized over the 5 prospect of their child's care when they no longer can.

6 We are hopeful that our children continue a 7 meaningful life in the community, and we are deeply 8 concerned, again, what will happen when we are gone. We 9 have no desire to have our children warehoused in 10 institutions. We have been collaborating with social 11 welfare professionals and agencies for long periods of 12 time to make sure that those kinds of places do no longer 13 exist.

14 Who within the State legislative bodies and the 15 Administration can parents rely on to address this present 16 and real concern? The anticipated need for resources to 17 address the needs of consumers who have lost parents and no 18 relatives to care for them is extremely urgent.

19 There are local and statewide agencies that can 20 provide critical data to substantiate the urgency of this 21 matter, as you have witnessed here this morning.

22 We need a legislative declaration that these 23 needs will be addressed with all deliberate speed and with 24 resources. A lot of anguish and despair can be avoided 25 with an expeditious response to this critical matter.

1 And I want to end with one note, and that is,
2 under normal circumstances, parents expect certain things
3 to happen in their child's life at critical stages. At the 4 end of early childhood, they expect them to be able to go
5 into elementary school. That did not happen for my son.
6 It took us 3, 4, 5 years before an elementary school would 7 accept him, and that was because of legislation that 8 initiated in the Federal Government.

9 When it came time for him to -- when he 10 graduated, there was no place for him to go other than at 11 home because the services were not available. And what's 12 so interesting is how he got a waiver. It was very 13 fortuitous, but this is the story:

14 I happened to be running a high school at that 15 time. I was on my way to work, and I stopped at a 16 McDonald's to get a little sandwich before I got to work.
17 And incidentally at this time, I was working in 18 New Brunswick. This McDonald's was in Philadelphia.

19 A lady walked up to me and said, "Sir, are you 20 going into New Jersey?" She didn't know me from a can of 21 paint. I said yes. And she said, "Are you going to 22 New Brunswick?" Well, now this was really eerie, because 23 that's where my school was, was in New Brunswick. I said 24 yes. She said, "My child goes to Rutgers University. I 25 need a lift."

1 Now, this just blew my mind. So I said, "Okay; I 2 will take you to New Brunswick." And as we drove and we 3 began to converse, she let me know that she worked at 4 Devereux. And we talked and talked, and I took her right
5 to the university and dropped her off, and I let her know 6 that my son had been sitting at home for 5 years. And she 7 never promised me anything, but in a month's time, my son 8 was placed on the waiver. I don't know what she did, but 9 she did the right thing, that's for sure.

10 So our children should not -- or our adult 11 children should not have to experience positive things in 12 their life in that fashion. There needs to be something 13 that is much more organized that we can anticipate certain 14 kinds of supports are going to be in place when they reach 15 certain stages of their lives.

16 So I want to thank you again for allowing us to 17 come together and share with you our concerns. Thank you.

18 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Thank you,
19 Dr. Edwards.

20 We were just saying that woman you met, that you 21 gave a ride to New Brunswick, sounds like an angel, we 22 believe.

23 DR. EDWARDS: Yeah.

24 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Good morning,
25 Joyce. Thank you for being with us.

1 MS. SNYDER: I think several of us parents have 2 met some of those angels.

3 This is Tucker's story:

4 Hello. My name is Joyce Satteson Snyder, and 5 with me is Bill Satteson -- he's a retired American veteran
6 -- and my son, Tucker. We are not only Tucker's 7 grandparents, we are Tucker's adoptive parents.

8 Tucker came to live with us after directly being 9 released from the hospital after his birth. We started 10 early intervention, and he was diagnosed with petite mal
11 seizures, ADHD, intellectual disability, and autism.

12 Unfortunately, before we had full custody, Tucker
13 suffered abuse at 12 months of age. The abuse occurred 14 during a visitation with his biological mother. As much as 15 we want to protect our children, he suffered another abuse 16 early in life.

17 Our knowledge of this didn't come about until 18 Tucker was 17 and in therapy at KidsPeace, a residential 19 treatment facility. Tucker is very trusting, and when 20 placed in learning support in the local school, he was 21 shown by older boys how to use the Internet to view
22 pornography. He started to develop unhealthy obsessions 23 that he could not understand.

24 We enrolled him in a county mental health program 25 after finding out about Tucker's history of abuse and

1 obsessions. We worked with Tucker's mental health
2 case manager to have him start to receive therapy.

3 Without even meeting Tucker, every agency that 4 was called or referred to us refused to provide therapy 5 services for Tucker. The reason that he was refused was 6 because of his intellectual disabilities, autism, sexual 7 abuse, and the sexual obsessions he had developed. None of 8 them felt qualified to be able to provide appropriate 9 therapeutic services for Tucker.

10 When we were not able to get appropriate services
11 in Pennsylvania, we moved Tucker to Canton, Ohio, to live 12 with his biological father. The Canton, Ohio, district had 13 an academy for the autistic with full supervision. There, 14 again, he became a victim.

15 Tucker called us if he could come home, asking us
16 to please find him help. He returned home, where he fell 17 into a depression. We were told that he was not allowed to 18 attend his high school, so he lost the rest of that school 19 year. His depression had worsened. From all the 20 rejections from the school, the therapists, and the 21 Lycoming County Mental Health, Tucker started to believe 22 that there was no hope for him.

23 With little help coming from the mental health
24 team, I turned back to my primary insurance case manager.
25 By summer, his illness had become worse. The rages were

1 happening more often, voicing self-harm. He had no hope of 2 help. At one point, he tried to tear out his vocal cords 3 with his fingernails.

4 His thoughts of suicide and thoughts of harming
5 us escalated. He felt like he had a demon following him.
6 He said he could no longer control his rages. His mind had 7 taken away his will to stop. In one of his rages, he 8 almost killed our cats. I drove him to the ER, terrified 9 he might harm me.

10 November of 2014: He was hospitalized. Again I 11 reached out to my primary case manager who was helping me 12 to get Tucker into an RTC, where the only placement they 13 provided was at KidsPeace. Lycoming County Mental Health 14 fought this placement, telling me that they would not 15 support that facility. I needed immediate surgery they had 16 to postpone so I could focus on Tucker's needs.

17 The first attempt to get approval was denied, but 18 our case manager went to the medical director and got it 19 overturned. Tucker was only granted 150 days, and then he 20 would have to get his care in the community.

21 After his 150 days were done, he was scheduled to 22 be released, but no Community Care had been found, let 23 alone set up. I refused to have Tucker return home because 24 I knew that he needed more therapy and care than what I 25 would be able to give to him.

1 It was at this time that I had to undergo surgery
2 due to the cancer that was found at my doctor's visit. A
3 high-risk assessment was done on Tucker, and it was found 4 that Tucker was too high a risk to be released.

5 Lycoming County Mental Health was asked to find 6 another placement in RTC or RTF or Community Care. It was 7 at this time that I was told by a targeted case manager
8 that if I would have or would let Tucker be arrested, 9 Tucker would get all the mental health paid for under the 10 criminal justice system. I was completely shaken by this 11 statement.

12 Tucker was transferred to the Harborcreek Center 13 in May 2015. KidsPeace had included in Tucker's goals for 14 repetitive training to retain the therapy. The therapist 15 at Harborcreek confirmed the goal. Again, Lycoming Mental 16 Health and Community Care were determined to remove Tucker
17 from the RTF service, again saying services could be met 18 outside of an RTF without having any idea where to find 19 services.

20 Their plan was to put Tucker in an adult mental 21 health group home with no supervision. Without 22 supervision, I knew that Tucker would either be taken 23 advantage of or would end up being arrested and put in 24 jail.

25 So again, I started researching and calling

1 everyone who would listen until I found the right people to 2 help me. The Education Law Office listened to my story and 3 coached me through the hearing process. Community Care has 4 started their denial process, and I was coached on how to 5 do the hearings.

6 After being denied over and over for services,
7 Janice Meinert of the Education Law Office started
8 attending Harborcreek monthly meetings. Out of continued
9 desperation, I found Ned Whitehead, a disability rights
10 advocate and member of the Pennsylvania Waiting List 11 Campaign. Ned started to attend the meetings as well.

12 During this time of the hearings at Community
13 Care and Harborcreek, Bill had a heart attack. In October 14 2015, he went under surgery. He lost his job as a truck 15 driver. Just a month later, I was diagnosed with my second 16 type of cancer for the year. Right now, I'm going through 17 chemo.

18 None of this mattered to Community Care, Lycoming 19 Mental Health, or the Harborcreek business manager. While 20 both Janice Meinert and Ned Whitehead attended this 21 particular meeting, the business manager of Harborcreek 22 said in the meeting that if the money stopped, he would 23 drop Tucker off at a homeless shelter in Lycoming County 24 since his parents would not allow him to return home, never 25 stating we were unable to because of our major health

1 concerns. I was told I should choose my son over my 2 health, meaning my chemo treatments.

3 By this time, I was in tears, and Tucker was 4 listening to all of this. Janice Meinert and Ned Whitehead 5 brought the meeting under control and refocused the meeting
6 on Tucker's needs. Janice Meinert went to the Community
7 Care medical director, who spoke to the Community Care 8 administration, who made an executive decision to continue 9 services for Tucker's care at Harborcreek until proper 10 placement was found.

11 Ned asked why Tucker had not been signed up for 12 the ID services. He stated that Tucker could be eligible 13 for placement in an ID group home where his health and 14 safety could be met. The meeting became productive again.
15 Ned Whitehead and the PA Waiting List Campaign were able to 16 go to the right person who could help Tucker receive 17 services through the ID system.

18 My story doesn't end here. We're still very 19 involved in getting Tucker's placement in a supervised ID
20 group home in Luzerne County. We are looking for a 21 therapist who can work with Tucker. There seems to be more 22 opportunity in Luzerne County for Tucker and his ongoing 23 needs.

24 We were fortunate to find the right people at the 25 right time. How many other people are out there that are

1 facing some of the same health issues we are? They may not 2 be able to get the support services for their family
3 members, and what is happening with these individuals?

4 During the whole ordeal, Bill and I were awarded 5 guardianship over Tucker. Even if he's not in our home, we 6 will always watch over Tucker's well-being.

7 I thank you for listening to Tucker's story.

8 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Thank you, Joyce.

9 And thank you to our testifiers. Thank you.

10 11 PANEL FOUR:

12 AUTISM

14 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Our next panel -- 15 if you could please come forward -- will discuss autism.

16 Thank you for being with us today.

17 Good morning, Lisa.

18 MS. TESLER: Good morning.

19 Good morning, Representative Murt and other 20 Members of the Human Services Committee. Thank you for 21 providing us with the opportunity to speak with you today.

22 My name is Lisa Tesler, and I'm the Policy 23 Coordinator for the Pennsylvania Waiting List Campaign, and 24 I'm also the parent of a 20-year-old with a diagnosis of 25 autism.

1 You have heard a great deal of information about 2 the waiting list for intellectual disability services, but 3 we're going to talk about the autism service system.

4 The Bureau of Autism Services, BAS, has a 5 completely separate and different application and 6 enrollment process. They maintain an "interest list," not 7 a waiting list.

8 The current autism system provides help for about 9 720 people. It has approximately 2,000 people on the 10 interest list. So while we often talk about the waiting 11 list and the PUNS numbers, we need to remember that there 12 is this other population of people who may not be counted 13 or reflected in that data.

14 The "Pennsylvania Autism Census Project: Final 15 Report" was issued in October 2009 and then updated again
16 in 2014. That report identified more than 17,000 adults
17 with autism in Pennsylvania now, and the projections 18 indicate that there will be more than 73,000 adults with 19 autism by the year 2030. And I included the chart for your 20 reference from that report.

21 While these numbers do appear overwhelming, we 22 believe it is possible to address the need. Some of those 23 individuals may not need waiver services. Some may access 24 supports through other programs like the Office of 25 Vocational Rehabilitation. Many are served through the

1 intellectual disability system, and others may be supported 2 by their families and other natural supports.

3 According to the Office of Developmental 4 Programs, only 28 percent of the people who have 5 intellectual and developmental disabilities actually access
6 services. So if that percentage holds true for the autism 7 population, the numbers do become a little bit less 8 insurmountable. However, even that 28 percent is more than 9 we have the capacity to serve now, and so the system will 10 need sustained growth and expansion to meet those needs.

11 There is a great deal of time and attention paid 12 to educating and supporting children with autism, which is 13 important and essential. The education system and the 14 behavioral health system have made significant strides in 15 increasing their capacity and to provide services for their 16 growing number of students with autism. However, it is 17 time to recognize that those children grow up and become 18 adults. The State, policymakers, families, and providers 19 must prepare for and invest in a lifetime of supports for 20 those who will need them.

21 So what changes are needed to support families 22 caring for loved ones with autism?

23 First, reform the interest-list policies to 24 assure that families actually know whether they are 25 eligible for the Adult Autism Waiver, that they understand

1 their entitlement to an intermediate-care facility or an 2 ICF, and that they have the right to choose between the 3 home and community-based waiver services or the ICF 4 setting.

5 The Office of Developmental Programs should 6 provide an initial evaluation for all people currently on 7 the interest list and to those who request funding in the 8 future.

9 Federal regulations outline assurances that 10 States must make to the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid
11 Services, CMS, for home and community-based waiver 12 programs. The States must assure an initial evaluation "of 13 the need for the level of care provided in a hospital, a 14 nursing home, or an ICF/IID when there is a reasonable 15 indication that a beneficiary might need the services in 16 the near future (that is, a month or less) unless he or she 17 receives home or community-based services." This does not 18 happen now.

19 Once evaluated, if the person is likely to meet 20 the ICF level of care, the Bureau of Autism Services should 21 be providing information to those families regarding their 22 entitlement to an ICF and offer them the choice -- ICF 23 setting or home and community-based services.

24 Again, the regulations require "...when a 25 beneficiary is determined to be likely to require the level

1 of care provided in a hospital, nursing facility, or 2 ICF/IID, the beneficiary or his or her legal representative 3 will be---

4 "• Informed of any feasible alternatives 5 available under the waiver; and 6 "• Given the choice of either institutional or 7 home and community-based" waiver "services."

8 That does not happen now.

9 The current process of allowing individuals to 10 languish on the interest list, without any evaluation of 11 need or providing any information regarding the right to 12 choose their service delivery preference, from our 13 perspective, does not meet these assurances. Additionally, 14 it seems cruel to allow a person and their family to 15 continue to wait for service that ultimately they may not 16 qualify for.

17 We also recommend that you provide additional 18 capacity -- that is, serve more people -- in the home and 19 community-based waiver programs to avoid institutional
20 placements in either public or private intermediate-care 21 facilities, nursing homes, or hospitals.

22 Pennsylvania includes ICF services in the 23 Medicaid State Plan. Therefore, all individuals who have 24 Medical Assistance and meet the level of care are entitled 25 to that service -- no waiting.

1 People on the intellectual disability waiting 2 list and those on the autism interest list who qualify
3 could choose the ICF, and the Department of Human Services
4 would be required to place them. The families don't want
5 that, which is why they wait. They don't want isolation
6 and segregation; they want community. However, the people 7 on the interest list are entitled to be informed about 8 their rights and to make that choice.

9 If the individuals currently on the waiting list 10 or interest list exercise their entitlement, the cost to 11 the system would be tremendous. Our public ICFs, or State 12 centers, cost more than $390,000 per person per year; the 13 Consolidated Waiver, serving individuals with intellectual 14 disabilities, costs $123,000 per person per year; and the 15 Adult Autism Waiver averages $51,000 per person per year.
16 So it makes sense, both fiscally and morally, to expand the 17 home and community-based waiver capacity to serve more 18 people and avoid these unnecessary institutionalizations.

19 Prioritize people waiting to ensure that those 20 who are most at risk are offered their services first. We 21 need to make the process transparent and align with the 22 ODP practices in place for the intellectual disability 23 program.

24 So the Office of Developmental Programs utilizes 25 the Prioritization of Urgency of Need for Services for the

1 waiting list for the intellectual disability system. The 2 Bureau of Autism Services maintains the separate interest
3 list. ODP does not know how many or if there are overlaps
4 between the lists, nor do they know or understand the risks
5 or needs of the people who are on the interest list.

6 We recommend one standard process for 7 determination of waiting list status and waiting list 8 enrollment across all ODP programs to avoid confusion and 9 duplication of effort.

10 At this point right now, families who may qualify 11 for both systems must engage in application or a request 12 for services through those two different doors. We also 13 ask that the autism waiting list numbers be published 14 monthly, just like the PUNS numbers are published for ID, 15 to add transparency and accountability to the process.

16 We would like ODP to provide some basic level of 17 support and information to families currently waiting for 18 services through the autism program.

19 People with intellectual disabilities who are on 20 the waiting list have access to Supports Coordination and 21 sometimes to the base or county funding to provide some 22 very limited services. Adults with autism do not access 23 and cannot access those supports.

24 There was once a mini-grant program in the Bureau 25 of Autism Services, but that was discontinued. So we

1 recommend providing some very basic services along with 2 Supports Coordination for adults with autism who need help 3 now but are waiting to access waiver services.

4 Finally, we need to scale up the program to 5 prepare for the tremendous needs as reflected in the Autism 6 Census.

7 Pennsylvania emerged as a national leader in the 8 development and design of the home and community-based 9 service system for adults with autism with the creation of 10 the Adult Autism Waiver and the Adult Community Autism
11 Program. Our community is grateful for the groundbreaking 12 efforts underway here. But as you can see, there is much 13 more that will need to be done to fully meet the needs of 14 the huge number of individuals who need support now and 15 into the future.

16 So to that end, we recommend:

17 • A commitment from our Governor and our 18 Legislators to provide adequate and necessary funding 19 to support sustained growth in the autism services 20 system for adults.

21 • We ask that the Office of Developmental 22 Programs address the structural changes that will be 23 necessary in order to expand their capacity to 24 administer the Adult Autism Waiver program.

25 • We encourage the expansion of the qualified

1 provider network to serve all the adults with autism 2 in need.

3 • And we also ask that the adult autism 4 system include participant-directed services within 5 the autism programs to allow individuals and their 6 families maximum flexibility and control over how 7 their home and community-based services are 8 implemented for them.

9 In preparation for today's hearing, I reviewed 10 many of the written comments to the Office of Developmental 11 Programs that I had made in the past and dusted off my 12 testimonies from previous hearings on the waiting list.

13 Since 2008, when my son was 12 years old, I and 14 the Waiting List Campaign have been making recommendations 15 regarding improvements to the autism system. Many of the 16 concerns I shared in 2008 are still relevant now. I am 17 hopeful, however, that as we move forward, the 18 recommendations we offer today will lead to real systems 19 change.

20 We all play an important role in increasing 21 access to services and improving the quality of support 22 across Pennsylvania and throughout the lifespan for 23 individuals with autism and their families so that they can 24 lead an everyday life like everyone else in their 25 community.

1 Thank you for your time today, and I'm happy to 2 answer questions at the end.

3 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Thank you, Lisa.

4 Good morning, Tom.

5 MR. FLYNN: Good morning, Representative Murt.
6 Thank you. Thank you for this opportunity to speak to you
7 today.

8 My name is Tom Flynn. I live in Etters, York 9 County, and I am the proud father of a young man with 10 autism. His future and the future of many other young 11 people like him across the State brings me here today.

12 Brendan is 24 and considered higher functioning 13 on the scale of autism spectrum disorders. He lives at 14 home with my wife and me, and we are blessed that he has a 15 job. We are able to meet his needs and plan to do so for 16 the foreseeable future.

17 When he was diagnosed with autism at age 5, our 18 son's doctor informed us that the prevalence of that 19 diagnosis was 1 in 10,000. Today, according to the Centers
20 for Disease Control and Prevention, the prevalence is now 21 1 in 68, so our son and many more of his peers are at "the 22 tip of the spear."

23 Pennsylvania's Bureau of Autism Services is aware 24 of the overwhelming need but lacks the resources to handle
25 it. According to figures available on the PA Waiting List

1 Campaign website, a total of 1,989 people were on the 2 interest list for the Autism Waivers available through the 3 Bureau.

4 In the 2016-17 budget proposal, the Department of 5 Human Services has planned to fund 100 new spots in the 6 Adult Autism Waiver, and as we heard earlier from Secretary
7 Thaler, there are only 712 people currently being served 8 with the Adult Autism Waivers.

9 And according to the Bureau's 2014 Autism Census 10 update, 55,000 people with autism in Pennsylvania are 11 receiving some sort of services, but as many as 130,000
12 more, using the State Census figures and the 1 in 68 CDC 13 prevalence rate, are not receiving services.

14 Further, the 2014 Census update projects a 15 doubling of adults with autism, from 17,075 in 2015 to 16 36,261 by 2020 who will receive some sort of State
17 services.

18 So what are we to do? Our State is a national 19 leader with its commitment to autism services. We know we 20 are at the edge of a storm of adults who have already 21 transitioned out or will transition out of school-based 22 services. We have an interest list that will grow 23 exponentially.

24 Fortunately, the Commonwealth does have a way to 25 address these critical needs. The Autism Insurance Act,

1 commonly referred to as "Act 62," was passed in 2008.
2 Act 62 requires many private insurers to cover many of the 3 costs of treating children under 21 with autism spectrum 4 disorder.

5 Unfortunately, Act 62 enforcement has been 6 exceedingly rare. The real-life result is that services 7 that should be covered under private insurance instead are 8 paid by Medical Assistance at a practical loss of millions 9 of dollars to the State.

10 David Gates, a senior attorney with the 11 Pennsylvania Health Law Project, estimated that in 2012, 12 the Department of Human Services could save $25 million 13 annually if Act 62 was fully implemented as intended. By 14 comparison, the budget request for fiscal year 2016-17 for 15 the Bureau of Autism Services is $24 million.

16 By directing the savings of Medical Assistance
17 funds from Act 62 implementation to the Bureau of Autism
18 Services, the Commonwealth can help those in need of adult 19 autism services at a time when the demand will be intense, 20 and that demand can be answered with a funding stream 21 already in place.

22 As a member of the autism community, I ask for 23 your support. Department of Human Services Secretary 24 Ted Dallas has said members of his department will be 25 meeting with counterparts from the Insurance Department and

1 representatives of private insurers. We ask for your 2 support for Secretary Dallas's initiative to secure Act 62 3 implementation, that a law already on the books is 4 enforced, and that the resulting savings in Medical 5 Assistance funds are directed to autism services.

6 That commitment will help my son and so many like 7 him who have autism but will need the assistance and 8 promise offered by the Commonwealth through the Bureau of 9 Autism Services to lead a productive life.

10 Thank you very much.

11 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Thanks, Tom.

12 Good morning, David.

13 MR. JASKOWIAK: Good morning, Representative Murt
14 and other Members of the panel.

15 Thank you for your attention. I know it has been 16 a long morning, but I'm here to share a personal story with 17 you.

18 This is the first time for me. I'm not one of 19 the people that Mary Ohl recited who have been here many, 20 many, many times before, but this has become very personal 21 for my wife and I.

22 We are the proud parents of a 23-year-old, but 23 unfortunately for us, we're not receiving any waiver 24 services whatsoever. And our son is not able to work, at 25 least not at this time. He relies on us for all of his

1 needs, and we are there 24/7 for him, and mostly my wife 2 who is with him.

3 I wish he could be with you here today, but 4 frankly, this setting is more than he could handle or 5 absorb or comprehend. It's a little tough for some of us
6 to comprehend, too, what's going on, so I certainly can 7 understand.

8 I wanted to share with you a couple of snippets 9 about our experiences in dealing with this system, 10 though.

11 When he graduated from high school, we didn't get 12 any help from the high school in terms of what to prepare 13 for. We really didn't. Transition services were really 14 nonexistent. Although they called them that, no one talked 15 about the waiver programs whatsoever. So thankfully, soon 16 when he reached 21 -- and by the way, he left high school a 17 little bit early because they had run out of things for him 18 to do.

19 So we started looking into it, and with the help 20 of somebody, they said, look into the ID system. The 21 problem is, our son is a little bit above that arbitrary
22 threshold of 70 IQ and lower. And it's frustrating, 23 because our son will never be able to live out on his own,
24 we suspect. He can't right now work. He needs supports 25 and services.

1 And we checked with OVR, and they were 2 unfortunately a little bit pessimistic about it, because 3 they made it very clear, well, we only take people who can 4 work for competitive employment. Well, our son right now
5 needs those supports and services. He can't just take a 6 week or two of instruction and then go out and get a job
7 and stick with it. He needs that guidance and assistance.
8 And we trust that he could be one of your success stories 9 if given that opportunity, but unfortunately, there is 10 nothing out there that we have been able to get.

11 Our first attempt to get onto the Autism Waiver 12 was never actually completed. We called into that number; 13 we never got a call back. I continued to look at all the 14 different options and then tried again, and finally in 15 September of 2014 we did get some kind of an acknowledgment 16 back.

17 But to this day, we still don't know what we're 18 waiting for. We're kind of like that airplane that is 19 circling the airport. We don't know when or whether we're 20 ever going to get a chance to land.

21 We asked the Bureau, where do we stand on the 22 list? The answer we got was, the Bureau doesn't give that 23 information out. And I share Ms. Tesler's concern; we need 24 transparency, because, you know, right now, I'm almost 25 61 years old. My wife is a little bit younger than me, but

1 not much. We're scared about what's going to happen to our 2 son going forward. Who is going to take care of him? Who 3 is going to provide for him? Who is going to make sure 4 that he's safe going forward?

5 He doesn't have the social skills. Although he 6 is verbal, he doesn't have the social skills to know when 7 people are trying to manipulate him, when people are trying 8 to take advantage of him. He needs that kind of a setting 9 where he can at least get some friends that he can trust, 10 the things that you and I take for granted every single 11 day. But right now, he doesn't have that. He has our 12 small family.

13 You can't always count on friends and family
14 outside of the immediate family. They have their lives, 15 and frankly, they don't always understand what you're going 16 through.

17 The one thing about autism is that there are 18 sometimes quirky behaviors that people who don't know what 19 you're dealing with get a little bit alarmed about. And 20 it's not like you can just call somebody and say, can we 21 have a babysitter for 5 hours so we can go out to dinner?
22 People don't want to do it. They're a little bit concerned 23 about doing that.

24 So one of the things that we found, though, it 25 has been actually -- it will actually be 4 years now, I

1 think, he's out of high school. He had to get out a little 2 bit earlier. We've seen regression, and that's the thing
3 that scares us the most. The last year has been 4 extraordinarily difficult for us. We're back into a little 5 bit better of a place after just about a year ago now it 6 all started, and we had some very grave medical concerns.

7 We saw a lot of doctors, and at the root of it 8 all, they finally said, a lot of the things that we're 9 seeing physically with your son, we're seeing because he's 10 not dealing very well with the lack of activity, although 11 we try to do everything we can with him and we spend all 12 the time that we can and get him out as much.

13 He knows that there is more to life. He's smart 14 enough to know that there's more to life than the life that 15 he has got right now. He was promised that in school. At 16 various points of time, they put into his mind, you're 17 going to go live out on your own; you're going to go live 18 with friends; you're going to have a job, and then he gets 19 out and finds out the world is not as hospitable as he 20 thinks it should have been, and frankly, he has had a tough 21 time dealing with that.

22 So thankfully, with the help of some very, very 23 good doctors, we are able to get back to a better place
24 right now, but we're scared. It's a slippery, you know, 25 situation we're in. He could backslide at any point in

1 time. And try as we might, we just hope that we don't go 2 down the same roads that we went down before.

3 We're asking, we're pleading with you to please 4 do all that you can to make sure that this waiting list for 5 autistic individuals who may not qualify for the ID system
6 can still get the supports that they need. It's a good 7 economic investment for us, because otherwise, we'll all be 8 spending a lot more money going forward. But more than 9 that, it's not a budgetary thing; it's a human problem.

10 We need to take care of these people. We need to 11 do the right thing. And I thank you for your time.

12 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Thank you, David.

13 Good morning, Mary.

14 MS. HARTLEY: Hi.

15 My name is Mary Anderson Hartley. I'm here today 16 as a parent to advocate for the future needs of my almost 17 16-year-old son, Jack, and young adults like him.

18 I begged, even bribed him with the promise of a 19 movie, hotel, and pizza to make the trip from Pittsburgh 20 and speak, but he would not miss his work at school. That 21 is the kind of young man he is -- and worth fighting for.

22 I want to first thank you. Because of the work 23 of the Pennsylvania Legislature, my son will need less 24 support than adults like him in other States, because kids 25 with autism in Pennsylvania get wraparound services, and in

1 Jack's case, that has been invaluable. He also receives 2 significant special education resources, enabling him
3 ultimately to be fully included in both middle and high 4 school.

5 Autistic adults, too, might get services in 6 Pennsylvania, but very few. It took a lot of tremendous 7 advocacy to get to this point, and our family is grateful 8 for the service of those who laid the groundwork. But we 9 need to do a whole lot more to ensure that all autistic 10 adults have the opportunities for the future and that more 11 people can get access to services, even while they wait.

12 For me, for many of us, it's the uncertainty of 13 not knowing. My husband and I work very hard to plan for 14 Jack's future. We affectionately say that we can live 15 anywhere and eat bread and peanut butter, but our son will 16 get what he needs. I hope and pray we have enough at the 17 end, even with the help of our family, to support him.

18 So I'm grateful there is a hope of the Autism
19 Waiver. It relieves some of the stress, but at the current 20 rate of delivery, the last person on it today will wait 21 20 more years or so to see services.

22 The Bureau of Autism survey estimates that in the 23 next 4 years, 36,000 adults with autism will live in 24 Pennsylvania. We have so far funded, of the typical Autism 25 Waiver, 576 slots. Jack will be one of those 36,000. He

1 deserves a chance to use what skills he is developing now 2 with a little more support to achieve independence in 3 adulthood.

4 I know Pennsylvania does not have the resources
5 now for every person who will need services when my son
6 graduates at 21. He is doing everything he can to be a 7 success in life -- to live, to work independently -- and we 8 are certainly doing our part to make sure of it.

9 So today I'm asking you to do more and better 10 with the resources we have -- yes, to increase the numbers 11 for autistic adults -- but also to build a system for those 12 individuals who will never get access or will wait decades 13 for a waiver to keep them out of institutional settings, 14 hospitals, group homes, homeless shelters, and prisons, far 15 too costly options in terms of human potential and our 16 financial resources. But they are in those places now at 17 too high a price.

18 I'm proposing that there be more help in place 19 for everyone who is waiting. You sign up at 18 for the 20 Adult Autism Waiver, but nothing happens until 21. You 21 don't even know if you qualify. You just wait. It's 22 first come, first serve. I get that, except for the family 23 where someone is hurting others or injuring themselves, 24 wanders, is victimized, and is highly likely to end up in 25 mental institutions, jail, or worse, and was not being

1 treated for autism and how to fix the situation.

2 First come, first serve is a nice idea, but I
3 seriously don't want my son to get supports before someone 4 who is at risk of institutionalization.

5 I was pleased to hear Nancy Thaler say today that 6 changes are coming and that people could be assessed and 7 maybe even categorized by need, but still be on a 8 first come, first serve basis? That could be good. That 9 way, we could still unlock the potential of higher 10 functioning adults who can get some services right away and 11 go to work, pay taxes, and live independently with minimal 12 support but know and identify and prioritize adults with 13 significant needs in their category. If it's truly 14 first come, first serve, I want my son to know what his 15 number is, and I want to know so I can sleep at night.

16 I would personally like to see more county-based 17 systems set up, and if it's already a success, an expansion 18 of the ACAP, Adult Community Autism Program Waiver, that is 19 only in four counties right now. It appears everyone who 20 is on that waiting list is getting served. Could such a 21 system support those on the waiver but also provide drop-in 22 support or counseling to those who are waiting?

23 Could base funds support critical needs like 24 respite care for families who need it so desperately?

25 There should be a significant investment in

1 resources, training, and supports for families to 2 understand what they can do while they're waiting. Perhaps 3 this would prevent an immediate need for full-blown waiver
4 services until later in life -- connections, starting at 18
5 while they're still in school, to work, like OVR; 6 connections to social supports; behavioral health, et 7 cetera.

8 At least when you sign up for the intellectual 9 disability, you are assigned a supports coordinator and 10 have at least one annual meeting -- a relationship of 11 assessment, support, connections. Treating people with 12 autism with less is not fair nor appropriate.

13 I echo my colleagues. We want more and we want 14 more long-term structure to know how people are going to 15 get off the waiting list. The Governor's budget this year
16 proposes 100 additional slots for autism while the numbers 17 of people in need are growing exponentially. We need to be 18 more creative to ensure that those who can be served will 19 be served. We need a plan of support for autistic adults 20 who are going to be waiting, especially recent graduates.
21 They can still make progress and not regress with your 22 support.

23 I know you want to do what's right and I know you
24 can't do everything. I just would like to ask you to do 25 three essential things right now that ensure more autistic adults can get what they need:

- One, use resources more effectively to help more people.

- Two, fix the intake system for the Adult Autism Waiver, and I do have additional suggestions not listed here.

- Three, create a plan that supports autistic adults and their families while they wait, or if they never get access to services.

Thank you.

ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Thank you, Mary, and thank you, testifiers.

PANEL FIVE

ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Our final panel this morning will be Shirley Walker.

Sheila?

MS. STASKO: I don't need to come back up.

ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Okay.

Good morning, Shirley.

MS. WALKER: Good morning. Or good afternoon.

ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Also, before you testify, I just wanted to recognize that my colleague, Representative Joe Emrick, is here. Joe represents part of 1 Northampton County. Good morning, Joe.

2 MS. WALKER: Before I begin, I wanted to make 3 sure that you have this chart which was on the last page of 4 my testimony.

5 And I'll say good afternoon, Representative Murt,
6 Representative Miller, and Members of the Human Services
7 Committee.

8 I am Shirley Walker, President and CEO of PAR.
9 PAR is the only statewide provider association whose 10 mission is solely to provide services and supports to 11 people with autism and to people with intellectual 12 disability.

13 Our members provide the full range of services
14 and supports, from residential services to in-home 15 services, from day services to employment. We provide 16 services to tens of thousands of individuals in 17 Pennsylvania who have an intellectual disability or autism.

18 I welcome this opportunity to appear before the 19 Committee. PAR strongly supports the request for funding 20 that is needed to enable individuals on the waiting list 21 and their families to have the services that they truly 22 need.

23 I am here today to add some facts for your 24 consideration that have not yet been mentioned during the 25 hearing and I do not believe are well understood.

1 But first, I want to acknowledge and express
2 PAR's sincere appreciation to DHS Secretary Ted Dallas and 3 Deputy Secretary Nancy Thaler for the time and attention 4 that they have devoted during the past year to not merely 5 listening to the concerns we have expressed to them 6 regarding the punishing and irrational payment policies and 7 practices that were enacted prior to their coming to DHS,
8 but also for being willing to consider potential short-term 9 and long-term remedial actions.

10 But as willing as Secretary Dallas and Deputy 11 Secretary Thaler may be to consider changes in DHS policy, 12 they are severely constrained by the persistent lack of 13 sufficient funding available to DHS to support these 14 services. It takes political will, legislative will, to 15 ensure sufficient funding for what is needed.

16 As the statewide association whose focus is to 17 ensure that our members who provide these services can 18 continue to provide the services that our waiting list 19 families are seeking, we come to you to make you aware of 20 factors and misperceptions that we believe have contributed 21 to the current difficult situation.

22 In 2011, you are aware that regressive payment
23 policies were imposed by DHS only on providers of services
24 to people with disabilities, not on any other Medicaid 25 service providers. Why was that?

1 What happened in 2011, however, is only an 2 exacerbation of the disparity that has impacted services 3 for people with intellectual disability or autism over many 4 years.

5 On the last page of my testimony is a chart. The 6 chart graphically and sadly depicts the wide and glaring 7 disparity in rate increases for intellectual disability and 8 autism service providers versus the routine annual funding 9 of rate increases that has been appropriated to other 10 Medical Assistance providers like hospitals, nursing homes, 11 and MCOs.

12 To better understand the chart before you, please 13 note that there is a difference between funding increases 14 that are needed to address increased utilization of 15 services and funding that is needed for rate increases.

16 This chart depicts funding that has been made 17 available by the Legislature for rate increases over the 18 years -- flat-lined in comparison to other Medicaid 19 providers.

20 Funding for increased utilization is the funding 21 that is needed to support people who are receiving 22 services, and as people grow older and other things happen, 23 perhaps a medical problem occurs that causes the need for 24 additional support, then it clearly takes more funding to 25 support them. That requires funding that is generally

1 referred to as "increased utilization funding." Funding
2 for increased utilization also is the funding that is used 3 to get people off the waiting list into services.

4 On the other hand, funding for rate increases is 5 what is required to pay the workforce that provides these 6 services. The wages for this valued work need to be at a 7 level that the worker can support his or her own family 8 without having to have a second job or needing a hand-up in 9 government-funded food assistance for their families.

10 Rate increases have fallen so far behind that we 11 now have over 3,500 vacancies that are being so-called 12 "filled" by temp agencies or regular staff on overtime.
13 Both are bad options.

14 The Office of Developmental Programs noted
15 recently that 85 percent of the dollars we receive in rates
16 are spent on staffing. So when there aren't rate 17 increases, you can easily see who gets it in the neck: 18 it's the individual receiving services. Because if 19 direct-support professionals are forced to leave their jobs 20 as soon as they find a better paying job so that they can 21 support their own family, the individual being supported is 22 turned over to another and another and another person to 23 support them.

24 Discontinuity does not result in a quality
25 service. It takes a direct-support professional

1 considerable time and experience with an individual to 2 understand how to provide the best support for that 3 individual.

4 As you can imagine just from your experience this 5 morning observing, these are not easy jobs. They are jobs 6 that require consistency and experience.

7 The disparity in funding for rate increases that 8 you see in the chart is creating the crisis that is 9 stemming from not being able to adequately pay our 10 workforce, which means our workforce has to leave when they 11 find better paying jobs.

12 We have been asking a lot of people why this 13 disparity exists. We were surprised by their responses.
14 For example, we were told that other Medical Assistance 15 programs are mandatory and services for people with 16 intellectual disability are optional, and that's the reason 17 stated for the disparity. But that is not accurate. That 18 is a perception I want to dispel today.

19 Intellectual disability services are covered 20 services under the 1966 Mental Health and Intellectual 21 Disability Act passed by the Pennsylvania General Assembly 22 in its good wisdom and signed into law.

23 And intellectual disability and autism services 24 are subject to the same funding requirements under Federal 25 law as are, for example, hospitals and nursing homes. But

1 they are not treated the same when it comes time to 2 consider rate increases. Why is that?

3 Payments for these services, as with payments to 4 hospitals, MCOs, and nursing homes, must be consistent with 5 efficiency, economy, and quality care and be sufficient to 6 assure the availability of providers competent to provide 7 quality care. Quality starts with the direct-support 8 professional.

9 These rules apply to all Medical Assistance 10 providers. So why is there a disparity for people with 11 intellectual disability or autism?

12 And unlike MCOs, hospitals, and nursing homes, 13 Medical Assistance essentially is the sole payer for 14 intellectual disability services. Families and we, the 15 providers, don't have any third-party pay available for 16 intellectual disability services.

17 Further, unlike nursing homes and hospitals,
18 intellectual disability and autism service providers
19 receive no disproportionate share payments, even though 20 nearly every person with intellectual disability served by 21 our members is 100 percent Medical Assistance eligible.

22 We have also noted on the chart the annual 23 supplemental disproportionate share payments made to 24 hospitals. They have a much smaller percentage of persons 25 they support who are on Medical Assistance than we have.

1 The financial assistance to help them with their 2 Medicaid population is a large number. Why don't providers
3 of services to people with disability who are 100 percent
4 Medical Assistance eligible get disproportionate share 5 payments or the equivalent in rate increases?

6 In addition to these disparities, we are still 7 subject to numerous regressive payment policies that are 8 impacting the availability and the quality of home and 9 community-based services.

10 I will give you three examples of rules that no 11 other Medical Assistance provider type is subject to.
12 These rules went into effect in 2011 before this current 13 Administration, who I believe is trying to change all of 14 that.

15 The first example:

16 Community-based service providers, unlike every 17 other Medical Assistance provider of services, cannot 18 retain any earnings. If a provider experiences any savings 19 in a fiscal year to try to be more prepared for emergencies
20 or even to build a small capital base for extenuating 21 circumstances such as, for example, a budget impasse, it's 22 taken from them dollar for dollar in their future rates.
23 Why is that?

24 The second example:

25 If an individual being served in a residential

1 program is away with his or her family on weekends or for a 2 vacation, under the current payment policies and 3 procedures, a provider may not be reimbursed for the costs 4 that it must continue to incur to maintain the residential 5 support for the person. We can't lay off staff. We can't 6 shut off the electricity or quit paying the mortgage. And 7 if an individual returns unexpectedly from a planned trip 8 with family or a weekend, we have to be staffed and ready.
9 We cannot say no. Our costs remain, yet the fiscal 10 policies that are currently in place will not reimburse 11 those required costs.

12 If an individual is away from their residence, 13 their home, for any reason outside of the control of a 14 provider, why is the provider, and by extension the 15 consumer, penalized?

16 We are in a single-payer system. We are unique 17 in that we are the only service that is in a single-payer 18 system. So how does a provider ever deal with loss in 19 revenue? They have no way to recover lost funds.

20 The third example:

21 For residential services, the allowable costs 22 reported by providers to DHS are typically 2 years old when 23 used for rate-setting purposes with no adjustment to 24 account for basic cost-of-living increases like utilities, 25 not to mention increases in health-care costs or for other

1 mandated costs. Why is this? Why are these providers
2 of services to people with disabilities treated 3 differently?

4 We're very aware of the stresses and demands on 5 the State budget. We ask that as you confront the budget, 6 that you prioritize the waiting list and a rate increase 7 for intellectual disability and autism services that is 8 sufficient to start closing the gap that the chart shows.
9 Rate increases that directly impact the workforce that 10 supports people with disabilities should be valued at least 11 in the same way as rate increases for other Medicaid
12 providers.

13 These services for people with intellectual 14 disability and autism are no more optional and no less 15 mandated by law than the other Medicaid provider types that 16 you see in the chart. So why are services to people with 17 disabilities treated differently?

18 We want to work together with you on solutions.
19 We are currently working with Members of the House 20 Intellectual Disability and Autism Caucus on legislation to 21 address the funding and rate-setting issues. When the 22 legislation becomes a reality, we ask for your active 23 support. The legislation is being written to help close 24 the gap through a thoughtful, planful correction of the 25 longstanding disparity.

1 Thank you for your consideration of my testimony.
2 Please use me as a resource for any questions you have.

3 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Thank you,
4 Shirley.

5 Thank you, Secretary Thaler, for staying with 6 us.

7 At this time, we'll entertain some questions.
8 Please bear in mind that we have to be up on the Floor at 9 1 o'clock, so.

10 Representative Miller.

11 REPRESENTATIVE MILLER: Thanks, Tom.

12 I think you mentioned the time issue to me on 13 purpose.

14 You know, I just first want to say thank you to 15 everyone who spoke today. I think Tom did a great job 16 keeping us all on target, and obviously the chair people 17 who are not here today did a fantastic job being sure we 18 hear from a diverse group of people who are involved.

19 I also want to thank some of the young people who 20 testified. I think, is that Glenn in the back? I think I 21 see Glenn still back there. So we appreciate hearing from 22 all of the young people, in particular, who came today.

23 You know, obviously it's kind of funny at the end
24 to be sitting here with Tom. I feel like the two of us
25 spend a lot of time talking about these types of issues. I

1 will tell you, though, your stories at times were, well, 2 impactful and difficult. The only thing, of course, is 3 they are nowhere near as difficult as living these stories 4 that you all shared with us today.

5 These are things here that we need to hear about,
6 and although some people aren't behind us here today, 7 obviously this whole thing will be recorded, and the 8 Committee, of course, I think will look to take action.
9 People know a little bit of some of the work that Tom and I
10 are trying to do on the caucus, and that's fantastic.

11 But I will tell you, though, I appreciate the 12 Administration staying the whole time. I appreciate where 13 we were, and I appreciate people referencing where the 14 State has been, in my opinion, which had been at the 15 forefront of a lot of these movements. Many of you, as 16 previously referenced, have been here for a couple of 17 decades leading that fight.

18 I'll be honest with you, though. I don't feel 19 like we are at the forefront of it anymore. I feel like 20 we're living off of an old reputation, one that has been 21 dismantled rather quickly. At the same time, we are seeing 22 large increases of need.

23 I know some people mentioned the age of our care
24 -- the amount of people in Pennsylvania who are being cared 25 at home. That's fantastic, and it's great to see in some

1 ways, I guess, that we're about the same, the typical 2 State, but we're not the typical when it comes to the age
3 of the caregivers, especially in some of our counties like 4 Allegheny County.

5 Our caregivers are up there in age. This is a 6 big issue. We had grandparents here today talking about 7 caring for their adoptive son now. These are big, massive 8 issues. And I'll be honest with you, I don't believe we 9 are operating with enough urgency as we need to, and I 10 don't believe that we have put forth a plan that would 11 appropriately move on these issues with it.

12 I'll be honest: I am embarrassed by the waiting 13 list. As a State Representative, someone who has some 14 degree of a vote up here, I'm embarrassed that we have it, 15 and I think that everybody who understands a little bit of 16 this issue should understand why it's an embarrassment to 17 our State.

18 We can and should be doing better. It's a 19 massive problem.

20 I would also want to just kind of speak about 21 school, why we're not doing a better job of transitioning 22 our kids to adulthood. We know where the kids are. We 23 know where the kids are.

24 The families, most of them, generally will come
25 to the IEP meetings, okay? The school is there. There's a

1 transition coordinator of some type that is there. Why 2 there is any delay or why there is any confusion as to what 3 happens at the end of that 18, 19, 20, 21st year when they 4 are graduating, I don't get. I don't get. I don't 5 understand.

6 Everything we need is at that table to be able to 7 push us forward with maybe one other phone call. So I'm 8 very lost and confused by that aspect, just as I am 9 embarrassed by the state of our State in relation to the 10 issues that you brought up here today.

11 I know that Tom mentioned questions. I have a 12 lot, to which I'll look to get back to everybody with. But 13 what I will tell you is, your testimony here was definitely 14 important to us.

15 And while I appreciate many things that we have 16 to talk about with that budget, there is somebody who 17 mentioned a moral and a fiscal responsibility here in 18 relation to the needs that you expressed, and we have to do 19 better. We have to demand that all of our Representatives
20 and our Governor and our Senators all do better with a 21 sense of urgency, not an urgency in how to pick between who 22 gets in and who gets out; an urgency in the fact that 23 people need help now, and waiting to just see how long you 24 live is not a good option, and it's, as I said, very 25 troubling to hear that today.

1 Thank you, Tom, Mr. Chairman, for the courtesy of 2 the time.

3 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: I just want to 4 make a couple of comments also.

5 Obviously, thank you to our testifiers.
6 Representative Miller and myself have done our very best to 7 coordinate the Intellectual Disability Caucus and rally our 8 colleagues and so forth. But I still believe that the best 9 advocates are you, our family members, the caregivers, the 10 people that really know the issues.

11 I have only been in Harrisburg 10 years, and 12 really, one of my first days here I met Sheila Stasko, and 13 I have really been -- that was a good day. That was a good 14 day; yeah. And I have really tried my hardest to learn as 15 much as I can about these issues and their challenges and 16 so forth. And even after 10 years, I still hear things 17 that I don't understand and I need clarification on, so 18 this is really a very, very complicated issue.

19 And one of the examples that I always use to 20 illustrate these challenges to our colleagues that still 21 are learning about intellectual disabilities is the fact 22 that there are literally parents that are in their 80s, and 23 I bet there are some in their 90s.

24 Bernie O'Neill, my colleague from Bucks County, 25 says he has a family where the mother and father are in

1 their 90s, and they are caring for a son or daughter at 2 home, and the son or daughter is in their 60s. And the 3 parents are struggling with age-related issues, and their 4 son or daughter is struggling with their disability, as 5 well as their own health issues. And that is really the 6 example that I like to use to illustrate what these 7 challenges are like to our colleagues, and that really 8 seems to hit home.

9 And something else Representative Miller
10 mentioned was about, down in my part of the southeastern 11 part of Pennsylvania -- I represent Philadelphia and 12 Montgomery County -- we have some just outstanding school 13 districts, and they do a great job working with the special 14 education students, training them to a very, very high 15 level of readiness, working on cognitive skills and being 16 on time, being dependable, being reliable. We have 17 students from three different school districts that work in 18 my district office, and it has been a great program.

19 And the issue is that when they graduate, they're 20 ready to go to work. They want to work. They want to pay 21 taxes. There are no supports for them, and that is a 22 really sad situation when these students will graduate in 23 June and will leave our office and then they will not have 24 any kind of transition place to go. And it's called 25 graduating to the couch, I guess, but that's really kind of

1 a sad, sad commentary, and we're really fighting for more
2 funding for all of these services.

3 And I meant what I said. This is, in my world, I
4 feel like this is the biggest priority there is in State
5 Government. This is all about people. And, you know, I
6 get testy sometimes, and we haven't done this in a couple 7 of years, but when they have money to build a soccer
8 stadium and things like that, I love soccer, but they can 9 snap their finger and that money appears, but try and find 10 money for people with disabilities and it's like we're 11 pulling teeth, pulling someone's teeth.

12 But we're going to keep fighting with the 13 mission, and we hope that you will join us. We're very 14 fortunate to have a leader in Secretary Thaler that gets it 15 and is just as compassionate as they come, and we're very, 16 very grateful, Secretary, for your commitment to this 17 mission.

18 Okay?

19 REPRESENTATIVE MILLER: Hey, you're the boss.

20 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Okay. I'm going 21 to conclude our hearing because we have to get to the 22 Floor.

23 And Secretary, can you stay for a few minutes if 24 someone needs to talk to you?

25 DEPUTY SECRETARY THALER: Absolutely.

1 ACTING MAJORITY CHAIRMAN MURT: Okay. We'll
2 conclude the hearing. Thank you.
